EQUANIMITY LIVES.

The fishermen, at sea in the regions
The sailor sails over the sea;
The rubbernecks crush the rubber;
The woodman lays axe to the tree.

They are each of the breed of the heroes,
The manliest attempered in strife;
Strong hands that go lightly to labor,
True hats to their tasks conform to life.

In each is the seed to replenish
The world with the stock it is made—
The sap plain to generous deeds.

But the sheeks drink the blood of the fisher,
The sailor is dropped in the sea;
The soldier lies cold by his cannon;
The woodman is crushed by his tree,

Each prodigal life that is wasted
In manly achievement unseen,
But lengthens the day of the coward,
And strengthens the crafty and mean.

The blood of the noblest is lavished
That the selfish a profit may find;
But God sees the dross that are squandered,
And we to his wisdom are blind.

Miscellaneous.

Distressing Case of Suicide by a Young Lady at Mess.

SHE TAKES POISON, HAVING BEEN DESERTED BY HER LOVER, WHO MARRIED ANOTHER GIRL.—AFFECTING EVIDENCE OF THE SISTER.

From the London Free Press.

One of the most distressing cases of suicide that has came under our notice for a long time, took place in the township of Mosa, on Saturday, the 27th ult. The facts are as follows:—Two girls, Ann and Margaret McCallum, daughters of Mr. McCallum, farmer, resident on the town line between Mosa and Brooke, were out in service at gentlemen's houses in Detroit. The deceased, Ann McCallum, had resided for four years at the house of Col. Cook, of Detroit, and bore a most estimable character. During this time, she received the addresses of a young man named Donald McClaughlin, a farmer in Mosa, who had repeatedly promised her marriage; indeed, they had been engaged for three years, and the wedding day also fixed. Some three months since, the deceased, Ann, became enceinte, supposed by her lover, though this does not appear in the evidence at the inquest. At any rate, the fact of her pregnancy was concealed from her sister, who at her earnest persuasion, [illegible] to marriage, repeatedly fixed the day for the nuptials, and as often broke his word, showing himself as heartless a villian as ever betrayed a confiding woman. About the end of November, the man again pledged himself to bring his three years' engagement to a close, and marry the girl on a fortnight; but the very day before the event was to take place, he wedded another girl, Miss Margaret Ferguson. On learning of the Marriage, the wretched girl became fearfully agitated, and at once resolved to commit suicide, and thus terminate her troubles. She did not conceal her state of mind from her sister or friends, but repeatedly stated that they would see her no more after she got home. Before she left Detroit, she swallowed some laudanum; but the dose being too powerful, the poison did not take effect, and was ejected from her stomach. Her sister Margaret, who displayed all the tenderness and love that woman can show, closely watched her sister, but the day before her death, left her for two hours. During this interval, Ann McCallum went to the store of Mr. Spence, Woodward Avenue, Detroit, and obtained a small packet of some corrosive poison, probably oxalic acid. Her sister, penetrating her design, tried all her womanly arts to get the fatal packet from her, but without succeeding. The next day, Saturday the 27th, the two girls left Detroit for their fathers house in Mosa, where, about three miles off lived Mr. Donald McLaughlin, to whom we have referred. The girls reached the house of their parents in the evening. The quick eye of the mother detected nothing amiss in the conduct of her daughter, who was soon to become a corpse by her own act. The family retired to rest, Margaret sleeping with her sister. After a short time the deceased arose, took the fatal draught, which quickly brought on the most agonizing pains. Her cries alarmed the house; her mother was quickly to her bedside; she threw her arms around her parent's neck; prayed God to have mercy on her soul—and died in a few minutes. What the agitated feelings of the unhappy girl were at that moment, who can imagine! Her poor body racked with the fatal poison, and her mind wrung with anguish at the remembrance of her wrongs—at the unhappy condition in which she alone knew she was placed. Amidst all this bodily and mental torture, the mind of the wretched girl was directed to her exit from Time into Eternity, and the cry that God might have mercy on her soul mingled with her exclamations of bodily torture. Such was the end of the poor girl, whose confiding nature had made her the prey to the lusts of one whose conscience must ever torture him.

DISTRESS IN NASHVILLE.—The Nashville Union says that nearly one thousand families, belonging to soldiers now in the rebel service, or who have been killed or died in that service, are in that city without food, clothing or wood, and are daily making piteous appeals to the federal authorities for relief.

LIBEL SUIT.—Dr. Stewart has been found guilty at Kingston of the libel upon Dr. Yates, and Judge Mackenzie immediately sentenced him to three months imprisonment in the common Jail, together with a fine of $100. It was a most atrocious libel upon an unoffending gentleman, who had done nothing to provoke it.

The Loss of the Monitor.

DETAILS OF THE DISASTER.

Baltimore, Monday, Jan. 5.

The American's special Fortress Monroe letter, dated January 4 says:

In conversation with several of the officers and crew of the Monitor, I gather the following narrative of the facts attending the loss of that noble little vessel and so many of her crew:

We left Fortress Monroe on Monday, the 29th of December, in tow of the steamer Rhode Island, with the Passaic in tow of the steamer State of Georgia. We passed Cape Henry Monday afternoon at five o'clock, with a smooth sea and light wind. The Passaic was a little way ahead. The weather continued fine until 5 o'clock on Thursday evening, when it commenced to blow from the south-west, with a heavy sea running, and making a clean sweep over all.

At half-past nine, Cape Hatteras bore N. N. E., distant 20 miles. The gale still increased. The vessel labored very heavily, the upper hull coming down upon every sea with fearful violence. Up to this time the Worthington pumps and bilge injectors were entirely competent to keep the vessel free.

At 10 o'clock several heavy seas struck the vessel in succession, when word was sent from the engine-room that the water was gathering on the pumps. Orders were then given to start Adam's centrifugal pump, capable of throwing 3,000 gallons of water per minute. For a while the water appeared to be kept under.

In a short time, however, word was passed from the engine-room that the water was again gaining on the pumps, and was at that time up to the ash pits, in a great measure stopping the draft. The water at this time was standing two feet on the ward-room floor.

All hands were then sent to work with every bucket at hand to bail. Water, however, kept gaining upon the steamer.

A "Cooton" signal was then flashed, to call the attention of the Rhode Island to our condition. After much delay, consequent upon the heavy sea running, a boat was lowered from the Rhode Island and sent to our assistance. After several trials she succeeded in getting alongside of us.

The Rhode Island at the same time, in going astern, caught her launch between her own side and our vessel, crushing the boat badly, and bringing her own counter heavily down upon our side. For a time she could not move her engine, which had caught on the centre. She finally started ahead, and the launch, smashed as it was, succeeded in conveying to the steamer thirty of the crew of the Monitor.

After the departure of the launch, those remaining on board worked at the buckets with a will. The gale at this time was raging furiously, the sea making a clean sweep over the top of the turret. The water at this juncture had succeeded in rising up to the grate-bars of the furnaces, and was gradually extinguishing the fires. The steam in the boilers consequently run down, and the pumps could not be worked for want of sufficient steam.

At this time three boats were discovered coming toward the vessel. Word was passed that boats were at hand sufficient to take all from the vessel. The Monitor was now sinking. Every pump was stopped, and her deck was under water. Several, on coming off the turret, were swept by the waves to the leeward, and must have perished, as no assistance could be rendered them.

The boats then shoved off from the sinking vessel. Although entreated to come down and get into the boats, several remained standing upon the turret, afraid of being swept away from the deck, stupefied with fear. The boats succeeded in reaching the Rhode Island in safety, and all in them got on board.

A picked crew, with the gallant officer of the Rhode Island, Mr. Brown, then shoved off in the launch to return to the Monitor. The moon, which up to this time had been throwing some light upon the waves, was shut in by dense masses of black clouds.

At a quarter to one in the morning the Monitor's light disappeared beneath the waves. The Rhode Island then started for the spot where the Monitor was seen to go down. Coston signals were constantly kept burning. A strict lookout was kept on all parts of the vessel, to catch a glimpse, if possible of the missing boat.

At daylight nothing was seen on the waves, and with heavy hearts we ran round the spot as nearly as could be judged, where the Monitor descended, until late in the afternoon. Several steamers and other vessels were spoken, to learn if possible the fate of the missing boat, but nothing could be heard.

The survivors reached Fortress Monroe last evening in the Rhode Island. Nothing whatever was saved, except the apparel the officers and crew stood in. The conduct of both the officers and men of the Monitor was beyond reproach. No sign of panic was visible. Each stood to his post, confident in his commander, and it was hard to prevail upon the men to get into the boats, each one wishing to remain by until the last.

The first cutter of the Rhode Island, the boat referred to above, contained William Brown, Master's Mate, and seven of the crew, whose names I have not been able to

Pet Words

Every [illegible] has its pet words, expressions, forms and constructions, originating each in some accidental circumstance, now in some theory, only amenable, habits, or caprice of a favorite writer, which for the time, constitute unsightly excrescences upon the body of the speech, but finally drop off and are forgotten. To take single words it is difficult at this moment to find a page in a popular French writer which does not contain the word grossesque or some of its derivatives. On the other side of the Channel, I must instance a more unfortunate case. The epithet lovely can fitly be used only of beings capable of exciting, by their moral physical perfections, the passion of love, and, at the same time, of reciprocating it. That only is lovely which is both loveable and loving. In the affection and exaggeration which so often characterize the phraseology of polite society, this unhappy word was seized upon and generalized in its application, and it came [illegible] the one epithet of commendation in young ladies' conversation.

SAVE US FROM OUR FRIENDS.—A ridiculous story, apropos of garrotters, is now being told in London. A very timid man, resident in the suburbs, always carries a loaded stick, and is constantly on the look-out. The other night, as he was walking home, near his house a man pushed rudely against him. The timid gentleman, with great presence of mind, immediately struck him a severe blow with the loaded stick, and the man ran off, leaving his hat behind him. The timid man, greatly elated, picked up the hat, and read on the lining the name of one of his intimate friends. Dreadfully shocked, he at once hastened to his friend's house to explain matters. He was received at the door by his friend's wife, who, to a voice inarticulate with sobs, "Oh, I am so glad to see you! Poor Edmund!—is in bed upstairs!—covered with blood!—he's been garrotted—Express.

A BRUTE.—Says the Journal: "There is a man residing at Port Dalhousie who has ill treated his wife to such a extent that her intellect has become impaired, and [illegible] abuses her. On Christmas the husband got drunk, beat his wife in the evening, and turned her out of the house, notwithstanding that it was raining at the time, and she was thinly clad, and without shoes or stockings on. The poor creature stood out in the cold shivering and scolding her besotted husband, her language revealing the fact that he had used her most shamefully before putting her out. Several of the neighbours endeavoured to induce her to go into the house, but she refused unless of the safety of her children, which the husband refused. If the Port people do not take some means to stop this man's ill treatment it is altogether likely some serious consequences will be the result."

AN EXTRAORDINARY ACT.—The majority of the Board of Common School Trustees, in their efforts to shield Mr Hay from the consequences of his conviction of a heinous crime have performed some extraordinary acts. One of the last of them we now record. The engagements with the teachers is an annual one, and the salaries are payable annually. It has however been usual for the Board to divide among the teachers the Government school monies, as they were received. The balance was commonly settled after the taxes had been collected. So it happened that a considerable sum of money was due to Mr. Hay at the time the judgment had been given against him in the suit of Stuart vs Hay. It was a claim which might have been attached by the plaintiff in that case, and to secure it the Trustees gave Hay an order for the amount of his salary, which order Hay had "shaved" report says, by the Chairman of the Board, Mr. Hodge, and at the last regular meeting Mr. Hay brought to the Board on account for the amount of the "shave" and it was actually passed and ordered to be paid. So the Board, to carry out their game were willing not only to attempt to defeat the action of the law by anticipating the usual time of the payment of Hay's salary; but they were content to take out of the public funds the cost of carrying out the trick.—Freeholder.

THE SILVER GLUT IN CANADA.—It would do a hard money man good to go to Canada. The currency consists almost exclusively of American silver. Silver abounds everywhere. Everybody is loaded with it, and everybody tries to get rid of it, as people do with doubtful funds. The taxes are collected in silver, and the collectors take it by the bushel. We were informed in Toronto, last week, that the treasurer of that city had a heap of it. The merchants have bags of it in their safes. The banks won't receive it. The Great Western has issued printed notices, that only five per cent of silver will be received by it for fare or freight. Only think of a country where you cannot pay your fare on the cars in silver coin. At Toronto the business men and firms have united in a general resolution to hold silver at a discount of five per cent. for Canada bank paper. This, of course, applies to American silver, as the Canadian and English coinage is probably a legal tender. Think again of a region where at six hours distance of this place, no [illegible] are worth five cents on the dollar more than pure metal.—Syracuse Journal.

The Intercolonial Railway.

From an article which appeared a short time ago in the Montreal Transcript, and which will be found in our columns to-day, we learn that the scheme for the construction of this Road has been favorably received in England—that the preliminaries have been agreed upon. England as usual appearing to advance the means, in the meantime, and all that is wanting to complete this colossal undertaking is the assent of the Parliaments of the Provinces, to ratify the agreements made by their Commissioners.

This important undertaking has been pretty freely discussed, both in Parliament and by the Press. Like many kindred matters, it has its friends and its foes. The chief objection urged to the scheme, is, the enormous cost of constructing and working the road. There is, it appears, a deal of unsettled land through which it will have to pass, and land which is not likely to be settled upon for a good while to come. If, however, such a road was in operation, the advantages, barring the cost, would be immense to the country. It would give us a highway to the ocean through British territory, and put us in direct communication with Britain throughout the year, a matter of great importance in the event of a war with the United States.

Not only would this Railway, if made, be of great service to the Province, as a commercial as well as a defensive measure, but it would form a very important link in that long talked of Highway across this [illegible] to the Pacific Ocean—a project which would pass through her own territory, and would open up an immense new territory, capable of cultivation, affording homes for ages to come for her redundant population. It would develop the resources of the gold bearing territory of British Columbia, and bring that distant colony, as well as the intervening ones of the Saskatchewan and Red River, in much greater proximity with Canada and Britain than at present.

The construction of this great national work is but a question of time, and although the project of opening up a way to the Pacific and China, through Canada, has been talked of for more than 180 years, we believe the child is born who will see this great work completed.

Our intention, however, in alluding to the Intercolonial Railway was not to advocate its construction or otherwise; it was rather to notice in the connection of this as well as the projected line west to the Pacific, the practical and sensible observations of Sandford Fleming, Esq., the Engineer of the Northern Railway, on the latter point. In a letter to Mr. Hind, who writes a sketch of an Overland Route to British Columbia, Mr. Fleming briefly reviews the subject, and gives his opinion of the most feasible way of accomplishing so gigantic and momentous an undertaking. He reviews the whole road systems of Canada, from the earth roads to railroads, shows the cost of making, keeping in repair, and working these, as well as pointing out what he considers as preliminaries in this great undertaking. He is a man of experience, of good common sense, and as such his opinions carry weight, and will be readily acquiesced in by men of experience everywhere.

He first recommends in opening up a new country—such a country as that lying between us and the Rocky Mountains—to lay out a good road in the direction required, that may eventually be used as a railroad. Of course this will require some care and expense, but the advantages will be seen directly. Such a road should be chopped and cleared 2 chains or 150 feet wide. He then recommends to make an earth waggon road, and erect a telegraph. This road would answer to transport emigrants until the country got somewhat settled, when these could be employed in turnpiking, and finally gravelling the road. It would then be in position to lay down rails. The traffic on the road by the influx of settlers would increase, and enable the Company to push on. From this road he recommends others at fixed distances, to intersect it at right angles, from which the regular surveys of lots and townships would be made, with the usual road allowances. The latter he calls "Colonization Roads," the former a "Territorial Road."

He advocates care in the laying out of leading roads, as a little attention at first will save subsequent cost and toil.

In opening up the new country in rear, his hints might have been adopted in the early settled upon.

We recommend the perusal of the letter of Mr. Fleming, and the subject will come under the notice of the Government sometime or another, as frequently happens that in place of practical and common sense plans for opening up and settling new country, being adopted by a Government, some chimerical or expensive scheme is adopted instead. We hope, however, that these practical observations will find their way into the Crown Land Department, and be acted upon.

THE WAR.

Since the great battle of Fredericksburg on the 13th December, Burnside's defeat of the Federal army does not seem to have affected much. It is reported that the President is to allow him to take his own way. How this will tally with a subsequent announcement that President Lincoln is to take the field as Generalissimo, we leave others to say. It is clear that the army required some time after that bloody engagement, to recruit, and no opportunity of a successful attack presenting itself, the enemies need be entertained on the score of inactivity. In the state of Tennessee General Rosecrans with his Division pushed the Rebels, about the end of the past year, and after six days hard fighting succeeded in driving them from Murfreesborough. The fighting is reported ferocious and sanguinary, and the victory claimed—if victory it be—by the Federals—dearly bought. A few such victories would seriously affect the northern army. Fleets and armies are upon the Mississippi, ready to receive the emancipated Slaves if they succeed in escaping. It is quite evident that the President's proclamation is not based upon the principles of right, any more than of might. Where he has jurisdiction in the loyal States, the Slaves remain as they were. Where his jurisdiction has never been recognised he declares the Slaves free, not because they are entitled to freedom, but simply because their owners will not own his sway. One good effect will result from the Proclamation, and that is the contraband, if he can get away north will be free. But he will be in danger of being caught and claimed by loyal Slaveholders. Altogether the state of the country, North and South, is in a fearful predicament. Detachments of both armies are in perilous situations. A few well planned and well carried out schemes on either side will cut short the war. At present the Federals seem in the greatest danger. General Banks has relieved General Butler in New Orleans, and inaugurated his rule by releasing several prisoners, and relaxing several vigorous measures, affecting the citizens. At Galveston, Texas, the Federals have met a serious disaster in the capture of one of the Blockading ships, the Harriet Lane, and the blowing up of another, the Westfield, the flag ship of Commodore Renshaw, who with his first Lieutenant, are said to have perished with the ship.

[illegible] operates. The expedition against Vicksburg, a place of considerable importance on the Mississippi, has not been unsuccessful, after repeated repulses, the Federal forces have been withdrawn, and the attack abandoned.

From the Southern papers we learn that the Confederates are in the best possible spirits, and quite buoyant in their expectations of succeeding in their struggle. They claim victories at Fredericksburg, Murfreesborough and Vicksburg, which will naturally stimulate them to fresh exertions, and nerve them for future encounters. The sober thinking northerners are beginning to look upon the struggle as hopeless. If they claim victories for two of the recent engagements, they can not close their eyes to the fact that the Confederates are their compeers in valour and tact, and are as determined to fight to the last as the best northern troops can possibly be. We observe a singularly altered tone in some of the leading northern papers of late, which the late heroic conduct of the rebels in Virginia, Tennessee and Mississippi will increase.

A Report appeared lately that a Southern commander had 12 federal officers shot as a reprisal for the confederates McNeil had shot, sometime ago.

The rebels have a singular facility of concentrating their forces at short notice, at a given point, making it almost impossible for their enemies to surprise them. This no doubt is the result of reliable information of the intended movements of the foe—a proof that the discontent is deep rooted and general—extending even to numbers of ostensible loyalists.

CURLING.

The lovers of this ancient and exhilirating game will be pleased to learn that the Peterboro' Curling Club have now a nicely constructed, covered rink, of the largest size, established in the Village of Ashburnham. At night, after 7 o'clock, the place is brilliantly lit up, and the game shortly after commences by the members of the Club.

Curling is considered by all to be one of the most invigorating and amusing sports we have in this country. In Scotland, the peer and the peasant may be seen contending together in friendly strife for the best shots in this social game.

On Tuesday night last a keenly contested game came off between the Peterborough and Ashburnham players, the skips and members being selected from their respective sides of the river. The game lasted nearly four hours, and was finally won by the Ashburnhamites by the small number of two shots, even when victory seemed to hang over the Peterboro' banners. We hope to hear soon of another friendly "spiel to"—it helps to keep up the esprit de corps of the Club.

There has been no change in the markets since our last issue.

THE NEW APPOINTMENTS IN THE COUNTY OF VICTORIA.

The appointments of the officials mentioned, and the disappointed must have come under the notice of the Government somehow or another, is frequently known that in place of practical and common sense plans for opening up and settling new country, being adopted by a Government, some chimerical or expensive scheme is adopted instead. We hope, however, that these practical observations will find their way into the Crown Land Department, and be acted upon.

We are not to say that the selections have been made entirely to suit the public, but we are inclined to say that the best selections have been made, in so far that they have not—not knowing sufficiently the merits of the different candidates—but from what we have heard we are of opinion that the Government have acted wisely in their selection. They have, in the appointment of Sheriff, done what they should have done. They have yielded to the voice of the people. They find a person recommended very generally by the country—filling one of its highest offices—provisional Warden, and without a political friend, and they give him the appointment. They find the other a person very respectably recommended indeed, but they are aware he is a political opponent, and they appoint the other. It is allowable for the defeated party to say "it was a Clear Grit affair from first to last" as it may tend to soften their chagrin; but the Government, we consider, have done just what any other Government would do, and should do under the circumstances. Other things being equal they have selected a supporter, not an opponent of themselves. What we always have disclaimed at is, the Government sacrificing the public interests for the benefit of their political partizans.

The following are the new officials:—James Smith, Esq., Judge; Neil McDougall, Esq., Provisional Warden of the County, Sheriff; A. Lacourse, Esq., Clerk of the Peace and County Attorney; and William Grace, Esq., Clerk of the County Court.

We suppose that the proclamation for the separation will issue shortly, our sister country being now prepared to proceed upon her own hook. We say: "Wayward sister depart in peace."

County Teacher's Association.

The Teachers of Peterborough and vicinity having determined to form themselves into an association for their own improvement, and also for the purpose of putting forth an effort to raise the standard of education in this County; that thereby they may elevate their profession, and in doing so, elevate the Teacher also, met, as per previous notice, in the Union School, on Saturday, 10th inst. The Rev. J. Douglas Local Superintendent, occupied the chair. Mr. James Stratton acted as Secretary. There were a goodly number of Teachers present. Jos. M. Dunn, Esq., Principal of the Grammar and Union School, made a few pertinent remarks on the object of such associations, shewing how much they were needed, and how, if rightly conducted and properly attended to, one in this County would benefit teachers and the community, their interests being so closely united. The Rev. Mr. Douglass also in a neat short speech, pointed out how Teachers might elevate themselves by elevating their profession, and uniting to aid and defend each other.

After some discussion Mr. Dunn was first Vice-President and Mr. Smith, Otonabee, 2nd Vice-President, Mr. J. Stratton, Secretary, and Mr. Blaiches, Treasurer; also a board of five Directors was chosen, who were to arrange a Constitution, and report at the next regular meeting, which will be held on the last Saturday of March, at the same place.

There will be regular monthly meetings, the last Saturday of every month, to which the Teachers of the immediate vicinity are particularly invited. It is also recommended that Township Associations be formed. But it is anticipated that the regular quarterly meetings will be attended by all that can possibly attend from every Township. The thanks of the meeting were then returned to Mr. Douglas for his occupying the chair. The first monthly meeting will be held the last Saturday of this month.—Com.

Another prize Tale.

The publication of a new prize tale will be commenced in this week's number of the Scottish American Journal, written by a popular author, entitled

"RACHEL NOBLE."

The tale was written under the following circumstances:

The directors of the Scottish Temperance League having offered a Prize of One Hundred Guineas for the best Temperance Tale, upwards of eighty MSS. were received in reply. The Rev. Norman L. Walker, Rev. James A. Johnston, Rev. James Hill, Rev. Wm. Blair, M. A., and Rev. John Brown Johnston, D. D., kindly consented to act as adjudicators, and the following was their decision:

Glasgow, 8th October, 1862.

Having been requested by the Directors of the Scottish Temperance League to adjudicate on the manuscripts forwarded to them in reply to an advertisement offering £150 for a Prize for the best Temperance Tale we are unanimously of opinion, after having carefully perused the eighty-three manuscripts submitted, that the prize ought to be awarded to this tale.

The readers of the Scottish American Journal are promised a treat of no ordinary kind in the perusal of the forthcoming story.

POLICE COURT.

W. B. Ward was brought up on a charge of selling beer without license, by John Haggart, License Inspector, and fined $50 and costs.

James Connors, Barber, was brought up on a charge of putting cayenne pepper on the stove in his shop, and annoying the family of D. Brennan thereby, Connors was taken to the Lock-up by Constable McDonald, and had the pleasure of sleeping on the Corporation feather bed, (oak plank) he was sent to stand his trial at the next Quarter Session, but perhaps may find bail for his appearance.

☞ A correspondent from Minden informs us that in the North Country there was a large number of majorities for Municipal Honors, and with the exception of Dysentery the elections were held over the two days. He states that there was no disturbance whatever during last contest.

The following is the list of members for the different Townships:

ANSON { John Lucas, Joseph Fee, Thos. Leary.
LUTTERWORTH { John Scott, Lewis Eastman.
MINDEN { Wm. Gainer, Robert Carson, John Barnum, John Jobblin.
STANHOPE { W. S. Cameron.
SNOWDEN { Hiram Wilcox, A. H. Gemett, Robert Ritchie, Henry Phillips, Thos. H. Earl.

MONAGHAN.

Ward No. 1. George Howden.
" 2. Henry Collins.
" 3. John Dobbin.
" 4. John Campell.
" 5. George Lockie.

A protest was headed to the Returning Officer for Ward No. 1, against the return of Mr. Howden.

ASPHODEL.

Messrs. P. M. Grover, F. Birdsall, Patterson and R. Harrison were elected. On account of the Returning Officer neglecting to post notices of the place of polling, &c., in the Hastings Ward there was no member elected elected for that Ward.

SMITH { M. S. Dean, I. Garbutt, John Walton, A. Hall, John Galvin.
ENNISMORE { S. McCarthy, M. Costello, Martin Corkery, Florence Shannahan, Cornelius C. Sullivan.
OTONABEE { E. Ingram, Joseph Bowie, Andrew Nelson, Thomas Simpson, John Mather.
DOURO { Geo. Clark, John Carnegie, R. Casement, John Smith, Wm. Mober.
ASHBURNHAM { F. H. Armstrong, J. Ludgate, R. D. Rogers, H. Bennett, E. H. Robinson.

☞ The Elections for School Trustees began in the several Wards yesterday.—The interest taken all over the Town was uncommon. In each Ward two candidates were put forward, and the contest in every Ward was close and animating. At the close of the Poll last night the numbers stood as follows:

NORTH WARD.

John White 36 — G. W. Robinson 59

CENTRE WARD.

Thos. White jr. 22 — Thos. Eastland 27

SOUTH WARD.

Rev. V. Clementi 14 — Wm. Coulter 22
Dr. Brown 27 — Charles Perry 37.

The polls open to-day at 10 o'clock.—The candidates put forward and the extraordinary as well as novel interest taken in the Trustee Elections seem to auger well for the School.

We publish, for the benefit of our readers, the following Statement of the Receipts and Expenditures, by the Town Commissioners, of the Town of Peterboro' for the year 1862:—

BENEFIT FOR EMMA CUSHMAN, THE PEOPLE'S FAVORITE!—We understand that Kelly's Dramatic Troupe will give another entertainment, for the benefit of Emma Cushman and Mrs. E. W. Young, in the Town Hall, on Friday evening next, under the auspices of the Peterboro' Dramatic Club, who have kindly consented to assist them on that occasion. A rare programme will be offered, and several very fine pieces of music performed on the Piano by Professor Junkinson.

As the people are already aware of the circumstances in which those ladies are placed it is not necessary that we should say anything concerning them, but would bespeak for them a full house.

☞ We are glad to notice that the Post Office at Roseneath, Township of Alnwick, which was closed by the late Post Master General, has been re-opened, and Mr. Harstone, who was dismissed so ungraciously to gratify political hatred, has been re appointed Postmaster.

☞ Dr. Stewart, of Kingston, who was sentenced to three months' imprisonment and $100 fine, for libel on Dr. Yates, has been released from jail, but had to pay the fine.

Our readers are aware that the Town Council sent an address to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, on the occasion of attending at the majority. The following acknowledgement has been received:—

Quebec, Dec. 18, 1862.

Sir,

I have the honor to enclose a copy of a despatch from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, acknowledging the receipt of the Address to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales from the Corporation of Peterborough.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES.—The Anniversary of the Peterboro' Baptist Church, in behalf of the Missionary Convention will be held in that place, on Friday evening the 23rd inst., at 7 o'clock, when the Rev T. L. Davidson, M. A., and others will address the meeting. On Sabbath, the 25th inst., two Sermons also on behalf of the above Mission, will be preached by the Rev T. L. Davidson, M. A., commencing at half-past 10 a. m., and 3 p. m. The Annual Tea Meeting will take place on Monday evening, the 26th inst., at 6 o'clock, when several speakers are expected to address the meeting, and the scholars will recite some pieces. Tickets 25 cents each, to be had at the door.

CHURCH OPENING.—The new Presbyterian Church for public worship on Sunday the 25th inst. The Rev. Mr. Laing of Cobourg will preach at 10 o'clock, a. m., the Rev. Mr. Roger at 3 p. m., and the Rev. Mr. Gilmour at 6 p. m. Collections will be taken up after each in aid of the building fund.

On Monday, the following day, a Soiree will be held in said Church, at 2 o'clock, p. m. Addresses to be delivered by F. Hamilton, M. P. P., and the Rev'ds Messrs. Carrol, Laing, Gilmour, Rogers, and others. Tickets to the Soiree, 25 Cents each.

We learn from a correspondent in Norwood that a Donation party met on New Year's day, at the residence of the Rev. Mr. Brideu, of the Wesleyan Methodist Church. A very liberal supply of the good things of this life was provided by various friends, and presented to the Rev. gentleman and his family.

The party, after dinner, spent the evening in social intercourse—hearing addresses and singing,—and retired with the congratulation of having spent a "Happy New Year," —sharing doubtless the pleasure attendant upon liberality, "which blesses him who gives and him who takes."

☞ The death of Judge Burns took place in Toronto, on the 12th inst. He was elevated to the Queen's Bench in the time of Francis Hincks. He was considered a man of good sound judgment, thoroughly honest and independent. Several persons are spoken of as likely to succeed him, but all is conjecture, and we must await the course of events.

SKATING.—At a meeting held at Caisses Hotel a short time ago by the Skating Club, it was proposed to get up a skating rink, for which purpose tenders have been issued for the purpose of flowing Spaldings Bay. The tea has been fixed at $1 for gentlemen, and 50 cents for ladies and children.

☞ Remember the Good Templars Anniversary Soiree, to be held in the Temperance Hall, on Tuesday evening next. Tea will be served at seven o'clock precisely. Tickets 25 cents each, and can be had at the door.

☞ The Millbrook Chronicle has once more came to light; but we are sorry to see it diminished in size, perhaps it is owing to the rise in the paper market.

☞ Coal Oil has been discovered at Fergus, at a depth of 50 feet.

"SKEDADDLE."—This word is said to be pure Irish. Perhaps Dr. Elliott can inform us if it is so. The Irish agedad means scattered; agedad-ol means all scattered. An old version of the Irish New Testament contains this passage:—"For it is written, I will smite the shepherd, and the sheep of the flock shall be agedad ol." The word was probably first used in the army by an Irishman, and being looked upon as particularly felicitous, was at once adopted.

Fearful Tragedy in the Arabian Sea.

MURDER OF A NAVAL OFFICER AND FOURTEEN MEN.

We have been favored with the perusal of a private letter which describes some particulars of a fearful tragedy recently enacted on the Arabian coast, just within the entrance to the Red Sea. It appears that some time in the month of September, whilst she was in the Mozambique Channel four boats, for the purpose of watching some slavers, were detached from the Penguin, Lieutenant G. G. M'Hardy, tender to the Narcissus, the flag-ship of Admiral Sir Baldwin Walker, at the Cape of Good Hope. It was the intention for the vessel to pick them up at a place called Fort Dunford, about 60 miles south of the line. On the vessel arriving there, however, nothing could be heard of the boats. As the wind was blowing steadily and strongly towards the north, it was determined to cross the line in search of them, and when the Penguin was about 30 miles north of the line, at a place called Brava, news of the missing boats was obtained.—The boats had been seen there, but as they could not get in by reason of the heavy surf, they had gone on before the wind towards the north. The natives did not know there was any landing place in that direction within six hundred miles.

When the boats left the ship they had 11 days' provisions, and therefore so soon as the Penguin got news of them she followed in the track with all possible speed, and arrived at a place called Blunder Felak on the 25th of October. At this place the Penguin found the mast and some of the whole of the crews of two of the boats, 15 men in all, had been cruelly murdered by the natives. So far as could be learnt, the boat's crews finding themselves short of food and water on the Arabian Sea and unable to return, landed with the intention of replenishing, and then making the best of their way to Aden, on the Red Sea. They had gone in their boats, from the time they left Penguin in the Mozambique Channel, over 1200 miles. No doubt their intention was, had they reached Aden, to have come back to the Mozambique Channel on the change of the wind. They landed at the Arab village, named Bunder Felak, to obtain water an provisions. The natives did not at first appear hostile, but on the contrary, invite them to come on shore.—Sub-Lieutenant Fountaine, who was in charge of the party, however, did not deem it prudent to risk all at once, although probably nearly famished with thirst. He therefore went in the small boats, with a crew of seven in each. The cutter was lying on the beach. As soon as the men touched the shore they were fallen upon and murdered by the natives. What became of the other two boats is not mentioned. The following are the names of the killed:—Sub Lieutenant Fountaine; Wm. Mitchell (quartermaster,) John Carpenter (gunner's mate,) John Kempt (A. B.) Henry Stote (A. B.,) Charles Kennedy, James Watson, John Childs, Martin Jolley, Richard Heath, Henry Williams, Arthur Matthews, John Pratt, and two marines named George Hotton and Charles Foley. Mrs. Mitchell, the wife of the quartermaster, we understand, resides at Torpoint. John Kempt is the son of a waterman of Mutton Cove, Devonport.

On the arrival of the Penguin, and the foregoing particulars having been ascertained, the officer in charge communicated with the native chieftain, and demanded that the murderers should be given up, or in default prepare for the destruction by fire and sword of all the vessels, houses, and people of the place. After some delay 20 of the [illegible] others had escaped, or they also would have been sent. It was soon determined to hang these, as an example to deter their countrymen from indulging in similar conduct. At the date of the last advices (about the third week in October) the murderers were awaiting their execution, which having finished the Penguin would leave that part of the coast.

John Carpenter had only recently come into the Penguin from the Narcissus, and on this particular occasion took the place of one who was on the sick list when the expedition started. The Penguin had recovered some of the carbines of the murdered men, but had not discovered any of the bodies.—Western News.

Dreadful Tradgedy on the High Seas.

At the Winchester Assizes, on the 10th, an Austrian, named Perina, was charged with the wilful murder of Jones, he first mate of the British ship Winthrop on the high seas, on the 4th of October last. The prisoner through the interpreter, said he was "forced to do it." The prisoner shipped at San Francisco, as carpenter and second mate on board the Winthrop, which was on her voyage from San Francisco to Monte Video. On the morning of the 4th of October, about one o'clock, the first mate was on deck, and the prisoner told the man at the wheel that he must steer by the stars, as he must put some more oil in the lamp. The captain, at that time, was lying apparently asleep on the deck outside the cabin. The prisoner took up the lamp and blew out the light. Immediately he heard a heavy fall, but he could not see anything. Jones, at the same time, opened the door of the poop and said, "What did you put the light out for?" A pistol was instantly fired, and Jones ran rapidly along the deck, pursued by the prisoner, who fired a pistol at him. The prisoner at this time was crying out, "No more farina." At this moment the captain's wife, who had been asleep in her cabin, rushed out of it and made her way to the poop, and got into the forecastle of the ship, as if seeking protection. Jones seemed to have gone round another way, but the prisoner got into the forecastle first. Jones staggered in, but was met by the prisoner, who was armed with a knife or dagger, with which he stabbed Jones, who fell dead upon the spot. He also killed the captain's wife. Two of the men endeavoured to secure the prisoner, but he was too strong for them. He rushed on the deck and said he would jump overboard; he, however, went into the cabin and came out armed with a pistol and an auger. He ran about the deck, saying "Now I am captain;" and threatened to kill them all. He ran the auger through the body of the mate. After some time he came and asked the men if they were his countrymen? The men, being afraid said they were. The prisoner then ordered them to throw the mate overboard and in a short time that was done. He then told them to throw the captain overboard, and that was done, for he was found dead in the cabin. The prisoner then ordered some fowls to be killed and directed the cook to give all the men a good breakfast. Shortly after this he directed them to paint the white parts of the ship black. In a short time afterwards the prisoner went into his cabin, and he was observed to put his pistols away; the men seeing this, rushed upon him, "downed" him on the deck, carried him below and put him in irons, and lashed him securely. When brought to Southampton, the prisoner stated that anything he did was on the 4th. He did not mean to kill them, but he mistook her for the mate. Every day the captain [illegible] and the pain had to pay for it, [illegible] he could soon the captain quarrelling with his wife and strike her; he was always with the prisoner. One day, when captain was asleep he saw the mate come out of the cabin of the captain's wife, the mate was angry with him for being there. The mate gave spirits to the other mate not to beat. The captain and his wife spoke to him as if he were a slave. The captain gave him farina to eat because he did not like it. Upon one occasion, when he was lying pretending to be asleep, the captain's wife said, "Oh, that savage man asleep; let us tie his hands and throw him overboard." The mate said it was use to tie his hands, as he had himself thrown overboard six men, and when the power was found so soon he could do it. He got up and loaded his pistol. Thoughts after this the captain came and put his hand over his mouth, and the mate had rope to tie his hands. They dragged him towards the sofa, but they could not tie thands. The mate knocked him down, tried to put irons on him, and then he split the mate. The learned Counsel for the prosecution said the crew would tell us that there was not the slightest truth in any part of this statement. The prisoner first gone on to say that the captain searching and said he would not show the Consul, the Vice Consul, and the Consul-General, that if he could not throw him overboard alive he could do it when he was dead. He then took the hatchet and struck the captain in the face. The mate then ran away and he ran after him. He saw a white dress and he thought that was the mate, so he struck at it with the knife, and then found it was the captain's wife. He afterwards struck the mate with the same knife. The learned Counsel said the crew would prove all this to be false from beginning to end. Evidence in support of this statement of the case was given, and the prisoner was found guilty and sentenced to death.

Public Executions.

The question of the expediency of Capital punishment, as a preventive of the crime of murder, almost the only offence for which it is now inflicted, has again and again been fully discussed by writers and commentators on crime and penal law, but without arriving at a uniform conclusion, or effecting much change in public opinion, on the subject. In truth it is not one of those questions which can be solved by the simple process of logical deduction, or the mere accumulation of facts, inasmuch as it is impossible for the acutest understanding of the most observant mind, to determine how far the fear of death is likely to control human action when the hope of escape is coexistent. The difficulty however, of arriving at a satisfactory conclusion, is greatly increased when we come to consider the variety of motives, the influence of conflicting passions, and the power of circumstances over different minds in promptingmen to commit the darkest crime known to our laws, or in deterring them from it. It is no wonder therefore, that much difference of opinion should exist among writers in criminal law as to the expediency or inexpediency of Capital punishment. We do not at present intend to discuss the question, though we may remark that we think the death penalty should never be inflicted, except for the crime of wilful, deliberate murder. Our intention is merely to state facts, as they are perpetrated in Canada, some parts of the United States, and England. We may also state that the crime of murder has became of late years fearfully common, and rarely do the semi-annual Courts of Assizes pass off without two or three and sometimes more, convictions for homicide. In a neighboring county, containing no large towns and a popular on of only about 30,000 inhabitants, thirteen cases of homicide have occurred in eight years, and while there have been a number of convictions, there have been but two executions. The pardoning power Executive clemency, has stepped between the sentence of the law and the criminal, and warded off the punishment. There is no doubt in our mind that the injudicious and indiscriminating exercise of this prerogative of the Crown has had a most pernicious effect, and that the frequency of the crime of murder is partially to be ascribed to the uncertainty of the penalty which the law awards, but which the Executive commuted for one of a milder form. The number of recent executions—the cause of these remarks—seem, however, to indicate that His Excellency, Lord Monck, aware of the effects of the great clemency shown by his predecessors, has determined to pursue a different course, and to reserve the exercise of the pardoning power with which he is invested, for those cases only where there are only mitigating circumstances, to justify a milder punishment than the law allows the Judge to inflict.

Executions were, no doubt, originally made public, not as a part of the punishment to be inflicted on the criminal, but to deter others from the commission of the same crime. And for this purpose was the gibbet introduced; but if we may judge from the frequency of its use, with very light effect; for while it continued, murders were of much more frequent occurrence in England than they are now, when it is abandoned. It is true there may be other causes for a diminution of the crime of homicide. But be that as it may, it is quite certain the Legislature of England arrived at the conclusion that the gibbet had no effect in deterring the vicious from the commission of crime, and hence its discontinuance. Nor do we believe the spectacle of public executions, by hanging has any more effect as a preventative of crime than the cracking of the irons as the rattling of the bones as they were swayed to and fro by the wind, had in England, where the vicinity of these unsightly evidences of the terrible power of the law was often selected as the scene of fresh murders. The effect of these horrid spectacles on the moral feelings may be judged from the fact that prisoners are of very common occurrence under the very foot of the gallows, and at the very moment, too, when a human being is about to be launched into eternity. Familiarity with death in any form, whether on the gallows or on the battlefield, whether in the peaceful chamber or amid the stir of busy active life, has a strong tendency to diminish our fears of it, and to regard it with less horror. Death to the soldier or the physician becomes a familiar acquaintance, and they soon come to regard it as a common occurrence, and of little more importance than any ordinary event; and the same effect will be produced upon the minds of those who witness criminal executions, and on this account alone they should take place in the privacy of the gaol-yard, instead of as now, before the gaze of a vast multitude, assembled to gratify an idle and morbid curiosity. As a preventive of crime, it has no effect; while there can be no doubt that the impression it makes upon a vicious mind, is decidedly an unfavourable one for public safety and public morality. The greater the mystery, the mystery connected with the cause of death, the greater is the dread of it, and therefore, if a criminal is condemned to die, his death should take place in the most secret and mysterious manner, and all the public should know of it should be through the official announcement of the fact, that the sentence of the law had been carried out, and that the murderer had been executed. The same argument that was urged against the use of the gibbet, may be urged with equal force against all public executions, and therefore, as that accompaniment of the death penalty was abolished so ought all public executions to be discontinued. Popular opinion, the press of the country, favors their abolition and the Legislature ought to confirm to that opinion. This has been done in several of the United States, on the very grounds we urge, and we believe that the sentence, it is done in Canada, the better for the community. We go so far as to say, that we believe public executions, together with that of morbid interest felt in the victim, no matter how unpleasant and forbidding his nature, and the mode and circumstances of the crime, and that they are the real, the primary cause of many murders with which no criminal could be charged.

Model Resolutions.

At a recent meeting of the Universal Rights Restoring and Wrong Exterminating Association the following resolutions were presented:

Resolved, That in the opinion of the association everybody must and shall have their rights.

Resolved, That woman shall have their rights, whether married, single, widows, or, otherwise, and that the laws of nature, which compels things to be so, man against their will, are repugnant to all fundamental ideas of justice, and ought to be abolished.

Resolved, That all negroes shall have their rights, and ought, in justice, to be entitled to white skins and straight hair, as well as any other man.

Resolved, That Free Lovers, Mormons, Shakers and sobbers (provided they be not too of) shall have their rights.

Resolved, That contractors, robbers, and speculators of all kinds (provided they be of the right political stripe), shall have their rights.

Resolved, That medical education is a humbug.

Resolved, That military education is a humbug.

Resolved, That all education is a humbug.

Resolved, That all men are equal in all kinds of knowledge.

Resolved, That everybody knows as much about their own business as every body else does.

Resolved, That whoever does not agree to these resolutions is a Secessionist.

These resolutions were passed unanimously and the meeting adjourned, but not sine die, by a jug-full. (Signed)

We suppose the meeting of Parliament will depend pretty much upon the time Messrs. Sicotte and Howland arrive from England. We notice that Mr. Tilley reached Halifax by the Europa, and the impression among the press of the Lower Provinces is, that the intercolonial Railroad scheme has been [illegible] by this, and England will procure or guarantee the money, and that the sinking fund wherewith to pay it back, has been agreed upon. This will be subject, of course, to the determination of the Provincial Legislatures when they meet in Session, and it will be there, in reality, that the battle for the road will have to be fought. The delegates to England had decided in its favor, and agreed as to the principle details before they left. It rests with the Parliament to ratify or refuse to acknowledge the scheme; and if terms have been come to with the British Government, the project will be a ministerial one, upon which our ministers must stand or fall. It is said that Messrs. Sicotte and Howland are now on their way from England, though we have not this from any reliable source. But it is not at all unlikely. Our readers will remember that on the 27th of May last an address was carried in the Legislative Council by a vote of 33 to 9, to the following effect:—"We her Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Legislative Council of Canada, in Parliament assembled, desire respectfully to state, that we are humbly of opinion that it would best subserve the convenience of the Legislature, and most conduce to the due transaction of public affairs, if Parliament were in future summoned for the despatch of business at periods not later than the latter end of January, or early in February in each year." The present Receiver General, on the part of the Government stated they were quite willing that the address should pass; and on the 2nd of June reported formally, that his Excellency had consented him to acquit the council, that in the exercise of the prerogative of the crown in the same case of Parliament he would not fail to give due consideration to the opinion expressed by the House as to the period most convenient for the members of the Legislature, and most conducive to the despatch of public business." Bearing this in mind, it is not likely His Excellency will delay the summoning of Parliament longer than the first week of February at farthest; nor would it look well for Mr. Sicotte or Mr. Howland to be out of the way at that time. We have reason to know that during the recess a vast amount of work has been done, and many substantial reforms will be submitted to the Legislature. In pursuance of their determination to economise and retrench, Ministers will reduce by twenty-five per cent. all the grants annually made; many grants will altogether be abolished, and, in general, the people will be taught to depend more upon themselves for the support of public institutions than they have been accustomed to do. We hear nothing as to the support Ministers are likely to have, nor the opposition with which they are certain to be threatened. The Globe and the Herald seem ready—as if men and measures did not completely satisfy them, and this is regarded by some as "ominous of disaster." Others say that the country having been governed so long, and prospered so well without Mr. George Brown at the head of affairs, the thing can be managed still. It looks as if the strongest opposition would come from the Conservatives and ultra Grits, and not from the followers of the Carter-Macdonald Administration. But until Mr. Brown shows his hand, all is uncertain. A few weeks will tell the tale.—

The Town of Peterborough.

From the Real Estate Advertiser.

The present capital of the United Counties of Peterborough and Victoria stands about 30 miles North of Lake Ontario, upon the banks of the Otonabee River, or head waters of the River Trent, in the midst of an extensive and fertile country, famous for its Agricultural wealth, timber, and water power, and in the Northern terminus of the Port Hope and Peterborough Railway.

It has for several years been the great station of Lumbering operations, and its chief manufacture has so far been confined to Pine Lumber, which some years, has reached the enormous quantity of from 35 to 40 millions feet of Boards and 64 millions of square timber.

Other manufactures are rapidly springing up, and in addition to its extensive Saw Mills for the manufacture of Lumber, Peterborough has 5 Flouring Mills, with an aggregate of 17 run of Stone.

4 Foundaries.

2 Axe and Edge Tool Factories.

2 Woollen Factories, where Blankets, Tweeds and the coarser descriptions of cloth are manufactured. There are also other branches of Manufacturing carried on in Peterboro. Which will be noticed hereafter.

Owing to the circumscribed limits of the Town, nearly one-third of its population reside without the limits of the Corporation.

Population about 6000.

Ye storie of ye Cow and ye Milkers.

In ye ancient capitol lived a man George Cary, aught and he lived by ye pap drained from ye government cow, one of which he sucked with an instrument known as ye organ Mercury. And behold, there were two wights well nigh starved, who did desire sustenance from ye teats, the one was a Sheppard who strayed from his fold, but he was no sheppard for all that; the other did charcoal Black-burning. And they did importune ye wight Cary with many promises and professions, so that he did loan unto him ye organ. And furthermore, did they strive to drain the teats, but they were bunglers, and did sore distress ye cow and draw the nourishment there from, and did leave none for ye owner of ye organ. Then waxed he wroth and drove forth the pair, and took ye organ from them so that they were in want. Now so much with the ir bungling did they distress ye animal that she no more gave the pap until one Astute man, Foote was he hight – although his height was more than a foot, being a tall man—did a ply to the teats a costly mucilage from Canton which did suit unto a T, and the milk ran forth and he was much refreshed thereby.

MORALE.—Let every man do his own milking and deal gently with ye teats which giveth out ye pap. –Grumbler

DR. MCFARLANE, MR. SPURGEON & THE DEVIL.—An old Scotch lady in Perthshire read the paragraph (true or false) which recently went the round of the papers in which it was stated that Mr. Spurgeon had declared that the Devil would have a poor time of it in Clapham and Lambeth, now that Dr. McFarlane (formerly of the Erskine Church, Glasgow) had come amongst them." "Well," said she, "this reminds me of a dream which a worthy man had one night. He dreamed he had gone out to take a walk in the neighborhood; that when he came to the Free Church he saw a goodly number of devils sitting upon the roof; that he walked a till he came to the Baptist Church, on the roof of which he saw only five or six devils, and that he pursued his walk till he came to the Established Church, upon the roof of which he saw only one, but a very big devil he was; that he now took courage, and asked the reason why he sat there alone, to which the devil replied—'I am quite able, alone, to keep down all the gospel preached here; it takes five or six of us to keep it down in the Baptist Church, but it takes a greater number of us to keep it down in the Free Church. "Now," said the good woman, "I have never heard Mr. Spurgeon, so I cannot say how many devils he would need on the top of his tabernacle; but of this I am sure, if the dreamer had extended his walk to Clapham, he would have found that a whole 'legion of devils' could not keep down the gospel that is preached there, in the Presbyterian Church, by Dr. McFarlane."

RIDING ON A RAIL.—It is not often we are called upon to record a journey made on a rail, but we now have the opportunity in the case of a man named Young, at Port Dalhousie, who, for ill treatment of his wife, was treated to a free ride by the inhabitants on Saturday, on a rail having the sharpest possible edge. It seems that Young is married to a very re pectable woman, whom he has ill-used to such an extent that his intellect has become impaired. So frequent was his abuse of her become that the people of the village, or a portion of them, determined to give him a lesson that would last him for some time, and for several days endeavored to catch him, but failed until Saturday night, when he was placed a straddle of a rail and trotted up and down one of the streets until his bearers were tired. When released, he went into his house and got a pistol, threatening to shoot some of his friends, who immediately on perceiving the weapon, caught him, and beat him severely up and down the principal street of the village with branches taken from the poplar trees in front of the residence of Robert Lawrie, Esq. Having finished their castigation, the man bleeding freely from the stripes administered, they let him go, promising to repeat the dose if he ill-used his wife again. They now threaten to visit two or three other residents of the village who use their wives in the same beastly way with similar punishment, being determined to put an end to such unseemly and unmanly conduct. They are after one now, and it is possible we may have another rail riding scrape to record in a few days.—St. Catharines Journal.

Wars and rumours of wars have come at last. What the future may have in store for us we do not know. It is a sorrowful sight to see a great country borne down by the terrible scourge of war. However, let it content us that Downs, Elixir, the great remedy for Coughs, Croup, Asthma, &c., and Henry's Vermont Liniment, the new Pain-Killer still remain with us. We would say to our suffering friends, read the advertisement in another column and get a bottle of each and try them. Price 25 cts. Sold everywhere.

☞ A woman named Mary Barry, widow of one Patrick McNamara, committed suicide in her cell in Montreal jail on Friday last whither she had been sent by the Recorder for having attempted to drown herself about a week previously. She was found in a kneeling posture in her cell. Around her neck was tied a piece of ribbon, one end of which was tied to the door of the cell. By kneeling the rash woman succeeded in strangling herself. It is said that she has friends in Upper Canada.

"NAKED TRUTH."—The ancestor John Holmes used frequently in his addresses to different juries to explain the meaning of the phrase "naked truth," by relating the following fable;—Truth and Falsehood travelling one warm day, met at a river, and both went to bathe at the same hour. Falsehood coming first out of the water, took his companion's clothes and left his own vile raiment, and then went his way. Truth coming out of the water, sought in vain for his own proper dress. Truth started all naked in pursuit of the thief, but not being as swift on foot has never overtaken the fugitive. Ever since he has been known as "naked Truth."

NEARLY AN ACCIDENT.—On Friday afternoon last two privates of the Royal Canadian Rifles attempted to cross the river on foot opposite Mr. Cooley's tannery. The ice in that locality is only safe during the coldest weather, and at the time barely held together. They had proceeded but a short distance when their dangerous footing gave way, submerging them both in the cold stream. Both the soldiers were rescued.—St. Johns' News.

FAILURE OF A FAMOUS OIL WELL.—A prominent citizen of Dair it, direct from the Canadian oil wells, informs us of the failure of the far-famed "Shaw Well," which turned to "disburse" at the rate of eight hundred to one thousand barrels daily. This serves to confirm the opinion, frequently expressed of late, that the wells of this noted locality would ultimately all fail. —Daily Free Press.

☞ The Bishop of London has delivered a charge to the clergy which will attract attention. THE MAGIC TIME OBSERVER!

The Perfection of Mechanism,

BEING A HUNTING AND OPEN FACE Gent or Lady or Gentleman's Watch combined. One of the prettiest, most convenient, and decidedly the best and cheapest timepieces for general and reliable use, ever offered. It has within it and connected with its machinery, its own winding attachment, rendering a key entirely unnecessary. The case of this Watch are composed of two metals, the outer one being fine 16 carrot gold. It has the improved ruby action lever movement, and is warranted an accurate time-piece. Price, superbly engraved, per case of a half dozen, $204.00. Sample Watches, in neat morocco boxes, for those proposing to buy at wholesale, $35, sent by express with bill payable on delivery. Soldiers must remit payment in advance, as we can't collect from those in the army. Address

CANADA
LIFE ASSURANCE CO'Y.

Incorporated by Special Act of Parliament.

Capital - - $1,000,000.

MANAGER, A. G. RAMSAY, ESQ.

EVERY security, advantage and facility which prudence or liberality can suggest, are offered by this Company. The rates, which are founded on the higher interest obtainable in this country than in Great Britain, are lower than those of British Offices.

Tables of Rates for any form of Life Assurance may be obtained on application.

The Company has agents in all the principal Towns throughout Canada, and a correspondent in London (England) authorised to accept premiums when that may be convenient to the assured.

Every information may be obtained at the Head Office, in Hamilton, C. W., or at any of the Agencies.

Agents in Peterborough:

EMPLOYMENT.

THE Undersigned has, for several years past, been engaged in a business, which has yielded him at the rate of three thousand dollars per annum, and is now willing to teach it to others. The business is of a highly useful and general character, adapted both to cities and villages, and one that any person of ordinary sense, young or old, male or female, can acquire with a few hours practice, and by which they can secure a very handsome income. Several young ladies who have received instructions from me, both in New York State and Pennsylvania, are earning upwards of $15 per week by it, and there is no reason why any one else cannot do the same. Invalids, even, can do well by it, as it is no peddling affair, but a business that is perfectly respectable. Gentleman and ladies of leisure who would like to learn the business for their own amusement or pleasure, will find the practice of it a pleasant pastime, and one that they will take great interest in. On receipt of $1, I will send printed instructions by which any person can readily acquire the art, and these instructions will also contain every particular relative to the carrying it on so that it will be highly profitable. To purchaser of the "printed instructions" will also be authorised to teach it to others; and I have sometimes received as high as $200, for teaching it personally to a single individual. I would state further that $5.50 or $6 will buy everything that is necessary to commence the business with, and the articles can be got almost anywhere, in city or country, or if preferred, I can furnish them. Address ALVIRDT PARSONS, No. 36 LIBERTY ST., New York.

WISHING TO OBTAIN

FARMS IN UPPER CANADA.

THE CANADIAN
Land & Emigration Co'y, Limited,
OF LONDON, ENGLAND,
Capital, £250,000 Stg.

THE HON. MR. JUSTICE HALIBURTON, CHAIRMAN, offer for sale

250,000 Acres

OF LAND IN THE

COUNTIES OF PETERBORO & VICTORIA

consisting of parts of the

Townships of DYSART, DUDLEY, LONGFORD, GUILFORD, HARCOURT, HARBURN, BRUTON, HAVELOCK. &c., &c.

The following are some, among many other inducements held out to parties who may choose to take up lands in the above Townships:

Ten per cent of the purchase money paid to Government by the Company for those lands will be expended in constructing really good roads; those roads will intersect the Government Roads; namely, the Bobcaygeon, Victoria Burleigh and Peterson Roads, at convenient points, and will converge to various Town plots which the Company have it in view to lay out in very carefully selected sites The Town Plots will, it is anticipated,—the whole of them being connected by good roads (for the construction of which the country affords excellent facilities)—become each the centre of a new and flourishing settlement; private enterprise in establishing Stores, Mills, &c., will here soon find its reward, and the several towns and townships being as it were knit together by good roads, will derive from that fact great advantages and mutual support.

In addition, the careful supervision of the Company over every part of their lands will greatly tend to advance the interests of this district, which, being in the middle of Upper Canada, possessing a fertile soil, and a climate unsurpassed in its healthful effects upon the human frame, offers superior attractions, and all the elements of rapid progress and permanent prosperity

$10,000 WORTH OF GROCERIES
FOR SALE.

THE subscriber has opened a new store in the building lately occupied by R. B. McDougall, where he offers for sale a large and well selected assortment of GROCERIES, consisting in part of

SUGARS OF ALL KINDS.

Teas, Coffee, Spice, Rice, Tobacco,

COAL OIL LAMPS,

OF THE MOST IMPROVED KINDS,

COAL OIL, AMERICAN STONE WARE.

OF EVERY VARIETY,

And other articles too numerous to mention.

Well knowing [after an experience of twenty years in the trade] that the "nimble sixpence is better than the slow shilling," he will sell for small profits, having bought his stock with CASH he is confident that he can sell goods for ready pay cheaper than any other merchant in Peterboro'. As the goods offered for sale by the undersigned are all good, he does not confine himself to selling them "cheap for cash only," he will cheerfully exchange them for all kinds of country produce, at cash prices. The subscriber does not attempt to enumerate all the articles which he offers for sale.

THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE. 1863.

THE New-York Tribune, first issued in 1841, now in its twenty-second year, has obtained both a larger and more widely diffused circulation than any other newspaper ever published in America. Though it has enlisted no connection either Journals from the variety and completeness of its contents, the thoroughness of its views, and the fearlessness of its support of the Union, the speedy end of the War for the Union, the speedy end of the Rebellion, and the restoration of Peace and Union on the 4th of September, 1863, is as follows:

DAILY	50,136
SEMI-WEEKLY	17,290
WEEKLY	140,000
Aggregate	215,575

Preeminently a journal of News and of Literature The Tribune has political convictions, which are well characterized by the words of REPUBLICAN. It is Republican in its hearty collusion to the great truth that "God has made of one blood all nations of men;"—Republican in its assertion of the equal and inalienable rights of all men to "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness"—Republican in its steadfast, earnest, and unflinching hostility to every scheme and effort of the Slave Power, from the Annexation of Texas to the great Rebellion, to grasp the empire of the New World and wield the resources of our country for its own aggrandizement—Republican in its opposition to the arbitrariness and despots of the Old World, who fatally hall in the perils and calamities and deadly thrust upon us by the American counterpart the murder and ruin of the Model Republic—Republican in its hope and trust, its faith and effort, that the atrocious Rebellion must result in the signal overthrow of its plotters and the firm establishment of equal rights and equal laws throughout the whole extent of our country, wherein Liberty and Union shall indeed be "one and inseparable" henceforth and forever.

The Tribune devotes attention to calmer times, and to some extent in them, to Education Temperance, and Agriculture, Invention, and whatever else may minister to the spiritual and material progress and well-being of mankind; but for the present its energies and its columns are mainly devoted to the success of the War for the Union. Its special correspondents accompany every considerable army and report every important incident of that great struggle which we trust is soon to result in the signal and conclusive triumph of the National arms and in the restoration of Peace and Thrift to our bleeding country. We believe that no other paper can give a fuller or more accurate view of the progress and character of this momentous conflict be obtained than through the regular perusal of our columns. And we earnestly solicit the cooperation of all friends of the National cause, which we regard and uphold as that of Universal Humanity, to aid us in extending its circulation.

LOVE IN REMEMBRANCE.

'Tis lang, my love, sin' we hae met,
'Tis lang sin' we hae spoken,
I canna yet, sweet love, forget
The vows atween us broken.

Far, far awa the blooms' scene—
Lang syne the morn we pairted—
I mind as weel 'twas but yestreen
We sindered broken hearted.

An' still I mark the wild-flowers spring
The "Fary Knowe" adornin',
An' yet I hear the laverock sing
That sang that tearfu' mornin'.

Aft, aft I see our trystin' bower
By Esk's wild wimplin' river,
The sweetness of its twinin' flower
I'll mind, my love forever.

Fu' aft, in dreams, I pu' thae flowers,
An' grieve to see them wither;
Their fragrance charm'd wi' gowden hours
We dreamed awa thegither.

Ah! mony a hope then bright in bloom
Lang syne in bloom was blichtit;
The sun o' joy hath set in gloom
Our warld o' love that lichtit.

Fond memory fausely reads the past,
Our aft estrangement misses,
Or shows but boo ilk ends at last
In love's remorsefu' kisses.

Aft, aft through blindin' mists o' tears
I see thy face sae bonnie,
I swear, my love, by grief'alang years
Thou's yet mair dear than ony,

An' fairer seems than when langsyne
Sae peerless fair I wooed thee;
I kenn'd na till thou was na mine
Hoo deep, hoo dear I lo'ed thee.

I micht forget thee, gin my soul
To nae things as could perish;
But while 'tis mine to joy or thole
Thy love my soul maun cherish.

'Tis lang, my love sin' we hae met,
'Tis lang sin' we hae spoken,
I never shall, sweet love, forget,
The vows atween us broken.

Miscellaneous.

The Yelverton Marriage Case.

DECISION IN FAVOR OF MRS. YELVERTON.

Edinburgh, Dec. 20.—To-day, in the first division of the Court of Session, judgment was given in the Yelverton marriage case in the presence of a crowded court

Lord Cherniehill, after some preliminary remarks, said that no one could read the current page of the correspondence without characterising it as an honourable courtship between a gentleman and a lady of congenial dispositions as well cultivated minds. He could find no evidence to support the defender's view, that she wished to substitute concubinage for marriage. Although he did not pretend to understand the flights of the imagination which abounded in the correspondence, he could not find anything which indicated immodesty or impurity in it, and, therefore, he could not adopt the defender's interpretation. His lordship concluded by saying that he was of opinion that a marriage by the interchange of consent de præsenti was established, and that, were it not so, there was evidence to establish the marriage on the ground of promise subsequente copula.

Lord Deas delivered an elaborate opinion in which he expressed in still stronger terms the views taken by Lord Curriehill, holding that the pursuer had established her marriage with the defender both on the ground of the interchange of consent de præsenti and of promise subsequente copula. In delivering his opinion, which occupied about three hours, his lordship was occasionally interrupted by applause, which was checked by the Court.

The Lord President delivered an opinion opposed to that of the others. He found no distinct evidence to support the allegations of the pursuer that there was any consent in Edinburgh which constituted marriage. On the contrary, he thought it was contradicted by the evidence of the letters which passed between the pursuer and defender after their first residence in Edinburgh, during which the interchange of consent was said to have taken place. The pursuer expressed herself in a manner inconsistent with the supposition of their being at that time husband and wife. He felt unable to satisfy his mind that this was evidence—that in Scotland, at the time of their first visit, there was that interchange of consent between the parties which the pursuer had alleged. On the other question, as to whether there had been any marriage constituted by promise subsequente copula, his Lordship said that he was not satisfied that the letters instructed an actual promise of marriage. They were rather vague: they were not so definite and precise as he should like to see made the basis of a declaration of law. The law could not afford to be more relaxed than it was; but so, proving that there was something in the letters which could not be construed into a promise, there was no sexual intercourse between the parties in Scotland until after the Irish marriage, the validity of which was still maintained by the pursuer; and he held that the subsequent cohabitation in Scotland must be referred, not to the previous promise—if there was a promise—but to the previous ceremony in Ireland. They must not conjecture a marriage. They must have positive evidence that such a thing had taken place, and he desiderated that evidence. Upon these grounds he was sorry to differ from their lordships.

Lord Ardmillan, the remaining Judge, having heard the pleadings in the case at this stage, gave no opinion.

The Court accordingly gave judgment in favour of Mrs. Yelverton.

An indignant contributor sends the Dundee Courier 4½d, as his quota of the Relief Fund, accompanied by the following poetical epistle in which he asserts that his mite is equal to that of the great Bellenich:

"The widow's mite I've long admired,
So this I send to you,
The tenth part of my daily wage,
To be sparkled with Bellenich."

A Crinoline Tale.

A lady with a crinoline was walking down a street—her feathers flattered in the air, her hoops stuck out some feet. She walked the earth as if she felt of it she was no part, and proudly did she step along, for pride was in her heart. She did not see a curly dog which walked close by her side, all, save the curly tail, of which her crinoline did hide. His tail the dog with pleasure shook—it flattered in the wind, and from the lady's crinoline stuck out a foot behind. Around the tail did soon espy, as it waved to and fro, and like a rudder seemed to point the way the small must go. The curly dog right pleased was he, the quarters he had got, and walked beside the lady in a kind of a doggish trot. Each step the lady now did take, served to increase her train, while those who followed in her wake, roared out with might and main. Some held their sides, they laughed so hard, and others fairly cried, while many even still confessed that they'd "like to have died." But still the lady walked along in crinoline and pride, unmindful of the crowd behind, or dog close by her side. But soon another dog espied the tail which fluttered free; it so provoked his doggish ire he could not let it be. But with a deep ferocious growl, for battle straight he went, and 'neath the lady's crinoline, both dogs were quickly pent. The fought, 'tis said, one hour or more—the lady nothing knew, but with her head erect, sailed on and did her way pursue. Some say she never would have known at all about the fight, had not one dog mistook, and gave her "limb" an awful bite. But since that day, I've heard it said, that the lady never was seen upon the street with so much pride and such a crinoline.

The Tower of London.

Few persons are aware of the strictness with which the tower of London is guarded from foes without any treachery within. The ceremony of shutting it up every night continues to be as solemn and rigidly precautionary as if the French invasion was actually afoot. Immediately after tattoo all strangers are expelled; and the gates once closed, nothing short of such imperative necessity as fire or sudden illness can procure their being re-opened till the appointed hour next morning.

The ceremony of locking up is very ancient, curious, and stately. A few minutes before the hour of eleven—on Tuesdays and Fridays at twelve—the head warden (yeoman porter), clothed in a long red cloak, bearing in his hand a huge bunch of keys, and attended by a brother warden, carrying a gigantic lantern, appears in front of the main guard-house, and calls out in a loud voice, "Escort keys." At these words the sergeant of the guard, with five or six men, turn out and follow him to the Spur, or outer gate, each sentry challenging him as they pass his post:

"Who goes there?"

"Keys."

The gates being carefully locked and barred—the warden wearing as solemn an aspect as possible—the procession returns, and the sentries exact the same explanation and receive the same answer as before. Arrived once more in front of the main guard-house, the sentry there gives a loud stamp with his foot, and the following conversation takes place between him and the approaching sentry:

"Who goes there?"

"Keys."

"Whose keys?"

"Queen Victoria's keys."

"Advance, Queen Victoria's keys, and all is well."

The yeoman porter then exclaims—

"God bless Queen Victoria."

The main guard devoutly responds. "Amen,"

The officer on duty gives the word, Present Arms," the firelock rattle, the officer then kisses the hilt of his sword, the escort fall in among his companions, and the yeoman porter marches majestically across the parade ground alone to deposit the keys in the lieutenant's lodgings.

The ceremony over, not only is all egress and ingress totally precluded, but those within being furnished with the countersign, any one who, unhappily forgetful, ventures from his quarters unprovided with this talisman, is sure to be made the prey of the first sentinal whose post he crosses.—Court Journal.

Distinguished Visitors.

(From the Richmond Whig, Dec. 27.)

We notice the arrival in Richmond of the Marquis of Harrington (son of the Duke of Devonshire and member of the British Parliament for North Lancashire) and Col. Wm. Leslie, M. P.

When William H. Seward was in England, he visited the Duke of Devonshire; and the Marquis, on his recent visit to Washington, called upon Seward in return to pay his respects. He was courteously received, and an invitation to visit the President was unhesitatingly accepted. At the appointed time, the nobleman was conducted into the presence of Lincoln, and permitted to look, for the first time, upon the Chief Magistrate of the American Republic. Lincoln received him awkwardly, and not precisely understanding the title of his visitor, asked, "What name did you say?" "The Marquis of Partington." was the response. Lincoln seemed suddenly struck with a bright idea, and while a grin of joy overspread his features, exclaimed, "Why, Harrington rhymes with Mrs. Partington!"

This is a literal fact, and the story is told with great gusto at the North. Probably never before was such a reception given to nobility by an American President. In one respect the incident may prove of some service, for the English gentleman will now have an opportunity of contrasting the dignified manners of Southerners with the coarse vulgarity of the Executive head of the Northern States.

"Don't cry, little boy. Did he hit you on purpose?" "No, sir; he hit me on the head."

What less than a Year has Wrought.

We commend the following from the Buffalo Courier to the attention of our readers:—

As the thunders of the first Bull Run rang in the ears of members of Congress, the House hastened to pass the following resolutions by a nearly unanimous vote, February 15th, 1862:—

"Resolved,—That neither the Federal Government nor the people nor governments of the non-slaveholding States have a purpose or a constitutional right to legislate upon or interfere with slavery in any States of the Union.

"Resolved,—That those persons in the North who do not subscribe to the foregoing propositions are too insignificant in numbers and influence to excite the serious attention or alarm of any portion of the people of the Republic, and that the increase of their numbers and influence does not keep pace with the increase of the aggregate population of the Union."

Now, December 14th, 1862, Mr. Samuel C. Fessenden offered the following:—

"Resolved,—That the Proclamation of the President, of the date of Sept. 22nd, 1862, is warranted by the Constitution; that the policy of emancipation as indicated therein is well adapted to hasten the restoration of peace, as well chosen as a war measure, and is an exercise of power with proper regard to the rights of citizens and the perpetuity of a free government."

This resolution was adopted by a vote of 78 to 51. Will the people compare the resolutions, passed by the same legislators, and decide as to their consistency? What confidence can be placed in men who say, upon their oaths and honor, at one time, that neither Government nor people have a constitutional right or a purpose to legislate upon or interfere with slavery in the States—and, at another time, pronounce that a proclamation of general emancipation for slaves, as illegal as it is futile and ridiculous, is warranted by the Constitution!

A NEW WAY TO COOK BEEF.—When you get hold of a [illegible]ng, it is well to "communicate." Having learned this method of cooking beef within a few years, we find it so much the best way that no week elapses without a meal of beef steaming on our table.

To steam beef procure a cast iron pot, of large dimensions, having at the bottom a shoulder, which is found in most large iron pots, at the point where the diameter is diminished to fit the hole in the stove.—Across this hole you place some pieces of shingle: then fill up the pot to the shingles with water, adding a few pieces of lemon peel or a little mace if you please; place the meat upon the shingles; cover up tight with a fitted tin cover; for it should all boil away, of course the gravy would be burned, and the flavour of the meat injured. When finished, the bottom of the pot contains a large quantity of most excellent gravy, which of course must be thickened and seasoned.

A rump of beef, or a shoulder, forms a excellent piece to operate on. Mutton is also fine. Try it.—Country Gentleman.

THE OLD LADY'S FUNERAL RIDE.—Mrs. Partington's old "man stepped out" one day, into eternity, as well as most, sooner or later. Mrs. Duzenberry asked Mrs. P. for the particulars of her poor Paul's demise and burial. "Oh, Mrs. Duzenberry, poor Paul died suddenly and we buried him. He had a very awful cough afore he died, and tried all the doctors, 'cause he wanted to be cured. He never heard of Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers, which give relief in ten minutes, and soon effect a cure; if he had my poor old man would now be long with me, and free from all cough cold horses &c, etc." Only 25 cents a box, at every Druggists.

A fox hunt came off near Brockville, on New Year's day, which in every particular excels those which lately took place near this city. A fox was started and ran but does not appear to have been closely pursued by either hounds or men, as he stopped on his way to make friends with some poultry. Being disturbed, however, he again took to his heels and effected his escape. The Canadian, in telling the story, says with much naivete, "There will be another fox hunt during the season." Several of the "huntsmen" got rather severe tumbles.

The capture of Murfreesboro' was but a barren victory. The "rebels" retreated to Tullahoma making little resistance. Then the willy Confederates drew the Federal commander into a trap. Such was his haste to capture the town, that he neglected his rear. A train of waggons following the Federal commander was captured by Col. Morgan, while the advance force occupied the town. Thus, by undue haste, Rosencrans fell into the trap prepared for him, lost his train and supplies, and gained a victory in capturing an abandoned town!

On Monday last a Canadian named John Gilbert, was arrested in Detroit for stealing a horse. He confessed to officer Smith that about five years ago he robbed Her Majesty's Mail near Eden in Oxford county, for which offence an innocent man was convicted. He says that by that robbery he got $1,500, which he has yet buried in the earth, some where in Canada, but he does not state where it is.

Great Britain and Ireland import annually some 27,000,000 cubic feet, or 540,000 loads of Canadian pine timber, the greater part of which is manufactured on the Ottawa River and its tributaries. The operations of this manufacture extended over upwards of 11,000 square miles, and give employment to more than 40,000 men.

The Signal states that a man named Leadbeater, a carpenter, was found dead in bed on Friday morning last; he had been having a "good time" the night before and was put to bed drunk.

The Earl of Derby is receiving from another quarter proof of the great [illegible] through swallowing her false teeth.

The subscriptions for the proposed [illegible] Count Cavour amount already to the sum of £22,000.

The King of Italy will make a journey to Paris, to assist at the baptism of Prince and Princess Napoleon.

The harbor and roadstead of Odessa are so blocked up with ice that the import and export of corn by sea are suspended.

When a woman wishes to be very silent she says to her lover, she asks him a "thoughty one."

The entire assets of a recent bankrupt were nine children. The creditors acted magnanimously, and allowed him to keep them.

The proclamation of the 1st instant was celebrated in Norfolk, Virginia, by a procession of 4,000 blacks, with music and Union flags.

A "Municipal Reform Association" has been formed at Ottawa, with a view to prevent mismanagement in municipal affairs.

There are now fifty millions of dollars due the Federal army and the military Committee of the Senate have resolved that the amount shall be paid.

The American Hotel, Niagara Falls, was destroyed by fire on Monday night last. Very little was saved. The building was entirely consumed.

The Toronto papers report that Annie Moore, a servant of Mr. J. Crawford, M. P., was so seriously injured by a large mastiff, that she now lies in a very precarious state.

WANTED.—A thin man, who is used to the business of collecting, to crawl through key-holes and find debtors, who are "never at home." Salary, nothing the first year, to be doubled each year after.

An American editor thinks that Columbus is not entitled to much credit for discovering America, as the country is so large he could not well have missed it.

"Cato, what do you suppose is the reason that the sun goes towards the south in the winter?" "Well, I don't know massa, unless he so stand de 'chimney of de roof, and so am 'bliged to go roof, where he 'experiences warmer loungings," was the philosophic reply.

The Belgian Senate adopted the bill which opens a credit of five hundred thousand francs demanded in aid of the communes suffering from the cotton crisis.

The steamer which was conveying Garibaldi from Leghorn to Caprera was compelled by the violence of the weather to return to the former port on the 29th, the day of sailing.

Over one thousand persons were killed and wounded by railroad and over three hundred by steamboat accidents, and about eighteen millions of dollars worth of property destroyed by fire in 1862.

The Jews who were expelled from the territory occupied by the Federal troops by order of General Grant have concentrated at Louisville and Cario and remonstrated against that order.

The English system of Post-Office savings banks, recently introduced in England, has not passed unnoticed in France. The Minister of Finance is occupied, it seems, just now, in devising some similar plan for France.

Charles Kean has had an offer of $16,000 for himself, his wife, and his two sons (the Misses Chapman) to perform for one year in Australia, and but awaits certain business details to ratify the agreement.

The petition addressed by Father Passaglia, and signed by upwards of nine thousand priests, to Pope pious the ninth praying his Holiness to resign the temporal power, has been published at Turin. The volume extends to upwards of two hundred pages.

On Wednesday evening last, the non-commissioned officers and men, lodging to the Brockville Rifles, presented their late Captain, but now Brigade Major Jackson, with a sword, belt, &c. The presentation took place at the armory, in the presence of many of the respectable citizens of the place.

The Halifax Colonist is informed by the Hon. Joseph Howe, Prime Minister of Nova Scotia, that he has been appointed Fishery Commissioner, by the British Government, in lieu of the late Mr. Parley. The place is worth £1,000 sterling a year, with an allowance of $250 for a private Secretary.

On New Year's a prize fight took place at Point St. Charles, Montreal, between two soldiers of the Fusier Guards, in presence of a crowd numbering about two thousand. Thirty-one rounds were fought in one hour and thirty minutes. Both men were badly punished. One of them named Brown was declared the victor.

The New York Albion usually well informed as to foreign matters, says that Barker has been removed in accordance with the demands of the French Government. Mason and Slidell were given up on demand of England. How very compliant the Government has become! But as the Butler case, if it be true, thus "falsifies" its words.

We learn from the Toronto papers that Charles Carey, husband of Jane Carey, was arrested on Friday night on suspicion of having killed his wife. From the evidence it appears that, although the deceased and her husband had occasional quarrels, she never received any injuries at his hands likely to result in death.

Several young men, who were "on a spree" one evening lately, had a wager as to which could drink the most brandy in half an hour. Each did his best; and the result was that they all more thereorless excessively sick, one of them died, and two of the others were very much sick indeed.

MEETING OF PARLIAMENT.

Parliament, it seems, is to meet on the 12th proximo. It would have met earlier but for the illness of Mr. Howland, who has been detained in Boston. The Globe says it should have met at least fourteen days earlier, but considers the call an improvement, compared with the usage of the late Ministry. It does not appear that the present Ministry will receive any special favour from the Globe, and it must therefore "govern itself accordingly."

Never perhaps since the Union has a Ministry had fewer decided friends and supporters in the press, or fewer decided enemies and opposers. There is a sort of a "don't know" feeling repecting it, few being disposed to take high ground for or against it, and possibly it may be permitted for some time to come to rule the country. We sincery hope and trust that the McDonald-Sicotte Administration will continue, and that it may effect some real good to the country. As the time approaches for it to meet Parliament, we fail to find any real ground of complaint being brought forward against the Government. There is no organized opposition on political grounds, and the only opposition we know of is that of disappointed individuals, or such Reform hating journals as the Brantford Courier, the Prescott Messenger and the Peterborough Review. These and kindred prints hope and pray for a downfall of the present Administration, not from a desire for the good of the country, but that their party may have the distribution of patronage. Our adherence to the present Government is based, in the first place, upon the fact that it is composed of the same political party to which we have been always allied to; and in the next place it was formed upon the basis of saving the country from the pecuniary bankruptcy to which it was fast drifting, under the former extravagant and unscrupulous administration. And now when we find that the Government has been steadily pursuing the course marked out, our confidence is increased, and we cannot but think that Parliament will extend to it its support and countenance.

The only measures of importance that we know of to be put forward by the Government are the Intercolonial Railway, the Bankrupt and Militia Bills, and the removal of the Seat of Government. The first measure the Globe thinks will be easily disposed of as Messrs. Sicotte and Howland would not accept Mr. Gladston's proposal of a sinking fund to be paid on the anticipated loan for the construction of the Road. It consequently falls through. The Bankrupt Bill is much needed, and no doubt a good measure will be recommended.—There have been good opportunities to concoct a good bill, and it but reasonable to expect such. The Militia Bill may not please the country so well. Being nothing of a soldier, we don't care much about Militia matters. The most troublesome question we fancy the Government will have to deal with, will be that of the removal of the Seat of Government, or otherwise. The term for Quebec to have the Government expires after next Session. Some two years are required to finish the buildings at Ottawa; it may require a longer time. Query: shall the Government remove bag and baggage to Toronto, or shall it remain where it is? In the midst of conflicting interests it will be difficult to decide. We are disposed to leave the matter entirely with the Government, satisfied that if left to them they will decide right. If Parliament takes it out of their hand, the onus of the decision will be changed. We are satisfied, decide as they may.

PROGRESS OF THE WAR.

From Nashville a despatch has announced the capture of six Federal vessels on the Cumberland River by the Confederates—five steamers and a gunboat loaded with valuable stores. The vessels were pillaged and then burnt. From the Mississippi, General McClerland reports the capture of the post of Arkansas, with from 7,000 to 10,000 prisoners, besides stores, animals, and munitions of war. The army of the Potomac, under General Burnside is said to be in motion, but for what purpose has not yet transpired.

Another effort with a large force, is to be made against Vicksburg, and no doubt we shall soon hear of Rosecrans in Tennessee, again fighting. As yet no important result is reported from the Emancipation Proclamation. It is looked upon by the South as a barbarous measure, and Jeff. Davis has issued a retaliatory proclamation, threatening to shoot every negro found in arms, as well as every white officer captured who commands them. He possibly forgets that others can and will play at the same game. The Southerners cannot afford to lose man for man—to say nothing of the barbarity of the proposed measure. Many persons at the North are perfectly delighted with President Lincoln's famous proclamation, and fancy they discover in it the means by which the country is to be saved. Congress has been discussing a measure to raise and equip an army of 150,000 negroes, and as the negro is the cause of the present conflict, so the negro, they say, will be the means of its termination.

There is, unquestionably, a gloom, at present, hanging over both sections of the American people. At the North the Government finds itself pecuniary embarrassed—without money, and strongly opposed by monied men, in issuing its own shin-plasters, with the army pay nine months in arrears—baffled and discouraged by the recent failures of the army to obtain decided victories—with a certainty of losing one half of the army in about five months—their term of service then expiring—it is no wonder if the most sanguine should begin to look blue at the prospects before them. We have said nothing of the fearful sacrifices of life and treasure made freely, by a determined people, which more than the other considerations must weigh with them. No wonder if propositions for the cessation of hostilities, are beginning to be entertained by them.

At the South, if the despatches said to be captured from thence be genuine its Government and people are equally tired of the war—in fact, they represent their cause as hopeless, unless intervention at once takes place. Every article of food, and the necessaries of life are exhorbitantly high everywhere, and the poor can scarce live. Yet they seem equally determined to sacrifice all they have for victory. Altogether this unhappy war is a source of unutterable anguish, grief and annoyance. The country in which it is, is the greatest sufferer, but its influence for evil is wide spread—extending to every part of the countries, it has had commercial relations with. We direct attention to the extract given elsewhere: "Aspect of affairs," by Henry Ward Beecher. It is, doubtless, a truthful picture by a hopeful patriot. One cannot but admire the elasticy of the American people—no reverses or misfortunes seem sufficient to quench their ever-burning flame of hope. There is no flickering, no halting, no fear; but a strong faith in their ultimate destiny. Such people will and must triumph, and the sooner they make up their minds to shake hands and make friends the better for themselves and the world at large.

TOWN COUNCIL.

The last meeting of the old Town Council was held on Wednesday, the 14th inst.

Present—His Worship the Mayor, and Messrs. Lawson, Reid, Toole, Fry, Stevenson, Cumming and Ryan.

The minutes of the former meeting were read and confirmed.

The Mayor read a Communication from Lieut. Gen. Knollys, stating that the Address of the Corporation had been laid before His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, who had commanded him to assure them that his Royal Highness has received the same with much pleasure.

Several accounts were laid before the Council and ordered to be paid.

A petition from Widow Wilson, asking to be relieved from paying taxes, on the score of poverty.

A petition from John Simpson, asking to lease the house occupied by the Chief Constable was read and referred to the next Council.

A petition from Wm. Lech, complaining of over charge of assessment, was read and laid on the table.

On motion of Mr. Stevenson the sum of five dollars was ordered to be paid to Miss Mason, as she is in very poor circumstances.

On motion of Mr. Toole the Treasurer was instructed to pay N. B. Gregg $26 48, being the balance claimed by him as payment of his account in full to date, and $1 4 to be deducted.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Chas. Perry Esq., for his impartial and straightforward conduct as Mayor of the Town for the past year, to which His Worship briefly returned thanks.

The Council then adjourned sine die.

Monday, January 19th, 1862.

The members of the new Council elect met at noon, in conformity to the Statute in that behalf.

Present—Charles Perry, Esq., the Mayor elect, in the chair, Messrs. Toole, Lawson, Fry, Ormord, Nicholls, Ryan, Lundy, Burnham and Joseph Dixon.

The Clerk stated that he had received from the Returning Officers certificates of the due return of the following gentlemen as Councillors for the ensuing year, viz:—North Ward, Messrs Lawson, Toole and Carlile; Centre Ward, Clinton, Nicholls and Joseph Dixon; South Ward, Ryan, Lundy and Burnham; East Ward, Samuel Dickson, Fry and Ormond; and that all the above save Messrs. S. Dickson and Carlile had made and deposited with him the declarations of qualification and office.

The rules of order were read by the Clerk.

Messrs Wm. Eastland and Charles Cameron were appointed auditors for the Town for the current year.

On motion of Mr. Toole the time for the return of the Collector's Roll was extended to the tenth day of February.

Moved by Mr. Burnham, seconded by Mr. Lundy,—That the meetings of this Council for the year 1863 shall commence at seven o'clock p. m., precisely, and that if a quorum of the members be not present at a quarter past seven the Council shall then stand adjourned until the night ensuing for the next usual meeting thereof.

In amendment it was moved by Mr. Nicholls, and seconded by Mr. Ormond,—That the Council do now adjourn until Wednesday night, at 7 p. m.

The amendment was declared carried, and the Council adjourned accordingly.

Lancashire Operatives Relief Fund.

From a list of the contributions to this fund from the various places in Canada, found in Monday's Globe, we observe that our good Town has raised a very handsome sum in comparison to many other places. It stands the eighth on the list, exceeding many places which are larger than itself in the amount of its contribution. The figures given are not the correct ones, as will be seen from our last issue. They should have been $2,324.

Canada, no doubt, will send $100,000. The rest of British North America has $23,221 put down. It will be safe to say that $130,000 will be sent in all.

The good people in Ashburnham must be content with three Councillors in place of five, for some time to come. Through some mismanagement, the Electors have nominated two persons as Councillors who cannot qualify, and these cannot act without qualifying; they must do their work over again, and elect two others in their place. The proper way to proceed in their case will be for the Reeve, after the expiry of 20 days, if the elected parties neglect or refuse to accept office, and make the necessary declarations, to issue his Warrant to the Returning officer, to hold a new Election to fill the vacancy. It may be a question in such cases, if the Returning officer does his duty in allowing unqualified candidates to be entered on the Poll Book. We are of opinion that he should not enter any one whom he knows not to have the necessary property qualification.

☞ The Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of the Little Lake Cemetery Company was held in the Town Hall, on Monday last, when the following Directors were chosen: Messrs W. Hall, W. Cluxton, Sheriff Hall, G. F. Orde, W. Lundy, R. Dennistoun, W. Eastland, Rev. Mr. Roger and Rev. Mr. Gilmour. The Secretary also presented his annual report:—

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

Your Secretary begs leave to report that there have been sold during the year seventy-two lots, amounting to... $196 00
Five public lots at $1..... 5 00
That there has been collected of accounts during the year..... 77 50
$278 50
And that there is still accounts unpaid to the amount of..... $280 23
Of which may be considered bad or doubtful..... 127 40
Leaving amount due to the Company which may be collected. $152 83
Of deaths there has been 61 during the year, 39 of whom were under 12 years of age, and 22 over that age, 24 were males and 37 females, 30 died in the Town of Peterboro', 4 in Ashburnham, and the balance, 27, died in the surrounding country.
All of which is respectfully submitted,
A. STEWART.
Secretary.

To the Little Lake Cemetery Company.
Peterboro', January, 1863.

☞ The Committee on Ways and Means in the United States Congress have repudiated Chase's financial scheme. They have reported a bill which authorises the issue of $900,000,000 in twenty years, at six per cent bonds: $300,000,000 in three years' treasury notes, bearing interest; $300,000,000 in legal tender notes, and $50 000,000 in fractional notes; in all $1,550,000,000—a fearful sum truly.—$50,000,000 are said to be due to the army. The department is said to be paying the soldiers at the rate of $50,000 daily, at which rate it will take three years to pay the whole off.

☞ The Soiree held on Tuesday night last, in the Temperance Hall, in this Town, by the Good Templars, was a complete success; the room was crowded to overflowing. After refreshments were over—the ladies deserve great credit for the manner in which the good things were got up—Mr. John Robertson occupied the chair, and several addresses were delivered, which were appropriate to the occasion. The Choir, under Mr. Pentland's charge, sang some very good pieces.

The February number of Godey's Lady's Book is received; the embellishments are first-class. "The Duett," we consider a very beautiful plate; and the Fashions, as usual, beyond any comparison—six suitable and seasonable figures. Send in your subscriptions, which is only $3.00 a year, addressed to L. A. Godey, 323 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.; or to Thomas Menzies, Stationer, Peterboro'.

☞ A young man by the name of Timothy Quin, a resident of Peterborough, was frozen to death on Sunday last, on Young's creek, 45 miles from here. It appears that Quin and his comrade were crossing the creek, when they broke through the ice, the weather being very cold, Quin was unable to reach his destination, while his comrade had his feet frozen.

An opportunity which seldom occurs, is now afforded those desiring a good Watch, at a low figure. Read the advertisement of the "MAGIC TIME OBSERVER," of which the Hubbard Bros., of New-York, are the sole importer. The "Magic" is receiving the most flattering commendations of the Press.

The total number of prisoners committed to the Toronto jail for the past year are 2,091, of which 1,154 were males, and 937 females; and of that number there are 676 males, 763 females for being drunk; showing an increase over the year 1861 of 276.

CHURCH OPENING.—The dedicatory services in connection with the opening of St. Mark's Church, Otonabee, will take place on Thursday, the 5th day of February next, to commence at 11 o'clock, a.m.

The County Council will meet in Peterborough, on Tuesday the 27th January.

The members elect for the Village of Ashburnham met on Monday, 19th instant. R. D. Rogers, J. Lalgate and H. Bennet made and subscribed the necessary qualification of office; but F. H. Armstrong and E. H. Robinson did not, their property being at too low a figure on the Assessment Roll. The qualified members then elected R. D. Rogers their Reeve, nem. con., then organized they proceeded to business, and appointed D. McDonald, Jr. and J. T. Butterfield, Auditors for the year. After which they adjourned, to meet on the first Monday of February, at 7 o'clock, p. m.—Com.

☞ We copy the following from the Lindsay Post:—"For the last few weeks no newspaper has been published in this Town excepting the Post, though during last autumn Lindsay could boast of three sheets in full sail. We fancy it must be quite pleasant to pass the winter months brain-like, in a dormant state, especially with paper at such an extravagant price.

SECRETARY CHASE.—As great doubt still exists of the adoption of Secretary Chase's financial views by Congress, his resignation is more freely canvassed, and prominent candidates as his successor are already named. Robert J. Walker, Secretary of the Treasury in 1847, and Thaddeus Stevens are mentioned with decided chances in favor of the former.

We have been requested by the Peterboro' Amateur Dramatic Company to state that they hold $50 for the Lancashire Relief Fund, and that in a short time they intend giving another performance towards liquidating the expenses incurred by the two entertainments given. Should anything remain after the expenses are paid it will be added to the amount now in hand.

☞ The Hamilton Times says that John Anderson, the fugitive slave whose case once excited so much interest in that city, is about to leave England for Liberia, where he intends to settle. He has received a substantial education at Somersheire, where he he was boarded at the expense of the Anti-Slavery Society.

☞ Dr. CAMERON, the celebrated Oculist and Aurist, is now in Town, at the Huffman House. Those affected with diseases in the eye or ear will do well to consult him at once, as his stay in Town must be short, owing to his numerous engagements.

☞ The committee of the Indian famine relief fund had finally resolved that £20,000, the unappropriated surplus of that fund, should be applied for the relief of the distress in Lancashire.

☞ A small pamphlet has been received from the Crown Lands Department, which contains a large amount of information for emigrants and intending settlers. A beautiful Map accompanies the work.

☞ The number of workmen in the cotton manufacturing districts in France, out of employment is now said to reach 300,000, with no prospect of their being relieved from their state of absolute destitution.

☞ The annual returns of the emigrants from the port of Liverpool for 1862, show an increase in steerage passengers of nearly 10,000 over the year 1861.

CURLING.—We are informed that a match will be played between the bachelors and married men of the Club, on Friday, the 23rd inst., at the rink in Ashburnham; commencing at 8 o'clock p. m.

Jewelers should read J. A. Sailsbury's advertisement.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—Will you oblige me by publishing the following:—

FRIEND THOMAS,—

The words to which I propose to call your attention are those uttered by Solomon, and which no doubt are familiar to you, viz: "Vanity, vanity, all is vanity."

When the great King uttered those memorable words, he gave expression to his feelings. They were spoken at a time when he had realized their truth. He was an old man, and was soon to pass away forever from the scenes of all his grandeur and power. It was then, when standing as it were upon the threshold of eternity, and looking back over his past career, that he discovered how weak and unwise he was, and how little all his wealth, and might, and pomp contributed to make smooth the way before him, and how little they had brought to him of true happiness or glory. He had been what we call one of the wise and great men of the earth. He ruled despotically over a numerous people. He possessed unbounded wealth. He built costly edifices. And, doubtless, during the period of his prosperity and greatness he felt that he was one of the mighty of the earth. But with all these apparent advantages he was but a man, and destined to experience the vexations and disappointments common to human nature, and which all great men, and especially ambitious men are to encounter. And thus it was, that after a long reign, and at the close of a long life of prosperity and power, he was compelled to declare that all was vanity.

What was true of those words in the days of King Solomon is equally true now. Human nature is the same—the same aspirations after earthly greatness, the same ambition, the same vanity, and as a consequence, the same evils and disappointments. And although this record has existed for thousands of years, and day after day and year after year it has been the subject of meditation, and the theme of exhortation and oratory; yet, even at this our day the same desires and feelings, the same vain aspirations, the same ambition, control men as they did at the time of the above great lawgiver and King. Thus all the warnings and all the lessons of history have in this respect failed to be of much practical benefit.

We see this truth daily exemplified around us. We see it in all its force in the spiritual as well as in the secular walks of life. Great men striving to be greater, and for more power in the pulpit and in the Senate. Little men, too, asserting their authority and proclaiming their importance at the street corners or through the columns of a petty press; assailing others for unnecessary wrongs or for the purpose of pride—malevolence or self interest. Striving to pull others down that they may get up—as if all their hopes and all their success in this world depended upon the success of their malicious and unchristian conduct.

Such is human nature, such the proceedings of the hearts of men professing the great doctrine of living humbly and doing justly by all.

The lesson, friend Thomas, which we are to draw from these things is to learn ourselves, and to love one another better, and to do as we would like to be done by. To cease to try to lord it over others. To be less vain-glorious. To cease to depend upon the evanescent applause of weak man as the sufficient reward of our actions.—Then, and not till then will we have learnt wisdom from the text. And then, knowing and feeling that all is vanity, even the disappointed ambition to become a School Trustee will be easier to bear.

But, friend Thomas, notwithstanding your failure, be not cast down. Doubtless it is owing to a want of appreciation of your transcendant abilities and patriotism. The rejection of a candidate, even for the office of School Trustee, is not always, and in your case, cannot be a sign of unpopularity. You know history is full of examples of popular fickleness and ingratitude. Great men especially are the victims. Your services are indispensable, and people will soon find this out. When they do, friend Thomas, I hope you will have pity upon them.

A FRIEND.

Peterboro, Jan. 19th, 1863.

We have to apologise for neglecting to insert the following letter which was sent to us—at the time—better late than never.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Bobcaygeon, 30th Dec., 1862.

DEAR SIR,

The people of this place not wishing to be behind the rest of the Country, in raising some money for the British Operatives' Fund, determined to have a concert for that purpose. I am sorry to have to say that some opposition was shown to the scheme, by parties who ought to have assisted in place of opposing it. But the concert was held on Monday evening the 22nd inst., and as it was a great success. The handsome sum of thirty-three dollars and thirty-five cents was realised from the Concert.

I am, dear Sir,
Yours &c.,
J. W. Edwards.

The Aspect of To-day.

It is never safe to despair of the Republic. One thereby only proves himself a false prophet, by foreboding evil or predicting the ruin of his country. A brave faith is a foreshaken of victory.

The present discouragements are not a few. The army at Fredericksburg is at a dead-lock, and in silence. The army of the Mississippi, after reaching sight of the church spires of Vicksburg, was beaten back to its lines, and abandoned the siege. The victory of Gen. Rosecrans was signal, but not conclusive—like Shiloh and Antietam, it is improved by pursuit. The blockade at Galveston was brilliantly broken by the enemy—without great loss to ourselves, but not without great shame. Looking to-day along the whole line of war, the Union cause stands neither victorious, nor defeated, but baffled.

Our armies, too, are murmuring, with reasonable complaint, from long lack of their hard-earned pay. The bulk of our soldiers have not received a cent in more than half a year. We see no just ground to excuse the Government for this neglect. It is hardly a palliation to say that the Administration, having specified, in borrowing our promises, against borrowing to pay existences, while pleading to the soldiers an empty exchequer, or unconvertible five-twenty bonds. The pay of the soldier, even when he gets it, is little enough. But when he goes through a year's campaign without a penny, it is time for his friends to say hard words. Take the thousands of political office-holders scattered over the country, and not a corporal's guard of the whole have been denied their salaries. But a soldier in the army who has been paid since last spring is a curiosity in camp.

Then, too, good men who go to Washington to take a look-out from the center, come home with unmanning tales. Every day we hear somebody says, "I have been to Washington; I talked with a dozen members of Congress; I had half an hour with a Secretary; I heard a good story in the White House." Whereupon, the burden of all the reports which serious and earnest men bring back is, a lack of determined purpose, of definite measures, of enthusiastic zeal, of devoted faith, throughout every department of the Government. A kind of senseless and purposeless standing the other day on the Capitol steps, were asking each other the question, "What is the great need of the hour?" when a stranger overhearing them exclaimed, "Gentlemen, it is a man of God in your hearts!" We note with sorrow the painful lack of high moral earnestness, of deep religious conviction, of an inspiring faith in Divine Providence, among a great majority of the public men at Washington.

Not so was it in the days of our Fathers! Nothing so illustrious in the history of their struggle as the pervading moral enthusiasm, and positive religious fervour, which inspired members of the first Congress with that sagacious wisdom and that sublime heroism which made their cause sacred and victorious. But now, at the seat of Government, men are strangely and sorrowfully destitute of the animating fire which should burn within the breasts of statesmen who expect to save their country in such a time as this.

But among the people at large throughout the loyal states, in spite of many defeats and few successes, in spite of the multiplying costs and sacrifices of the struggle, we have noticed, with thankfulness to God, the tokens of a partial revival of popular enthusiasm. We shall not see again the buoyant days of eighteen months ago, when men's eyes flashed, and their hearts bounded in the early zeal which the good cause inspired. But although that ardour—which the Government first neglected, and then deliberately quenched—cannot be again revived, the People, even during their long period of coldness toward the Administration, are more or less their grand conviction of the value of their institutions, now vacillated in their heroic purposes to maintain them. And now, since the beginning of the year, the reviving moral feeling of the country is witnessed on every side. Setting aside the necessity of the President's act as a military measure, the Proclamation of Freedom was needed even if for no other purpose than this: to inspire the public mind.

Our armies, also, had need of it for their own moral health. A great army, without a great moral principle grows corrupt and degenerate. Battle and Camps tends to rust and corrode the higher nature of the soldier. It is thus that armies are always their own worst enemies. The present stupendous military element in our body politic—an element which our people have always been taught to dread in a Republic—would soon, if allowed to grow corrupt, breed infections that would destroy our free institutions. The only salvation of a great army, and the only salvation of a nation that keeps a great army is, to keep pure the public virtue by the cleansing power of sacred principle animating men's hearts.

But such a principle is beneficent, undiscriminating, to enter into the watch-words and war-cries of citizens and soldiers.

What now remains?

The interval between the destruction and the salvation of the Republic is measured by two steps: one is Emancipation; the other, Military Success. The first is taken; the other delays. How is it to be achieved? There is but one answer: by the Negro!

The world has not seen a subtler instance of poetic justice than this: that the very people whom we have bruised and scourged, and shamefully entreated, should now be the final reliance of the Government. They are the forlorn hope of the Republic. They are the last sacrifice of the good cause. We must make alliance with them, or our final success is unpeopled.

Congress is in dispute over a bill to arm and equip 150,000 negroes, to serve in the war. Let it stop the debate! The case is settled; the problem is solved; the argument is done. Let the recruiting sergeants beat their drums! The next Levy of Troops must not be made in the North, but on the Plantations. Marshal them into line by regiments and brigades! The men that have picked cotton must now pick flints! Gather the great Third Army! For two years the Government has been searching, in an enemy's country, for a path to victory; only the Negro can find it! Give him gun and bayonet, and let him point the way! The future is his: God and the Negro are to save the Republic.—N. Y. Independent.

How the Indian War Commenced.

It is now ascertained that the main cause of the late Indian war, with all the horrible massacres and sufferings attending it, was the criminal fraud of some of the agents who were intrusted with the payment of the Sioux and other north-western tribes. By the treaty between those tribes and the government they are paid certain sums on the first of June of each year, their sums being payable in gold or silver. This year the agents received the gold and silver coin during the first week of June, but instead instead of paying it over to the Indians they were tempted by the premium on specie, and exchanged the specie for "greenbacks." These were intended for the Indians, while they pocketed the premium. But the Indians did not understand Uncle Sam's "promise to pay," and refused to accept the paper. The agents tried to explain its value and use, but they could not be made to take anything but the hard metal. The hunting season was coming on, and winter's supply of food must be obtained; but money must be had first with which to purchase powder and ball. A few thefts were the first result of the agents's fraud, and from this beginning resulted the Indian war, by which over one hundred lives were lost, five million dollars worth of property destroyed, and a large body of troops wasted elsewhere are sent to the frontier.—Witness.

THE FIRST STEAMER SEEN IN ENGLISH WATERS.

In the month of July, 1825, I was sitting on the poop of the Tre Cosen, an old Danish 74, which Nelson had taken out of Copenhagen, but which our Government had forgotten to restore. She was a large and roomy ship, and was used in our service as a receiving hulk, on board of which the crews of such ships as were in dock were stowed. The ship to which I belonged was in this predicament, and as it was the people's dinner hour, I was reclining on the taffrail with a friend, while Mr. Wodehouse, the signal midshipman, walked to and fro on the lee side of the deck. The day was beautifully fine—one of those pets which have sometimes to remind us that there is such a thing as summer, when everything looks splendid, and the atmosphere seems able to carry the vision to any distace. All was still on board the fleet when Mr. Wodehouse exclaimed—"Hallos! what's that?" and addressing the officer of the watch, said, "The boats of the fleet, sir, to rendezvous alongside the flag-ship. Ship on fire, sir." All hands were immediately piped, and the boats manned; and as other ships had done the same there was presently a flotilla around the Admirals ship. But what was all this row about? As we looked towards Spithead, to which our attention was directed, a vessel was accordingly seen, apparently a 10-gun brig, from which a large, thick, and dark stream of smoke was emmitted. There could be no doubt, therefore, that she was on fire, and the fleet of boats was held in readiness to board her when she got into harbor—to scuttle her if need be—and, at all events, to save the crew from the perils that await them. One thing, however, perplexed every on-looker. The burning brig kept on her course steadily went round the fleet at Spithead, and then cooly bore up for the harbor, where she presently made her appearance, puffing and blowing, but not burning. On she came to the amazement of all who beheld her, and having proceeded some way up the harbor, she returned, and very quietly anchored off the Hard. But what was this extraordinary vessel that sailed without sails, went right on against the wind and tide, and did as she listed with those elements which all men and ships had heretofore implicitly obeyed? Nobody could tell, for nobody had seen anything like her before. Jack, who has a tinge of superstition about him, said little, shook his head, chewed his quid, and looked wonderfully wise—for he plainly could not make her out "in no way whatsoemever." By and by the mysterious craft was boarded, and turned out to be the steamboat Caledonia, from the Clyde, which had come round to show our sailors at the south what could be done by northern heads and hands; and this little vessel, which was much smaller than our ordinary river boats, was the first steamboat ever seen in English waters.

An incident of this kind was not likely to pass unnoticed—nor did it. On the following day everybody went to see her, and everybody expressed their astonishment at her powers. But about 11 a. m., there was a movement extraordinary on the waters. The Admiral's barge, filled with ladies and gentlemen pulled alongside, who having satisfied their curiosity, went on board the Esk—a ship corvette, commanded by captain Lord Napier, who was afterwards killed in China—where a military band awaited them, together with a large company of expectant visitants. The Caledonia's steam was up she took Esk in tow, amid the cheers of crowds on shore, and crowds on shipboard, she steamed bravely out to Spithead, where she left her companion, and returned with what, in those days seemed to be inconceivable speed, and took the Endymion in hand; and to the delight of a large body of spectators, dashed out of the harbor with her burden as a grown man would carry an infant. Thus were the sailing and tugging powers of steamboats first demonstrated to English eyes, by a small Clyde steamboat 47 years ago—a fact to which I was an eye witness, and which may yet come to have some historical value.—Veteran, in Glasgow Herald.

Retrenchment in the Crown Lands.

The services of Mr. Salter, Superintendent of Colonization Roads in Algoma, have been dispensed with, and the duties of his office will be discharged by Mr. Superintendent Gibson. Messrs. Boswell and Graham, (Peterboro') Colonization Agents, appointed by the late Government at a salary of four dollars a day each, are henceforth to be paid by commission, like other agents. The saving yearly by these changes, will be $4 700.—Times

The Gold Excitement in New York.

The stock and gold excitement in New York is increasing. The Herald of the 14th inst. says:

"The excitement in Wall street yesterday was tremendous. The whole market was inflated, and some stocks advanced, at a single leap, twenty per cent. Gold went up to 142. Speculators seem to have gone wild with the frenzy of sudden wealth. Law's Mississippi scheme and the great South Sea bubble are about to be surpassed. If you stop a broker to speak to him he looks at his watch, waves you off, and rushes away as if he had lost a fortune in a moment. We remember a period of insanity nearly similar just before the crisis of 1837. Every one then had an attack of the morus multicaulis and expected to become rich by breeding silkworms. Spare rooms were set aside for the cocoons, and mulberry leaves were at a premium. During this insanity a couple of ladies entered the greengroom of a florist to purchase a bouquet. The ladies wished to examine, compare and select their nosegay, but the florist had his silkworms to look after.—"There is the bouquet," said he, "take it or not, as you please, but don't delay me, for my time is worth fifty dollars a minute." Brokers in Wall street now talk in the same style; but greenbacks, not silkworms, are the monomania. All the excitement they have raised is in anticipation of the passage of Chase's bill, authorizing the issue of three hundred millions more of paper money. Suppose the bill should not pass, where would the brokers be then? Suppose the bill does pass, where will the country be then? Speculation goeth before destruction, and a rise in the market before a fall. Brethren, let us watch and pray, and keep out of Wall street and temptation."

Gold Discoveries in Nebraska.

Nebraska Territory is rich in agricultural resources, and to these gold is to be added. Mr. E. Creighton, Superintendent of the Pacific Telegraph line at Salt Lake City, saw some twenty persons who had just arrived from the new mining region discovered in the Northern portion of Nebraska Territory, about the 1st of September last. They brought with them about $50,000 in gold dust, which they had taken out of the mines within a few weeks. Mr. Creighton brought with him to Omaha about $5,000 worth of gold dust purchased from returned miners which he has forwarded to New York for assay. It is supposed the dust will assay at least $18 to the ounce. The newly discovered mining district commences on Wind River, about 400 miles west of Fort Laramie, and embraces an area of 200 miles in length by 100 in breadth. The deposits discovered up to this very time are of gulch and very similar in appearance and richness to those of the Feather River mines of California.—The miners who discovered these new diggings were returning to Salt Lake from the Bitter Root valley, via the South Pass, and they unite in the opinion that they will prove fully equal to any ever discovered on the continent. The distance from Omaha to the Wind River Mountains, at the base of which the first discoveries were made, is about 900 miles.

Banquet to Hayman Butler.

It was proposed in New York to give a Dinner in that city to Gen. Butler on the 8th inst., the anniversary of the battle between the British and American forces at New Orleans. Writing on this proposition the World says:—

"The men who propose to desecrate the memory of the soldiers of Chalmette by a banquet in honor of the tyrant of New Orleans have tripped upon their calendar.—They cannot safely or wisely feast the living hyena to-day upon the tomb of the dead lion. A few months ago, before the veil which hid the orgies of a venal despotism had been rent away, it might have been possible for a Butler to assume the laurels and to affect the part of a Jackson. It is now too late. The audacity which Danton recommends to the leaders of a revolutionary time is no more to be confounded with mere impudence than the emotion which Demosthenes prescribes to the orator with mere nervous hysterics. If the one insures success the other entails that worst of failures which breeds contempt. And the adulators who are preparing to caricature the glory of a Jackson for the benefit of a Butler may rest assured that if the popular indignation forbears to scatter them where they sit, it will only be because scorn outrises wrath in the hearts of a disgusted people."

THE REWARD FOR BUTLER'S CAPTURE.

The Charleston Courier of the 30th ultimo contains the following advertisement:—

"Ten Thousand Dollars Reward, ($10,000)—President Davis having proclaimed Benjamin F. Butler, of Massachusetts, to be a felon, deserving of capital punishment, for the deliberate murder of William B. Mumford, a citizen of the Confederacy, at New Orleans, and having, for that and other outrages and atrocities, pronounced the said Benjamin F. Butler an outlaw and common enemy of mankind, and authorized, in the event of his capture, the officer in command of the capturing force to cause him to be immediately executed by hanging, undersigned hereby offers a reward of ten thousand dollars ($10,000) for the capture of the said Benjamin F. Butler, dead or alive, to any proper Confederate authority.

"RICHARD YEADON.

"Charleston, Dec. 29, 1862. 16"

It will be noticed that this advertisment is ordered to be inserted six times.—In another column the Courier has the following:

"We find in the Winchester (Tenn.) Bulletin the following curious advertisement, which we are assured is genuine:—

"'I understand $50,000 is offered as a reward to whoever will kill the Beast Butler of New Orleans. I accept the offer, and require $25,000 forfeit, to be placed in some good hands. When I accomplish this noble deed, I am to be paid the reward. My name can be found when desired by the proper person.'

"This is dated 'Winchester, Tennessee, Nov. 2' Shall it go begging?"

Credit Foncier.

The landed credit scheme of the Lower Canadians has been widely discussed by Canadian and American newspapers of all shades of Politics and universally commended. The New York Tribune writing on the subject, says:

"Banking on a real estate basis was tried in this State, and utterly failed.—Hardly a bank organized under the Free Banking Law realized more than 50 cents on the dollar from that portion of its assets, although the Bank Department issued currency only to half the estimated value of the property. Now the banks of New York are required to deposit the amount of their circulation half in State and half in United States stocks with the Bank Department at Albany. The only result which the Canadian bubble can accomplish, supposing it to be carried into practice in effect, will be to rob the simple habitans of their farms, instead of relieving them of their distress, and has been too sadly demonstrated by the operation of similar schemes in France."

A Man Sells his Wife.

The Leeds (England) Mercury relates a novel and ludicrous scene enacted by a simple fellow, named William Holmes, a farm servant, residing in the neighborhood of Lowlead, Yorkshire. It appears that Holme's wife, about two years ago, left him and took up her abode with another man, with whom, until very recently, she had cohabited. From some unknown cause the unfaithful spouse, a few days since, visited her husband and tried to persuade him to accept her again, but instead of an amicable arrangement being made between them they quarrelled and blows were struck. The wife summoned her husband before the magistrates, at the petty sessions, to answer the charge of assaulting her and the defendant was fined 5s and costs. Soon afterwards he was heard to express his intention of publicly selling his wife. He bought a horse's halter, and taking hold of his wife, placed it round her neck. In this manner he took her up to the cross in the market place, and having mounted the steps offered her for sale and sold her to her old paramour for a pint of ale. A large concourse of people assembled to witness the proceedings, which raised no little amusement. Just as the sale had finished, the police made their appearance, upon which loud hooting and hissing broke from the crowd. Holmes, at this stage, thought it advisable to shift his quarters, but before he could do so he was taken into custody, charged with creating a public disturbance. On his way to the police station in company with a policeman, however, he managed to escape, and ran away, and was with some difficulty recaptured. The wife was left with her purchaser in the market place, and apparently all out of humor with the proceedings.

Mr. Marshall Wood has been commissioned to execute a statute of the Queen, to be erected at Montreal.

Mr. Brown and J. E. Cameron.

The other day, the Toronto Leader published an account of certain alleged negotiations projected by Mr. Brown with a view to a political combination with Mr. Hillyard Cameron and his adherents. The story of a meeting of Reformers at which Mr. Brown propounded his scheme, without achieving the slightest success, reached us even more circumstantially through other channels, and may therefore be supposed to have obtained circulation in the West. The minute edition harmonizes so closely with the statement of the Hamilton Times, in reference to a similar proposition, said by that journal to have been made by both of the editors of the Globe on the Reform representative of a Western constituency, that a greater degree of credibility attaches to it than might otherwise be the case. The allegation of the Times was met by an angry but evasive and unsatisfactory denial on the part of the Globe. The more recent and in many cases more important statement of the Leader has received a similar denial. Here and there, speculations have appeared in relation to its probability, but the main question of fact, asserted by the Leader has thus far been passed over in silence. Not a word from Mr. Brown or his journals. Silence on such a question, at such a time, possesses a significance upon which it is not necessary to dwell.—Quebec Mercury.

THE FAILURES OF 1862.—The annual commercial circular of Messrs. R. G. Dun & Co., contains details with regard to the failures of the past year, in the Northern States and Canada. As regards the Northern States the result is very remarkable. In 1861, there were 5,935 failures, with total liabilities of $178,093,170; while in 1862 there were only 1,652 failures, with only $23,049,000 of liabilities. The small number of failures in 1862, by the abundance of money, and the scarcity and high price of goods, which have enhanced the value of stocks on hand, and placed a new and unexpected value on goods which had come to be regarded as dead stock.

In the British Provinces, the amount of liabilities in the failures of 1862, was only about half their amount in 1861.

The following shows the number of failures with amount of liabilities in the British

A Dangerous Neighbor.

(From the Scottish American Journal.)

The financial and general banking system of Canada has enjoyed a well-earned name for soundness. There are, it is true, exceptional remarks to be made on this, as on almost everything else. But the Canadian money system both as to the Government financial operations, and the business of the leading banks, has had for many years a healthy repute. Before the Provinces were united politically as it is now, the [illegible] were small. For [illegible] was attempted by a commercial crisis, causing a partial suspension of specie payments) and even after the Union of 1840 had had several years trial, the successive Finance Ministers had a hard task to make both ends meet in their yearly settlements. The wealthier banks—the British and the Montreal especially—fought shy of Government promises to pay. But in 1847 Mr. Hincks then Inspector General, determined to make an effort at the establishment of a regular public banking agency. For this purpose he approached the Bank of Upper Canada, and although there were serious obstacles in his way, he succeeded in establishing a credit. From that day forward his cause in the line of borrowing was easy. The Customs' duties were increased to meet the demands of the public creditor. Baring and Glyn became the financial agents of the Province in England, and before Mr. Hincks went out of power in 1854, the Canadian six per cents were quoted at prices varying from 114 to 116. We do not propose to trace the history of the Provincial finances from that day forward. We merely mention these facts as preliminary to the introduction of a subject which has begun to create considerable alarm among the British mercantile public in Canada.

It appears that the facilities for borrowing which the Province acquired have not been so unmixed good. Many instances of this might be mentioned. We will point, however, only to one; and to this one, we think, may be traced, the evil which now appears to threaten the country. The Tenure system of the Lower Province was long a real and tangible grievance, which demanded on the broadest social and political considerations, a remedy. The lands of new France, or Lower Canada, as most of our readers are aware, were originally granted to emigrants of some social or official standing—many of the Seigniories to this day being held by descendants of the old French noblesse. The grants were conditional. By the Edicts of the King the owners were required to lease them at a certain fixed rate—the leases being heritable, but subject to certain dues in the shape of mill privileges, mines, and the transfer of property from one lessee to another. All the duties were of a vexatious nature; some of them—such as the fee paid to the Seigneur on the transfer of the land from one farmer to another—were onerous. The whole system was intensely feudal—tending to retard settlement and [illegible] and to perpetuate class distinctions at variance with a free system of Government. The Treaty of Capitulation, now upwards of a hundred years old, perpetuated this system; or rather it was left to fructify by its own rottenness for a hundred years under British rule. In 1853, however, an act providing for a General Commutation of the Land Tenure was passed. Public Funds were voted to indemnify the Seigneurs; and the habitant were expected also to contribute some share for the purpose of acquiring the fee simple to his farm. How the Commutation act has operated we shall not now inquire—although no one can doubt for a moment the wisdom of overthrowing the wretched system which preced its passage.

But what we wish to come to is the fact that out of the financial prosperity of the Province, and out of the provision made for giving the habitant of Lower Canada the title in fee simple to his land, has grown up a sort of socialist feeling which promises to be dangerous. The farmer finding that he has got a title through the aid of the State to property which he merely held before by a feudal lease, is determined to get further advances from the State, to enable him to improve his farm. Already, probably, four million dollars of public money have been refunded on these farm purchases and on releasing the habitant from a variety of perplexing dues. Now, he wants the State to come forward and enable him to borrow, or practically, in fact, to give him twenty million dollars more. He desires to borrow money cheap and be relieved from any dangerous pressure for the principal; and he considers that the State can best forward his views. Hence it is that we read of no fewer than forty Lower Canada Members of Parliament having already headed a movement to bring the Government to the popular way of thinking. The enormity of the demand is seen when it is taken into account that Upper Canada has already borne the largest share of the tax for the Commutation of the Land Tenure, although her farmers bought and paid for their own farms out of their own pockets. Of this twenty million loan, Upper Canada would likewise, practically, have to become good for about fourteen millions—not a penny of which would accrue to her for any local improvement. We trust to Government of the Province will be strong enough to resist any pressure that may be made to introduce a system so fraught with evil, alike to the class which demands it, and to the credit of the country at large.

The amount of gold received from California during the last year, was nearly ten millions less than in 1861

Mr. Sientle has visited Paris, and since his visit, La France, the organ of the Empress, pays particular attention to Canadian matters.

The Red River settlement is in commotion. The people petition England for a confederation, and the H. B. Company petition for troops.

The Court Journal says that the accouchement of the Princess Louis of Hesse is expected in April, and will take place at Windsor Castle.

RELIEF IN TEN MINUTES.

BRYAN'S

PULMONIC WAFERS.

The most certain and speedy remedy ever discovered for all Diseases of the Chest and Lungs, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Consumption, Bronchitis, Influenza, Hoarseness, Difficult breathing, Sore throat &c., &c., &c.

THESE WAFERS give the most instantaneous and perfect relief and when persevered with according to directions, never fail to effect a rapid and lasting cure. Thousands have been restored to perfect health who have tried other means in vain. To all classes and all constitutions they are equally a blessing and a cure—none need despair, no matter how long the disease may have existed, or however severe it may be, provided the organic structure of the vital organs is not hopelessly decayed. Every one afflicted should give them an impartial trial.

To Vocalists and Public Speakers, these Wafers are peculiarly valuable; they will in one day remove the most severe occasional hoarseness; and their regular use for a few days will, at all times, increase the power and flexibility of the voice, greatly improving its tone, compass and clearness, for which purpose they are regularly used by many professional vocalists

EMPLOYMENT.

THE Undersigned has, for several years past, been engaged in a business, which has yielded him at the rate of three thousand dollars per annum, and is now willing to teach it to others. The business is of a highly useful and general character, adapted both to cities and villages, and one that any person of ordinary capacity, young or old, male or female, can acquire with a few hours' practice, and by which they can secure a very handsome income. Several young ladies who have received instructions from me, both in New York State and Pennsylvania, are earning upwards of $15 per week by it, and there is no reason why any one else cannot do the same. Invalids, even, can do well by it, as it is no peddling affair, but a business that is perfectly respectable. Gentleman and ladies of leisure who would like to learn the business for their own amusement or pleasure, will find the practice of it a pleasant pastime, and one that they will take great interest in. On receipt of $1, I will send printed instructions by which any person can readily acquire the art, and these instructions will also contain every particular relative to the carrying it on so that it will be highly profitable. The purchaser of the "printed instructions" will also be authorised to teach it to others; and I have sometimes received as high as $200, for teaching it personally to a single individual. I would state further that $2.50 or $3 will buy everything that is necessary to commence the business with, and the articles can be got almost anywhere, in city or country, or if preferred, I can furnish them. THE CANADIAN

Land & Emigration Co'y, Limited,

OF LONDON, ENGLAND,

Capital, £250,000 Stg.

THE HON. MR. JUSTICE HALIBURTON, CHAIRMAN, offer for sale

350,000 Acres

OF LAND IN THE

COUNTIES OF PETERBORO & VICTORIA

consisting of parts of the

Townships of DYSART, DUDLEY, LONGFORD, GUILFORD, HARCOURT, HARBURN, BRUTON, HAVELOCK, &c., &c.

The following are some, among many other inducements held out to parties who may choose to take up lands in the above Townships:

Ten per cent of the purchase money paid to Government by the Company for these lands will be expended in constructing really good roads; these roads will intersect the Government Roads; namely, the Bobcaygeon, Victoria Burleigh and Peterson Roads, at convenient points, and will converge to various Town plots which the Company have it in view to lay out in very carefully selected sites. The Town Plots will, it is anticipated,—the whole of them being connected by good roads (for the construction of which the country affords excellent facilities)—become each the centre of a new and flourishing settlement; private enterprise in establishing Stores, Mills, &c., will here soon find its reward, and the several towns and townships being as it were knit together by good roads, will derive from that fact great advantages and mutual support.

In addition, the watchful supervision of the Company over every part of their land will greatly tend to advance the interests of this district, wherein, being in the middle of Upper Canada, possessing a fertile soil, and a climate unsurpassed in its healthful effects upon the human frame, offers superior attractions, and all the elements of rapid progress and permanent prosperity.

THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE. 1863.

THE New-York TRIBUNE, first issued in 1841, now in its twenty-second year, has obtained both a larger and more widely diffused circulation than any other newspaper ever published in America. Though it has suffered to the common ills that journals, from their volunteering and departure of nearly all of thousands of its patrons to serve in the War of the Union, its circulation on the 6th of December, 1862, is as follows:

DAILY	50,125
SEMI-WEEKLY	17,250
WEEKLY	148,000
AGGREGATE	215,375

Preeminently a journal of News and of Discussion, The Tribune has political convictions, which are well characterized by the single word REPUBLICAN. It is Republican in its hearty adhesion to the great truth that "God has made of one blood all nations of men"—Republican in its assertion of the equal and inalienable rights of all men to "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness"—Republican in its steadfast, earnest, defiant hostility to every scheme and effort of the Slave Power, from the Annexation of Texas to the great Rebellion, to grasp the empire of the New World and wield the resources of our country for its own aggrandizement—Republican in its antagonism to the aristocrats and despots of the Old World, who fondly hail in the perils and calamities suddenly thrust upon us by the American counterpart the overthrow and ruin of the Model Republic—Republican in its hope and trust, in faith and effort, that the atrocious Rebellion must result in the signal overthrow of its plotters, and the firm establishment of equal rights and equal laws throughout the whole extent of our country, wherein Liberty and Union shall indeed be "one and inseparable" henceforth and forever.

The Tribune devotes attention in calmer times, and to some extent in these, to Education Temperance, and Agriculture, Invention, and whatever else may minister to the spiritual and material progress and well-being of mankind; but for the present its energies and its columns are mainly devoted to the success of the War for the Union. Its special correspondents accompany every considerable army and report every important incident of that great struggle which we trust is soon to result in the signal and conclusive triumph of the National arms and in the restoration of Peace and Thrift to our bleeding country. We believe that no otherwise can a fuller or more accurate view of the progress and character of the momentous conflict be obtained than through the regular perusal of our columns. And we earnestly solicit the cooperation of all friends of the National cause, which we regard and uphold as that of Universal Humanity, to aid us in extending its circulation.

ANNUAL MEETING

INVESTIGATION REPORT - - DECLARATION OF BONUS.

THE twenty-sixth annual Meeting of this Company was held within the Royal Hotel, Aberdeen, on Friday, the 18th April.

Alexander Stronach, Esq., of Drumallan, Chairman of the Ordinary Directors, in the Chair

There were submitted to the meeting—

1.—Report by the Directors, which, on the motion of the Chairman, was cordially and unanimously approved of and adopted.

2.—The Balance Sheet for the past year, with detailed states relative thereto, duly certified as correct, in terms of the Act of Incorporation, by the Chairman and Manager, and also by the Auditor.

There was also laid on the Table the various Valuation States in connection with the Quinquennial Investigation into the state of the Company's affairs, as at 31st January, 1862.

The following particulars derived from the Balance Sheet and States before mentioned, show the result of the operations of the Company for the past year:—

Amount proposed for Life Assurance during the year, contained in 1389 Proposal	£454,825 0 0
Amount of Proposals accepted, and for which 981 Policies were issued	269,980 0 0
ANNUAL PREMIUMS or said Policies	11,179 1 0
CLAIMS BY DEATH including BONUSES on PARTICIPATION POLICIES, and after deducting Sums recovered from other Offices under guarantees	21,999 1 0
TOTAL SUM Assured under 4,759 current LIFE POLICIES	1,955,95 0 0
TOTAL ACCUMULATED FUNDS	213,5-3 3 2
TOTAL ANNUAL REVENUE	90,756 4 -

With reference to the recent investigation into the state of the Company's affairs, as at 31st January last, the Report States that both the principles of valuation and the details thereof, had been submitted to James John Downes, Esq., Actuary to the Economic Life Office in London, a gentleman well known as one of the highest authorities on such subjects in the kingdom, and had received his certificate approval, as having been made on just and sound principles, and accurately carried out as certified in his report to the Directors, which formed part of the Appendix to their Report. This step the Directors considered could not fail to give the utmost confidence—both to the shareholders and the Policyholders—in the soundness and correctness of the valuation.

During the Quinquennial period, the claims by death, including the bonus additions which had been paid, and which had been considerably under the number that might have been expected from the Mortality Tables on which the Office rates are based, amounting to £93,975 6s 6d.

In valuing the Policies, each had been separately calculated, and nett premiums had only been used, thus leaving a surplus of annual revenue of £11,427 18s 7d., to meet future expenses and to form a source of profit for next investigation. The total amount of claims by death paid since the commencement of the Company, was £217,821 4s.

The Securities held by the Company were in a satisfactory position, and had been recently carefully scrutinized in detail by the Directors.

In conclusion, the Directors congratulated both the Proprietors and the Assured on the high position which the Company now occupied in the estimation of the public, and on the encouraging prospect of its business operations for the future.

DECLARATION OF BONUS.

From the profits realized on the Life business, a retrospective Bonus of £1 7s 6d per cent per annum for the Quinquennial period was declared, on the sums originally assured under all Participating Policies, increased by the previous additions thereto; also a further prospective Bonus of £1 per cent per annum, on the amount of the Policies with said Bonuses, on all such of said Policies as may become claims by Death previously to the 31st January, 1867.

It will be observed, that this rate of Bonus is equivalent in the case of our older Policies to £1 14s per cent per annum on the original sum assured, that the total additions to the sum assured, now vested, are equal to 32 per cent on the sum assured; and that as the younger ages the additions amount to upwards of 75 per cent of the premiums paid.

Statement showing the Progress of the Company's Business during the Quinquennial Period ending 31st January, 1862:

Year ending 31st January.	Amounts proposed for Assurance.	Amount of New Policies issued.	No. of Policies issued.		New Annual Premiums.	Total Revenue in each year.	Accumulated Funds.
1858	£169,540	£128,190	435	356	£3,999 18 6	£40,706 11 10	£242,556 9 2
1859	206,305	168,171	540	477	5,492 1 0	65,701 5 3	307,524 3 4
1860	348,239	253,920	806	659	8,779 17 9	77,977 5 5	313,986 9 10
1861	349,076	270,146	933	736	7,971 17 6	87,080 7 6	334,606 11 0
1862	454,525	309,630	1159	861	11,170 1 1	90,756 4 4	373,563 3 2
Totals.....	£1,526,276	£1,219,697	3869	3209	37,409 15 10	338,131 14 6	1,567,236 16 6

Votes of thanks were passed to the Directors and Office-bearers of the Company at Head-Offices and Branches, and after a very hearty vote of thanks to the Chairman for his conduct in the Chair, the meeting was dissolved.

ILLUSTRATED SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN!

The Best Mechanical Paper in the World.

EIGHTEENTH YEAR.

VOLUME VIII—NEW SERIES.

A NEW VOLUME of this popular Journal commences on the first of January. It is published weekly, and every number contains sixteen pages of useful information, and from five to ten original engravings of new inventions and discoveries, all of which are prepared expressly for its columns.

TO THE MECHANIC & MANUFACTURER

No person engaged in any of the manufacturing pursuits should think of "doing without" the Scientific American. It costs but six cents per week; every number contains from six to ten engravings of new machines and inventions, which cannot be found in any other publication

TO THE INVENTOR.

The Scientific American is indispensable to every inventor, as it not only contains illustrated descriptions of nearly all the best inventions as they come out, but each number contains an Official List of the Claims of all the Patents issued from the United States Patent Office during the week previous; thus giving a correct history of the progress of invention in this country. We are also receiving, every week the best scientific journals of Great Britain, France and Germany: thus placing in our possession all that is transpiring in mechanical science and art in these old countries. We continue to transfer to our columns copious extracts from these journals whatever we may deem of interest to our readers.

A pamphlet of instruction as to the best mode of obtaining Letters Patent on new inventions furnished free on application.

Messrs. Munn & Co. have acted as Patent Solicitors for more than seventeen years, in connection with the publication of the Scientific American, and they refer to 20,000 patentees for whom they have done business.

No charge is made for examining sketches and models of new inventions and for advising inventors as to their patentability.

CHEMISTS, ARCHITECTS, MILL-WRIGHTS & FARMERS.

The Scientific American will be found a most useful journal to them. All the new discoveries in the science of chemistry are given in its columns, and the interest of the architect and carpenter are not overlooked; all the new inventions and discoveries appertaining to these pursuits being published from week to week. Useful and practical information pertaining to the interests of millwrights and mill-owners will be found in the Scientific American, which information they can not possibly obtain from any other source. Subjects in which farmers are interested will be found discussed in the Scientific American; most of the improvements in agricultural implements being illustrated in its columns.

TERMS.—To mail subscribers: Three Dollars a year, or One Dollar for four months.—The volumes commence on the first of January and July. Specimen copies will be sent gratis to any part of the country.

Western and Canadian money or Post-office stamps taken at par for subscriptions. Canadian subscribers will please to remit twenty-five cents extra on each year's subscription to prepay postage.

FINKLE & LYON

SEWING MACHINE COMPANY.

538 Broadway, New York.

TO parties little acquainted with the Finkle & Lyon Sewing Machines the careful perusal of the Company's Circular is especially commended. This circular can be had on application. It is very specific, and will be found highly instructive, having been prepared without care and we will abide by all statements therein made.

The following brief quotation is characteristic of the entire Circular:

"This Machine is better adapted than any other Sewing Machine in market to the frequent changes and almost endless variety of sewing required in a family; for it will sew from one to twenty thicknesses of Marseilles without stopping, and make every stitch perfect. Will sew from the finest gauze to the heaviest cloth, and even the stoutest harness leather, without changing the feed needle or tension, or making any adjustment of machine whatever."

Thus have we successfully overcome the most difficult point in the Sewing Machine art. It was no ordinary triumph. Defiantly can we now say, "No

Poetry.

The Legend of Rabbi Ben Levi.

BY H. W. LONGFELLOW.

Rabbi Ben Levi, on the Sabbath, read
A volume of the Law, in which it said,
"No man shall look upon My face and live."
And as he read, he prayed that God would give
His faithful servant grace with mortal eye
To look upon His face and yet not die.

Then fell a sudden shadow on the page,
And lifting up his eyes, grown dim with age,
He saw the Angel of Death before him stand,
Holding a sealed scroll in his right hand.
Rabbi Ben Levi was a righteous man,
Yet through his veins a chill of terror ran,
With trembling voice he said, "What wilt thou here?"

The Angel answered, Lo! the time draws near
When thou must die, yet first, by God's decree,
Whate'er thou askest shall be granted thee."
Replied the Rabbi, "Let these living eyes
First look upon my place in Paradise."

Then said the Angel, "Come with me and look"
Rabbi Ben Levi closed the sacred book,
And rising, and uplifting his grey head,
"Give me thy sword," he to the Angel said,
"Lest thou shouldst fall upon me by the way."
The Angel smiled and hastened to obey,
Then led him forth to the Celestial Town,
And sat him on the wall, whence gazing down,
Rabbi Ben Levi, with his living eyes,
Might look upon his place in Paradise.

Then straight into the city of the Lord
The Rabbi leaped with the Death Angel's sword,
And through the streets there swept a sudden breath
Of something there unknown, which men call death.
Meanwhile the Angel stayed without and cried,
"Come back!" To which the Rabbi's voice replied,
"No! in the name of God, whom I adore,
I swear that hence I will depart no more."

Then all the Angels cried: "O Holy one,
See what the son of Levi here has done!
The kingdom of Heaven he takes by violence,
And in thy name refuses to go hence!"
The Lord replied, "My angels be not wroth:
Did e'er the son of Levi break his oath?
Let him remain; for he with mortal eye
Shall look upon my face and yet not die."
Beyond the outer wall the Angel of Death
Heard the great voice, and said, with panting breath,
"Give back the sword, and let me go my way."
Whereat the Rabbi paused and answered "Nay!
Anguish enough already has it caused
Among the sons of men!" And while he paused,
He heard the awful mandate of the Lord
Resounding through the air, "Give back the sword!"

The Rabbi bowed his head in silent prayer;
Then said he to the deadful Angel, "Swear,
No human eye shall look on it again;
But when takest away the souls of men,
Thyself unseen, and with an unseen sword,
Thou wilt perform the bidding of the Lord."

The angel took the sword again, and swore,
And walks the earth unseen forevermore.

Miscellaneous.

"What's in a Name."

Any one interested in names will find in the Cincinnati Directory, enough to study over for a good while, and it contains almost everything in the shape of a name that can be conceived of. It may prove at least amusing to see a few of them classified. Nearly all kinds of occupation are represented by names, very few of which persons follow the calling their names indicate. The following are some of them: Baker, Barber, Bishop, Carpenter, Constable, Cook, Cooper, Cutter, Dryman, Dyer, Farmer, Fidler, Fisher, Gardner, Glazier, Goldsmith, Hackman, Sawyer, Mason, Merchant, Miller, Miner, Minister, Painter, Potter, Parson, Porter, Lawyer, Shepherd, Singer, Slater, Sleeper, Sower, Spader, Speaker, Tanner, Taylor, Tinner, Tinker, Trader, Turner, Tutor, Weigher, Waterman, Weaver, Wheelright.

The animal creation is represented by the following names; Badger, Bear, Buck, Bull, Bullock, Coon, Cowe, Deer, Fawn, Fox, Hart, Kid, Kine, Litten, Lamb, Lyon, Mink, Mouse, Pigg, Stagg, Starbuck, Swine, Steer, and Wolf. Among other names the feathered tribe is not forgotten, for we find Bird, Chick, Crane, Crow, Drake, Eagle, Goose, Gosling, Henne, Heron, Kite, Partridge, Quails, Robin, Sparrow, Stork, Swan, Parrott, Peacock and Wren. There is also Fish, Bass, Herring, Trout, Pike, and Turtle.

We need not go hungry for the directory will furnish us with Dinner and Supper, and also the following eatables and drinkables, Rusk, Rolls, Beans, Peas, Reddish, Rice, Court, Curd, Butter, Pepper, Pickles, Custard, Pye, Candy, Schugar, Honey, Almonds, Apples, Cherrys, Dates, Orange, Lemon, Raisin, Peach, Berry, Nutz, Coffee, Cider, Porter, Popp, Punch, Wines and Clearwater. There is no need of eating our food raw for we have Cook, Bake, Boyle, and Fry.

We find Hay, Wheat, Oats, Korn Cobb, Meal, and Mealy, also Wood, Timber, Birch, Box, Butternut, Mulberry, Oak, Pine, Greenwood, and Blackwood. We have Leaf, Branch, Trunk, Stump and Root; Bush, Brier, Hemp, Moss, Mullen, Nettle, Tuzy, Thorn Greenbrier, Grapevine, Greenleaf and Wood, Any one kind of flowers will find Bloom, Daisy, Lillie and Rose. There is to be found Babe, Boys, Child, Lad, Lass, Males, Man and Maiden.

There are some names which sound decidedly bad, such as Weakbear, Tricker, Temper Cross, Crossman, Mock, Gilt, Hart, Hart, Kirk, Lawless, Lyer, Ruffin, Sinner, Sing, Robb, Steel, Swear and damn; but perhaps they may be offset by such as Eminenter, Lord, Love, Divine, Christian, Church, Grace, Trust, Virtue, Justice, Kind, Humble, Good, Goodman, Goodheart, Goodenough and Best.

We find such names as Fat, High, Large, Little, Long, Low, Short, Shorter, Bigger, Small, Slight, Slick, Stiff, Still, Stout, Strong, Strange, Straight, Swift, Thin, Tallman, Wild and Wilder, Droll, Gross, Wirt, Pleasant, Stout, Gladden, Gay, Jokers, Jolly, Joy, Grieve, and Sad. Also, Lightfoot, Rider, Walker, Trotter and Hopper; Dull, Slurp, Bright, Quick, Wise and Sage; Beholder, Darling, Courteous, Groom, Maud, and Wedding, Poor, Need, Rich, Treasure and Lucky. We have Well, Wellman, Stillwell, and Hearty, also Sick and Weakly; and, to round us of eternity, Dye, Coffin, Grave-Digger and Dust.

We find Back, Beard, Blood, Foot, Legs, Gait, Head, Heart and Kidney.

We have something to wear in the shape of Hat, Cap, Bonnet, Boots, Hood, Veil, Lace, Ruff, Sock, Hoop, Dress, Coat, and Belt.

We have House, Castle, Hall, Hut, Temple and Cathedral; also, Gate, Garrett, Loft, Lofthouse, Rafter, Roof, Pillars, Floor, Wall, Beam, Joist, Sills, Bolt, Lock, Keys, Mantle and Bell; also Clock, Dial, Dipper, Bale, Plate, Platter, Pot, Kettle, Grater, Stove, Lamps, Pans, Shears, Broom, Curtain, and Curtain. If we went look, we find Hone, Whetstone, Hammer, Handle, Hook, Staple, Awell, Augur, Compass, Bellows, Sledge, Sickles, Spade, Wrench, and Pick.

Among the minerals we find Clay, Cement, Flint, Rock, Stone, Sand, Glass, Brass, Gold, Silver, Steel, Pearl, and Diamond; also, Money, Coin, Peace, Penny, Groat, Shilling and Dollar.

Those fond of scenery can find Street, Lane, Alley, Park, Orchard, Grove, Fields, Forest, Woods, Dale, Dell, Hill, Knoll, Mead, Marsh, Slough, Prairie, Rill, Rivers, Lake, Pool, Mount, and Mountain. We have Clouds, Frost, Gale, Hail, Sleet, Snow, Storm, Tempest, Rainy and Fair-weather.

We have North, South and West; Spring, Summer and Winter; May, March, and August; Hour, Daily, Weeks, Sunday, Monday and Friday; Early and Later; Morn, Day, Light and Dark; Sun, Star, Shine and Shiner.

In colors, we find Black, Brown, Gray, Green, Buff and White; also, Redhead and Whitehead; Blackman, Redman and Whiteman.

And what may be very acceptable is these war times, Troops, Camp, Garrison, March, Fife, Drum, Flagg, Picket, Dart, Dirk, Bowie, Bullet, Shot, Shute, Cannon and Sword.

We find world, London, Liverpool, English, Rome, Ireland, Irish, French, Poland, Moor and Jew.

Although our Government is not a monarchy, we have a Crown, Earl, Knight, King, Queen, Marquis, Page, Prince, Royalty and Sovereign.

Our travelling facilities seem to be represented by Schooner, Skiff, Sloop, Raft, Bote, Carr, Hack and Bus.

We have String, Cords, Ropes and Cable; Sell, Seller, Price, Cost and Worth; Cotton, Wool and Woolley; Wood, Coal and Gas; Mutch, More and Many; Dolittle, Work and Sweat; Hard, Harder and Hardy; Send, Sender, and Tydings, Pipe and Segar; Bitter, Sweet and Sower; Cain and Abel; Hartshorn and Brimstone; Corner and Center; Post and Letter; Scuffle and Victor; Gamble, Win and Winner; Grab, Get and Clutch; Gill and Peck; Danger and Help Cousin, Friend and Neighbor; Bowe and Sender; Riddle and Guess; Ham, Bone and Grease; Must, Rust and Rott; Book, Read and Reader; Alms, Amen, Bridge, Cinnamon, Crooker, Cripple, Cunning, Droll, Fury, Gabler, Handy, Hastie, Hempseed, Hopp, Hotel, Hug, Hugger, Ledger, Lively, Leathercoop, Vetter, Morningstar, Mudd, New, Pare, Pille, Rash, Ready, Ring, Rod, Saw, See, Seeds, Self, Show, Slash, Sling, Speak, Sting, Story, Step, Sprain, Smutts, Schwill, Pentecost, Peoples, Peppercorn, Tenderloin, Toy, Top, Treat, Twirk, United, Wait, Waltz, Worms, and Wonder. A few more oddities might be added, such as Speckbaugh, Rollwagon, Breakheart, Butterwiller, Freesnecker, Goosethoit, Gutswiller, Hebenback, Soutenslicker, McGilleudy, Milkebuck, Muggenberg, Tranglebacker, Teahusdredfeldt, Hankenprink, Cingleastdt, Dinkelbiehler, Wavenbrinkhurst, Waichselelester, Winterfelter, Bogershannen, Easterkemper, Hunninghacke, Rosenblander, Schoetterkotte.

There are others so crooked that we dare not attempt to write them for fear of breaking our pen.

The Smith family is, of course, the most numerous. The Directory shows 416 of them. They are followed by the Millers, 265 in number; next comes Myer, 121; then Jones, 191; Brown, 179, Moore, 158 Williams, 136; Davis, 146; Schmidt, 144; Wilson, 181; Johnson, 116, Clark, 113 Meier 109; Muller, 106; Murphy, 107; Schneider, 107; White, 102; Ryan, 100; Martin, 98, Taylor, 94; Sullivan, 83; Kelly, 81; Weber; 01; Thompson, 80; King, 79; Baker, 78, Kennedy, 78; Wright 74; Lewis, 72; O'Brien, 70; Robinson, 70. Among the Christian names John is the most numerous, there being 5,105 of them, William comes next, with 2,913; then Henry 2,836; followed by George, James, Charles, Thomas.

A few unusual Christian names might be noticed such as Strange, Persevere, Victor, Happy, Constant, Tatos, Friend, Jarden, Hypolite, Roman, Modest, Usual, Ashamed.

There are 1,257 coffee-houses and cigar stores, 943 groceries, 395 boot and shoe dealers, 246 clothing stores and tailor shops, 266 commission merchants, 245 lawyers, 216 physicians, 187 dry good stores, 161 cigar and tobacco stores, 150 bakers, 147 meat stores, 140 confectioners, 134 barbers, 121 carpenters and builders, 103 drug stores and 103 blacksmiths.

BARNUM ON ADVERTISING.—P. T. Barnum delivered a successful lecture at Troy on Friday evening. Among other good points noted by the Times in its advice to business men in relation to the benefits of advertising, he did not believe in stinted advertising, nor the mere insertion of a notice in the papers once in six months, but he did believe in a constant, systematic and startling determination to attract the attention of the public. He cited his own case as an instance of the success that attends the art of advertising.

A Husband to Furnish a Situation for his Wife.

From the Syracuse Journal.

On Wednesday evening the Chief of Police received a telegram from Cortland, signed "Dr. E. Palmer," requesting the arrest, on the several trains, of a colored woman and little girl—who were particularly described in the despatch. The Chief responded by asking for what the arrest was desired, and received an answer from the same person, "Breaking up my man and wife and taking property away." The Chief had no difficulty in identifying and arresting the parties when the train reached here. They proved to be a Dr. Chase of Michigan, his son, the wife of Dr. Palmer, who sent the above mentioned telegrams, and her little daughter.

On Thursday morning, "Dr." Palmer reached here from Cortland, and preferred his complaint against the detained parties, before Justice Alexander. His statement briefly was, that Dr. Chase, who claimed to be the father of his wife, but who admitted he had not seen her for twenty years, was now enticing her away from him. He added that he did not believe he was her father, and that he had reasons to suspect that she was running away with him for improper purposes. He invoked the power of the law to restore his wife to him.

On the other hand, Dr. Chase stated that he had visited his daughter at Cortland, seeing her there for the first time in seventeen yea s, when she complained of ill-treatment at the hands of her husband, and wanted to go home with him; that he divined that she remain with her husband; but when he got on the cars he found her with her child, and she insisted on accompanying him. He said he could not turn away his own child, when he knew she was unhappy and ill-treated woman.

Dr. Palmer's wife stated that she married him four or five years ago, in Pennsylvania, when he was a wood chopper; that he suddenly became a doctor and had travelled about the country, imposing himself upon the public as a regular physician; that she recently learned that he had another wife and four children, and that he had since treated her with cruelty. She exhibited a letter from her husband's other wife, and documents that established her statements that he had been arraigned and fined for assaults upon her, and other criminal practices.

Notwithstanding this serious disagreement, the pretended doctor urged his claim to his wife. Whereupon a warrant was issued against him for bigamy, on his wife's complaint, and he was arrested. At this stage he voluntarily discontinued his proceedings against Dr. Chase and his wife, and procuring bail on the charge against him, he skedaddled for Cortland this morning. Dr. Chase and his family, including the fugitive wife, have proceeded on their journey.

"Dr." Palmer is about forty years old, and a good appearing man; his wife is about twenty-three, and her father nearly sixty years of age.

Old Abe not a Temperance Man.

For occasional sallies of original wit, give us country grocery winter evenings and rainy days, and the bar-rooms of country hotels. As an instance, take the following, which occurred in a grocery store not long since. There was quite a collection, and our friend S., who is a Democrat, and friend M., who is a Republican, had been earnestly but pleasantly discussing politics; and as a full took place in the conversation, S. spoke up as follows:—

"M., how many public men are there who are really temperance men?"

"Oh, I don't know," replied M.

"Well," said S., "I don't know but one that I can positively speak of on our side, and that is Gen. Cass."

"Well," said M. promptly, "there is President Lincoln on our side, certain."

"Guess not," said S., incredulously.

"Guess yes," replied M., warmly.

"But you don't pretend to say that President Lincoln is a temperance man," asked S.

"Yes I do," answered M., and can maintain the statement."

"Well, now, I tell you that Abraham Lincoln is as fond of his toddy as any man living," replied S., earnestly, "and I can prove it to you."

"Well, I tell you that he isn't," retorted M., who began to get excited; "that he is as pure and strict a temperance man as there is in the country."

"I contend," replied S., with provoking coolness, "that Abraham Lincoln is so fond of his toddy that it is the last thing he thinks of when he goes to bed, and the first when he wakes in the morning."

"It's a confounded two-faces lie!" exclaimed M., springing to his feet.

"Hold on, friend M." said S., "what was Lincoln's wife's name before she was married?"

"Todd, by thunder!" exclaimed M., jumping more than a foot from the floor; "boys, let's adjourn to the other room."

The First Negroe Slaves in America.

The first negroe slaves were imported into Virginia in 1619, and in 1670 there were about 2,000 negroe slaves in the colony. The first slave ship fitted out by the English colonies sailed from Boston in 1648. The French introduced slaves into their island of St. Christopher, and afterwards into their American colonies. The Dutch also joined in the trade which, by every enlightened nation, is now deemed contraband. The importation of slaves into the United States was interdicted by law in 1808. In 78 the Legislature of Rhode Island interdicted the importation of slaves into that colony, and the next year, and while still a British colony, passed a law of Emancipation by declaring the children of all slave mothers to be born free. Massachusetts abolished slavery by the Bill of Rights in 1780. Connecticut, in 1784, put a stop to the introduction of negroes and declared all born after that year free at the age of twenty-five. Pennsylvania prohibited the introduction of slaves in 1780, and declared all children of slave mothers born after the passing of the law. Virginia prohibited the importation of slaves in 1778. Maryland in 1778. Slavery was abolished in New Hampshire in 1792, in New York in 1799, and in New Jersey in 1835. The American States which in last century abolished slavery, permitted the free coloured population to enjoy every right consistent with their condition as a class, and allowed bread and free to remain during their natural lives in the colony or state where they lived. The Northern States did, no doubt, prosecute the slave trade at an early period with that energy which they threw into all their other enterprises; but it furnishes to those of them truly worthy to be admitted that some of them early set a good example to the other states by the abolition of slavery within their own borders.

HABITS OF THE PRESIDENT.—A correspondent of the Boston Journal, says: "All parties who know the habits of President Lincoln are not surprised to hear of his personal visit to Gen. Burnside—for would any such be astonished to know that he would be as likely to come or go as to send. He has a habit of his own, and no one can tell where he will be or what he will do, from anything done yesterday. If he wants to see the Secretary of State, he generally gets out and undresses call. At night, from ten to twelve, he usually makes a tour, all round—now at Gov. Seward's, and then at Halleck's; and if Burnside was nearer, he would see him each night before he went to bed. Those who know his habits and want to see him late at night, follow him round from place to place and the last search generally brings him up at Gen Halleck's, as by can get the latest army intelligence there. Whoever is asleep or indolent, the President is wide awake and around."

Mr. McDougall the coming Man.

In a world of changes we are not surprised to find men changing their opinions again and again. A short time ago the question of Representation by Population in the opinion of the Editor of the Review was a bugbear—a piece of political claptrap, employed by the Globe, and the Grits, as a leading article in their stock in trade. We find from his last weeks remarks that he has now found out that this principle is demanded by the people of Upper Canada, and it must and shall be conceded though the present ministry have given it the go by. The Globe has converted the Review, and henceforth we may reckon the latter among the advocates of Rep. by Pop. A short time ago the Commissioner of Crown Lands was classed with the grittest of the Grits—had abandoned his hobby horse of Ren. by Pop. for the sake of office—and above all was an undoubted disloyal man: In fact Mr. McDougall was next to Mr. Brown himself the most detested by this same Editor. Now listen to what he says about him:

"In the whole administration there is only one man of energy and indisputable talent. Mr. Macdougall, whatever his faults of temper, or however unpolished his manner, is the only man of this ministry, who really understands public business and can attend to it. Will such a man be the drudge and subordinate of either Sicotte or Macdonald? Not he, Macdougall, who is in earnest in all things, and especially about representation by population, who thinks and has a policy of his own, cannot be long the mere tool of men, whom he can only look upon with contempt. Nay, there may be, and before long too, will be another coalition, but it will not consist of either Foleys, Sicottes, or Howlands."

The whole of the articles on the meeting of Parliament, and the Ministry, and Retrenchment, must satisfy the most casual observer that the Review has no principles—the arrogant and flippant manner of alluding to public men displays a depraved state of mind, which is clearly observable at first sight. Only think of his extolling the man he a short time ago sought to stamp as a traitor to his country, as a "looker to Washington," whose only faults now are his irascibility of temper and his unpolished manners; as being now the only business man in the ministry, and as the nucleus of a "Coalition." He has evidently elevated the gentleman into the position of a personal friend. We advise Mr. McD. to beware—as no doubt he will—of such friendship, and would remind him of a sentiment that struck us on reading the fulsome adulations of this avowed political enemy:

"The man that hails you Tom or Jack,
And proves by thumps upon your back
How he esteemed your merit.
Is such a friend that one had need,
Be very much his friend indeed,
To pardon or to bear it."

"Faithful are the wounds of a friend, but the kisses of an enemy are deceitful."

Lakefield Presbyterian Church.

On Sabbath last a substantial Stone Church was opened for public worship in the village of Lakefield by the Presbyterian congregation, which for several years has worshipped in Smithtown under the pastorate of the Rev. J. M. Roger. The services were conducted a. m. by Rev. J. Laing of Cobourg, p. m. by Rev. J. M. Roger, and evening by Rev. J. Gilmour. The church was filled to overflowing at all three meetings.

On Monday, as announced, a Soiree was given in aid of the funds of the Church, two hour appointed for refreshments was 2 o'clock, p. m. From then until five, the time was occupied satisfying the cravings of the inner man. After doing justice to the good things provided by the ladies of the congregation, the meeting was organised with Lieut. Col. Strickland in the chair On the platform we noticed Rev'ds. Messrs. Rogers and Laing, Lieut. Col. Haultain, R. Cassatt, and W. C. Nicholl, Esqs. The Chairman in rising to address the meeting commenced by stating that he considered himself highly honored in being called upon to preside at the opening of such an edifice, and remarked that it was the second time he had been thus honored in a short time—this being the second place of worship opened in Lakefield within the last six months. He also drew a peculiar happy contrast between Lakefield and other villages and towns of the Province, and dwelt eloquently on the fact that they had as many places of worship as gregarious, while other places could only say as a general rule their liquor shops greatly exceeded the number of churches. He also congratulated the committee on the beautiful appearance of the buildings, and also the energy with which the work was brought to a completion. In speaking of the persons connected with the undertaking he highly complimented them, and concluded by wishing the congregation a long life to enjoy their church, recommending them to get a resident minister, and for which they would have to provide a manse; he said whenever they were prepared for the erection of such they might put his name down for $35. The Secretary of the building committee, Mr. Clement, Esq., was called on to read the report. Rev. Mr. Roger, the next speaker, commenced by apologizing for the absence of persons who promised to be present if possible. He concluded an admirable speech by congratulating the people of Lakefield on the magnificent church which an ornament would not only be an ornament, but an instrument for the improvement and advancement of christianity and morality. Lieut. Col. Haultain was the next speaker called. He commenced by saying that it was not often that a person representing a County in Parliament had the honor done him that fell to his lot, viz: of being invited to assist at the opening of two churches in so short a time in the same place. He found it difficult to make a speech on such an occasion as the present, but as it was considered that a political man should always have a speech for any and every occasion he must say something. He spoke at length on the bounty of the church, morals of the people, and the advancement of the country, its rapid strides in civilization, christianity, arts and agriculture, and sat down amid long applause. The meeting was then addressed by Mr. W. C. Nicholls and the Rev. Mr. Lang of Cobourg; after which the Rev. Mr. Roger after a few remarks returned thanks to the Chairman for the able manner with which he had discharged his duties. We think there was one great oversight: the Choir which rendered such valuable services and enlivened the proceedings to a very great extent, should have had a vote of thanks. The singing was admirable, and we are sure, pleased every person. "The Temperance Man," a glee, performed by three gentlemen of the Choir was exceedingly well done.

With respect to the church, it is built of stone, and makes a very imposing appearance, with its fifty spire towering high in the air. It is situated south of the bridge, on an elevated piece of ground, with an inclined plane slope to the main road. On one side is a beautiful grove; on the other, at a short distance, is what is called the rapids, with its waters roaring, tumbling and tossing against the rocks on either side. The south bank of the river rises some 20 feet perpendicularly, and while standing there we could not help feeling a peculiar sensation, thinking of the great works of nature, and the adaptability of the scene to the chequered existence of man in the beginning, moving languidly along to manhood, then tumbling and tossing, and as he moves onward, settles down gradually into quiet repose.

The Village of Lakefield is improving very rapidly; only a few years ago it was, comparatively speaking, and was considered the jumping-off place of civilization but thanks to the horny-handed pioneer it has been redeemed from the wilderness inhabited by the red man, and now stands a village numbering some 600 inhabitants, with mills of every description; and, in fact, all that is required for the advancement and prosperity of a Town.

TOWN COUNCIL.

WEDNESDAY, January 21, 1863.

Present: His Worship the Mayor, and Messrs. Fry, Ormond, S. Dickson, Clarke, Nicholls, J. Dixon, Ryan, Landy, Burnham and Toole.

Moved by Mr. Burnham, seconded by Mr. Lundy,—That the meetings of this Council for the year 1863 shall hereafter commence at seven o'clock, p.m., precisely, and that if a quorum of the members be not present at half-past seven, the Council shall then stand adjourned until the next meeting thereof.—Carried.

On motion of Mr. Clarke, seconded by Mr. Nicholls, the Treasurer was authorized to remit to the Government the amount due for Assessment for the year 1861.

The following are the several standing Committees:—

Finance Committee.

Messrs. Clarke, Burnham, Nicholls and Ormond.

Committee on Printing.

Messrs. Toole, Ryan, Fry and Carlile.

Committee on Petitions.

Messrs. Burnham, S. Dickson, J. Dixon and Toole.

Committee on Public Property.

Messrs. Nicholls, Landy and Jos. Dixon

Committee on Streets and Bridges.

Messrs. S. Dickson, Ryan, Lawson and Jos. Dixon.

Railroad Committee.

Messrs. Ormond, Lawson, Landy and S. Dickson.

In amendment, it was moved by Mr. Burnham, seconded by Mr. Landy,—That the Committee usually termed the Railway Committee be abolished, and that its duties be discharged by the Finance Committee.

On the amendment being put, the following members voted yea:—Messrs. Burnham, Landy, Ryan, J. Dixon and Fry.

The following voted Nay:—Messrs. Toole, Ormond, S Dickson, Clarke and Nicholls.

There being an equality of votes the amendment was declared negatived.

The original motion was then put and carried on the following division:—Yeas, Messrs. Toole, Ormond, S. Dickson, Clarke, Nicholls and the Mayor. Nays, Messrs. Burnham, Landy, Ryan, J. Dixon and Fry.

On motion of Mr. Toole, seconded by Mr. Fry, a By-law for appointing Auditors for the present year, was read a first, second and third time and passed.

Moved by Mr. Burnham, seconded by Mr. Landy,—That the Clerk do, at the next meeting of this Council, furnish the Council with an account for the years 1859, '60, '61 and '62, showing in detail all sums paid on account of law and Chancery expenses, and to whom paid during those years; also, an account in detail showing all the outstanding Liabilities of the Town, and to whom for law and Chancery expenses during the same periods, and by what authority the said law and Chancery expenses were incurred, and by what authority paid.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Burnham and seconded by Mr. Landy,—That inasmuch as a desire exists on the part of the Rate-payers of the Town to obtain an Act of Parliament declaring the Railway lease from the Port Hope, Lindsay and Beaverton Railway Company to Tate & Foster, and the Railway Mortgage from Tate & Foster to the Town of Peterborough legal, to satisfy such desire, as well as to remove doubt upon the subject of the said lease and mortgage, be it therefore resolved that a memorial on the part of this Council be prepared and presented to both branches of the Legislature at its next meeting, praying for the passage of an Act declaring the said lease and mortgage good and lawful, and binding instruments for all the objects, purposes and interests therein expressed. And that the resolution of this Council passed during the year 1862 in reference to the obtaining an act of Parliament for legalizing the said Railway Lease and Mortgage and for other purposes be and the same is hereby rescinded and cancelled, and that the Mayor do immediately forward a copy of this resolution to Mr. Cameron M. P. P., who had charge of the said Bill, and also a copy Col. Haultain and the Hon. Sidney Smith.

After some considerable discussion it was moved in amendment by Mr. Nicholls and seconded by Mr. Fry,—That the Council do now adjourn, to meet Monday night, at 7 o'clock p. m., which was declared carried, and the Council adjourned accordingly.

Presentation to Sanford Fleming Esq.

Mr. Fleming, on the occasion of his retiring from the situation of Chief Engineer of the Northern Railway was presented with a collection of Photographs uniform in size of all the leading men connected with the Road, and enclosed in a rich morocco portfolio bearing the following inscription: "Presented to Sanford Fleming Esq, by the Officers and Contractors engaged in the construction and late restoration of the Northern Railway of Canada, as a token of their respect and admiration for his public character as an Engineer, and of their highest esteem and regard for his private worth as a citizen." Upwards of 130 signatures are appended. A very flattering address was spoken by Mr. F. W. Cumberland, to which Mr. Fleming replied in suitable terms. A rich service of silver plate, consisting of a silver cooler, sugar basin, preserve dish and epergne, each of a very chaste and beautiful design, bearing the following inscription: "To Mrs. S. Fleming, from the employees of the Northern Railway, as a token of remembrance and respect for her husband." We have been favored with an inspection of the presents, and they are certainly very fine. They are creditable to donors, and very flattering to the recepients. Mr. Fleming, as many of our readers are aware, is son-in-law to our worthy Sheriff. He began his professional career in Peterborough, compiling excellent Maps of the Town and Counties. We are pleased to learn of his his high professional attainments, and that these are so gratefully acknowledged by so many of the leading men in the country.

We take the following from the Canada Gazette of January 17th.

TRY IT—THE CASTILIAN BALM.—Mr. O'Donnell, Dentist, has laid on our table a bottle of the above preparation. It is to be used as a "dentrifice," and is good also for sore mouth, fetid breath, &c. We would recommend persons to use it in preference to any other dentrifice; it contains no acids, will keep the teeth clean, the gums healthy, and the mouth in a healthy condition. It is prepared by Mr. O'Donnell; price 25 cents.

☞ We had prepared a review of the Report of the Commissioners appointed to investigate into the affairs of the Toronto University and College, but owing to the press of other matter claiming insertion in our columns we are obliged to defer it as well as other matter prepared for this week's issue.

☞ The army of the Potomac has a new Commander-in-Chief in the person of Gen. Hooker. Burnside is superseded, and it is supposed that Hooker owes his appointment rather to his bravery than his judgment.—Strange news may soon be looked for from the seat of war.

ONE OF THE TYPES.—One of our exchanges contains the following paragraph:

The printer's one on A strike for higher wages. We were consulted to get our opinion! It is one of equality.

Frank Leslies' Magazine for February is received, there are some very good fashions and interesting matter in it.

☞ Gold is now worth 50 per cent premium, and every prospect of its going higher.

The following letter was handed to us for publication:

Newburn, N. C., Dec. 1862.

James M. Dunn, Esq.:

DEAR SIR,—Your interesting epistle of the 27th ult. I found awaiting me on my return from a tarry of a few weeks in New York, and amid the scenes of bustle—confused doubly dear by an absence of a year, "roughing it in the army," where a man considers himself fortunate if he can have God's star coverlet to throw over him of nights, with no curtain of clouds with dripping fringe to moisten his eyelids.

It is rather strange how soon a person becomes accustomed to this nomadic life; and it half seems as though it were a useless waste of time and ingenuity to bestow such pains in fitting up palatial residences to stock with elegantly carved furniture, gilded mirrors and costly plate, when nature's temple is so ample and roomy: her bird-pests the mocking pines, her mirrors the glassy waters, and Uncle Sam's plate pure—tin. But such is over the way in this life; we borrow a thousand cares which we might better have left unassumed than to heap upon our shoulders their dreary weight, and then wonder that we cannot rise.

I left Morehead City, N. C., on the 31st of October, on a fifteen days leave. Arriving at home on the 4th of Nov. I had the pleasure of depositing a ballot for an unconditional Union man for Governor of the State of New York. The State went in favor of Horatio Seymour, I am sorry to say, but from this no one need augur that there has been a change of opinion among the voters of the Empire State since they cast such a majority for Abraham Lincoln for President. The State went for Seymour mainly because of the absence of some 150,000 voters, who had they had an opportunity of casting their ballots would have rolled up a majority of 80,000 for James S. Wadsworth. The 96th Reg't N. Y. Volunteers on a special ballot in Camp had but four votes for Seymour.—The 129th Reg't N. Y. Volunteers, 1040 strong, had about 100 for Seymour. Then it was throughout all the corps of noble men who were battling for their country's weal, and who will never compromise with rebels. I do not believe that Gov. Seymour desires to see this rebellion succeed, but he does not see, or will not see, that Slavery is the root of it, and may make remonstrances against its being lopped off as the sole final curse that has hung heavily upon the American nation since its establishment.

The day has come, however, when the eyes of the world stare upon this hideous relic and recognise in it the main-spring of all the contentions and jealousies that have arisen among our people, culminating in the contest which is making our noble rivers run red with the blood of our noblest sons in North and South.

"Do you believe," is asked me, "that the Southerners really believe that they are in the right?"

To be sure I believe it. Where are the men on the globe who would fight as well if they had not their hearts in the cause.—They have been thoroughly indoctrinated with the idea of State Rights and the love of the institution of Slavery to admit of a doubt of their sincerity. When I speak thus I refer to the planters and their sons, and not to their leaders—many of whom are ardent aspirants for power and fame,—nor do I refer to the class of your whites who have contributed to swell the ranks of their army so largely. No! I would not call the blind reverence of this class for Slavery and its proprietors, nor their hatred towards Abolitionists, a belief. Although I have often read descriptions of the extreme degradation of this class, I never realized what a "poor white" was until I saw the sand hillers and snuff-chewers of the Carolinas. They remind me more of the wrecks of our Aboriginal race than anything I ever saw before. You have seen these poor Indians covered with shreds of garments, and loitering around those earthly hells—the low drinking shops. Around him lingers the air of what might have been, had education done its work and appetite not have perverted all the possibilities of a nature like his. The next one you see imagine to be a type of the poor white of the Carolinas. Remember that large landed proprietors have absorbed the right to the soil, and pretend to till it by slave labor, thus rendering the avenues of the whites' business very few. At the same time the institution exists in virtue of ignorance prevailing around it, and is therefore in the highest degree repellant of every thing in the shape of a School-house, therefore it is next to impossible for a poor child to obtain even the rudiments of an education. At the present time this class of whites find their condition even worse than it has been heretofore, and are informed that it is caused by the efforts of Abolitionists. This name alone is a sufficient clue, and at once the whole are wild with excitement, the army is filled up by these poor, ignorant fanatics, who are unable to recognise that the incubus upon them comes not from without but from within. They fight desperately, and endure hardship and want, for to these they have been accustomed all their lives.

They meet our men of the North, who have been nurtured where free schools abound, and where knowledge and religion shed their genial light, and our brave boys find their match in strength, as it requires no high attainments to do the actual fighting of the common soldier.

Lancashire Operatives Relief Fund.

The two first of the following documents were forwarded on the 24th ultimo to the Lord Mayor of London; the third contains the acknowledgment of their receipt:

Central Committee Room,
Peterboro, C. W., Dec. 17, 1862.

At a meeting of the Central Committee, convened by previous notice, held this 17th day of December, 1862, it was unanimously resolved that the sum of $2,000 be forwarded at once to the Lord Mayor of London, on behalf of the British Operatives.

(Signed)
JAMES HALL,
Sheriff P. and V.,
Chairman.

Peterboro, Canada West,
December 24th, 1862.

MY LORD,

I have much pleasure in transmitting to your Lordship, in compliance with the enclosed resolution, a draft on the Union Bank of London for $2,000, as the first instalment of a fund now in course of collection in the County of Peterboro, C. W., in behalf of the British Operatives.

The sum would have been larger but that our County, depending for its prosperity partly on Agriculture, and partly on the Lumbering business, has been injuriously affected during the past twelvemonth, by the drain to us by the enlisting spirit of excitement prevailing in the neighbouring Republic. The late Harvest yielded on a crop considerably below the average, and our Lumber trade has been materially deteriorated by the war across the Frontier; so that our financial position is not as flourishing as usual.

What we can, however, we must into all our heart, in recognition of the claims the suffering fellow-subjects of our beloved Queen have upon our kind offices.

Nor in our offering unaccompanied by earnest prayer that the fiery trial through which those in whose behalf we have been exerting ourselves are passing, may, through God's good Providence, be shortened, and as speedily as seems fit to Him, arrive at its wished-for termination.

We trust, before the conclusion of the winter, to be able to transmit a further sum in aid of the same righteous cause.

I have the honor to be,
My Lord,
Your Lordship's most obedient,
Humble Servant,
VINCENT CLEMENTI,
Hon. Sec.

The Right Hon'ble the Lord Mayor of London.

Mansion House, London,
10th Jan., 1863.

SIR,—I am desired, gratefully, to acknowledge on behalf of the Lord Mayor and the Mansion House Committee the receipt of your kind letter of 24th Dec'r, enclosing a Draft on the Union Bank of London for two thousand dollars, being amount of a first instalment from the County of Peterboro', C. W., in aid of the fund for the relief of the distress now existing in the Cotton manufacturing districts of Great Britain.

I am further requested to express the high sense which His Lordship and the Committee entertain, not only of this present liberal donation, but of the kind expression of sympathy evinced on behalf of the distressed and suffering Cotton Operatives of the Mother country, and to thank your committee earnestly for this assistance on their behalf.

I am, Sir, yours obediently,
JOSEPH GIBBS,
Acting Secretary,
British R. Fund.

Rev. Vincent Clements, Hon. Secretary British Operatives' Central Committee, Peterboro', Canada West.

From Our Ottawa Correspondent.

BANKS OF THE OTTAWA,
January 23rd, 1863.

DEAR Examiner,—It being now some time since you were addressed from this part of Canada, perhaps something anent matters general and particular, will not be unwelcome.

Another year big with events is consigned to the past. Its annals pictured on the historic page will make the men of future generations tingle. Where is the expected dawn of millenial glory? where the fulfilment of the prophecy that the trumpet should be hung in the hall and men study war no more?

What study so engrossing at present? Ingenuity is taxed to its utmost to contrive methods of attack and defence.

The science of warfare would appear to be only entering on the manhood of its existence, instead of being consigned to the fate of the lost arts.

The sweet singer of Olney mourned that "Lands intersected by a narrow frith

Abhor each other. Mountains interposed,
Make enemies of Nations, who had else
Like kindred drops, been mingled into one."

Alas, the people of the States seceding and non-seceding without geographical barriers, in fact, lacking physical features to indicate either by a straight or crooked line boundaries, by which to divide the nations, most cordially abhor one another. Brother against brother, father against son, son against father. Said a minister recently who professes allegiance to the Prince of Peace, and exercises his holy calling in the State of New York: "But for the misfortune of a wooden leg I would enlist tomorrow, and my first object would be shoot my own brother who is in the rebel army. My son, however, is gone, and I charged him to be sure, if he had the opportunity, to drop his uncle the first man"!!

Let some pleasd scripture in defiance of Slavery. The voice of God in his dealings with Nations of the present, as of the past, speaks out judgments on the oppressor. Egypt might have warned America—the lesson was spurned, and bitter is the fruit thereof. To mourn thousands upon thousands of her first-born does not suffice—the untold blood and treasure already wasted seems not enough, nor the universal wail of the bereaved who refuse to be comforted. Will they not let the people go free? or is it the will of Providence that the people should free themselves with a great deliverance. "Come it must," said Adams "may it be peace; but if in blood let it come."

The year of grace, 1863, not unlikely will be to the millions of America now enslaved, the year of jubilee. God grant it.

In common with all Upper Canada, the municipal battle, for the present year is fought throughout the region, contiguous to Ottawa city. Within the metropolitan city the contest was sharp, especially for the Mayoralty. Mr. Fellows had set his heart on honor as introductory to other and higher positions, and as tending to wipe out the stains of the Cambridge fraud. He was, however, doomed to severe but just disappointment, and made to taste, during the conflict, the bitter fruit of his evil doing by pointed reference to his political sins.

It is matter for study and instruction to mark the course frequently pursued at Township elections. How often there is a total neglect of the qualities necessary in a municipal councillor. Some party or local consideration guide the choice, and for dear life the voters will strive to win their man, who is often as unfit for the office as his friends are eager to place him in it. In one Township on the Ottawa, an entire batch was elected this year, not one of whom could draw up a resolution, if promised a fortune for the operation. Two of this select number cannot speak English! Our liberties in Canada have outstripped our intelligence, in fact, have become a rod of self-infliction. We want more conservatism or the interests of the country will suffer.

Our political and municipal Franchise is too enlarged, and as a consequence too often men without stake, in fact the rabble rule. The legislator who will look this evil in the face, and devise and carry through some remedy, will deserve well of his country.

Our experience in this section of Canada goes to favor, as an improvement in the municipal law, a provision to make the establishment of Wards in Townships obligatory. At present on the law stands, interested parties engage to stave off the equitable and convenient system of Wards.

The weather here has been most unusual for the season—mild enough, mild, and very little snow. Cattle feeding in the fields in January in seldom seen near Ottawa. The Lumber interest have suffered for want of snow—just at present there is a fair chance for ordinary purposes. In the winter of 1815, the season was very much like the present one—snow only may more came till March, and then it fell to the depth of nearly 4 feet and blocked up the roads.

The travel here has been mostly on the ice, which is very thick, but being very glare, glades were not easily seen, particularly after dark, and several unwary travellers have lost their horses and narrowly escaped themselves.

One poor man lost a span, harness, sleigh, and load in a twinkling, in a very simple way. He had fed them at a tavern on the banks; some distance out was a glade; a boy passing with a hand sleigh caused the horses to take fright, and not being tied galloped towards the glade; when nearing it the animals sheered off and would have escaped but the sleigh loaded with coal slid round, dropped in and brought the horses along—all sunk in an instant.

The newly appointed County Judge for Prescott and Russell has made his appearance in our midst.

The resident Barristers who were eligible made strenuous efforts, each, to get the appointment but the Premier has laid their ambitious views in the dust by selecting Mr. Daniels of Hamilton to take the place of the late Judge Friel. It is perhaps better to choose a foreigner to fill county judgeships—more independence may be expected in the exercise of the important functions of the office.

Lack of independence was a painful want in the late incumbent here, and it is hoped we are going to be blessed with a man who will perform his duty in righteousness and for righteousness sake.

Adieu.

Skating Rink.

SIR,—Allow me through the columns of your paper, to give to those like myself interested in the skating rink, an opinion regarding the management thereof, whereby good skating may be insured during the balance of the season. A dam never can be flooded by stop logs, so as to throw the water over the ice—certainly the water can be raised by that means, but the ice also rises with it. To have full command of the flooding, requires a flume in the upper part of the dam, so that the water can be thrown on the ice, and made run all over. A flume could be made to run from Poole's dam down on to the rink at a trifling cost, which would effectually do all this. A box 2 feet square by 200 feet long, would carry water enough to flood it in half an hour. And allow me to say that what is already done will be rendered totally useless, unless this means of flooding is adopted. Better for members to pay $2.00 each, and secure good skating than to pay $1.00 and have none at all. As to the management of it in other points, I would not venture an opinion, as the capabilities of the gentlemen in charge need not be doubted in that respect. But I would mention that for the convenience of the ladies, members of the club, that a shed be built, furnished with a stove and seats, as a place for adjusting their skates, or for leaving in any superfluous article of wearing apparel. I am sure that the young gentlemen would willingly submit to a pecuniary tax for defraying this necessary expense, rather than be taxed by the ladies as being ungallant. As a matter of course I do not expect that our "rink" is going to be all at once in favorable comparison with those of the cities of Canada, but this I do think, that it will not lack ultimately of being the finest rink in the Province. Begging pardon for this trespass on your space, and hoping that these few suggestions may be immediately carried out.

I remain sir,
Yours, &c.,
A MEMBER.

The Intercolonial Railway.

Though Messrs Howland and Sicotte have not yet reached the capital on their mission to England yet definite and semi-official information has been placed before the country, so far as the Intercolonial Railway scheme was affected by that mission. That information we gave in our issue of yesterday. It appears that the scheme, if not entirely abandoned for the present, is postponed indefinitely, in consequence of the disagreement as to terms between the Canadian and Imperial authorities. We cannot say that we are in anywise disappointed at the result. The scheme was a grand one, and well worthy the careful and full consideration of both the Colonial and Home Governments.—But we never had any very sanguine hopes that such aid and such terms would be conceded by the British Government, as would justify their acceptance by the Canadian Parliament. We were well aware that neither the Government nor the people of Canada could or would lend any aid or countenance to the enterprise, unless such terms could be obtained from the Imperial Government as would prevent the imposition of any considerable burden upon the Province, and the embarrassment of its finances. We know also that this would be a task of extreme difficulty, and the sequel has proved that for the present it is impossible. The mission of Messrs Sicotte and Howland has not been, however, entirely barren of results. We have now precise information on matters upon which we could only speculate before. We know exactly what the British Government will, and what it will not do, and, therefore shall be able to discuss the question of the construction of the proposed Intercolonial Railway on its merits, as presented by the position taken by the Imperial Government. It is now clear that it would be an act of madness—of the most culpable folly—for this Province to enter upon the scheme at the present time, however desirable an Intercolonial Railway may be esteemed by a portion of the people of Canada. The finances of the country are in a state of considerable embarrassment, consequent upon the extravagance and recklessness of the late Government, and whatever might tend to increase that embarrassment ought, most especially at the present moment, to be carefully avoided. We need point to but one consideration only in confirmation of this fact: we know not how soon complications may arise out of the present war in the United States, which may involve England and the Northern Confederation in hostilities, and in that event, the financial capacity of the country would be taxed to the utmost to provide for necessary defences. If there ever was one time more than another when prudence required the husbanding of the resources of the country with miser care, that time is now. What means the great volunteer movement going on throughout the Province, but the deep seated conviction in the public mind that the duration of peace is uncertain, and that we may at no very distant day be compelled to resist foreign aggression and foreign invasion?

When Colonial delegates presented themselves in England, they found that the British Government were willing to furnish the money for the construction of the road, but insisted, as nine guns men, on the establishment of a sinking fund to provide for repayment. Then the first cost of construction would be felt at once, in addition to the large amount of annual interest to be paid. This would impose a burden upon the country, which with the immense debt now resting upon it, would be far beyond its ability to bear; and therefore, even though the Chancellor of the Exchequer was willing to suspend the inclusion of the sinking fund for the period of ten years, still it is the duty of our Government to reject the terms offered.

The British Government urge the construction of the Intercolonial Railway purely on military grounds, as a work of defence, or, what amounts to the same thing, as a means for the transportation, in time of emergency, of Imperial troops, but refuse to allow the expenditure demanded as part of what the Province is expected to appropriate for military defences. We cannot see any justice in this. The road, if built, would, for years to come, be a commercial failure. It is only on military grounds that it can possibly be justified, and therefore it is but reasonable that whatever the Province might contribute, should be regarded strictly as a contribution to the defences of the Colonies concerned.

And though the road would form a part of the great highway destined in future years to connect the British possessions on the Pacific, with those bordering on the Atlantic, still the Home Government was unwilling to look upon the enterprise as one of an Imperial character, and therefore threw the whole burden upon the Colonies. The proposition of the British Government then amounts to this and no more, that the whole expense, present and future—the whole burden and the whole responsibility of constructing an intercolonial railway, even though it link the most distant and independent British Colonies together, and thus increase their Imperial value, must be borne by the Colonies themselves. Such a view of the matter, such a proposition, our Government could not accept; and for the very substantial reason, that it would be incurring obligations which it could not satisfy, and adding an amount to the public debt, which could end only in bankruptcy and ruin. The lower provinces are more deeply interested in the construction of the proposed Intercolonial railway than Canada, and they might possibly be willing to accept the terms offered by the Imperial Government, but we venture to assert, that not ten members of the Canadian Legislature could be found willing to vote for Mr. Gladstone's proposition. We look upon the scheme, therefore, at present, as impracticable, and we regard the Government as absolved from any further consideration of the enterprise until the Imperial authorities are willing to offer terms, that can safely be adopted.—Times.

European Gossip.

In 1849, one of the partners in the banking house of Rougemont de Lowenburg, of Paris, retired from business; he was master of $150,000. He was a widower, with one daughter. He married his daughter in 1850 to one of those great builders called into existence by the immense change wrought in the topography of Paris. The three persons lived together.

The builder became involved in consequence of speculations out of proportion with his capital, and his wife, probably at his instance, undertook to persuade her father to give all his estate to his son-in-law, in consideration of an annuity, a seat at their table and a room in their house. She was successful. All went well at first, but gradually the husband and wife began to treat him coolly, and, when in 1856, they moved, they gave him in their new home a miserable garret, and paid no longer the least attention to his tastes, or indeed requirements of his age in food and wines. The menials, quick as ever discovered the inferior position of the old man in the house, and treated him with all sorts of petty insolence.

One day an old friend to whom he unburthened his heart, said to him: "Your children treat you as they do, solely because they have everything you can give them. Had you kept your estate in your hands and only retained your son-in-law occasionally, he would be your most supple, fawning boot-licker. Now you can easily retrieve your folly. Begin at once to resume a mysterious air, leave the house at odd hours, return as if by stealth, carefully look up all your papers, write letters addressing to Vienna bankers, and leave them as if by accident on your chimney. I will make my Vienna bankers write you. In a few days I will send a messenger in a great hurry to see you, with this message: 'Come at once to the Bourse, the money has come from Vienna.' I will lend you several thousand dollars, which you will carry in your pocket-book for a week or ten days, and contrive to let your daughter see it.' The retired banker resolved to adopt the suggestion.

The son-in-law began to suspect that his father-in-law had reserved some portion of his estate, and was speculating profitably with it. The manners of the whole house suddenly changed to the old man. His favorite Bordeaux reappeared on the table. The dishes he liked were served with regularity. The best place in the family carriage was for him. A comfortable chamber was given him. He was spoiled by flattery. A month ago the old man died. He had a splendid funeral. As soon as the ceremony was over the heirs began to hunt for the great treasures they were sure their father possessed. Of course they discovered nothing. They applied to every notary with whom the dead man did business. Not a one had they. Heaven knows how long they would have continued the search, had not an anonymous letter revealed to them the secret of the comedy by which they were duped; and acquainted them with the contempt and horror felt for them by all their acquaintances, who all knew the ignoble manner in which they had treated their poor father, whose only crime was his premature generosity.

A Canadian Politician.

A correspondent of the Owen Sound Times, writing from Glengow, indites the following paragraph concerning one of our Canadian politicians:

"By the by, the papers will have informed you that one of our Canadian politicians has been getting rid of his single blessedness in Edinburgh. He has been doing the honorable thing, too which contain old debts of his family, this I had from an ex-Provost of Edinburgh, who was one of the payers. Of course, I wish he may be long blest; and that the lady who is pretty and not penniless, may be the happiest wife on all the globe." It is needless that we should name the politician. In "doing the honorable with certain old debts of his family," he is doing nothing more than his friends have all expected of him. He is showing clearly that honesty—the best of policy—is his policy. All honor to him.

Insurance Stamps.

Commissioner Bentwell, has made the following decision in reference to insurance companies:

1. Each insurance policy, whether fire or marine, must be stamped.

2. An open policy will require but one stamp where the risk entered under such policy is all upon property of the policy holder.

3. Whenever certificates, or other evidences of insurance are issued by the holder of an open policy, every such paper must bear an appropriate insurance stamp.

4. Whenever an insurance company refund to the holder of an open policy any part of the premium paid, because the policy has not been used in full, the amount so refunded may be deducted from the premium received during the quarter, and the tax to the Government may be paid upon the remainder. Provided, that this regulation shall not apply to annuity refunded, on which the tax to the Government shall not have been previously paid.

5. Dividends paid by mutual insurance companies to the insured, upon expiring or expired policies, are subject to the tax of three per cent, under section 99.

Shocking Disaster.

A melancholy accident occurred on board the Government steam transport Tilbury Captain Henry A. Bourne, about three o'clock yesterday morning, involving the death of four of the crew. The vessel had been chartered to go to Beaufort, S.C., and was crossing the lower bay, when a loud explosion proceeded from the boiler room, and for a moment it was feared that everything destruction awaited all on board. It soon became evident, however, that the hull of the vessel was in no wise damaged, and Captain Bourne promptly proceeded to the fire room to render what assistance he could to such of the crew as were injured by the explosion. Upon examination, it was found that two of the engineers and one of the firemen had been killed outright, while a fourth out of the crew was so severely scalded that no hope could be entertained of his recovery.

The Chief Engineer, Mr. Thomas Hervey, reported that he had been in the fire-room about three minutes before the explosion, and that at that time there was plenty of water in the boiler, and they were carrying an easy pressure of steam. The accident occurred by the giving way of the arch of one of the furnaces, making a complete wreck of the boiler, and shattering all the wood-work both in the fire and engine rooms. The skylights overhead were also blown off, and one of the engineers, named George Floyd, was thrown a distance of over thirty feet. The usual precautions were taken against the vessel taking fire, after which signals of distress were sent up, which had the effect of bringing a tug alongside. The Tilbie being completely disabled, Captain Bourne decided to put back to New York, at an early hour yesterday forenoon, that ill fated craft came to anchor in the north river, about a quarter of a mile from the battery.

Floyd was jammed under the shaft so firmly that it required the united exertions of four or five men to extricate the body. His remains were frightfully mangled, and his features hardly recognizable.

The coal-passer lived about fifteen minutes after the explosion. Just before his death, he was enabled to speak, and muttered a few incoherent words about taking him out of the water. He thought he was blown overboard, poor fellow, and imagined he had just been rescued from a watery grave, when he became exhausted and died.—N. Y. Paper.

Dreadful Shipwreck.

A Cork paper gives the following particulars respecting the loss of the ship Elina:

"On Sunday last, the Elina, a bark of 700 tons, Captain Smith, left Liverpool for Monte Vide, laden with Machinery and coals. Her crew, inclusive of the officers, consisted of 20 men. After passing Holyhead the breeze freshened, and it began to blow strong from the south-east. About 2 o'clock next morning the wind grew so strong the sail was shortened, and at 9 o'clock the three top-gallant masts were carried away. With the loss of these spars one man was carried overboard, another had his leg broken, and a third, a man named Montgomery, had his arm dislocated at the shoulder. In an hour after the ship sprang a leak, and before long she had seven feet of water in her hold. The ship was then about mid-channel. All hands were employed at the pumps, but the leak continued to gain at the rate of an inch and a half every two hours. The mate, an American named Burns, urged the captain to bear up for Queenstown, but the captain refused. For twenty-fours they continued in this position, when the captain at last consented. The wind, however, continued in full force, and the ship labored heavily. All at once her three top masts went

The American Express Company is a very necessary institution. The American Express Company, so long as it confines itself to its legitimate duties, is a thing we should hate to dispense with. If downright public robbery were a virtuous occupation—pursued as a business—the managers of that concern would be worthy of mention side by side with the illustrious plunderers and pickpockets known to history. We are publicly advertised to-day for the sake of effect. In good earnest we assure the public of Canada that the American Express Company is cheating them out of thousands of dollars every week with a systematic perfection that would defy improvement.

Everybody who has had business transactions with the States, knows it is customary to send goods and parcels by express to Canada, the face of the invoice, together with the charges of carriage to be collected from the purchaser on delivery. The Express Company thus makes itself a medium for collecting accounts between the two countries, which in itself is perfectly legitimate and straightforward. It is paid a certain per centage on all sums collected, and probably affords a more efficient method of collecting money than could possibly be found in private mercers. But the grievance lies not in their collecting what is due—which would be fair enough—but in their counting twenty-five or thirty per cent more than they are entitled to—which is a kind of business, vulgarly called swindling. The modus operandi is this. The rate of exchange between Canada and the States is very high, gold on the other side being worth about 33 per cent premium. In other words one hundred dollars in gold is worth $131 in New York currency. The Express Company taken advantage of this state of things and for all invoices sent to Canada through their hands, they demand payment in Canadian money, worth a high premium, and turn over to their customers in Buffalo, New York and elsewhere, "green backs," and other trash of Mr. Chase's invention, quietly pocketing in every such transaction, about thirty per cent profit! For instance a manufacturer in Buffalo sends by Express to Hamilton a parcel, with orders to collect the value of the parcel on delivery here. Say the parcel is worth $25 at the place where it was purchased. The Express man in Hamilton delivers the parcel, demands and receives payment in our currency, refusing to deliver the goods on any other condition, and pays the manufacturer in Buffalo currency. He pays a debt of $25 by $17.50 of Canada money, and hoards up in the safe of the Express Comp ny the difference between $25 and $17.50, namely $7.50.

This is the sort of business the American Express Company has been carrying on since the depreciation of American currency. By this operation, the Company pockets—by a moderate calculation—$1,000 a-week in Hamilton alone; and when we reflect that the same kind of swindling is practised in every part of Canada, some idea of their enormous gains may be formed. It is monstrous to think this wholesale robbery is carried on by a Company which enjoys a monopoly of the trade, and which is not directly amenable to Canadian jurisdiction. We appeal to the public of Canada to resist this rascally extortion—this barefaced plundering. We ask the Government if there is no protection against the ravages of a monopoly, a parallel to which cannot be found, we trust, outside the Hudson's Bay Territory. We would advise every person purchasing goods in the States to be sent by express, either to pay for them at the time of purchase, or buy a draft from an exchange broker here, and send it by mail.—Hamilton Times.

The Mormons.

The Mormons have been holding their annual fair and conference at Salt Lake city, and the attendance is said to have been the largest ever seen since their organization. Visitors from the East who happened to be present declare that the exhibition of agricultural and mechanical products would have been creditable to any of the old States of America. It is a mistake to suppose Utah to be a desert; it may be true of the small portion which is of volcanic origin, bordering upon the great Salt Lake, but the slopes of the extensive valley beyond are capable of producing in abundance all the great staples of that latitude. The collection of fruits and vegetables at the fair consisted of the finest varieties, and indicated a most luxuriant growth—with the exception of grapes alone, fully equal to those of California, which is admitted to be the best fruit-growing region in the world. The cereal specimens were also of superior quality. The product of wheat and other grain in the present season in Utah, has been enormous, enough to supply the people with breadstuffs for two years to come, besides making a liberal allowance for immigration. Fine samples of tobacco, flax and cotton were also on exhibition, as well as domestic manufactures of the latter, such as cloths and counterpanes equal to the finest fabrics of the Eastern States. The mechanical arts are the forte of the Mormons, and coming as many of them do, from the great manufacturing districts of Europe, they are probably the most skilful artificers in America. Cotton of excellent fibre is of easy growth in the valley, a surplus of which, for export, has been raised the present year; and as the price of factory cloth is now 60c. per yard in that remote region the Saints are about to engage largely in the cotton manufacturing enterprise on their own account. To that end they are preparing and setting up extensive machinery, and expect by the time the Pacific Railroad is built, no only to supply with their fabrics all the settlements east of the Rocky Mountains, but to compete in the California and Oregon markets.

The fair lasted ten days. Before the adjournment of conference the people voted that Brigham Young should have the entire direction of their labor throughout the territory, for the better developement of the resources of the country and a better equalization of labor. Up to the present time the great majority of the emigrants have gone into wheat raising and farming in a general way, and the consequence was a superabundance of certain cereals and a great absence of others. In future Brigham is to say where they shall go and raise cotton, where flax, and where every other thing. In illustration of the manner in which the community is supplied with necessaries, the Boston Commercial Bulletin vouches for the truth of the following:—"A company of emigrants lately passed through Boston on their way to Utah.—Among them was noticed a young man, more distinguished in his appearance than the remainder of the company, and two young women, deeply veiled, whose delicate grace and reserve indicated them as belonging to a superior social position. The young man is the son of a rich landowner in Norway, and the two young ladies orphans, who were brought up with him in his father's family, until he left for college at Dronthein, where he remained some years, and, afterwards traveling over the greater part of Europe, his former playmates were forgotten. Returning at last to his home, he was struck to the heart with an arrow. He was in "love," but with which one? Both were equally beautiful. He was enamoured of both. He was in a whirlpool of doubt, indecision and perplexity. In an excess of desperate frankness he related to the young girls the state of his feelings.—They laughed at first; then they reflected; and the result of their reflection was that they both loved Ludwig, and were on embarrassed as he. The sequel is soon told. A Mormon apostle preached in their willing ears, and the trio departed for Utah."

—Some "stupids" bantering a fat companion, remarked if all flesh was grass, he must be a load of hay. "I suspect I am" replied he, "from the way you asses nibble at me."

—Somebody, who writes more truthfully than poetically, says: "An angel without money, is not thought as much of, now-a-days, as a devil with a bag full of guineas."

"Is this good money?" said a man to a suspicious-looking wight who had made some purchase of him. "It ought to be good, for I made it my self," was the answer. With that he took the man in for coining; but the man in his defence, proved that he made the money by hoot-making.

—A wag says that in journeying lately he was put into an omnibus with a dozen persons of whom he did not know a single one. Turning a corner shortly after, however, the omnibus was upset; "and then," said he, "I found them all out."

—He that is perfectly wise is perfectly happy; nay, the very beginning of wisdom makes life easy to us. Neither is it enough to know this, unless we print it in our minds by daily meditation, and so bring a good will to a good habit.

EMPLOYMENT.

THE Undersigned has, for several years past, been engaged in a business, which has yielded him at the rate of three thousand dollars per annum, and is now willing to teach it to others. The business is of a highly useful and general character, adapted both to cities and villages, and one that any person of ordinary capacity, young or old, male or female, can acquire with a few hours' practice, and by which they can secure a very handsome income. Several young ladies who have received instructions from me, both in New York State and Pennsylvania, are earning upwards of $15 per week by it, and there is no reason why any one else cannot do the same. Invalids, even, can do well by it, as it is no peddling affair, but a business that is perfectly respectable. Gentleman and ladies of leisure who would like to learn the business for their own amusement or pleasure, will find the practice of it a pleasant pastime, and one that they will take great interest in. On receipt of $1, I will send printed instructions by which any person can readily acquire the art, and these instructions will also contain every particular relative to the carrying it on so that it will be highly profitable. To a purchaser of the "printed instructions" will also be authorized to teach it to others; and I have sometimes received as high as $200, for teaching it personally to a single individual. I would state further that $2.50 or $3 will buy everything that is necessary to commence the business with, and the articles can be got almost anywhere, in city or country, or if preferred, I can furnish them. Address ALVORDT PARSONS, No. 36 Liberty Str., New York.

TO OLD SETTLERS & OTHERS

WISHING TO OBTAIN

FARMS in UPPER CANADA.

THE CANADIAN

Land & Emigration Co'y, Limited,

OF LONDON, ENGLAND,

Capital, £250,000 Stg.

THE HON. MR. JUSTICE HALIBURTON, Chairman, offer for sale

250,000 Acres

OF LAND IN THE

COUNTIES OF PETERBORO & VICTORIA

consisting of parts of the

Townships of PEEL, DUDLEY, LONGFORD, GUILFORD, HARCOURT, HALBURN, BRUTON, MAYO, LOUK, &c., &c.

The following reasons, among many other inducements to hold out to parties who may choose to take up lands in the above Township:

Soon per cent. of the purchase money paid to Government by the Company for three years will be expended in constructing really good roads: these roads will intersect the Township, connecting the Villages of Norwood, Victoria Durleigh and Pearson Roads, at convenient points, and will succeed in various Townships which the Company have in view. Sales may be carried out in very carefully selected sites. The Town Plots will, it is anticipated, the whole of them being connected by good roads (for the construction of which the Company possess excellent facilities)—become each the centre of a new and flourishing settlement; private enterprise in establishing Stores, Mills &c., will soon find its account, and the several Townships and townships being as it were knit together by good roads, will derive from that fact great advantages and mutual support.

In addition, the parchill superintendent of the Company over every part of land sold will greatly tend to enhance the value of the adjoining lands, being in the middle of Upper Canada, combining a healthy climate unsurpassed in its healthful effects upon the human frame, with a soil of unusual fertility, and all the elements of rapid progress and permanent prosperity.

For terms, and further information apply, personally or by letter (post paid) to

THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE.

THE New York Tribune, first issued in April, 1841, has now reached a circulation of over two hundred thousand copies, and is the largest Journal of News and of Literature The Tribune has political convictions, which it is not afraid to avow, and which it will endeavor to maintain and promote by all honorable means. It is Republican in its hearty adhesion to the great truth that "God has made of one blood all men to live, liberty and the pursuit of happiness"—Republican to its steadfast, earnest, defiant hostility to every scheme and effort of the Slave Power, from the Annexation of Texas to the great Rebellion, to grasp the empire of the New World and wield the resources of our country for its own aggrandizement—Republican in its antagonism alike to Feudal aristocrats and despots of the Old World and to wildly radical demagogues and calamities soever, which seem to be by the American constitution, the conclusive and ruin of the Model Republic. Its positions in this hope and trust, its faith and effort, that his atrocious Rebellion must result in the signal overthrow of its plotters, and the firm establishment of equal rights and equal laws throughout the whole extent of our country—in a United Republic, which shall be indeed, as it is now nominally, the home of the free.

The Tribune devotes attention to other times, and to some extent to these, to Education Temperance, and Agriculture, invention, and whatever else may minister to the spiritual and material progress and well-being of mankind; but the great events, principles and questions of the mighty struggle in which we are engaged, are those to which it mainly devoted to the success of the War for the Union. Its special correspondents accompany every considerable army and report every important battle of that great struggle which we trust is soon to result in the signal and conclusive triumph of the National arms and in the restoration of Peace and Thrift to our bleeding country. We believe there no other-wise can a fuller or more accurate view of the progress and character of this momentous conflict be obtained than through the regular perusal of our columns. And we earnestly solicit the cooperation of all friends of the National cause, which we regard and uphold as that of universal Humanity, to aid us in extending its circulation.

ANNUAL MEETING

FOR INVESTIGATION REPORT AND DECLARATION OF BONUS.

THE twenty-ninth annual Meeting of this Company was held within the Royal Hotel, Aberdeen on Friday, the 18th April,

Alexander Skrimshire, Esq., of Drumallan, Chairman of the Ordinary Directors, in the Chair. There were submitted to the meeting—

1.—Report by the Directors, which, on the motion of the Chairman, was cordially and unanimously approved of and adopted.

2.—The Balance Sheet for the past year, with detailed states relative thereto, duly certified as correct, in terms of the Act of Incorporation, by the Chairman and Manager, and also by the Auditor.

There was also laid on the Table the various Valuation States in connection with the Quinquennial Investigation into the state of the Company's affairs, as at 31st January, 1863.

The following particulars derived from the Balance Sheet and States before-mentioned, show the result of the operations of the Company for the past year:—

Amount proposed for Life Assurance during the year, contained in 1189 Proposal	£454,635 0 0
Amount of Proposals accepted, and for which 961 Policies were issued	350,696 0 0
ANNUAL PREMIUMS on said Policies	11,170 1 0
CLAIMS BY DEATH including BONUSES on PARTICIPATOR OF POLICIES, and also deferred Bonus received from other Offices under guarantee	2,260 1 0
TOTAL SUM Assured under 4,799 current LIFE POLICIES	1,685,56 0 0
TOTAL ACCUMULATED FUNDS	572,562 3 2
TOTAL ANNUAL REVENUE	96,788 4 4

With reference to the recent investigation into the state of the Company's affairs, as at 31st January last, the Report Stated that both the principles of valuation and the details thereof, had been submitted to James John Downes, Esq., Actuary to the Economic Life Office in London, a gentleman well known as one of the highest authorities on such subjects in the kingdom, and had received his entire approval, as having been made on just and sound principles, and accurately carried out as certified in his report to the Directors, which formed part of the Appendix to their Report. That as the Directors considered could not fail to give the utmost confidence—both to the shareholders and the Policyholders—in the soundness and correctness of the valuation.

During the Quinquennial period, the claims by death, including the bonus additions which had been paid, and which had been considerably under the number that might have been expected from the Mortality Tables on which the Office rates are based, amounting to £59,976 6s 6d.

In valuing the Policies, each had been separately calculated, and nett premiums had only been used, thus leaving a surplus of annual revenue of £11,427 10s 7d., to meet future expenses and to form a source of profit for next investigation. The total amount of claims by death paid since the commencement of the Company, was £317,831 4s.

The Securities held by the Company were in a satisfactory position, and had been recently carefully scrutinised in detail by the Directors.

In conclusion, the Directors congratulated both the Proprietors and the Assured on the high position which the Company now occupied in the estimation of the public, and on the encouraging prospect of its business operations for the future.

DECLARATION OF BONUS.

From the profits realized on the Life business, a retrospective Bonus of £1 7s 6d per cent per annum for the Quinquennial period was declared, on the sums originally assured under all Participating Policies, increased by the previous additions thereto; also a further prospective Bonus of £1 per cent per annum, on the amount of the Policies with said Bonuses, on all such of said Policies as may become claims by Death previously to the 31st January, 1867.

It will be observed, that this rate of Bonus is equivalent in the case of our older Policies to £1 14s per cent per annum on the original sum assured: that the total additions to the sum assured, now vested, are equal to 33 per cent on the sum assured; and that as the younger ages the additions amount to upwards of 75 per cent of the premiums paid.

Statement showing the Progress of the Company's Business during the Quinquennial Period, ending 31st January, 1862:

Year ending 31st January.	Amounts proposed for Assurance.	Amount of New Policies Issued.	No. of Policies Issued.	No. declined.	New Annual Premiums.	Total Revenue in each year.	Accumulated Funds.
1858	£189,840	£126,160	435	356	£3,989 13 0	£60,702 11 10	£249,556 9 8
1859	206,305	168,171	540	477	5,422 1 6	65,791 5 6	307,434 5 4
1860	248,320	189,230	707	559	6,726 17 0	77,977 0 6	375,098 6 10
1861	249,676	220,746	823	736	7,971 17 0	87,889 7 6	434,606 11 0
1862	404,835	306,630	1189	991	11,170 1 0	96,788 4 4	572,562 3 2
Totals	£1,298,976	£1,010,937	3980	3268	£37,600 15 10	388,441 16 6	1,571,966 16 6

Votes of thanks were passed to the Directors and Office-bearers of the Company at Head-Offices and Branches, and after a very hearty vote of thanks to the Chairman for his conduct in the Chair, the meeting was dissolved.

ILLUSTRATED SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN!

The Best Mechanical Paper in the World.

EIGHTEENTH YEAR.

VOLUME VIII—NEW SERIES.

A NEW VOLUME of this popular Journal will commence on the first of January. It is published weekly, and every number contains sixteen pages of useful information, and from five to ten original engravings of new inventions and discoveries. All the mechanical engravings required by its columns.

TO THE MECHANIC & MANUFACTURER.

No person engaged in any of the manufacturing pursuits should think of doing without the Scientific American. It costs but six cents per week; every number contains from six to ten engravings of new machines and inventions, which cannot be found in any other publication.

TO THE INVENTOR.

The Scientific American is indispensable to every inventor, as it not only contains illustrated descriptions of nearly all the best inventions as they come out, but each number contains an Official List of the Claims of all the Patents issued from the United States Patent Office during the previous week, thus giving a correct history of the progress of inventions in this country. We are also receiving, every week, the best scientific journals of Great Britain, France and Germany; thus placing in our possession all that is transpiring in mechanical science and art in these old countries. We continue to publish in the Scientific American extracts from these journals whatever we may deem of interest to our readers.

A pamphlet of instructions as to the best mode of obtaining Letters Patent on new inventions is furnished free on application.

Messrs. Munn & Co. have acted as Patent Solicitors for more than seventeen years, in connection with the publication of the Scientific American, and they refer to 20,000 patentees for whom they have done business.

No charge is made for examining sketches and models of new inventions and for advising inventors as to their patentability.

CHEMISTS, ARCHITECTS, MILLRIGHTS & FARMERS.

The Scientific American will be found a most useful Journal to them. All the new discoveries in the science of chemistry are given in its columns, and the interest of the architect and carpenter are not overlooked; all the new inventions and discoveries appertaining to these pursuits being published from week to week. Useful and practical information pertaining to the interests of millwrights and mill-owners will be found in the Scientific American, which information they can not possibly obtain from any other source. Subjects in which farmers are interested will be found discussed in the Scientific American; most of the improvements in agricultural implements being illustrated in its columns.

TERMS.—To mail subscribers: Three Dollars a year, or One Dollar for four months.—The volumes commence on the first of January and July. Specimen copies will be sent gratis to any part of the country.

Western and Canadian money or Post-office stamps taken at par for subscriptions. Canadian subscribers will please remit twenty-five cents extra on each year's subscription to prepay postage.

Poetry.

"Do you think he is Married?"

BY JOHN G. SAXE.

Madam—you are very guessing,
And I can't decline the task;
With the slightest gift of guessing,
You would scarcely need to ask!

Don't you see a hint of marriage
In his sober-sided face?
In his rather careless carriage,
And Extremely rapid pace?

If he's not committed treason,
Or some wicked action done,
Can you see the frenzy reason,
Why a bachelor should run?

Why should he be in a flurry?
But a loving wife to greet,
In a circumstance to hurry
The most dignified of feet!

When afar the man has spied her,
If the grateful happy wit
Does not haste to be beside her,
He must be beside himself!

It is but a trifle, maybe—
But observe his practised tone,
When he claims your stormy baby,
Just as if it were his own.

Do you think a certain meekness
You have mentioned in his looks,
Is chronic optic weakness
That has come of reading books?

Did you ever see his vision
Peering underneath a hood,
Save enough for recognition,
As a civil person should?

Could a Canadian be colder
When he glances as he must,
At a finely-rounded shoulder,
Or a proudly-swelling bust?

Madam!—think of every feature,
Then deny it if you can,
He's a fond, connubial creature,
And a very married man.

Miscellaneous.

A MOMENT OF PASSION.

BY T. S. ARTHUR.

This story, or something like it, has been told before, but we wish to tell it in our way; and the lesson it teaches will bear many repetitions.

Mr. Ellis was a man of kind and tender feelings, but quick tempered and impulsive. He had a son ten years old, a bright, handsome generous-hearted boy, who inherited his father's impulsive character. A quick-tempered father, and a thoughtless, impulsive boy, are apt to get into sharp collisions at times, and it was so with Mr. Ellis and his little son. The father's commands were not always obeyed; and as the father had some strict notions in regard to obedience, punishment jarred among the household harmonies rather more frequently than a wise regard to justice and humanity would have approved. Mr. Ellis made his discipline oftener cruel than refractory. A single instance will illustrate our meaning; and this is the story we wish to relate.

It was a pleasant summer afternoon, and Willie Ellis came out from his mother's hands clad all in white linen, and looking as sweet and pure as innocence itself. The house stood only a short distance from a river, on the bank of which the boy was fond of sporting, and in the ooze of which he sometimes soiled his garments in a sad way, much to the discomfort of himself and his mother.

"Willie," said Mr. Ellis, as the boy passed out, "where are you going?"

"Only to play," answered the roguish boy

"To play—where?"

"With Eddie Wheeler, down at his house."

"Did your mother say that you might go there?"

"Yes, sir."

"Very well, all right then. But mind one thing—you are not to go down to the river. Yesterday you came home with your clothes soiled and wet. I won't have that again. So remember what I've said—don't go to the river."

"Not if Mr. Wheeler lets Eddie go?" There was a half-pleading look in the young, bright face.

"No," was the imperative answer, "I've said don't go to the river, and if you disobey me, I'll punish you severely."

Willie's step had lost some of its airy lightness when he moved on again.

"Mind that you don't forget, called the father after him.

The boy heard, but did not look back or make any response, which a little annoyed Mr. Ellis, who had grown very sensitive on the score of strict obedience.

"It wouldn't at all surprise me," he said to himself, "if he were to come home in an hour all covered with river mud. He is so thoughtless, or self-willed, I hardly know which. But children must be made to obey. That's the discipline to enforce at all hazards; and if he disobeys me this time, he will have cause to remember it as long as he lives."

Something had gone wrong with Mr. Ellis, and he was in a sterner mood than usual. Moods of mind, rather than a sense of justice, oftener influence our conduct with reference to others.

Mr. Ellis went away from home after, and returned in an hour. As he stood at the door, and glanced around for a moment before entering, he saw Willie in a rueful plight, wet and soiled from head to foot, slunk through the garden gate. The boy had noticed him, and was endeavoring to get into the house without being seen.—But at the door where he hoped to enter unobserved, he encountered a very angry face. A few quick strides had brought his father.

"So you have been to the river, after all that I said:

The boy lifted a pale face and frightened eyes.

"Didn't I tell you not to go to the river?"

A vice-like grip was already on his soft little arm.

"And you went after all?"

"But, father,——"

"Not a word, sir. I told you not to go to the river, didn't I?"

"Eddie Wheeler——" the poor child tried to explain.

"I don't want to hear about Eddie Wheeler. He can't excuse your disobedience. Come, sir, we'll settle the business," and he dragged the white faced boy after him, up stairs to the garret, and taking down a rod, swung it in the air above his head

"Oh, father, don't! let me tell you."

A look, almost like despair, was in the boy's face. Mr. Ellis remembers it to this day, and will remember it to the day of his death.

"I don't wish to hear any excuses," was replied, as the rod came down upon the shrinking child, with a stroke that made every nerve quiver with pain.

"Oh father!"

Once more the mild, appealing look so full of agony, was lifted to the stern face above him, but lifted in vain. A second cruel stroke fell, and then a rain of strokes, until the father's sense of pity, intruding between anger and unforgiving justice, stayed his arm. He went down stairs, and left the boy lying in the middle of the floor, as he had dropped from his hand—motionless as if life was extinct. He met the pale suffering mother below. She loved the boy tenderly, and had felt every smarting blow, but he passed her without a word. She had seen Willie as he encountered his father at the door, and understood the meaning of his heavy punishment. Mr. Ellis went out into the porch to breath the free air, and cool the sudden excitement under which he had been laboring. As he shut the door behind him in a kind of instinctive effort to separate himself from a painful scene, he stood facing Mr. Wheeler. A hand grasped his in a quick strong pressure.

"It was a brave act, sir! He is a noble boy! Where is he?"

"I don't understand you," said Mr Ellis, looking bewildered.

"Didn't he tell you?"

"Tell me what?"

"How he sprang into the river and saved my little Eddie's life?"

"I heard nothing of it."

There was a choking sensation in Mr. Ellis' throat—his voice was faint and husky.

"And he didn't tell you? Brave, noble boy. He came over to play with Eddie; and Eddie wanted to go down to the river; I heard Eddie coaxing him, but Willie was firm, because he said you told him not to go, I was so pleased at his obedient spirit. Well, I lost sight of them after a little while, but as I learn, Eddie would go down to the river, and your boy followed him, but kept a distance from the water. Instead of climbing over the logs and barrels, or getting into the boats, he sat by himself away off. Then, sir, my Eddie, in leaning over the river, slipped and fell in; and your boy, instead of running away, half frightened out of his senses, as most children of his age would have done, sprang down to the wharf, and into the water after Eddie. I wonder they were not both drowned. It was only in God's mercy they were saved. When the man who saw what had happened got to the place and looked over the dock into the water, there was Willie, holding on to one of the logs with his right hand, and clinging to Eddie with the other. Such age and presence of mind in a boy, almost surpasses belief! Where is he? He ran off home as soon as the man lifted him from the water. I must thank him for his noble act."

At this moment, the door opening into the porch swung back, and the white face of Mrs. Ellis looked out.

"Oh, husband!" she exclaimed in a voice of terror, "come to Willie, quick!"

Mr Ellis followed his wife, and the neighbor hurried after them. The mother had found her boy lying insensible on the garret floor, and lifting him in her arms, had brought him down stairs and laid him in his wet clothes upon her own bed

As Mr. Ellis came into the room, he saw the deathly face turned towards the door. The sight seemed to blast his vision. She struck his hands together, shut his eyes and stood still suddenly.

"Will you run for the doctor?" said Mrs. Ellis to the neighbor

The neighbor did literally as the mother said—he ran all the way to a physician's residence.

By the time the doctor arrived Willie's wet garments had been removed. He asked but few questions as to the meaning of the boy's condition. Mr. Wheeler had told of his heroic conduct, and the inference was that there had been an over excitement of the brain, leading to suspended animation. Still the case puzzled him.

"He may have been hurt in jumping from the wharf," suggested Mr. Wheeler.

The doctor on this hint, examined the body.

"What is this?" he asked, as a long, purple stripe, lying across the back and shoulders, met his eyes, "and this?" he added as he came upon another.

Mr. Ellis turned his face away, sick at heart. He could not follow the doctor's eyes.

"He may have been hurt internally," said the doctor, drawing back the clothes, and covering the fair body that was marked with cruel lines. He was right in that, but the injury was deeper than he imagined. It was the boy's tender spirit which had been hurt.

"This will not last, doctor?"

The pale lips of Mr Ellis quivered as he asked the question.

"I think not," was the uncertain answer.

I did not last. There came, soon after, signs of returning animation. The neighbor went home—the doctor retired—and the father and mother were left alone with the brave-hearted boy, who had been wronged so cruelly. Mr Ellis could not bear to look at him. He felt twice over upon his heart, the blows he had given. There was such rebuke in the pale face and shut eyes of the boy, who had not yet spoken, or recognized any one, that he could not stay in the chamber. Every moment he looked to see the eyes open, and how could he meet their gaze.

Mr. Ellis had been away from the room for only a few minutes, when the hushed voice of his wife, calling him, reached his ears. He came to where she stood, half way down stairs.

"Willie wants you," she said.

"Has he recovered?" asked the father.

"Yes. He opened his eyes and looked all around the room, almost as soon as you went out. Then he shut them again, as if to think; and then looking up, after a little while said, 'Where is father?' I told him you were down stairs, 'Won't you call him?' he said.

Mr. Ellis went up to meet his child in a state of mental depression difficult to be conceived. He could have faced almost any imagined danger with less of shrinking than he now felt in going into the presence of Willie But there was no holding back.

What did the boy want? What had he to say? How could he receive him?—These questions crowded and bewildered his mind. He pushed open the door very softly, and went in.

The boy's waiting ears had heard the almost noiseless feet approaching; and his eyes were upon the entrance. Mr. Ellis did not speak a word, but came over to the bed.

"Oh, father! I didn't do wrong——I wasn't disobedient," said Willie, making an effort to rise from the pillow, and speaking with eagerness. "I tried to tell you, but you would not hear—"

"I know it all my brave boy!"

Then Willie's arms found their way to his father's neck, and clung there tightly. His cheeks, when his head went back upon the pillow from which he had arisen, were wet, but not with his own tears. Could father or child ever forget that day? The child might; but the father, never.

Oh, hasty, impulsive, passionate father, take warning in time! Be on your guard. Hear before you strike. Punish not on any hasty provocation. It is a sad thing to bear through life a memory like that which burdens the heart of Mr. Ellis, whenever the thought goes backward into the irrevocable past.

The Cutest Yankee Trick Yet.

A Vermont broom pedlar, a shrewd chap, from over among the steady habits, wooden clocks, schoolmasters and other fixin's drove through the streets of Providence, heavily laden with corn brooms. He had called at several stores, and offered his load, or over so small portion of it; but when he wanted the cash, and nothing else, in payment, they had uniformly given him to understand that they had brooms enough and that he might go further. At length he drove up to a large wholesale store on the west side and once more offered his wares.

"Well, I want the brooms badly enough, said the merchant; "but what will you take in pay?"

This was a poser. The pedlar was aching to get rid of his brooms; he despised the very sight of them; but he would sooner sell a single broom for cash than the whole load for any other article, especially that which he could not as readily dispose of as he could brooms. After a moment's hesitation, however, he renewed his courage to the sticking point—it required some courage after having lost his chance of selling his load half a dozen times by a similar answer—and frankly told the merchant he must have the cash.

Of course the merchant protested that cash was scarce, and that he must purchase if he purchased at all with what he had in his store to pay with. He really wanted the brooms, and he did not hesitate to say so, but the times were hard, and he had notes to pay, and had goods that must be disposed of."

Finally, he said he would put the goods at the cost price for the sake of trading, and would take the whole load of brooms, which the pedlar had laboured so successfully at the other stores to dispose of.

"Sir, unload the brooms," said he, to the pedlar, "and select any articles from my store, and you shall have them at cost price."

The pedlar scratched his head; there was an idea there, as the sequel shows plainly enough.

"I tell you what it is," he answered, at last, "just say them terms for half the load and cash for t'other half, and I'm your man. Blowed if I don't sell scant, if Vermont sinks with all the here broom stuff the next minit!"

The merchant hesitated a moment, but finally concluded that the chance was a good one. He would be getting half the brooms for something that would not sell as readily as for the cost price, it was an easy chance in regard to it. The bargain was struck, the brooms brought in, and the cash for half of them paid over.

"Now what will you have for the remainder of your bill?" asked the merchant.

The pedlar scratched his head again and this time more vigorously. He walked the floor, whistled and drummed with his fingers on the head of a barrel. By-and-bye his reply came slowly, deliberately and emphatically.

"You Providence fellers are cute; you sell at cost pretty much, all of you, and make money; I don't see how it is done. Now, I don't know about your goods—but one article; if I take anything else I may be cheated; so swear' as 'twon't make any odds with you, I guess I'll take brooms. I know them like a book, and can swear to just what you paid for 'em!"

And so saying, the pedlar commenced reloading his brooms, and having snugly deposited half of his former load, jumped on his cart with a regular Vermont grin, and leaving the merchant cursing his impudence and his own stupidity, drove off in search of another customer.

A Case of Cram. Cm.

From the Buffalo Commercial.

We have been put in possession of the facts in relation to a current topic of conversation, the parties to which belong in this city, of particular interest. A certain gentleman, whose name we suppress for the present, having reason to suspect that his wife—the mother of two or more children, a lady of prepossessing appearance—could not be by any means "old"—was false to him, and to her vow to forsake all others and cling to him and that sort of thing, resolved to have proof of her infidelity.

The lady in question, on Monday last, resolved, against the wishes of her lord, to make a trip on the railroad as far as Quincy, Chautauque County, for the avowed purpose of visiting some friends. The husband, making a virtue of necessity, at length gave his consent, and, when the time for our departure arrived, took the children along, and accompanied her to the depot, where they remained until the hour of starting, when the father and children kissed the mother and wife, and bade her good-by. The lady, after this tender parting, resumed her seat, and was whirled away, congratulating herself, doubtless, on the success of her scheme, all unconscious of the fact that the sharp eyes of a detective, seated at a convenient position were watching her every move.

Arrived at Dunkirk, the lady disembarked from the cars, and requested the conductor to direct her to a certain hotel, which that gentlemanly person promptly did, and she started off closely followed and watched by the detective. Before she had gone far, she was met by a "nice young man,"—who, by the way, is in the service of the United States, wears its uniform, and is located in this city—whose arm she affectionately took, and they proceeded to the hotel, where the names of the couple were Registered as "Mr. and Mrs. Hunter," and where they engaged a room, to which, in due course of time they retired.

Detective having then satisfactorily "tried" the pair, immediately telegraphed the "joyous" intelligence to the husband, who arrived on the next train, and eagerly sought the advice of the officer. The advice was "either to take a club and thrash the fellow's brains out," or to "let him alone at present and seek redress at the hands of the law." The most peaceable alternative was adopted; and, returning to the city, the husband procured the necessary papers and forwarded them to the detective, he remaining to watch the guilty pair, who occupied a position at the table directly opposite him, blissfully oblivious to their impending fate.

The "documents" arrived in due time. They were handed over by the detective to the Sheriff, and the prodigate son of Mars suddenly found himself whirling from the pinnacle of bliss down into the slough of despair. Not to put too fine a point upon it, he was arrested and taken before the proper authorities, when, in consequence of his inability to procure bail to the amount of $4,000, he was committed to the jail at Mayville, where at last accounts, he still remained, reflecting upon the uncertainty of the affairs of white men generally. We did not learn what disposition was made of the lady.

The husband we understand, has already commenced the necessary steps for the procurement of a divorce.

"Shelving Down at Post."—

"You I first came to Filadelfy to serve, I was very much encouraged," said Katrina, now a tidy, intelligent girl in a respectable family; "I laught mooch, and I find mooch amused to remember" ow I behave ven I know so little. Shon—that vas my boss then—Shon he took me to the theatre one night, when I had been in Filadelfy but three weeks. We sit in the gallery, and we not see goot, and Shon said he would get a better seat. So he puts his leg round de post, and slides down said de pit, and he looks up and calls out, 'Katrina! Katrina! come down, tish a good view here!' And I leaned over, and said I, 'How can I come Shon?' And he said, 'Just slide down.' So I puts my legs round de pillar, and slides down, too. Dunder! how de people laugh! Dey laugh so dey play no more dat night upon de stage. Everybody laugh and yell, and whistle all over de house! I was mooch ashamed den, though I now not say hers! But now I plushes read every time I thinks of it."

—A Village Doctor being out for a day's shooting recently, took his errand boy to carry his game bag. Entering a field, and seeing a number of snow birds, the boy became overjoyed at the prospect of his master's success, and exclaimed, "Lor', master, there's a flock; if you get near 'em plyes 'em!" "Physic them, you young rascal, what do you mean?" "Why kill 'em to be sure," replied the lad.

A Distinction.—"Is Mr.——good?" said a bank director to a director, the other day. "That depends on whether you mean God-ward or man-ward," was the answer. "God-ward," continued the bank officer. "Mr.——is good. No man in our church is sounder in faith, or prays oftener in our meetings, or is more benevolent according to his means. But man-ward, I am sorry to say that Mr.——is rather tricky."

An honest old lady in the country, when told of her best mare's death, exclaimed, "Well, I do declare, our troubles never come alone. It aint a week since I lost my best hen, and now Mr. Hooper has gone, too, poor man!"

—Fifty damsels sent out from England to Vancouver's Island, had, upon arrival, to be housed in a Government building and a guard put over them, in order to prevent them from the rush of enamored seamen.—They were all soon disposed of; but whether by lot, or to the highest bidders, does not appear. The Vancouver paper chronicles far more, but prefers dairy maids to governesses.

THE UNIVERSITY COMMISSION REPORT.

The three gentlemen appointed to investigate the affairs of the Toronto University and University College have at length submitted their Report to His Excellency the Governor General, which has been published in the Leader. The names of the Commissioners are James Patton, a representative of Trinity College; John Beatty, Jr., a representative of Victoria College; and John Patton, a representative of Queen's College. As might have been expected, these advocates of their respective Colleges suggest the division of the University endowment. They are frank enough, however, to state that the immediate cause of the issuing of the Commission was the representations made to His Excellency that the funds of the University were extravagantly expended and misapplied and that while the enquiry into these charges formed the primary part of their duty in the plenitude of the powers bestowed upon them they considered that to suggest a better way to prevent future commissions being troubled looking after money, to suggest its division among other Colleges was not transcending that power.

They thus state how they were led to deviate from the line of their instructions as well as what led to the enquiry:

"The representations stated to have been made to Your Excellency are that "The funds of the University are extravagantly expended and misapplied, and that in consequence thereof other academical institutions in Upper Canada are deprived of the benefit of any surplus which would arise from a prudent and economical management of the same;"—also that "the current expenses of University College are much greater than is necessary for the management and efficient working of the said College, and that in consequence thereof a large amount of the said University Income Fund is annually wasted and misapplied, and other academical institutions in Upper Canada are deprived of the benefit of any surplus which would arise from a more careful appropriation of the same." Such being the immediate causes for the issue of the Commission, the Commissioners devoted their attention in the first place to a careful inquiry into the present condition and management of the University Endowment, and in the next place to the expenditure of University College. As the inquiry progressed, they became strongly impressed with the belief that a more financial report would fall far short of what was required, and that a much more important service would be rendered if they could accompany this report with a scheme by which the obvious defects of the present University system in Upper Canada could be remedied, the intentions of the Act of 1853 be carried into harmonious operation, and the cause of higher education be placed on a permanent and satisfactory basis."

"Having full valitatorial powers committed to them, the Commissioners gave a wide range to their inquiries, all of these, however, intimately connected with financial arrangements, with most gratifying and satisfactory results. These last will be fully stated in their appropriate place at the conclusion of this report."

The last paragraph were they intimate that they were well pleased with the "financial arrangements" of the University as their investigations led to the "most gratifying and satisfactory results," ought surely to satisfy the Rev. Mr. Poole and all the croakers about "squandering the endowment," and "extravagant expenditure." The Commissioners pay a high compliment to the courteous gentlemanly conduct of the Principal and all the officers of the University College towards them, even in their most delicate investigations, and they seem pleased at the success which has attended them in their onerous task, and which they are ready to credit in a great degree to the officials for their readiness in answering their enquiries.

The inquiry was first made as to lands remaining of the endowment, which are stated to be 18,310¼ acres, valued by the Bureau at $167,019 93, being a trifle of $9 per acre. Balance due on lands sold is $290,863 75, besides a balance termed doubtful or bad of $63,420; making a total of $354,283 75 of principal besides $31,265 of interest.

Next some investments. Bank Stock, $1,440; Mortgages, $66,374; Debentures $336,547 00, less $2,000 worthless. The value of the above will be seen as follows:

London market value,..	$167,019 93
Balance for land sold..	363,283 75
Interest due on above..	34 385 00
Bank Stock,.....	1 440 00
Mortgages,.....	66,374 00
Debentures,.....	334 547 00
	$936,579 70

This at 6 per cent. would realize nearly $79,000. During 1861 the income was but $50,355 46, whilst the expenditure was $61,892 44. From this it would appear that if the whole were realized and carefully invested, the income would exceed present expenditure by some $17,000. It is, however, but reasonable to suppose that as the country progresses and the superior advantages afforded by the University are better known and appreciated, the attendance will increase, and with it the necessity of proportionately increasing its expenditure.

There belongs also to the University a splendid Public House of Refuge, which is erected a building used at present as a Branch Lunatic Asylum, which cost $55,000. This building was erected out of the endowment, but was taken possession of by the Government in 1856. It is not productive. There is also a building rented as a Medical School, value $7,020. An Observatory, costing a large sum besides the buildings used by the institutions and costing $353,907, the Library Museum, &c., &c. The Report will lay before the country the state of the endowment position and management of these seats of learning in a more intelligent and condensed form than they have been heretofore.

We are pleased, too, that they have supplemented their enquiries by suggestions. Some of these are good and reasonable and doubtless will be adopted; whilst others are so unreasonable, so monstrous, and we would fain hope, so adverse to the feeling of a majority of the country, that they never will be entertained. These require especial notice, and shall occupy our attention at a future time.

We have hinted above that the Commissioners exceeded the directions given them in their suggesting a "scheme" for the future conduct of the University, and the disposal of its endowment. Their directions were to investigate the financial condition of the endowment and its position, and to report thereon. The chief complaint made by the spoilators, was that the funds of the University were being recklessly squandered and misapplied—that the money was so plenty that the officials were actually buying up students and begging them to accept scholarships, and all such cock and bull stories.

The Commissioners, however, seem to have failed in discovering these oft reiterated calumnies, and on the contrary state that they find that the enquiries made into the "financial arrangements" of the University were with the most gratifying and satisfactory results.

But we must notice their scheme or suggestions for the future management of the University and of its endowment. They thus deliver themselves: "This change effected other expenditures might properly be placed under control of the University body so remodelled as to afford all chartered Colleges a due representation, and for this purpose the Commissioners will append a scheme which has met with the nearly unanimous approval of the various bodies interested."

We have no doubt of it, the Commissioners in dividing the spoil, and suggesting a "scheme" to raise the wind would be fools indeed not to adopt one that should meet with "nearly unanimous approval." But which of the "bodies interested" that did not concur, in the overtures suggested. This was doubtless the Senate of the University itself, which naturally enough would demur to. Seeing this noble institution for the use of the entire people destroyed, and its endowment alienated from its original purpose to denominational uses.

This "scheme" as we shall presently show is for the chartered Colleges to have all the any what University College shall have, and shall not have; and then goodbye to the chief seat of learning in Upper Canada.

We must not forget to state that many of the suggestions of the Commissioners we consider good, and should be acted upon; but the good is swallowed up by the bad. The direct object of their scheme is to establish Denomination Colleges under stated Government support. The agitators of this principle seem desirous to push the question to an issue, and must be prepared to take the consequences of the struggle. Although it is urged that the state by its annual grants to Denominational Colleges, concedes the principle, it must be remarked that the wants are rather the result of circumstance than of principle—and a very trivial affair may lead any moment to its abandonment by the Legislature.

When the endowment in 1828 was surreptitiously seized for denominational purposes by the Episcopalians, the Methodists and Presbyterians united with others for its restoration to its primitive purpose.—These bodies who now seek again to open the question of State aid to Denomination never faltered in their adherence to the principle of restoring the endowment of King's College for the object of a non-denominational seat of learning until that fiat of a division of the endowment to each body was held out in the famous bill of John A. McDonald at the close of 1847. For the first time the Methodist body in Canada through their Conference showed that the hope of getting money weighed more with them than a profession to a principle.

The Conference as a body advocate unblushingly the principle of State support to Denominational Colleges. We believe the majority of the people do not; although we fear that very many side with their pastors, it is but natural for them so to do, and it is a maxim that "evil communications corrupt good manners."

We must explain in reference to Presbyterians that we refer to the body in Canada in connection with the Church of Scotland,—a State Church, and of course advocates State pay—with such we know we have to fight battles on voluntaryism. When they joined us in getting the Reserves secularized it was for the purpose of getting a share themselves. As for the majority of the Presbyterians in Canada, known as the Presbyterian Church in Canada, they are sound in this great question. Since the rupture in 1843 the Free Church has given the world as bright and glorious a lesson on the efficacy of Voluntaryism as it ever has. Yes, we doubt if history can furnish a parallel of so success in so short a time,—may their shadow never grow less.

We observed that some of the suggestions of the Commissioners were good, [illegible] and necessary, [illegible] unnecessarily [illegible] expenditure. [illegible] the University has hitherto been conducted in every department, dispensing with unnecessary offices and reducing too large salaries. These and several others are all well enough, and will secure the approval of all reasonable men. We take objections to the proposed affiliation scheme, as it is intended thereby to endow the Colleges out of the endowment, as well as to have Government create a fund for the annual allowance to each, thus effectually destroying the institution of the people, and making it in place of a superior seat of learning an institution like one of the affiliated Colleges.

They propose a new composition of the Senate as a preliminary step in which the affiliated Colleges would have the control of every thing both of the national College as well as their own.

It would not take a prophet to foretel in that case that the former would be put to the wall. The non-denominatial College, the present University College fit only for infidels, and those who prefer non-denominational Colleges, or can't afford to have one of their own, would soon be treated as often a kind but foolish parent is who puts all his property out of his hands. The bare mention of what is proposed by these secretaries is bad enough, but what would the carrying out of the scheme be? They have so far overshot themselves in their suggestions that we feel satisfied the "scheme" will be tabooed by the Legislature and condemned by every right thinking man in the country.

This is their financial scheme:—The Colleges which agree to affiliate shall have the moderate sum of $20,000 each, besides $10,000 each to pay off their debts, and to enlarge and repair their buildings. Then each of the four Colleges—Queen's, Victoria, Regiopolas and Trinity—is to have annually $10,000, and for University of Kings College $28,000.

The expenses of this Institution for 1861 was $61,892, while the income was only $50,355. This is retrenchment with a vengeance. But we hasten to get through. Now for the modus operandi of raising the large sum required for these items enumerated; here they are:

Cash down to four Colleges on their signing the agreement to affiliate with the University $30,000.....	$120,000
Annual allowance each $10,000	40,000
" " University College	28,000
	$188,000

Now for the assets and the ways and means:

Bursar's valuation of endowment 31st Dec., 1861, Debentures, Mortgages, &c.....	$534,596
Cost of building, taken by Government for Lunatic Asylum	55,000
Allowance for occupation of do., 9 years at 5 per cent.....	27,500
An equivolent for present Legislative aid to the three first named Colleges, to be capitalised $15,000 per annum.....	250,000
An equivalent for Trinity College $5,000, capitalised.....	84,000
	$971,096
Debentures to be issued for the above amount would realize per annum.....	$58,263
Interest on Debentures, Bank Stock, &c.....	25,691
To'al	$84 356

This would leave a surplus of some $16,356 over the yearly appropriations shown above, which will be required for prizes and the expenses of the Senate.—There is besides the University Park, and a debt of some $35,000 for interest. We have failed to discover how the Commissioners propose to raise the consideration money; $120,000 is a large sum, but where is it to come from or how is it to be had? Do they mean to say that the Legislature are to assume the bad debts of these corporations and pay them to destroy an institution, the glory and pride of the country? There is surely a screw loose here. It is all very fine to talk of "embarrasment" and "present aid," but in propounding a "scheme" why this omission in suggesting how this $120,000 are to be had? And then observe the questionable source of income put down: the Branch Lunatic Asylum, and rent for its occupation. If we mistake not Government reserved to itself the right of using what it pleased of the Park for building purposes, and it possibly considers it has a right to occupy the asylum free of charge. Then sums to represent an annual grant to Trinity College, which has not received any Government aid. The Bishop, with his keenness for State aid for denominational purposes, had some conscience, which these men seem devoid of. He never sought Legislature aid for Trinity College. It surely is within the recollection of the Commissioners that the entire endowment was wholly under the control, and used for the sole benefit of the Episcopalians for 21 years. While recommending that the Government should pay arrears for the use of a building for the benefit of the whole Province why did they not, as honest, just men, recommend that the Episcopal body pay back the large sums of public money used by them alone out of this fund for so long a period, in place of recommending them to receive, when they owe so much.

But we must close. We are pleased to find in the Report a refutation of these oft repeated charges of extravagant expenditure and misapplication, as well as such a monstrous "scheme" recommended as will assuredly fall through. We have no doubt it has disappointed many of the advocates of spoliation, and tend to make them satisfied with the University as it is.

There is in the Report directly clear indications of the handy work of the Chief Superintendent of Education. May his hot hand on our noble University be as futile in his further care, and as unsuccessful as in many attempts of introducing [illegible] Schools.

Death of the John Beverly Robinson.

On Saturday last the 31st ultimo) this distinguished Jurist paid the debt of nature. He had been ailing for two weeks, brought on, it is thought by his anxiety to finish some legal business on hand, connected with the Court of Appeal. Sir John was 72 years of age at his death. The greater part of his life has been spent in the public service, having filled the office of clerk of the House of Assembly, Solicitor and Attorney General, Chief Justice, and President of the Court of Appeal. In the war of 1812 he served as a Lieutenant in the Militia, and was member of Parliament for some four sessions. As a Judge, since his removal from the Council, he commanded and received the almost entire respect and confidence of the people of Upper Canada. Prior to 1841, the Judges had seats in the Council, but in that year they were excluded. He soon left behind him his former strong partizanship, and having only his judicial duties before him, he has discharged these so satisfactorily, that when in 1854 he received from the Queen the baronetcy not a voice but responded that it was well deserved. He has earned for himself a reputation as an upright Judge that will long be remembered by the people of Canada. We feel that in his death a "great man" has fallen.

TEACHERS' CONVENTION.

On Saturday, the 31st ult., the Teachers of Peterboro' and some of the surrounding Townships met in the Union School, for the purpose of carrying out some of the intentions of the County Convention, viz: forming branch societies in Towns and Townships, for the improvement of the Teachers, and, if possible, to awaken a deeper interest in the cause of Education generally.

A number of Teachers enrolled their names as members, and it was agreed to charge fifty cents per year of entrance fees.

The meetings are to be held on the last Saturday of every month, at such places as may be agreed from time to time.

It was moved by S. R. McKewen, seconded by G. Crook, and carried unanimously,—That Messrs. J. M. Dunn, Jas. Stratton and P. C. Blaicher, be appointed a deputation to visit the different Townships in this County, and to hold meetings, as far as practicable, for the purpose of creating a deeper interest in the cause of Education in the County.

The following were appointed to prepare Essays for the next meeting:

P. C. Blaicher—On the principles of Arithmetic.

Miss Kyle—On Reading.

J. E. Ray—On Thorough Teaching.

Mr. Dunn, Principal of Grammar and Union School—On the advantages of Union among Teachers.

S. R. McKewen—On School Organization.

The Convention meets again on the last Saturday of March, at the same place.—Com.

THE "WHITBY GAZETTE" ON THE UNIVERSITY COMMISSIONS.

"On our first and fourth pages will be found a synopsis of the Report of this Commission. The programme of the Commission is one of the most Jesuitical we have perused for a long time. We ask our readers to give it a careful perusal.

"The comments of the Globe we fully endorse. Thus the secularization of the University endowment no greater calamity could befall Canada. However, there is little danger of the Ministry doing any such thing."—Gazette, Jan. 28th.

We beg to correct our cotemporary; the endowment is now as it was, when established secular; he should have said: "than the spiritulization of the endowment, no greater calamity could befall Canada." From 1829 to 1849 the endowment was spiritualized by Bishop Strachan, and by him used for the benefit of a sect. The Reformers fought then to secularize it, and they succeeded in the act of 1849. The Pattons and Beatty now recommended to spiritualize it again. We take it that our cotemporary wishes that they may be frustrated in their designs—so do we. He does not want secularization, we do not want spiritulization.

We suppose the Gazette has fallen into the common error of many others: that of confounding the College endowment with the Clergy Reserves; an unpardonable error, however, for a public journalist to fall into. The Reserves were set apart for a religious use and the Reformers of Canada sought to have them secularized. The endowment for the College was secular, and the Commissioners now want to endow denominational Colleges—thus making it religious and virtually bringing us back to state etarchism. We hope and pray they may be defeated.

COUNTY ORANGE MEETING.—The Annual Meeting of the County Lodge of the County of Peterboro', was held at Hastings, on Tuesday last, when the following Officers were elected for the present year, viz:

Bro. Daniel Hopkins, County Master.
" Jas. Robb, Deputy County Master.
" Alex'r Graham, County Secretary.
" Daniel McDonald, Senior, County Treasurer.
" C. Wilson, County Chaplain.
" John Erskine, County Director of Ceremonies.

WE have seen a very excellent Sawing Machine made and owned by Mr. Mitchell of Cavan, who has obtained a patent for his invention. We saw it in operation on Mr. Gilmour's premises, and we must say we have never seen a machine to compare with it. Its simplicity and efficiency will secure for it the patronage of the public. Persons better able to judge than ourselves, are unanimous in their praises of its excellence. It was patented only last month.

CURLING.—The patrons of this manly game will be gratified to learn that another Club has been formed in the County.

On Saturday last the 31st January after a friendly bonspiel, at Keene a meeting was held and a new club formed under the name of the Otonabee Curling Club, and the following gentlemen were elected officers for the current year.—Mr. Wm. Lang, President; Mr. George Read, Vice President; Mr. Alex Campbell, Treasurer; Mr. Jas. Russell, Secretary; Mr. John Moorin & Mr. Jas. Steele, Depositaries.

Last week, the Reeves in the County Council elected their Warden in a singular way. There were 14 members present. Messrs. Pearce, Ingram and Grover were severally proposed, the latter was put first and received but two votes. Mr. Ingram was proposed next and received four votes. Mr. Pearce was put last and received but five votes, and yet he was declared elected. It thus appears, that while five are in favor of his being Warden nine are opposed to it. We are astonished how a deliberative body of men should proceed to elect a chairman, and be satisfied to go on with business with such a sham election. We understand that a motion was entered on the minutes to the effect that the election was not right, but that next morning before the mover and seconder of the resolution had appeared it was resolved to erase the obnoxious resolution from the minutes. It is strange how members would be satisfied to transact business in so singular a way, not agreed as to who their Warden is. We do not think the Clerk did right in not calling for the nays as well as the yeas. If he had he could not have declared Mr. Pearce elected. By reference to custom elsewhere we observe the first proposed is put first and the yeas and nays recorded. We disclaim in the above any objection to the present incumbent. Mr. Pearce's long acquaintance with Municipal matters, and his business tact, qualify him for the position of Warden—probably he may be the best for the honor. Our objection is that he is not duly elected, and nothing but the tacit acknowledgment of the malcontents, can keep him in the chair.

AND YET ANOTHER.—A sad death resulting from the use of intoxicating drinks occurred on Sunday last. John Hodson, who kept a groggery opposite the Market Square had been on a spree since before Christmas, until within a short time of his death. His wife was drunk likewise most of the time, and fearing that they might set fire to the house, some of the neighbors complained to the Town authorities, and a man was put in the house to take care of it, and also to keep the wretched couple from whiskey. After a short time he succeeded in getting them sober. The Doctor was called in, and did all in his power he succeeded in restoring the woman, but the unfortunate man sunk, and now fills a drunkard's grave. We have in our good Town a large Temperance Society, bodies of Sons of Temperance and Good Templars. We have as the law of the land the latest enactments of our Legislature to reduce Taverns, and the Sunday liquor law, but all are inoperative to stay the ravages caused by liquor drinking. To see the immense number of casks of the liquid fire in the front of our liquor stores, frequently ranged on the side walks, one cannot escape the conviction that the liquor traffic is largely on the increase, and we are in a fair way to be back where we were some years ago.

ACCIDENT.—On the evening of Saturday last Mr. J. C. Rodden, of this Town, met with an accident which it is surprising was not of a more serious nature. He was at the Court House with a number of other townsmen, who were celebrating the separation of Victoria from Peterboro by firing guns, letting off fireworks, &c., and very unwisely participated in the latter amusement with a quantity of gunpowder about his person. The result was that a spark got into an uncorked bottle of gunpowder in his pocket, and it, together with two flasks full, which he also had about him, exploded, burning pretty severely his hand and arm, and singeing off his left eye-brow and some of his hair. Strange to say, he was not injured in the least by the fragments of glass or metal. The accident, though a painful one, is not likely to entail any serious consequences.—Lindsay Advocate.

The above we clip from the Lindsay Advocate. We are glad to learn that the boy escaped so easily from the blow up. Children should be early taught to beware of gunpowder.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Monday, 26th Jan., 1863.

The Council met pursuant to adjournment. Present: His Worship the Mayor, and Messrs. Toole, Nicholls, Fry, Ormond, Carlile, Cluxton, Dixon, Burnham, Ryan, Lundy, Dickson and Lawson.

The minutes of former meeting were read and confirmed.

Communications from J. Simpson and T. Beatty, applying for the house at present occupied by the Chief Constable, as a tavern, were read and referred to committee on Public Property.

A Communication from Mrs. Haultain, asking the Counsel for a further sum in aid of the Ladies Relief Society, was read and received.

A communication was received from Mr. John Kennedy asking to be appointed Assessor for the Town for the present year.

A Return from the Clerk, of the Law and Chancery expenses paid during the years 1859, '60, '61, and '62, was ordered to be laid on the table.

Several accounts were received and handed to committee on Finance.

A petition from the Trustees of the Roman Catholic Separate School, asking the Council to remit the Taxes paid by certain Catholics to the Union School, in consequence of their neglecting to notify the Clerk, was read and referred to the Committee on Finance.

A petition from Wm. Eastland and 20 other merchants, praying the Council to adopt some means to amend the practice of sundry persons who bring in goods and selling them by auction under the income of others, was read and referred to the Finance Committee.

On motion of Mr. Toole, and seconded by Mr. Fry, Messrs. Lundy, Lawson, Ryan and Carlile were appointed a fire committee for the present year, with instructions to consider and report thereon at the next meeting of this Council.—Carried.

Mr. Burnham's motion which was submitted at the last meeting of the Council came up now in order, and was read when it was moved by Mr. Ormbad, and seconded by Mr. Carlile,—That the resolution before the Council be not now adopted, but that a committee be appointed to enquire fully into the real position of the Town in its relation to the Railroad and its Lessees; such Committee to be empowered to take further advice if they shall consider it necessary, and to report at the next meeting of the Council, or as soon after as possible; the Committee to consist of the following: Messrs. Nicholls, Lawson, Dickson, Ryan and the mover.

In amendment, it was moved by Mr. Burnham and seconded by Mr. Lundy,—That the further consideration of the resolution now before the Council be adjourned to the next meeting of the Council.

The amendment was carried.

Messrs. Nicholls, Cluxton, Lawson and Ryan were appointed to receive applications for office for the present year.

Moved by Mr. Toole, seconded by Mr. Nicholls,—That Messrs. R. Stevenson and W. Coulter be allowed to use the street opposite their building site, but not to occupy more than one-third of the width of the street, nor obstruct the side walk.—Carried.

The Fire Committee were instructed to procure 100 feet of hose for the Fire Co.

The Council then adjourned for 2 weeks.

☞ The Council of the Village of Ashburnham met, pursuant to adjournment, on the 2nd instant.

Present—R. D. Roger, Reeve, John Ludgate, H. Bennett, H. T. Strickland and H. Calcutt.

The Auditor's Report was received and adopted.

On motion of H. Calcutt the Reeve was directed to give ten dollars to the "Ladies' Benevolent Society," for the aid of the poor of Ashburnham.

D. McDonald, Esq., was appointed Inspector of Licenses for the ensuing year.

The Clerk was directed to notify those occupying the Market-Stalls, and having the Weigh-Scales in charge, to pay forthwith the arrears of rents.

The Council adjourned, to meet on the first Monday of March, at 7 o'clock p. m.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

The Council of the County of Peterboro met in half-yearly Session on Tuesday the 27th ult. Present:

P. M. Grover, Reeve of Asphodel.
Richard Birdsall, Deputy Reeve of Asphodel.
Peter Pearce, Reeve of Belmont & Methven.
Francis Crow, Reeve of Dummer and Burleigh.
George Clark, Reeve of Douro.
Evans Ingram, Reeve of Otonabee.
Andrew Nelson, Deputy Reeve of Otonabee.
R. D. Rodgers, Reeve of Ashburnham.
George Lickie, Reeve of Monaghan.
John Walton, Reeve of Smith & Harvey.
John Galvin, Deputy Reeve of do.
William Gainer, Reeve of Minden & Stanhope.
Cornelius C. Sullivan, Reeve of Enniskillen.
Robert Ritchie, Reeve of Snowden.
Thos. Probert, Reeve of Galway.

The Clerk called the Council to order, and proceeded to the appointment of Warden for the present year.

Moved by Mr. Crow and seconded by Mr. Clark,—That Mr. Pearce be Warden for the present year.

It was moved in amendment by Mr. Walton, and seconded by Mr. Galvin,—That Mr. Ingram be Warden for the current year.

It was further moved in amendment by Mr. Birdsall, and seconded by Mr. Rogers,—That Mr. Grover be Warden for the current year. The vote was taken on all three, the last amendment being put first, the next amendment to the last next, and then the first, or motion, and the votes stood as follows:—For Mr. Grover two votes; for Mr. Ingram four votes, and for Mr. Pearce five votes; before the election was declared Mr. Birdsall withdrew his motion. The Clerk then declared Mr. Pearce elected.

The Warden elect took the chair, having first subscribed to the qualification of office.

The minutes of the last day of the last session were read and approved.

A special committee to draft the several standing committees for the current year was appointed.

James Foley Esq., was appointed one of the County Auditors for the current year.

The Warden appointed John J. Hall, Esq. the other auditor.

After the introduction of a By-law by Mr. Crow, the Council adjourned.

On Wednesday the Council met, all the members being present.

The committee to report the standing committees for the year submitted their report, which was duly adopted.

A petition to parliament on the subject of the Jury Law, emanating from the County of Lambton, was submitted, as was also a circular from the Warden of Huron and Bruce, asking the Council to petition Parliament on the subject of taxation of unpatented lands; and a form of petition from Northumberland and Durham asking Parliament to allow larger remuneration to County Councillors for attending to their onerous duties.

A motion ordering the planking of the Bridge at Hastings was passed.

A Memorial to the Council of the County of Hastings on the subject of opening a direct line of road from Peterborough to Belleville, was adopted.

Several Plans on the subject of improvements on the County Jail, were referred to Committee on County Property.

Messrs. John Walton and Andrew Tully were appointed Commissioners to complete the Road from Peterborough to Best's, instead of Messrs. Dean & Stevenson.

Some County Road returns of boundaries were referred to Standing Committee on Roads and Bridges.

The Council then adjourned.

Mr. John Hunter, has also consented to become Agent for the Examiner at Burnt River, for which they will accept our thanks.

Peterboro' Curling Club.

The Married men and Bachelors of this club on Thursday last, had a rousing exciting and interesting game on their Rink in Ashburnham, which finally resulted in favor of the Bachelors after a four hours contest.

We may mention en passant that all, or nearly all, the Bachelors are from Peterborough.

To-night the annual dinner of Beef and Greens is to be played for. In our next issue we will chronicle the result.

We regret to learn that a very serious fire occurred in Sarnia last Friday morning, destroying among other places the office of the "British Canadian". We sympathize with our confrere in this sad calamity. We learn there was no insurance on the office—an omission falling unusually heavy at the present dull time. We trust the good and true men of Lambton will assist Mr. Wood to start afresh, in circulating the principles for which the County is noted for through the Province.

DRAMATIC PERFORMANCE.—The Peterboro' Amateur Dramatic Club will give their next Entertainment on Tuesday evening, February 17, 1863, in the Town Hall.

☞ The Summary Account of the Municipality of Dummer and Burleigh appears again this week, as there has been a correction made in some of the figures.

Continuation of the letter to Mr. Dunn:

DEAR SIR,—Wherein then may you ask is our Northern Army gainers by having higher endowments? In this, that we fight for a glorious principle of freedom, which we consider implanted in every human heart, and feel the sustaining power of an arm above us. This principle will endure with us, and I am willing to be one of the present generation to spend the flower of my manhood in the struggle for its supremacy. Not only that, but I am hopeful that, if be, from our dead ashes strewn broad east o'er the Southern plains a higher type of civilization shall here arise; and Phœnix-like, a more glorious Union burst upon the eyes of the nations. There have been noble men who have contended long and desperately for a cause which they considered good, and at last had their eyes open to see its utter falsity; when they immediately wheeled into line and battled for the right. So here we expect that the day will come when many eyes will be opened and justice reveal herself to many who now look at the perverted similitude of her form. The soldier of the Union feels that he is fighting the battles of humanity, and that upon his exertions depends the question whether this Continent to a great extent shall retrograde several ages, or advance at once with all its accumulated experience to the high vantage ground which it may assume.

We of the North realized what an important effect the sympathies of the European nations would have upon our efforts, and especially England; therefore we early marked the tone of her Ministry, and that of her leading journals, both at home and in Canada. We were sorry to see on on the part of many journals, simply one of indifference to the result. Many claimed that it was simply a question of protective and non-protective Tariff, and as such English subject could have no feeling against the South. It is true, I am glad to state, that a goodly number of influential journals has from the very first strongly upheld our cause as that of right.

Whatever might have been said at the commencement of this war, it is undoubtedly true now that the great question is the Emancipation of the Blacks, and through this the preservation of the Union. Thus although ambitious men sought to set up a system of Government that should rivet more firmly the chains of the slave, and place the foot of the aristocrat squarer on the neck of the working man; the schemes bid fair to come to naught, through the agency of an over-ruling Providence.

Although the emancipating of the slaves is but an incident of the war to us, and and however desirable it might have been, would not have occurred through any interference on our part in times of peace, yet it may have been God's plan from the beginning.

We have ever believed that the great mass of British hearts beat in unison with our own, but we did fear that the "ravings of the hirelings" in the newspaper line would have an influence upon many, and lead them to believe that the hearts of the American people were set against them.

Never did we need sympathy more, and for this very reason were very sensitive of its lack. It cannot be denied that there are some bitter things said about England and her course at this day, but they are called out by such articles as the London Times produces. The American people cannot brook the idea of intervention on the part of any power, and they have had their spirits harassed and rendered feverish by the constant threats of it that come from such journals. If it is petulence on our part, induced by the fiery trials through which we have have trod, it surely may be excused. If we have blamed the English Government in times past for that of which it was not guilty, then are we to be pitied, for suffering has made us mad. There is a strong current of sympathy for the sufferings of our British brothers still flowing out regardless of Oceanic distance, and my fervent hope is that it will flood the land still more.

This is already so long that I have no space to speak of the operations of our army in North Caroline. Our forces have been very successful here, and my Battery has has had an opportunity to try its mettle.

My brother is still at Baltimore; his regiment being stationed at Fort Federal Hill. I will remember you to him. In my next I will endeavor to speak of the movements in this department. You may use this as you choose. Give my regards to your wife and family, and allow me to bear from you soon.

Yours truly,
THOMAS LOW,
Lieut. 23rd N. Y. Bat.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Peterboro, 4th Feb., 1863.

MR. EDITOR,—I have to beg you to grant me a word of explanation as to the opening of the New Presbyterian Church at Lakefield. Your remarks about the choir would lead to the impression that no notice had been taken of their efficient services. Now the fact is, that I—identifying myself with the congregation—did, at the same time as I thanked the chairman and the speakers, express warm thanks also to the choir, while the congregation gave such a response as plainly told their hearty concurrence with the sentiments I uttered.

I remain, Sir,
Yours truly,
JOHN M. ROGER.

An Important Investigation.

The Quebec correspondent of a Western journal writes, under date 7th January, as follows:—

"There is a report in circulation that it is the intention of the Attorney General to appoint a legal Commissioner to inquire into the respective emoluments of Sheriffs and Registrars, Clerks of the Peace, and Division Court Clerks, and all other officers, whose salaries are paid by fees. The Commission, it is understood, will also inquire into the returns of all officers connected with the administration of justice in Upper Canada, who collect fees for the Crown, with a view to ascertain the correctness of their accounts. This investigation will include all Deputy Registrars and Masters in Chancery who have been receiving fees on business done before them, upon which a large amount has been paid to them belonging to the Fee Fund, and no return made. It is the intention of the Attorney General to bring every one of these defaulting officials before the public tribunals and compel them to pay up. There is scarcely a Deputy Registrar and Master in Chancery in the Province who has returned to the Crown the fees collected by them in their official capacity. Some of them not far from you have never made a return. The Government intend to take these appointments into their hands and compel each of them to give security."

Barnum's Last Spoliation.

The New York correspondent of the Philadelphia Press says the fashionable event of the season is unquestionably the affiancing of Tom Thumb and his Lilliputian bride. Only a city possessing Barnum can appreciate the stir such an elaborate burlesque is capable of creating; for there can be no doubt that it is all the work of the great showman, and one of those immense sensations which he so inimitably works up, for his own great profit, about once in every five years. It is already telling manifestly at his museum, where the throng to see the little bride-to-be never abates from ten o'clock in the morning until the same hour at night. By the first half of his dwarf enterprise, Mr. Barnum can hardly fail to clear at least one hundred thousand dollars, and when it comes to exhibiting General Tom Thumb and his bride as a married pair, the coup d'argent will be complete. Last evening the happy Thumb and his intended, escorted by the equally abbreviated Commodore Nutt, were guests at the princely Fifth avenue residence of Mrs. Augustus Belmont. Miss Warren's whole outfit of bridal apparel, in miniature the entire mystery of the feminine wardrobe, ostentatiously displayed in one of the great windows of Lord & Taylor's establishment, on Broadway, attracts constant crowds of observers; her bridal jewelry is also a great attraction at Ball, Black & Co.'s and a Large Eastern picture, intended for presentation to the happy pair, finds profitable exhibition in another locality. The General was greatly disgusted yesterday to learn that Trinity Chapel could not be the scene of his marriage, as the admission of a congregation by tickets, and under the restriction of full dress, is directly against the rules of the Episcopal Church. Another sanctuary, however, will be at once selected and the ceremony will be performed with all possible pomp. Upon leaving the church, the wedding party will adjourn to the Metropolitan Hotel, the whole lower or first floor of which is to be adapted to the use of a grand reception. The affair is the talk of the whole town, ridiculous as it must appear to outsiders and seems to be a topic fraught with intense enjoyment for the old as well as the young. Barnum is fairly eclipsing himself, and can afford to be proud of this last success in the art of "money making."

Circulation of the Globe.

The circulation of the Globe in Canada, which has a population of two millions and a half, is over for millions, and is much greater than that of any other newspaper in the world (or any other world) in proportion to the population, among which it circulates. The Globe circulates 87 more in proportion to population than the N. Y. Tribune.

As an advertising journal, therefore, in proportion to population the Globe stands in pro to pop.

It also circulates extensively in the planet Jupiter, and merchants having business there will find it to their interest to advertise in the Globe. To those who doubt this, we may say that it is an established astronomical fact that the Globe revolves around the sun once a year, and consequently must circulate freely among the planets. This is to be understood as pro to pop.—Hamilton Times.

Canada in 1863.

The Illustrated London News has an excellent article under the above heading, from which we make the following extract:—

"Canada is working out the great problem of self-government under conditions specially favorable, and such as can hardly be equalled elsewhere. She will continue to attract the attention of the political philosopher, who is aware that her ship of State is freighted with some of the highest aspirations of the human race. May these aspirations never be shipwrecked, until at least another barque as fair and solid, be ready to receive her precious cargo!

Happy in the feast at which there is no skeleton! Canada is terrestrial, and already feels the pressure of a serious domestic difficulty. The time may come when she may ask for a return of that sympathy she has on several occasions, and at no time more than at present lavished on ourselves. The question of representation by population excites an antagonism between Upper and Lower Canada which threatens or may at any moment threaten, the very existence of the present Legislature Union of the two provinces, and renders the official tenure of every Canadian Ministry unstable and precarious. The question is in abeyance for the present, owing to the spell which the American war exercises over all minds; but it will burst forth with redoubled strength the moment that the result of that great contest becomes visible.

SIGNS OF A SEVERE WINTER.—In a recent issue we alluded to the fact of the appearance of flocks of arctic birds along the shores of the St. Lawrence below Quebec, and to the popular belief that they might be looked upon as indications of very severe weather. There are several who think otherwise, as appears by the following remarks of the Three Rivers Inquirer. Our contemporary, after quoting our paragraph, says:—"On the other hand, it is said by those who ought to know, that it is mild weather and rain in the north which causes these migrations. That such weather in the far north has the effect of coating the branches of the trees with a glare ice which prevents the birds from feeding on the buds and berries, consequently they are forced to seek food elsewhere."—Quebec Chronicle.

A Noble Boy.

The spirit that is excellent would tried to devotion to principle always commands the esteem of good men.

The person who is willing to be made the butt of ridicule rather than yield to that which he believes to be wrong is worthy of all praise.

A little drummer boy in one of our regiments, who had become a great favorite with many of the officers by his unremitting good conduct, happened on one occasion to be in the officers' tent, when the hone of the soldier's life was placed around. A captain handed a glass to the little fellow, but he refused it, saying, "I am a cadet of temperance, and do not taste strong drink."

"But you must take some now. I insist on it. You belong to our mess to-day, and cannot refuse."

Still the boy stood firm on the rock of total abstinence, and held fast to his integrity.

The captain, turning to the major, said, "H—— is afraid to drink; he will never make a soldier."

"Show us this!" said the major playfully; and then assuming another tone, added, "I command you to take a drink, and you know it is death to disobey orders."

The little hero, raising his young form to its height, and fixing his clear blue eyes, lit up with unusual brilliancy, on the face of the officer, said,—

"Sir, my father died a drunkard; and when I entered the army I promised my dear mother on my bended knees that, by the help of God, I would not taste a drop of rum, and I mean to keep my promise. I am sorry to disobey your orders, sir; but I would rather suffer than disgrace my mother and break my temperance pledge."

That major and his associates are now in the army, but the little drummer boy is a wounded sufferer in the hospital at West Philadelphia.—Sunday School Times.

Mail Robberies.

From the Hamilton Times.

It seems that, of late, there has been a considerable amount of tampering with the American mails for Canada. The Post Office officials have, for some time back, been endeavoring to find out where the tampering has taken place; but, until last Saturday, nothing of any moment was discovered to arouse anything more than a suspicion as to the locality. On Saturday morning, some twenty or thirty letters were discovered on Little Market Street, addressed to parties in Toronto and neighborhood, from New York. This fact fastened suspicion upon the officials at the Railway who have charge of the mails passing during the night. The Post Office Inspectors at Toronto and London, and Post Office officials here, endeavored in their own way to get such evidence as would warrant the arrest of any person or persons on suspicion, but failed. The Postmaster General, hearing of the above facts, felt it to be his duty, for the protection of the public, to hold an investigation himself, and invite the Hon. Wm. McDougall and our County Attorney, Mr. Freeman to assist him.—The investigation took place yesterday, at the Royal Hotel, but to the character of the evidence, the ends of justice prevent us referring at present. One fact was, however, discovered not very creditable to certain officials, and that is, that there has been no arrangement existing whereby the mails arriving in the middle of the night are taken charge of by a responsible person. Such gross neglect deserves, and doubtless will receive, the strongest censure from Government. Mr. Foley and Mr. McDougall show, by the trouble they have taken with this case, that they have the interests of the public at heart.

Three "Niggers" Serenade the Ex-Premier.

M. Cartier, the ex-Premier, is a funny little man, and sometimes travels. He visited the Queen at "Windsor," and came home prouder than he went. His latest adventures were at Washington, whither he recently went under very suspicious circumstances. A few days ago we were startled by the telegraphic announcement that he was serenaded at the Federal capital by ten thousand people. The news almost struck us mute with astonishment. That there were 10,000 lunatics in Washington we could very well believe, but how they came to glorify Mr. Cartier passed our comprehension. But the mystery is cleared up. When the truth is known, M. Cartier was never serenaded at all! He was met at the station, not by ten thousand citizens, nor by ten hundred, nor by ten. He was received by three negro servants, and conducted to the residence of Lord Lyons. Instead of there being any enthusiasm among the people, nobody knew who he was, or cared. It has also been ascertained that he sent the telegram himself announcing his reception and magnifying three contrabands into ten thousand citizens. This is a rich joke, and we hope M. Cartier will never want a serenade if three "niggers" will satisfy him.

TOBACCO A FOE TO MATRIMONY.—One of our exchanges inquires, with much alarm, "how is it that there are so many nice young girls in our cities unmarried and likely to remain so?" Our answer is comprised in one word—Tobacco. In old times when you could approach a young man within whispering distance without being nauseated by his breath, he used—when his day's work was over—to spend his evening with some good girl or girls either around the family hearth, or in pleasant walks, or at some innocent place of amusement. The young man of the present day takes his solitary pipe and puffs away all his vitality, till he is as stupid as an oyster, and then goes to some saloon to quench the thirst created by smoking; and sheds crocodile tears every time his stockings are out at the toes "that the girls now-a-days are too extravagant, a fellow can't afford to get married." Nine young men out of ten deliberately give up respectable female society to indulge the solitary, enervating habit of smoking, until their broken down constitutions clamor for careful nursing; then they coolly ask some nice young girl to exchange her health, strength, beauty and unimpaired intellect for their sallow face, tainted blood and breath, and irritable temper, and mental imbecility. Women may well hate smoking and smokers. We have known the most gentle and refined men to grow harsh in temper and unchivalrous in their personal habits under the thraldom of a tyranny which they had not love nor respect enough for women to break through.—American Paper.

—The Kingston Whig says that it is almost certain that next spring a large body of Germans will occupy the sixty thousand acres of land in the back Townships of Frontenac, which they bought through their agent, Mr. Sinn, last summer. The Kingston people talk about running a road thro' to the new settlement, so as to secure the trade which such a large influx of customers may be expected to bring.

LOSS OF A SCOTCH STEAMER, WITH THE CHRISTY MINSTRELS ON BOARD.—The steamer Wallachian, built in 1856, for Messrs. Hall, Aberdeenshire, and employed in the mail service between Cape Town and Natal, struck on Sunday reef on the night of the 13th of October, and all attempts to get her off proved ineffectual. The whole of the valuable cargo was lost. The Christy Minstrels were among the passengers, and lost all their instruments and dresses, and Joe Brown, the dancer, losing, besides his prize belt, a considerable sum of money. There were on board two clergymen of the Dutch Reformed Church, on their way to Cape Town to attend the synod.

STARTLING FACTS RESPECTING THE AMERICAN ARMY.—The N.Y. World says that while the Republican authorities at Washington are amusing themselves with the childish idea that they can put down the rebellion by proclamation, with their habitual want of foresight, do they not realize that a few months hence half the army will go out of service. The army is rapidly wasting away by the severe loses of the winter campaign; the three hundred thousand nine months men called for last August, and the regiments from several States who originally enlisted for two years, will be mustered out of service in the beginning of June; and yet not a finger is raised at Washington, and up to recently not a thought taken, as to how we are to continue the war when nearly half the army return to their homes.

—Mr. Hall, the Arctic explorer, is making active preparations for the renewal of his explorations next spring. After clearing up the many mysteries still hanging over the expedition of Sir John Franklin, this daring navigator and explorer of the "thrice ribbed ice seas" of the North, purposes to make his third voyage an attempt to reach the North axis of our globe, which he feels confident he can do by using his Esquimaux friends and acquaintances of the west side of Davis' Straits as his auxiliaries. —Globe.

THE IRISH BRIGADE.—The N. Y. Herald says that the gallant Irish Brigade of General Meagher, which went into the late action at Fredericksburg with five regiments, left so many hundred of its dead in front of the enemy's works—with the sprig of evergreen in their hats to mark the command they belonged to—that at the present it numbers less than seven hundred men, of whom three hundred represent all that remains of four regiments out of the five, and only two field officers living or unhurt.

RELIEF IN TEN MINUTES.

BRYAN'S

PULMONIC WAFERS.

The most certain and speedy remedy ever discovered for all Diseases of the Chest and Lungs, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Consumption, Bronchitis, Influenza, Hoarseness, Difficult breathing, Sore throat &c., &c., &c.

THESE WAFERS give the most instantaneous and perfect relief and when persevered with according to directions, never fail to effect a rapid and lasting cure. Thousands have been restored to perfect health who have tried other means in vain. To all classes and all constitutions they are equally a blessing and a cure—none need despair, no matter how long the disease may have existed, or however severe it may be, provided the organic structure of the vital organs is not hopelessly decayed. Every one afflicted should give them an impartial trial.

To Vocalists and Public Speakers, these Wafers are peculiarly valuable; they will in one day remove the most severe occasional hoarseness; and their regular use for a few days will, at all times, increase the power and flexibility of the voice, greatly improving its tone, compass and clearness, for which purpose they are regularly used by many professional vocalists

EMPLOYMENT.

THE Undersigned has, for several years past, been engaged in a business, which has yielded him at the rate of three thousand dollars per annum, and is now willing to teach it to others. The business is of a highly useful and general character, adapted both to cities and villages, and one that any person of ordinary capacity, young or old, male or female, can acquire with a few hours' practice, and by which they can secure a very handsome income. Several young ladies who have received instructions from me, both in New York State and Pennsylvania, are earning upwards of $15 per week by it, and there is no reason why any one else cannot do the same. Invalids, even, can do well by it, as it is no peddling affair, but a business that is perfectly respectable. Gentleman and ladies of leisure who would like to learn the business for their own amusement or pleasure, will find the practice of it a pleasant pastime, and one that they will take great interest in. On receipt of $1, I will send printed instructions by which any person can readily acquire the art, and these instructions will also contain every particular relative to the carrying it on so that it will be highly profitable. The purchaser of the "printed Instructions" will also be authorised to teach it to others; and I have sometimes received as high as $200, for teaching it personally to a single individual. I would state further that $2.50 or $3 will buy everything that is necessary to commence the business with, and the articles can be got almost anywhere, in city or country, or if preferred, I can furnish them. Peterborough, December 9th, 1862. 50

$10,000 WORTH OF GROCERIES.
FOR SALE.

THE subscriber has opened a new store in the building lately occupied by R. D. McDougall, where he offers for sale a large and well selected assortment of GROCERIES, consisting in part of
SUGARS OF ALL KINDS.
Teas, Coffee, Spice, Rice, Tobacco,
COAL OIL LAMPS,
OF THE MOST IMPROVED KINDS,
COAL OIL, AMERICAN STONE WARE,
OF EVERY VARIETY,
And other articles too numerous to mention.

Well knowing (after an experience of twenty years in the trade) that the "nimble sixpence is better than the slow shilling," he will sell for small profits, having bought his stock with CASH he is confident that he can sell goods for ready pay cheaper than any other merchant in Peterboro'. As the goods offered for sale by the undersigned are all paid for, he does not confine himself to selling them "cheap for cash only," but will cheerfully exchange them for all kinds of country produce, at cash prices. The subscriber does not attempt to enumerate all the articles which he offers for sale,

THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE, 1863.

THE New-York Tribune, first issued in 1841, now in its twenty-second year, has obtained both a larger and more widely diffused circulation than any other newspaper ever published in America. Though it has suffered, in common with other journals, from the commercial embarrassments of the last two years, the unwavering support of hundreds of thousands of its patrons to serve in the War of the Union, its circulation on the 6th of December, 1862, is as follows:

DAILY	50,125
Semi-Weekly	17,500
Weekly	148,000
Aggregate	215,625

Preeminently a journal of News and of Literature The Tribune has political convictions, which are well characterized by the single word Republican. It is Republican as to slavery and freedom to the great truth that "God has made of one blood all nations of men"—Republican in its assertion of the equal and inalienable rights of all men to "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness"—Republican in its steadfast, earnest, defiant hostility to every scheme and effort of the Slave Power, from the Annexation of Texas to the great Rebellion, to grasp the empire of the New World and wield the resources of our country for its own aggrandizement—Republican in its appeals alike to the aristocrats and despots of the Old World, who fondly hail in the perils and calamities suddenly thrust upon us by the Abettors of Secession, further proof and ruin of the Model Republic—Republican in its hope and faith that its fathers did not "frame better than they knew" when they made it equally the overthrow of its plotters, and the firm establishment of equal rights and equal laws throughout the whole extent of our country, wherein Liberty and Union shall indeed be one and inseparable.

The Tribune will continue to claim the title of the best newspaper in the world, as to Literature, Telegraphic, and Agricultural Information, and to deserve the high ranking to which its original and long-established character for fearless independence and thoroughness in all departments of journalism entitles it. Its columns are mainly devoted to the success of the War for the Union. Its special correspondents in any company every considera le army and report every important incident of that great struggle which we trust is soon to result in the signal and complete triumph of the National arms and in the restoration of Peace and Thrift to our bleeding country. We believe that no otherwise can a fuller or more accurate view of the progress and character of this momentous conflict be obtained than through the regular perusal of our columns. And we earnestly solicit the cooperation of all friends of the National cause, which we regard and uphold as the Cause of Universal Humanity, to aid us in extending its circulation.

OF LAND IN THE

COUNTIES OF PETERBORO & VICTORIA

– consisting of parts of the

Townships of DYSART, DUDLEY, LONSDALE, HARCOURT, HARBURN, BRUTON, HAVELOCK, &c, &c.

The following are some, among many other inducements it holds out to parties about to choose to take up lands in the above Townships:

Ten per cent of the purchase money paid to Government by the Company for the lands will be expended in constructing really good roads: these roads will intersect the Government Roads; namely, the Belmont, Victoria and Peterboro' Roads, at convenient points, and will converge to various Town plots which the Company have in view to bring in very favorable selected sites. The Town Plots will, it is anticipated,—the whole of them being connected by good roads (for the construction of which the country affords excellent facilities)—become each the centre of a new and flourishing settlement; private enterprise in establishing Stores, Mills &c., will here soon find its reward, and the several towns and townships being as it were knit together by good roads, will derive from that fact great advantages and mutual support.

In addition, the watchful supervision of the Company over every part of their lands will greatly tend to advance the interests of this district, which, being in the middle of Upper Canada, possessing a fertile soil, and a climate unsurpassed in its healthful effects upon the human frame, offers superior attractions, and all the elements of rapid progress and permanent prosperity.

ANNUAL MEETING

AND

INVESTIGATION REPORT - - DECLARATION OF BONUS.

THE twenty-sixth annual Meeting of this Company was held within the Royal Hotel, Aberdeen on Friday, the 19th April.

A standee Stronach, Esq., of Drumallan, Chairman of the Ordinary Directors, in the Chair.

There were submitted to the meeting—

1.—Report by the Directors, which, on the motion of the Chairman, was cordially and unanimously approved of and adopted.

2.—The Balance Sheet for the past year, with detailed statements relative thereto, duly certified as correct, in terms of the Act of Incorporation, by the Chairman and Manager, and also by the Auditor.

There was also laid on the Table the various Valuation Papers in connection with the Quinquennial Investigation into the state of the Company's affairs, as at 31st January, 1862.

The following particulars derived from the Balance Sheet and Statements aforementioned, show the result of the operations of the Company for the past year:—

Amount proposed for Life Assurance during the year, contained in 1489 Proposal	£454,235 0 0
Amount of Proposals accepted, and for which 981 Policies were issued	308,900 0 0
ANNUAL PREMIUMS on said Policies	11,170 1 0
CLAIMS BY DEATH, including BONUSES on PARTICIPATING POLICIES, and after deducting Sums reinsured from other Offices under guarantee	£12,000 1 0
TOTAL SUM Assured under 4,759 current LIFE POLICIES	1,565,95 0 0
TOTAL ACCUMULATED FUNDS	375,808 3 2
TOTAL ANNUAL REVENUE	21,186 4 2

With reference to the recent investigation into the state of the Company's affairs, as at 31st January last, the Report states that both the principles of valuation and the details thereof, had been submitted to James John Downie, Esq., Actuary to the Economic Life Office in London, a gentleman well known as one of the highest authorities on such subjects in the kingdom, and had received his entire approval, as having been made on just and sound principles, and is accurately carried out as certified in his report to the Directors, which formed part of the Appendix to their Report. The step the Directors considered could not fail to give the utmost confidence—both to the shareholders and the Policyholders—in the soundness and correctness of the valuation.

During the Quinquennial period, the claims by death, including the bonus additions which had been paid, and which had been confidently under the number that might have been expected from the Mortality Tables on which the Office rates are based, amounting to £59,975 6s 6d.

In valuing the Policies, each has been separately calculated, and sent premiums had only been used, thus leaving a surplus of annual revenue of £11,437 15s 7d, to meet future expenses and to form a source of profit for next investigation. The total amount of claims by death paid since the commencement of the Company, was £217,831 4s.

The Securities held by the Company were in a satisfactory position, and had been recently carefully scrutinized in detail by the Directors.

In conclusion, the Directors congratulated both the Proprietors and the Assured on the high position which the Company now occupied in the estimation of the public, and on the encouraging prospect of its business operations for the future.

DECLARATION OF BONUS.

From the profits realized on the Life business, a retrospective Bonus of £1 7s 6d per rent per annum for the Quinquennial period was declared, on the sums originally assured under all Participating Policies, increased by the previous additions thereto; also a further prospective Bonus of £1 per cent per annum, on the amount of the Policies with said Bonuses, on all such of said Policies as may become claims by Death previously to the 31st January, 1867.

It will be observed, that this rate of Bonus is equivalent in the case of our older Policies to £1 14s per cent per annum on the original sum assured; that the total additions to the sum assured, now vest it, are equal to 33 per cent on the sum assured: and that as the younger ages the additions amount to upwards of 70 per cent of the premiums paid.

Statement showing the Progress of the Company's Business during the Quinquennial Period, ending 31st January, 1862:

Year ending 31st January.	Amounts proposed for Assurance.	Amount of New Policies Issued.	No. of New Policies Issued.	New Annual Premiums.	Total Revenue in each year.	Accumulated Funds.
1858	£769,810	£136,170	291	£3,979 18 0	£60,706 11 10	£346,606 0 2
1859	998,395	169,771	340	5,491 1 6	61,701 5 3	397,444 3 4
1860	849,130	203,250	404	6,35 19 7	71,291 6 3	462,098 3 10
1861	849,078	290,746	626	7,96 17 11	85,890 7 5	534,606 11 0
1862	851,825	308,900	981	11,170 1 0	95,756 4 2	575,808 3 2
Totals	£4,998,278	£1,218,837	3638	£39,631 14 6	£1,437,386 18 0

Votes of thanks were passed to the Directors and Office-bearers of the Company at Head-Offices and Branches, and after a very hearty vote of thanks to the Chairman for his conduct in the Chair, the meeting was dissolved.

ILLUSTRATED

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN!

The Best Mechanical Paper in the World.

EIGHTEENTH YEAR.

VOLUME VIII—NEW SERIES.

A NEW VOLUME of this popular Journal commences on the first of January. It is published weekly, and every number contains sixteen pages of useful information, and from five to five original engravings of new inventions and discoveries, all of which are prepared expressly for its columns.

TO THE MECHANIC & MANUFACTURER

No person engaged in any of the manufacturing pursuits should think of "doing without" the Scientific American. It costs but six cents per week, every number contains from six to ten engravings of new machines and inventions, which cannot be found in any other publication

TO THE INVENTOR.

The Scientific American is indispensable to every inventor, as it not only contains illustrated descriptions of nearly all the best inventions as they come out, but each number contains an Official List of the Claims of all the Patents issued from the United States Patent Office during the week previous; thus giving a correct history of the progress of invention in this country. We are also receiving, every week the best scientific journals of Great Britain, France and other countries, thereby placing in our possession all that is paralleling in mechanical science and art in these old countries. We continue to publish, from week to week, extracts from these journals whatever we may deem of interest to our readers.

A pamphlet of instructions as to the best mode of obtaining Letters Patent on new inventions is furnished free on application.

Messrs. Munn & Co. have acted as Patent Solicitors for more than seventeen years, in connection with the publication of the Scientific American, and they refer to 20,000 patentees for whom they have done business.

No charge is made for examining sketches and models of new inventions and for advising inventors as to their patentability.

CHEMISTS, ARCHITECTS, MILLWRIGHTS & FARMERS

The Scientific American will be found a most useful journal to them. All the new discoveries in the science of chemistry are given in its columns, and the interest of the architect and carpenter are not overlooked. He also will find interesting and discovering appertaining to these pursuits being published from week to week. Useful and practical information pertaining to the interests of millwrights and millowners will be found in the Scientific American, which information they can not possibly obtain from any other source. Subscribers who think they are interested will be found discussed in the Scientific American; most of the improvements in agricultural implements being illustrated in its columns.

TERMS.—To mail subscribers: Three Dollars a year, or One Dollar for four months—the volumes commence on the first of January and July. Specimen copies will be sent gratis to any part of the country.

Western and Canadian money or Post-office stamps taken at par for subscriptions. Canadian subscribers will please to remit twenty-five cents extra on each year's subscription to prepay postage.

Poetry.

Annabel Lee.

BY EDGAR ALLAN POE.

It was many and many a year ago,
In a kingdom by the sea,
That a maiden there lived whom you may know
By the name of Annabel Lee,
And this maiden she lived with no other thought
Than to love and be loved by me.

I was a child and she was a child,
In this kingdom by the sea.
But we loved with a love that was more than love—
I and my Annabel Lee—
With a love that the wing'd seraphs of heaven
Coveted—her and me.

And this was the reason that long ago,
In this kingdom by the sea,
A wind blew out a cloud, chilling
My beautiful Annabel Lee;
So that her high-born kinsman came,
And bore her away from me,
To shut her up in a sepulchre
In this kingdom by the sea.

The angels, not half so happy in heaven,
Went envying her and me—
Yes! that was the reason (as all men know
In this kingdom by the sea)
That the wind came out of the cloud by night,
Chilling and killing my Annabel Lee.

But our love was stronger by far than the love
Of those who were older than we—
Of many far wiser than we—
And neither the powers on earth above,
Nor the demons down under the sea,
Can ever dissever my soul from the soul
Of the beautiful Annabel Lee.

For the moon never beams without bringing me dreams
Of the beautiful Annabel Lee;
And the stars never rise but I feel the bright eyes
Of the beautiful Annabel Lee;
And so all the night-tide, I lie down by the side
Of the beautiful Annabel Lee;
And so all the night-tide, I sit down by the side
Of my darling—my darling—my life and bride,
In the sepulchre there by the sea,
In her tomb by the sounding sea.

Miscellaneous.

A True Story.

A correspondent of the Chicago Tribune gives the following statement:—

"A lady of Bridgport, Conn., married a citizen of Georgia some twenty odd years ago, and accompanied him to his home in that State. He was a planter. Not succeeding there to his mind, he removed to Arkansas and bought land and negroes and resumed business as a planter. He had but fairly started in business when he sickened of fever and died. His estate, consisting of thirty negroes and a plantation, the size of which my informant did not state, was involved in debt to the amount of ten thousand dollars. The widow judged it best to sell a portion of the land and negroes to pay the debt, but the foreman on the estate, himself a negro and a slave, advised her to another course.

"I wouldn't do dat, Missus," said he "de boys won't like it to go down Souf, and if Missus give us the chance, we'll raise a big crop and pay off debt, and have it all clear in two or three years." He informed "Missus" that he had "talked to the boys 'bout it, and dey all say dey stick by and work off de debt, if Missus please not sell 'em. She followed the counsel of this humane and heroic negro, and "de boys" worked with a will. They raised a splendid crop of cotton, the entire labor being done, even to the sale of cotton and the delivery of the money into the hand of the mistress—without the advice, help or interference of any white man. The debt was reduced six thousand dollars the first year. A brother of the lady, an invalid clergyman of Connecticut, spent the first winter after the planter's decease on the plantation,—Grateful, as any man would be, to these ignorant but faithful kind-hearted fellows, for their generous devotion to his sister's interests, he improved his leisure time in teaching the son of the foreman and a few others of the negroes, and before spring some of them could not only read tolerably well, but could write a legible hand.

"Spring came, and the lady with her children accompanied her brother to Connecticut, and there spent the summer, leaving her negroes to make a second crop under the leadership and management of her negro foreman, without a white man on the premises. She held a regular correspondence with the foreman through the educated but dusky fingers of his son, and was kept well informed of the state of things on the plantation. Late in the autumn she returned, accompanied now by a suitor who spent the winter with her, and followed up the work of her brother in the educational line, without, however, any public proclamation of the fact, for obvious reasons.

The second crop swept off the remains of the debt and left a surplus. Thus the work has gone forward for nearly ten years. The working force of the plantation having increased, by the natural increase of the negro families and additions having been made to the plantation from time to time by purchase at the suggestion and by the advice of the negro overseer, with a succession of splendid crops produced by willing hands under the stimulus of kindness and encouragement instead of the lash, the property was estimated when the war commenced, to be worth over $100,000. When intercourse stopped between Arkansas and the North, the lady with her eldest son was on the plantation and her other children in Connecticut. There had been, when my informant left Bridgeport, no communication between the parties for six months. The members of the family at the East are exceedingly anxious to hear from the mother, and fear lest their elder brother may have gone into, or been forced into, the rebel army. Comments I leave to you, Mr. Editor. While many are asking, just now, if the negroes in a state of freedom can any way be managed or take care of themselves, such facts as those above stated may afford the anxious some comfort."

A California Story.

We copy the following California story, which is said to inculcate a suitable warning against profanity. A San Francisco contributor writes:—

In the northern part of this State is a stream called Yuba river. Across it some enterprising individual built a bridge; and on the banks somebody else built three or four houses. The inhabitants of the place called it Yuba Dam. Three bars were instantly erected, and the "town" increased rapidly. About noon one cool day a traveller and a sojourner in the land passed this flourishing locality, and seeing a long-legged specimen of humanity in a red shirt smoking before one of the bars, thus addressed him:

"Hello!"

"Hello!" replied the shirt, with vigor, removing his pipe from his mouth.

"What place is this?" demanded the traveller, whose name was Thompson.

The answer of the shirt was unexpected: "Yuba Dam!"

There was about fifty yards between them and the wind was blowing. Mr. Thompson thought he had been mistaken.

"What did you say?" he asked.

"Yuba Dam," replied the stranger, cheerfully.

"What place is this?" roared Mr. Thompson.

"Yu-ba Dam!" said the shirt, in a slightly elevated tone of voice.

"Look'ee here!" yelled the irate Thompson; "I asked you politely what place this was; why in thunder don't you answer?"

The stranger became excited. He rose and replied with a voice of an 80-pounder.

"Yu-ba Dam! Do you hear that?"

In a minute Thompson, burning with the wrath of the righteous, jumped off his horse and advanced on the stranger with an expression not to be mistaken. The shirt arose and assumed a posture of offence and defence.

Arrived within a yard of him, Thompson said:

"I ask you for the last time. What place is this?"

Putting his hands to his mouth, his opponent roared:

"Yu-ba dam!"

The next minute they were at it. First, Thompson was down; then the shirt; and then it was a dog-fall—that is, both were down. They rol'ed about, kicking up a tremendous dust. They squirmed around so energetically that you'd have thought they had a dozen legs instead of four. It looked like a prize fight between two pugilistic centipedes. Finally they both rolled off the bank and into the river. The water cooled them. They went down together but came up separate, and put out for the shore. Both reached it about the same time, and Thompson scrambled up the bank, mounted the warlike steed, and made tracks, leaving his foe gouging the mud out of one of his eyes.

Having left the business portion of the town—that is to say, the corner where the three bars were kept—he struck a house in the suburbs, before which a little girl of 4 years of age was playing.

"What place is this, Sissy?" he asked.

The little girl, frightened at the drowned-rat figure which the stranger cut, streaked it for the house. Having reached the door she stopped, turned and squealed, "Oo-bee Dam!"

"Good Heavens!" said Thompson, digging his heels between his horse's ribs—"Good Heavens! let me get out of this horrid place, where not only the men, but the very babes and sucklings, swear at inoffensive travellers!"

How it happened.

Some of our exchanges have received the following old but good story!

A number of politicians, some of whom were seeking office under the government, were seated on a tavern porch talking when an old toper, named John D——, a person who was very loquacious when corned, but exactly the opposite when sober, said that if the company had no objection, he would tell them a story. They told him to "fire away." Whereupon he spoke as follows:

"A certain king—I don't recollect his name—had a philosopher, upon whose judgment he always depended. Now, it so happened that one day the king took it into his head to go to a hunting, and after summoning his nobles, and making the necessary preparations, he summoned the philosopher, and asked him if it would rain. The philosopher told him it would not, and he and his nobles departed. While journeying along they met a countryman on a jackass. He advised them to return, "for it will certainly rain," said he. They smiled contemptuously on him, and passed on. Before they had gone many miles, however, they had reason to regret not having taken the rustic's advice, as a heavy shower coming up they were drenched to the skin. When they had returned to the palace, the king reprimanded the philosopher severely.

"I met a countryman," said he, "and he knows a great deal more than you, for he told me it would rain, whereas you told me it would not."

The king then gave him his walking papers, and sent for the countryman, who soon made his appearance.

"Tell me," said the king, "how did you know it was going to rain?"

"I didn't know," said the rustic, "my jackass told me."

"How, pray, did he tell you?" asked the king.

"By pricking up his ears, your majesty," returned the rustic.

The king sent the countryman away, and procuring the jackass of him, he placed him (the jackass) in the office the philosopher had filled. "And here," observed John, looking very wise, "is where the king made a very great mistake."

"How so?" enquired the auditors eagerly.

Why, ever since that time every jackass wants an office.

A Yankee Trick.

One of the prettiest, stub-nosed, genuine Yankees lately emigrated and settled here in the West. He was the very picture of a mean man, but as he put himself to work in good earnest to get his house to rights, the neighbors willingly lent him a hand. After he got everything fixed to his notion a thought struck him that he had no chickens, and he was powerful fond of sucking raw eggs. He was too honest to steal them, and too mean to buy them. At last a thought struck him—he could borrow. He went to a neighbor and thus accosted him—

"Wal, I reckon you hain't got no old hen nor nothin' you'd lend me for a few weeks, have you, neighbor?

"I will lend you one with pleasure," replied the gentleman, picking out the very lowest one in the coop.

The Yankee took the hen home, and then went to another neighbor, and borrowed a dozen eggs. He then set the hen, and in due course of time she hatched out a dozen chickens.

The Yankee was again puzzled: he could return the hen, but how was he to return the eggs? Another idea—and who ever saw a true Yankee without one?—he would keep the hen until she laid a dozen eggs.

This he did, and then returned the hen and eggs to their respective owners, remarking as he did so—

"Wal, I reckon I've got as fine a dozen of chickens as ever you laid your eyes on, and they didn't cost me a cent, nuther."

Do You obey your Mother.

Charles T—— was the son of a poor widow in the city of N. B. He and a younger brother were her only earthly comfort and care. But, when ten years of age, he began to go with wicked companions, and yield to their wishes in disobedience to his mothers commands. Charles loved her, yet when tempted to do wrong forgot her kindness, and the grief he would occasion. Like all habits, good and evil, disobedience became stronger every time he was guilty of it; and sins which were once thought of with dread. Charles, before he was twelve years old, committed boldly.

One morning a police officer, whose business it is to arrest criminals, called at his humble home and took him away to be tried for stealing. The little fellow cried, and so did his lonely mother. After he was found guilty, it was decided to send him to the Reform-school in a distant city. The next news Charles' mother had from him, he was very sick. An epidemic prevailed in the institution, and he was among those most dangerously ill. A benevolent man gave Mrs. T—— money to pay the expenses of a visit to her sick boy. When she arrived at the large building in which he was confined, she entered a room where several lads were lying on their small beds, in pain, with no mother to watch over them. She looked around for the familiar locks of hair above the pale face of her son. But she sought in vain for the one for whom her heart was yearning. Then an attendant came and told her that he was too ill to be there; he was in another room.

The weeping mother hastened to the apartment, and in a moment she saw the emaciated features of her Charles. It was a sad and affecting meeting. After she had talked with him until her tears fell on his feverish forehead, she unfolded a little handkerchief, and said it was his brother's at home.

"Oh mother," exclaimed Charles, "lay it on my breast; I want it near my heart." And soon he added, "Does brother mind you, mother?" "Sometimes," she replied. "Oh, tell him to obey you always, always; if I had done so, I should not be here." And he buried his tearful face in the bedclothes and sobbed.

Mrs. T—— saw that Charles must die, and begged permission to stay all night in the room, and slept on the floor, or watch by his side. But this was contrary to the rules of the institution, and she left him with a breaking heart. In the morning he was delirious, and soon after died. The same kind gentleman who helped the widow when she went to see Charles, sent for the body; and last autumn, as the leaves were dying, it was laid in the grave, upon which for the first time the snows of winter have fallen.

Think of Charles, and of what God said amid the thunderings and flames of Sinai: "Honor thy father and thy mother, that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee."

—At St. John, N. B., there are at present 1,267 men employed in twenty building yards in the construction of thirty vessels, registering in gross 28,073 tons.

The human body consists of 240 bones, 9 articulations or joinings, 100 cartilages and ligaments, 400 muscles and tendons, and 100 nerves; besides blood, arteries, veins, glands, stomach, intestines, lungs, heart, liver, kidneys, lymphatics, lacteals, fat and skin, &c.

HOUSE IN THE MOON.—A rustic having gone to the Calton Hill Observatory to get a sight of the moon, after having got a glance of it, drew away his head to wipe his eyes, and in the interval the end of the telescope accidentally fell down, so as, instead of pointing to the heavens, to point down to the earth. The rustic's surprise was unutterable when he again looked through, and beheld the sign of a public-house at a short distance, with the customary declarations—"Edinburgh ale," &c. He started back and exclaimed, "Edinburgh ale," in the moon! Gude preserve us, that beats a'!"

A crowd of ladies, residing in a French provincial town, went to the court of justice to hear a case which promised some scandalous disclosures. On seeing this, the presiding judge rose and said: "Persons here assembled as spectators are not aware of the nature of the cause; I therefore invite all decent women to withdraw." A pause took place without a single female moving from her seat. Seeing this, the president again rose, and exclaimed, "Officers of the court, now that all decent women have retired, turn out the remainder!"

Robbery on the Cars.

(From the Hamilton Evening Times.)

On Saturday night the cars left the Great Western Station at Windsor, at the hour of 6. There was nothing extraordinary in this, nor yet in the fact that the train was run with speed and safety. While it was making its way, however, and the majority of the passengers were nodding their sleepy heads, an interesting scheme was being worked out in one of the cars. A gentleman, whose name we have not learned, got on the train, and somewhat carelessly displayed a considerable quantity of gold and bills. These are not days in which gold can be shown with impunity, and the consequence in this case was, that a sorrowful fellow who had caught a glance of the precious treasure, immediately endeavored to cultivate the acquaintance of the owner of so much wealth. He followed him to his seat at the end of one of the cars, and taking a place by his side, at once commenced his persuasive act of producing a bottle of good whiskey. Being somewhat of a philosopher, he imagined that nothing would ripen friendship quicker than a few social draughts of the stimulating beverage. Generous to a fault, he almost neglected himself in his anxiety to treat with hospitality his new-found acquaintance, and did his utmost by plying him with the bottle and fascinating him with agreeable conversation to make the time pass pleasantly.

In the same car, however, and seated directly opposite the man who had gold and the man who wanted gold was a certain brakesman named Parsons, who was on terms with the bottle. He watched the couple for a while and then in order to satisfy himself feigned sleep. Gently reclining himself as far a night's nap as seats omitted snores of ponderous volume—snores which the wretched born of Neptune or the rumbling of vesuvius could scarcely exceed. Also for the bottle man, he allowed himself to be deceived by the snore. Thinking that so much noise could not exist without some sleep, he proceeded to work out his plans as though no one was near him, little thinking that despite the snore the cunning Parsons was wide awake and indulging in fugitive glances at him.

The bottle man having succeeded so well during the friend with his gold, into a state somewhat removed from strict sobriety, then proceeding to relieve him of his encumbrance. Insinuating his hand into his companion's pocket, he drew forth some sixty dollars in bills, but failed to discover the gold. This disappointed him, as, being a financial man, he knew that gold is at present at a premium. To recompense him for missing it, he then transferred a watch from his neighbors possession to that of his own.

Somewhat pleased with the evening's operations he then proceeded to take his ease. Now was the time for Parsons, who with two or three mighty yawns awoke and strolled sleepily out of the cars as if nothing had happened. He made his way to the conductor, Peter Thompson, informed him of the circumstances and told him where the man could be found. Mr. Thompson at once approached the thief and very abruptly asked him to give up the watch he had stolen. Confused by the suddenness of the demand the fellow complied at once. On searching his pockets the money was also found. On arriving at London, the conductor discharged both of his passengers, the robber and the robbed; the one to prosecute, and the other to be prosecuted. The prisoner was to have been examined this morning.

The result is that instead of winning the gold and the watch, the social gentleman loses his whiskey and his liberty.

Shocking Catastrophe—Death of the Wife of Farina the Rope-Walker.

A terrible and heart-rending catastrophe occurred in Havana, on the 6th ult., at the Torres—Bull Ring, Mr. Farina, the celebrated tight rope walker, and rival of Blondin, advertised, among the many wonders that he would perform on the tight rope, the carrying of his wife across the rope stretched from one side of the rope to the other, at a height of about sixty feet, upon his back, and had nearly finished his journey across within about four feet, when the audience applauded the daring act, it seemingly being completed, and the lady in acknowledgement of that applause loosened her hold upon her husband's neck, and waved her hands, and on that instant of doing so she discovered she had lost her balance, and as she was falling. This he attempted to do, and caught her by the skirt of her dress, but the frail fabric was not of sufficient strength to sustain her with the impetus given to her descent by the fall, and the dress gave way, leaving a piece in her hand as he hung suspended from the rope, sustaining himself by the joint of his knee, by means of which he had saved himself, and she went down crashing upon the seats, that seared from the curb of the ring to the top of the instance. She was taken up for dead but she showed, after some little time, signs of life, and lingered from Sunday until Thursday morning, when death put an end to her sufferings. She was taken in hand by the ladies in the neighbourhood, and everything that could be, was done. The wealthiest ladies in Parsons were at her bedside, and soothed her dying pillow. She was embalmed and placed in one of the niches of the burying ground. It is said that from $10,000 to $20,000 will be raised by subscription for the child she has left behind.

When a reformed drunkard confesses himself to drinking pale ale, can that be called bitter repentance.

Professor Dalzel, of Edinburgh, was the son of a Linlithgow farmer. For a long time he spelt his name according to the common way—Dalziel—and when he began to omit one of the vowels, some objections were raised. "Why not?" asked a college wit, "if as a farmer he finds he can plough it out?"

THE OPENING OF PARLIAMENT.

On Friday last His Excellency Lord Monck proceeded in state to the Legislative Council Chamber, and after taking his seat on the Throne he was informed by the Hon. Alex Campbell that the choice of the Council had fallen upon him. His Excellency then commanded the attendance of the Legislative Assembly, when he proceeded to open the second session of the seventh Parliament of Canada with the following

SPEECH:

Hon. able Gent'lemen of the Legislative Council and Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly:—

It gives me much satisfaction to meet you again in Parliament, and to avail myself of your assistance in the enactment of measures for the promotion of the welfare and prosperity of the Province. The period of the year at which you have been convened, will, I trust, be found generally convenient, and such as will afford ample time for deliberation upon the subjects which may be brought under your notice before the commencement of the commercial and agricultural business season. I congratulate you upon the spirit of loyalty and patriotism which has been manifested throughout the country, in the enrolment of volunteer militia companies, and on the zeal and activity displayed by the volunteers and the drill associations in rendering themselves efficient for active service, should their assistance in defence of the Province be unhappily required.

A bill will be submitted to you containing amendments in the existing militia law, having for their object to improve the system now in force for the defensive organization of the people.

A measure for the fairer adjustment of Parliamentary representation in each section of the Province will be laid before you.

You will also be asked to consider a bill for the more equitable settlement of the relation between debtor and creditor, and to afford relief to insolvent debtors.

Other measures of public utility in relation to the administration of justice, to the registration of titles, and to the law respecting patents of invention, will be submitted for your consideration.

Shortly after the close of the last session of the Legislature I appointed Commissioners to inquire into the state of the public buildings at Ottawa, and especially the expenditure already incurred in respect to them. This investigation, I regret to say, has been unavoidably protracted. A report however has been recently received, which will be laid before you, and steps have been taken, based upon that report, with a view to the resumption and speedy completion of the work.

Two members of my Executive Council have visited London during the recess, to confer with the Imperial Government, in conjunction with delegates from Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, respecting the construction of the Intercolonial Railway. The correspondence with the Secretary for the Colonies on this subject will be laid before you without delay. These gentlemen were also instructed to call the attention of the Imperial authorities to the importance of opening up for settlement the great North-western territory, and of facilitating the establishment of direct communication between Canada and British Columbia. Very favorable results may be expected from these representations, not only in the development of the resources of intermediate and distant possessions of the Crown, but in the commercial benefits that will accrue to this Province as the natural outlet for the productions of the west.

Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly:

The public accounts for the past year will be duly submitted to you, together with the estimates for the supplies required for service of the current year. These estimates have been prepared with the strictest attention to economy. I have appointed Commissioners to inquire into the state and condition of every branch of the public service, in order to ascertain and remedy the defects of the system now regulating the audit of accounts, and the payment of monies from the public exchequer, and with a view to retrenchment of expenditure, so far as may be found consistent with a due regard to efficiency.

I hope that the result of their inquiries will introduce such a system of control and economy as may before long bring the expenditure of the Province within its annual income.

Honorable Gentlemen and Gentlemen:

The contributions which have spontaneously and freely flowed from the Province for the relief of distress in the manufacturing districts of Great Britain are a gratifying evidence of the sympathy of the Canadian people with their fellow subjects in the British Isles, and will, I am confident, serve to strengthen the kindly ties which I trust will long continue to exist between this Colony and the Parent State.

I invite you to consider the several subjects which may be brought before you, in calm, impartial and unselfish spirit, and I fervently invoke the blessing of the Almighty on your performance of the important duties which the constitution of the Province has imposed upon you.

The Globe says of the Speech:—

"There is very much in this programme to give satisfaction to the country. It is in most pleasant contrast with what we have had for some years past—and we sincerely hope that, in perfecting their measures, Ministers will have all reasonable assistance. We are utterly opposed to the policy of the Government on the great question of the Constitutional relations between Upper and Lower Canada; we believe the Double Majority scheme to be a complete delusion; we believe that good government cannot be secured to the Province until the people of Upper Canada obtain their just share of representation in the Legislature, and we shall omit no opportunity of demanding and enforcing that justice—but this will not prevent the [illegible] necessary for the Government at this crisis, and we shall cheerfully support in all their good measures. We have not changed our position—whether they have changed theirs."

The Hamilton Times says: "Any general flying royal speeches are stated for nothing but paucity and complimentary allusions, which nobody is prepared to criticise. Lord Monck's Speech is an improvement. Empty and undeserved praise has been dispensed with as much as possible, and the promised legislation will give the greater satisfaction to the country."

The Hon. Sidney Smith embraced the earliest opportunity to demand from members of the Administration explanations as to the retirement of the Hon. Mr. Dorion from the Government. When told explanations were not ready he expressed a hope that the House would have a full explanation before they were asked to debate the answer to the Address.

The Opposition, the Globe is informed, will adopt Mr. McDougall's resolution of last year, in amendment to the Address.—Whether this will be so or not we shall soon see, but it is strange how men will shift their ground when in certain circumstances. Messrs. Cartier and Cauchon are very bitter in their opposition to the Government, but they seem to lack any real measure wherewith to hoist them. It can scarcely be credited that the late Ministerial party will adopt the Representation question to defeat the Government. Should they do so they will be in a worse position than their opponents. Such conduct may be considered clever tactics, but is anything but honorable warfare. The Globe seems rather to exult in the prospect of the question being brought up, and trusts that the Upper Canada Reformers will vote for it as they always have done, whatever, be the consequences." We certainly do like to see consistency in our legislators, we are decidedly in favor of every measure calculated to give justice to both sections of the Province, at the same time we cannot shut our eyes to the fact that in our present federal relation the principle of representation by population is inimical to that relation unless the federal character of the union is preserved. That otherwise its advocacy to be consistent should in the first place provide for the dissolution of the Union. To contend now for a union on any other basis than that of equality in representation is simply absurd, if not positively insane. The members of the present Government, who like Mr. Brown have been rabid advocates of representation by population, have been thoroughly cured of their utopian scheme, and it is a pity but that gentleman was in a position where he could test the correctness of his fancied panacea for all our political evils. The Globe seems very indifferent to the fate of the present Ministry, and perhaps it is as well for them that he should be so. The fierce opposition that it waged to the late Coalition Government was thought by many to have been one of its greatest sources of strength, and tended more to keep it in power than all the advocacy of its organs and friends.

A large section of the country is pleased that a Reform Government is in power, that it assumed its functions professedly to benefit the country, and sacrificed cherished schemes of their own to save it from financial bankruptcy, to which it was fast drifting under the late Ministry. It is then manifestly the duty of Reformers to hold up the hands of their Government, not to embarrass it, but yield it a generous support, and not to oppose it until it shows that it has abandoned its declared line of policy.

We are pleased that the Ministry are prepared to meet Parliament under such favorable circumstances, and trust they will be enabled to prosecute their labours with decided benefit to the country.

No theory is so popular with the people just now as the one on which they accepted office, and they cannot adopt any other so likely to secure them a lease of power, hence our conviction that they will disappoint their bitter enemies and please their ardent friends.

THE "ROYAL."

We beg to call the attention of our readers to the statement of the assets and liabilities of the Royal Insurance Company, which will be found in our advertising columns, made up to the 30th June last, in accordance with requirements of the statute of this Province regulating Insurance Companys. It will be seen that the assets exceed the liabilities by £133,732 18 3, and this after providing £142,250 for premiums which were unearned at the date of the statement, so that in fact the assets exceed all possible liability at that date by over three quarters of a million pounds sterling, or about $3,750,000. We cannot do better than give the following extracts from the London Times and Liverpool Mail, papers that have the fullest means of knowing the actual working and resources of the Company, both of which extracts we entirely concur in and endorse:

"The Company's previously large Fire Revenue has more than doubled in six years. The expansion of the Life Branch during the last year is equally great, for the sum assured on New Policies alone amounted to £321,101, itself greatly in excess of any previous like period. An increase of £85,107 was carried to the Life Funds last year, being about 70 per cent of the Premiums received.—Daily News, August 9, 1862."

"The Royal Insurance Company is, perhaps, the most remarkable—as it promises undoubtedly, to be one of the most enduring—of the many marvellous monuments of Liverpool enterprize, and energy, and sagacity, which have been called into existence within the last quarter of a century. Its reputation stands so high in the commercial communities, both of the Eastern and Western Hemispheres, that there is no exaggeration in the statement that it has made for itself a "world-wide fame."—Liverpool Mail, Aug. 9, 1862.

OUR RAILROAD MATTERS.

At the last meeting of the Town Council the Mayor was instructed to write to Mr. Cowan, requesting him of the alteration of the management between the Town and himself, which was proposed in the resolution introduced by Mr. Nicholls, and asking him if he would consent to the proposed alteration.

This consisted in a provision that in case of a default being made in the payment as agreed upon a receiver should be put upon the Road, and the entire rolling stock should be under his entire control until he had collected the sum required. Mr. Covert wrote to the Mayor expressing his readiness to carry out the previous management, but declining to accept any alteration therein. Mr. Covert was in Town on Tuesday, and in debate upon the matter he expressed his willingness, in case of any such default occurring, to place locomotive and cars at the disposal of such receiver, but to give a lien upon the whole rolling stock—it would debar him raising money should he require it.

He added that he had made the arrangement with the Town in good faith, and he would give his bond to carry that arrangement out. We consider this proposal of Mr. Covert's very fair, and hope that the Council may adopt it.

The answer of Mr. Covert prevents the proposed appeal to the Rate-payers. It would have been a relief to the members of the Council to have the Rate-payers assume the responsibility of the whole matter but nothing remains now but for the Council to say yea or nay. If we may venture an opinion upon the question we are free to confess after looking at it with all its bearings, with clean hands, and essentially free from all outside or inside pressure, that it is decidedly for the best interests of the Town of Peterborough to accept Mr. Covert's proposal.

Nothing is more popular than to dwell upon the fairness of getting our rights and the full amount of our interest and principal. But look at it fairly: though paying thirty thousand pounds is good money we have but a questionable security for our money, a bad mark, for our pay if we had judgment to-morrow. Now will the rate-payers accept £20,000 for £30,000, from another party who has shown his willingness to carry this out by paying an instalment already and will give his bond for the future payments?—Speak gentlemen, now is the time or never.

FREE CHURCH SERVICES.

The anniversary services of the Free Presbyterian Church of this Town took place on Sunday last. Dr. Wilkes, of Montreal, preached at 11 o'clock forenoon and at 6½ in the evening; Rev. Mr. Mackenzie preaching at 3 p. m. The sermons were excellent, and the immense audiences at each service appeared highly delighted with the exercises.

On Monday evening there was a Soiree held in the basement of the church. The edibles were provided by the energetic ladies of the congregation, and evinced more than ordinary anxiety on their part that everything should be good. Such a spread has rarely been equalled at a social tea meeting. Ample justice having been done on the part of the guests to the distributing process, the company assembled in the body of the building to enjoy "the feast of reason and flow of soul." After praise and prayer by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Mackenzie delivered an excellent speech on the duty of christians liberality in supporting every object connected with the cause of Christ. This was urged in a truly logical manner by a reference to the rules for giving laid down in the Scriptures. Mr. Blain followed, who gave a very interesting account of the Back Country, and an outline of a Missionary Tour he undertook there last Fall. Mr. Gilmour spoke next, and prepared the way for Dr. Wilkes by putting the people in a lively mood, as he usually does. Dr. Wilkes congratulated the congregation of the church on the very neat and commodious place of worship they had erected, and proceeded to give an intense and interesting account of the late revival in Montreal, which was listened to with breathless interest. Mr. Carrol followed, and seemed so delighted with what fell from the Doctor on the subject of revivals in general, that he said he was ready to endorse all that he had heard. He gave expression to some truly Catholic sentiments which were endorsed by all present. Mr. Roger who seemed to have been thoroughly inoculated with the excellent sentiments uttered by the previous speaker, said he fully endorsed the opinions of Mr. Carroll. He said that he had previously been charged with neglect in not returning thanks to the Choir, and to prevent a repetition he begged to tender now his sincere thanks for their valuable services in enlivening the exercises of the evening by their excellent music. He announced that the contribution on Sabbath and the proceeds of the Soiree amounted to $219. The meeting was dismissed about 2½ o'clock, and all seemed highly delighted with what they had heard.

Our Presbyterian friends deserve great credit for the energy and devotion they have manifested in erecting their magnificent building. Through circumstances almost impossible to have prevented they were led into the erection of a more costly place than was intended. They intended not to have exceeded £3,000, or at most £3,500; but instead, £5,400 is the bill. Very many have contributed extremely liberal. Several have given princely donations, and we question if another congregation in the country have excelled them in proportion to their means. We are sorry to learn that a debt of nearly £2,000 remains yet on the building, and we hope soon to hear of the removal of this incubus from so deserving a people.

TOBACCO.

There has been for some time past a notion of the benefit to result upon the enaction of an excise on tobacco. The Montreal Transcript states the annual consumption of tobacco in Canada amounts to four and a-half million of pounds, which an excise of 20 cents per pound would realize a revenue of $900,000, a sum exceeding the whole revenue now derived from sugar, tea, coffee, molasses, iron and hardware—equal to nearly one-fifth of the whole revenue of the country from Custom Duties. By all means, we say tax the unnecessary, or at least artificial wants of the community, and ease off the real ones.

The proposed excise is loudly called for from the fact that during the past year, owing to the derangements on the other side, consequent upon the war, a number of American manufacturers of tobacco have changed their "base of operations" to Canada, and imported largely the manufactured article. The consequence is that at present the revenue suffers in consequence of manufactured tobacco not being imported. In 1861 there were imported at Montreal of the manufactured article 1,043,000 lbs., at Toronto 151,000; total 1,194,000. In 1862, at Montreal 4,464,000 lbs. were imported, and to Toronto 606,000 lbs.; total 5,070,000; increase, 3,876,000 lbs. In like manner is the falling off of the revenue, in consequence of the manufacture here. In 1861 the customs for manufactured tobacco at the two ports named above, amounted to $116,000. In 1862 the amount was but $75,000, showing a falling off of $34,000, on one article alone in less than 6 months. The U. S. government war tax of 15 cents per lb. on manufactured tobacco led several manufacturers to commence their business in Canada. They are now reaping a rich harvest by the transfer of their establishments. We say again by all means let us have the proposed excise. Tobacco and Rum should be well taxed, but sugar and tea should all but be free.

The Peterboro' "Examiner."

Our friend of the Examiner, seems to think that we used a wrong term in speaking of the "Secularization" of the University Endowment; and that we seem to think that this fund is similar to the Clergy Reserves. We beg to assure our contemporary that we entertain no such idea. We never believed that those churches which claimed the so-called Clergy Reserve Lands had any right whatever to them in fee-simple. The Crown gave to all religious denominations the use of rents accruing from certain lands till such time as such bodies could sustain themselves. This we conceive to be the true interpretation of the act on which was claimed the Clergy Reserve Endowment.

The University Endowment is permanent. The lands given to this institution were regularly deeded to that corporation; and they have, therefore, as much right to it for their own use as any farmer has to his farm for which he has paid.

The term therefore, "Secularising," is quite appropriate as used by us; for the demand made by the partition of the University Fund is put forward by a few greedy religious bodies who now share largely in the Clergy Reserve secularization scheme. But those cormorants are doomed to disappointment this time.

The above we find in the Whitby Gazette of the 13th inst. It is another sad proof of the truth of the old saw:

"Convince a man against his will, He's of the same opinion still."

In place of thanking us for our correction, our cotemporary labors to show that he needed no correction. Well, we shall not waste paper and ink upon any further attempts to put him right. His last exposition on "secularization" of the Clergy Reserves and University endowment ought surely to secure for him a medal.

Had our cotemporary evinced that he had grace to be thankful for a lesson upon the matters, which he needs instruction in, we might have "posted him up," but as he is "all right" we leave him to his "own conceit." He was bad enough before, but his last effort is convincing evidence that he knows nothing of what he pretends to write about.

Rev. Mr. MACKENZIE'S LECTURE.

On Tuesday night the Rev. gentleman according to previous notice, gave his lecture on "Phrenology, a delusion," in the Town Hall. There was a large, intelligent audience. The lecture was a very superior one, evincing great thought and research, and was listened to through its entire length with interest. Mr. Mack. quoted largely from the writers on Phrenology and leading Phrenologists, and held up from these such a number of contradictions as might well stagger the firmest believer in the science. He had charts and skulls to illustrate his statements on the fallacy of the so-called science. He referred to many evident marks of character the manipulator has besides his pretended feeling of organs, and while he hits upon some points of a subjects character, he, nevertheless, commits mistakes. Mr. Mack. undertook to read character himself without seeing the subject about as well as phrenologists. Two persons were requested to stand up, and without seeing them, he read their character about as well as most phrenologists would. The subject deserves serious consideration, and without being a convert to Mr. Mackenzie's views, we heard a great deal of good sound reasoning and common sense. It is evidently one of the lecturers standing maxims to "prove all things." His argumentativeness must be "very full." We hope to see the lecture in print—it is carefully got up, replete with sound logic, and the subject treated in an intelligent and masterly manner. We beg respectfully to suggest to the Rev. gentleman that its delivery, in our opinion, should be extended over two nights—it is too long for one sitting. We are sure that the meeting enjoyed the intellectual treat. It is seldom that we are favoured with such lectures.

The proceeds of the lecture, after paying expenses, amounting to $7 74, were handed over to the Ladies' Relief Society.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Thursday, February 12, 1863.

The Council met. Present His Worship the Mayor, and Messrs. Toole, Nicholls, Fry, Ormond, Dixon, Clarkson, Ryan, Lawson, Dixon and Landy.

The minutes of former meeting read and confirmed.

There are communications from parties applying for the office of Inspector of Licenses. If there is to be a change we hope that it will be a more sensible character than any of our present office seeking political demagogues.

Some small accounts were handed in and referred to the Finance Committee.

A report from John Haggart, License Inspector, of the number of Licenses issued and amounts realised during the present year, was read and received.

The Council then resumed the discussion of resolution No. 2 of the last meeting.—After the resolution had been read by the Mayor, and some discussion had thereon, it was moved in amendment by Mr. Clarkson and seconded by Mr. Toole, that a vote of the Town of Peterborough be taken in each Ward upon the above resolution introduced into the Council by Mr. Nicholls in reference to Railway matters.—Carried.

The Mayor was instructed to have a number of copies of the legal opinions of Messrs. Eccles and Wilson, in reference to the legality of the Railroad question, printed.

The Clerk was instructed to give notice to all parties intending to take out Tavern Licenses, for the present year, that application must be made by the 24th inst.

A By-Law for the appointment of Assessors for the present year, was read a first, second and third time, and passed.

The Treasurer was authorised to pay to the Bailiff, the amount of the Execution in his hands of Thos. Woods vs. the Corporation, amounting to $15.04.

The Council then adjourned to Tuesday the 24th inst., at 7 p. m.

We have had sent us a pamphlet written by John Steele, exposing the windings of the County Council of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, extending over a period of 4 years. It is a lengthy document of 83 pages. It is addressed to inhabitants and rate-payers of the Counties, and places their representatives in the Counties Council in an unenviable position. The charges against them are, neglecting to publish the detailed statement of the expenditures and receipts of the corporation as required by the Statute. Their appropriating to themselves a larger sum per diem for attendance at the Council than the law allows—as well as exacting for mileage, which is not authorised for by the Act. And not only is mileage allowed by these worthies, but at the rate of 30 cents per mile, which is 10 cents in advance of any mileage we have heard of where it is authorised. Mr. Steele goes into minute detail and shows up the "jobbery," "log rolling" and "axe grinding" of the Councils of Northumberland and Durham, which is anything but creditable to the parties concerned. We hear that actions have been instituted against individuals to compel them to disgorge their ill gotten gains.

On reading the pamplet we were led to reflect upon our own Counties Council paying themselves per day more than is allowed by law, and exacting mileage, as well as neglecting to publish the detailed statements as required by law. In the proceedings of the Council published before the meeting of the new Council, is a statement of the receipts and expenditures, but no signature of an auditor is attached.

The Annual Meeting of Grand Lodge of the Loyal Orange Association of Central Canada, took place in the Orange Hall in Peterboro', on Tuesday last, when the following Grand Officers were elected:—

Bro. John Flanagan, G. M.
" Geo. C. Ward, D. G. M.
" D. E. Boulton, A. D. G. M.
" M. J. Boulter, G. T.
" Wm. Shannon, G. S.
" John G. Moore, D. G. S.
Rev. Wm. Burns, G. C.
Bro. David Marshall, G. L.
" A. C. Davis D. of C.

On Monday evening, 9th inst., and on Tuesday evening, 10th, Mr. David Marshall was entertained by the Town Council to a dinner on the former evening; on the latter evening by the Orangemen and other friends, on the occasion of his being about leaving Port Hope for Lindsay. We are sure he deserves all the honors that have been shewn to him; besides, he has our best wishes wherever he may go.—Port Hope Guide.

INFORMATION WANTED.—The Review last week in noticing the opening of St. Mark's Church in Otonabee, and in describing its architecture, &c., says:—"It stands East and West, as all churches should do." Will the Review please give us its reasons for this dictatorial, if it can, or are we to consider it as a mere escapade or ipse dixit?

"THE SMITH'S FALLS REVIEW."—We have received the second number of this journal. It comes out on the Reform interest, is neatly got up, and promises fair to become a favorite in the locality it hails from. We wish our new cotemporary every success.

THE amount of subscriptions raised in Cobourg for the distressed Lancashire Operatives amounts to the handsome sum of $1,529 26, which has been remitted to England.

HENRY WARD BEECHER in his first Sermon for the present year has the following apostrophe to our beloved country:

CANADA.

"From Europe turn we to the other continent that is left—America. Unnoticed in our inventory of American States is one which has in perhaps as bright a promise as any of the continent—Canada. With a territory second to none; with climate as favorable as our own; with two oceans as much as we; and with the beginning of a population than which no nation could desire to have a better, I know not why Canada is not to take her place among the nations of time and the world. In so far as her present is concerned, it may be torpid in spots, and inert; but in all its activities it is forward and healthful, and Christian. God bless Canada, and give her a glorious and illustrious future. And as she bears her meteor flag westwards, it shall be her glory above any nation that dwells upon this hemisphere to carry a banner that in her hands, has never been held over the head of a slave. And when her cities shall be built, and her ports shall be opened on the Pacific coast, and her commerce shall extend from ocean to ocean clear across the hemisphere, she shall be the free nation of the North, and the mother of freedom. Again, God bless Canada."

We have received a very neat and attractive Almanac from A. Smith, Esq., of the Royal Insurance Company. The amount expended in engraving this little volume, and the amount of useful information it contains, will make it attractive and useful to all to whom it is presented.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

MR. EDITOR,—In last week's issue of the Review, under the heading "Concert in Omemee," the editor of that paper either had been misinformed or was ignorant of the part which several members of St. John's Church Choir had taken in several Concerts which has taken place lately. Honor should always be given where honor is due, and it is rather amusing for the editor of the Review to belaud the Choir of St. John's Church in the manner he did in last week's issue. It is true several members of the Choir were present at St. Mark's Church opening in Otonabee, as also at the Concert in Omemee, but in neither case in the capacity of St. John's Church Choir. Mr. Templeton Brown, the gentleman to whom the credit of these varied performances is due, and whose name did not appear in the Review's notice, was until lately a member of St. John's Choir, but is now Precentor in the Established Church of Scotland in Peterboro', and it is to his efforts the people of Omemee are indebted for the musical entertainment which they enjoyed. The Choir had nothing to do with the Concert at Fairmount Church. Mr. Brown and Mr. Heathfield were present, the former at the invitation of the Committee, and latter in his professional character.

Yours &c.,
VOX VERITAS.

The Year's Emigration from Liverpool.

From the annual return made by the Government Emigration officers, it appears that during the past year the number of emigrants who left Liverpool for the United States, British North America, the Australian colonies, and other settlements, was 64,314, while in 1861 the total number was 55,029, or 9,285 less than last year. The number who were conveyed in ships sailing under the provisions of the Passenger Act was 53,498, and those in ships not under the Act, or "short ships," as they are technically called, were 10,816. Of these sailing under the Act, 36,657 steerage and 2,527 cabin went in 180 ships to the United States, against 26,212 steerage and 2,365 cabin in 1861. To Canada there sailed, in 7 ships under the Act, 183 cabin and 1,543 steerage passengers. To Victoria, in 29 ships, 288 cabin and 9,272, steerage passengers; to Queensland, in 8 ships, 32 cabin and 1,693 steerage passengers. For Vancouver's Island, 4 ships sailed, with 18 cabin and 361 steerage passengers; and for South America, 1 ship with 124 steerage passengers; in all, 232 ships, with 3,048 cabin and 50,460 steerage passengers. The number of "short ships" sailing last year was 267, with 3,479 cabin and 6,337 steerage passengers were for the United States; 31 ships, with 1,279 cabin and 2,630 steerage, for Canada; 4 ships, with 12 cabin and 41 steerage passengers were for New Brunswick; 8 ships with 18 cabin and 95 steerage passengers were for Prince Edward Island. For Victoria 15 ships, with 29 cabin and 293 in the steerage; for South Australia, 1 ship, with 8 in the steerage. For the West Indies, 17 ships, with 132 cabin passengers; for South America, 33 ships, with 195 cabin and 108 steerage passengers; for Vancouver's Island, 1 ship, with 5 cabin and 12 steerage passengers; for Africa, 10 ships with 242 cabin passengers; for Cape of Good Hope, 1 ship, with 21 cabin passengers; for the East Indies, 9 ships, with 44 passengers in the cabin and 9 in the steerage; for China, 4 ships, with 14 cabin passengers.

The Situation at Vicksburg.

In writing of the canal which is to cut off Vicksburg from the river, a correspondent of a New York paper says that the river in bank full at Vicksburg, and high enough to rush through the canal at a fearful rate. Gen. McClernand thinks it will be a perfect success. He thinks that, should this channel become large enough to admit the passage of boats, the rebels for the present will be allowed to hold Vicksburg, while the Union troops turn their attention to matters further south.

In his opinion it would require some [illegible] to storm their fortifications at Vicksburg. Gun and mortar boats could shell the city from where they lie, on the north side of the river bend; but even if it were entirely destroyed, the fortifications which extend for miles back, would be as formidable as ever.

Affairs in the South-West.

A correspondent of the New York Herald says:—

The country south of the railroad from Memphis to Grand Junction is invested by as pestilent a band of rascals as God ever allowed to curse any community. They rob, murder and plunder with impunity. Sol. Street is the chief devil of them all. Last Wednesday they hung three negroes in the public square at Holly Springs, and shortly after brought out Sims Heach, an employee in the Quarter-master's Department, who was left behind when we evacuated the town, and would have hung him also had not a lieutenant, less devilish than the rest, cut him down just as the rope was tightening, and gave him three days to leave town. His only offence was that he was a Dutchman and a federal employee.

Shocking Suicide at the St. Nicholas Hotel, New York.

John Fitzgerald, a son-in-law of Senator Doolittle, of Wisconsin, committed suicide at the St. Nicholas Hotel, on Saturday, by shooting himself through the head with a revolver. Deceased who was an invalid travelling for his health, was last seen alive on Friday afternoon, about four o'clock, at which time he was observed to enter his bedroom and lock the door. His non appearance at the breakfast table on Saturday morning, and the fact of his door being locked on the inside, aroused the suspicions of the proprietors of the establishment, and it was determined to force an entrance to the apartment. Upon opening the door, their worst fears were realized—deceased was found lying dead on his bed, with a pistol grasped in his hand. He had shot himself through the right temple, and the blood was still oozing from the wound when the shocking discovery was made.

The Coroner was notified of the affair, and an inquest was held upon the body, when the following additional facts were developed: Deceased it appeared, was a wealthy banker, suffering from chronic diarrhœa, for the treatment of which disease he had came on to New York. Failing, however, in getting that relief which he expected to receive from some of the first physicians in the city, he became despondent, and determined to commit suicide sooner than drag out his miserable existence any longer. Accordingly, on Friday night he occupied his time in writing letters to his relatives and friends, explanatory of his conduct, and was thus engaged up to 2 o'clock, Saturday morning, at which hour his last letter was dated. Having written no less than eight letters—one of which was an affectionate epistle to his wife, and another a brief note to the proprietors of the hotel, stating that he was about to kill himself, and had left money behind to defray all his expenses—deceased partially undressed himself, and placing the muzzle of the fatal weapon on his head, swiftly carried out his insane intention. Judging from the nature of the wound death must have been instantaneous. Everything about the room denoted the utmost coolness and determination on the part of the suicide. His letters were found lying on the table neatly arranged also $125 in bank bills and $50 in gold, to which he had reference no doubt, in his note to the proprietors of the hotel. Mr. Fitzgerald was about fifty-five years of age and is reputed to be worth about $500,000 in real and personal estate. It leaked out in the inquest that the deceased had a brother who ended his life in a lunatic asylum. It is not at all unlikely, therefore, that there was insanity in the family, and that the tragedy in the St. Nicholas may be attributed to this cause.—N. Y. Herald.

British Army officers at Fredericksburg.

From the Commercial Advertiser, Feb 7.

Some time before the battle of Fredericksburg, two officers of the garrison, Captain Phillips and Wynn, of the Grenadier Guards, urged by a spirit of adventure determined to pay a visit to the Confederate army in Virginia, and see for themselves its actual condition, and military efficiency. With considerable difficulty and some privation, they succeeded in making their way from Washington to Gen. Lee's headquarters where they were kindly received, and hospitably entertained with the rude fare which the Southern Generals share with their troops.

During their visit Burnside's attack upon the Confederate position at the rear of Fredericksburg took place, and our adventurers had an opportunity of seeing how Southern troops fight, and how Northerns run away, and of hearing the shrill music of Federal shot and shell. During the action, and at a critical moment Gen Lee was left without an aide to carry an important order, and Capt. Phillips feeling like Commodore Tatnall that blood was thicker than water, volunteered his services, and acted as an extra aide, carrying the Confederate General's order into the thick of the fight, and winning the admiration of his hosts for his coolness under fire.

In making their way back to Canada, Capt. Wynn was arrested at Baltimore by the Federal Government on the charge of acting as a bearer of dispatches for the Confederates, but his companion eluded pursuit, reached New York where, thanks to his knowledge of German, he succeeded in baffling a hot search after him, and in disguise finally passed the detectives at Rouse's point who were on the look out for him, and reached Canada. The alleged despatches of which Capt. Phillips was the bearer we believe of nothing more than the letters of the London Times, and the sketches of the correspondent of the Illustrated News, which can hardly be considered as contraband of war.

Capt. Wynn was committed to the old capitol Prison, and was threatened with exemplary punishment as a Confederate messenger. Lord Lyons appears to have left indiscretion, and being naturally disgusted with his position, he determined to escape. To effect this he had to break through the door of the room in which he was confined, and make his way through a window three stories from the ground, beneath which a sentinel paced with a loaded rifle. Having got over the preliminary difficulties, he watched until the sentinel in his march turned into a gateway, when he got through the window, descended swiftly and quietly by the assistance of the pipe from the eve-trough, and reaching the ground before the sentinel appeared again, ran off, and although destitute of money, and uncomfortably clad for the season, succeeded in reaching a hiding place, and finding friends by whom aid he finally eluded pursuit, and reached Canada.

We think the most appropriate punishment for the two sinners would be an order from the General commanding them to publish their confessions, as far as is consistent with good faith to their Confederate entertainers. Having had opportunities of knowing the whole truth as to the battle of Fredericksburg, and of judging of the fighting qualities of the two armies engaged, their judgment as military men would be exceedingly valuable and interesting to the world at large.

HORRIBLE MURDER IN EMBERTON.—It will yet be fresh in the memory of our readers that about a year ago a Mrs. Taylor and her paramour, a Mr. Sutliff, were tried in the town for an attempt to poison Mrs. Taylor's husband. They were, however, acquitted, as the evidence failed to convince the jury of their guilt.—Trusting to the same good fortune, these two fiends took a more sure method of killing poor Taylor. On Thursday the 29th ult., while Taylor was in a helpless state from paralysis, Mrs. Taylor and Sutliff placed him near a hot stove, then set fire to his shirt and a quilt which had been thrown over him; and then he was left to perish. His lower extremities were burnt to a cinder; and the lower part of his body was literally roasted. From the evidence given at the Coroner's inquest, it was proven that for over a year the prisoners had been in the habit of shamefully abusing poor Taylor, he being unable to help himself. In the presence of her husband Mrs. Taylor would eat indecently with Sutliff, and together they would retire to bed. Also, that for nearly a whole day they would keep Taylor without food; and allowed, even in the coldest weather, but a shirt and one blanket to cover him. Both of these hardened wretches are now in gaol in this town awaiting their trial.

THE DEPRESSION IN NEW YORK.—While in the social world in New York all is gaiety, extravagance and thoughtlessness, such is not the state of feeling in the commercial circles. In the money article of the leading journal it is said:

"The feeling in commercial circles has been painfully depressed to-day, and the greatest uneasiness prevails with regard to the army of the Potomac. In evidence of this feeling, gold advanced this morning to 155 and exchange to 171. It is idle to disguise the fact that the political and military situation has filled the public mind with distrust and alarm. Until the effect of the recent changes in the army has been ascertained, no pecuniary negotiations of any consequence can be consummated."

An organized band of young thieves has just been broken up in Paris. The captain was a precocious youth of thirteen, named Houssin; his lieutenant was about the same age, and the members were boys and girls of ages ranging from thirteen to seventeen years. The police caught the whole party, gave up six of them, who were under sixteen, to their parents, and the leaders were consigned to the House of Correction, there to remain until they attain their majority.

The war statisticians are figuring up the following losses in the various engagements during the year:—Confederates, killed, wounded and missing, 193,707. Union, killed and wounded, 132,819. Total, 236, 526.

—Three Southern young ladies, in their enthusiasm for the war, announced through the columns of the Raleigh, N. C., Standard that they will provide clothes for three soldiers as long as the war continues, if the soldiers whom they select will consent to marry them when the war is over.

Fifty damsels sent out from England to Vancouver's Island, had, upon arrival, to be housed in a government building and a guard put over them, in order to protect them from the rush of amorous swains. They were all soon disposed of; but whether by lot, or to the highest bidders, does not appear. The Vancouver paper clamors for more, but prefers dairy maids to governesses.

The common council of New York has adopted an ordinance appropriating $1,000,000 to aid in strengthening the fortifications of that port.

In consequence of the still advancing price of paper, the N. Y. Herald says that it is more than probable that the daily papers will be obliged to add another cent or two to their present prices.

The Tribune states that, with one hundred and twenty-five presses, the Treasury Department are now just able to print enough green-backs in two thirds of a day to pay the expenses of the Government for one day.

Marriage by Telegraph.

Yesterday morning a marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. Wm. Carr, chaplain of the 44th regiment of N. Y. S. V., under rather novel circumstances, the clergyman and bride-groom being in the city of Washington and the bride in the rail go of Fulton during the ceremony. The bridegroom is a member of the 44th regiment, and circumstances prevented his being in Fulton to fulfil his engagement with the young lady.

By mail, the parties arranged to have the ceremony performed through the medium of the electric telegraph. The day and hour having been arranged, the parties repaired to the telegraph office at the respective stations, the fair bride was accompanied by a female friend as bridesmaid. The gentlemanly operator at Fulton officiated as bridesman. The first dispatch over the wires relating to the affair was from Washington, inquiring if the lady was present? An answer in the affirmative was returned, and the ceremony proceeded. Three messages were sent to Fulton and two transmitted to Washington, and the ceremony was completed. The last message from Washington was the declaration of the clergyman pronouncing the parties man and wife. We doubt not but the ceremony performed is as binding, legally and otherwise, as if the parties were present in propria personæ before the clergyman. Some years since a similar occurrence took place, and it was decided in a court of justice that the marriage was valid. We cannot see why it should not be. Business contracts by telegraph are binding upon the parties, and why should not a marriage contract be? Of course, a record of the ceremony will be preserved in the telegraph office for future reference.—Oswego Times.

Shocking Accident to Paroled Federal Prisoners.

The Richmond Examiner of the 28th ult. says:

"Between four and five o'clock yesterday morning, while upwards of one thousand exchanged prisoners were being conducted from the Confederate States prison to the Petersburg depot, for transportation to City Point, the foot-bridge spanning the canal at Eight street gave way while the train was passing over it, and sent down a crash of ten feet of water, carrying with it all upon the bridge, from fifty to eighty in number. The utmost excitement at once opened among the prisoners, and the members of several companies of the city battalion, who had been under guard, exerted themselves strenuously to rescue them, but the morning being dark and cloudy, their efforts were attended with but partial success. On calling the roll, twenty-seven of the prisoners were found to be missing, or, at least, not answering to their names.—Two of the guards, members of Captain Meade's company, (E,) city batallion, were also missing, and it is feared they have shared the fate of the prisoners.

"Notwithstanding the lamentable mishap, the prisoners were sent to Petersburg by the regular train. During the morning throngs of persons assembled on both banks of the basin and at the bridge to witness the preparations for recovering the bodies from the bone. At the suggestion of coroner Sanxay, the outlets were opened for the purpose of drawing the water off; but the basin emptied slowly, and up to 5 o'clock, p. m., yesterday, but three bodies had been discovered, two of these Union prisoners and the third the body of a Confederate soldier that had evidently been in the water a month or more.

"It is stated that the fallen bridge was constructed after a pattern introduced from Cincinnati, Ohio."

The Blockade.

The question whether the blockade at Charleston has or has not been raised, has been keenly debated by the press during the past week. On the 31st of last month, two iron-clad boats belonging to the Southern Confederacy, moved out of Charleston harbor to the ground occupied by the blockading squadron. The time was night, and the weather was thick and hazy. It was easy, therefore, for the Confederate boats to get within reach of their prey all but unperceived. In these circumstances one of the assailing rams pounced on the Federal gunboat Mercedita, which was soon disabled and partially sunk. Another Federal vessel, was next attacked—twenty of her men killed at one shot, and twenty more wounded. She managed, however, by the aid of another Federal vessel to make her escape in a crippled condition. The rest of the Union fleet appear upon the back of this performance to have taken to their heels, for the harbor and its surroundings were entirely cleared of the blockaders during at least the remainder of the day; and the Foreign Consuls were enabled to certify to the fact, by being conveyed in a Confederate vessel far beyond the usual blockading ground.

This, we take it, is one of the most serious disasters that has yet overtaken the Federal cause. There can be no doubt of the fact that the Federal boats were driven off by a superior force. Nor can there be any doubt that such compulsory removal constitutes a raising of the blockade as far as Charleston is concerned. In this view of the case, then, the Federal Government will be reduced to the necessity of giving new notice of its closing of the port. The time required for giving such notice is sixty days. Within that period it is easy to see what immense gains the Confederates would make—first, in the exportation of cotton, and next, in the importation of the material of war and supplies generally. We see every reason to believe that France and Great Britain will claim the notice which international law authorises, and the chances are that the ultimate issue of the contest will be more effected by this unwonted incident than by all mixed fighting from Bull Run to Vicksburgh.—Scottish American Journal.

I, PERCY MATTHEW DOVE, OF LIVERPOOL, in the said Kingdom, Manager and Actuary of the Royal Insurance Company, do solemnly and sincerely declare that the annexed statement compiled in compliance with the provisions of a Act of the Legislative Council and Assembly of Canada, sanctioned 19th May, 1860, entitled "An Act in relation to Fire Insurance Companies not incorporated within the limits of the Province," contains a full, true and correct account of the Assets of the said Company, as existing, and available on the Thirtieth day of June, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, and also of the liabilities of the said Company, as ascertained at the said date. And I make this solemn declaration, conscientiously believing the same to be true, and by virtue of the provisions of an Act made and passed in the sixth year of the reign of His late Majesty King William the Fourth, entitled an Act to repeal an Act of the present session of Parliament entitled an Act for the more effectual abolition of oaths and affirmations taken and made in various departments of the State, and to substitute Declarations in lieu thereof, and for the more entire suppression of voluntary and extra judicial oaths and affidavits, and to make other provisions for the abolition of unnecessary on the.

PERCY M. DOVE.

The above Declaration was solemnly made and subscribed by the said Percy Matthew Dove, at Liverpool, aforesaid, this fifteenth day of January, one thousand, eight hundred and sixty-three,

Before me,

PROSPECTUS

OF THE

SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL;

A FIRST CLASS FAMILY NEWSPAPER,

DEVOTED TO THE

Principalities of Scottish Literature & News.

SIXTH YEAR.

The Sixth Volume of the SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL commenced January 1, 1863, each year completing a complete volume of convenient size for binding; and each number containing a most entertaining and instructive repertory of reading matter, calculated to interest all readers of Irish origin. The SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL, though decidedly international in its constant efforts to promote peace and prosperity between the people of Great Britain and America is yet emphatically Scottish in its copious records of all events concerning in Scotland that can be of the least interest to natives of that country residing in America; and to this "news from home" is added, weekly, a summary of general intelligence from England, Ireland and other parts of the world.

A distinguishing feature of the SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL is its regular republication—verbatim et literatim—of the "leading articles" of the prominent British newspapers and other periodicals upon the most important topics of the day. This feature is a unique one, and has been found very complete in to the people of the United States and British North America, and occupies a long awaited desideratum on the American Continent. In reference to the "reflections" of the SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL it is a significant fact that the British press frequently acknowledging their intrinsic truth and force by copiously extracting from our columns and declaring that the SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL is the most able and interesting paper published in America. A concise weekly summary is also given of the principal items of American news, and a similar narrative of events transpiring in the various British Provinces.

In the forthcoming volume of the SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL, increased space will be devoted to the literary department as in the publication of serial tales, and sketches, vividly illustrating the customs habits, sentiments, and general characteristics of the people of Scotland; each tale emanating from the pen of an author of celebrity. As to stories, particular care will be exercised in the choice of original poetry, composed by writers of acknowledged genius and purity of thought, resident here or abroad. The third number of the new volume contains the commencement of a deeply interesting prize tale, entitled

RACHEL NOBLE.

The Directors of the Scottish Temperance League gave a prize of One Hundred Guineas for this tale. The Rev. H. L. Walker, Rev. A. Johnson, Rev. James Hill, Rev. William Blair, and Rev. John Brown Johnston, D. D., acted as adjudicators, and after carefully perusing Eighty-three Manuscripts, awarded the prize to BRUCE EDWARDS. This tale will prove to be one of the most interesting ever published and will be appreciated by all classes of readers.

TAKE NOTICE,

THAT the following Memorial will be presented to the Governor in Council, at the present Sessions of Parliament:—

TO HIS EXCELLENCY THE RIGHT HONOURABLE CHARLES STANLY VISCOUNT MONK, GOVERNOR OF BRITISH NORTH AMERICA ETC. IN COUNCIL:

May it please your Excellency:

The Memorial of the Municipal Council of the Township of Galway, in the County of Peterboro', assembled, would respectfully set forth, that the settlement of the new Township of Galway, Snowden and Minden, &c., are very much impeded by parties buying up large tracts of Lands for the sake of the timber, and leaving the lands unimproved; and the Municipal Council pray that the Honorable the Crown Land Commissioner will be pleased to instruct the Crown Land Agent at Bobcaygeon to take steps to compel parties having purchased lands in all new Townships north of Bobcaygeon either to settle upon and improve the said lands or dispose of them to actual settlers, with as little delay as possible, and it will benefit and improve the country very much. And your Memorialists as in duty bound will ever pray, &c.

EMPLOYMENT.

THE Undersigned has, for several years past, been employing a number of hands, which has yielded him at the rate of three thousand Dollars per annum, and is now willing to teach it to others. The business is a highly useful and genteel one, adapted both to children and old people, and that any person of ordinary capacity, young or old, male or female, can acquire with a few hours' practice, and by which they can secure very handsome income. Several young ladies who have received instructions from me, both in New York State and Canada West, are earning at the rate of $15 per week by it, and there is no reason why any one else cannot do the same. Parties, from [illegible] to [illegible] years of age, who [illegible] to learn the [illegible] can do so by addressing [illegible] Peterborough, and enclosing [illegible] Dollars, which will be returned to them if not satisfactory. Those who prefer it, can have instructions by letter, for Five Dollars, which will also contain every particular relative to the carrying it on so that it will be highly profitable, if not more so than the above instructions. A good trade is established in which it is often paid have sometimes received as high as $200, for one week; it is generally by a single individual. I would state further that $3.50 or $3 will buy everything that is necessary to commence the business with, and the articles will not get almost anywhere, in city or country, if preferred, and the [illegible] will be forwarded [illegible] Dec. 11 1862. 51-3m.

ANNUAL MEETING

INVESTIGATION REPORT - - DECLARATION OF BONUS.

THE sixty-sixth annual Meeting of this Company was held within the Royal Hotel, Aberdeen, on Friday, the 10th April.

Sir [illegible] Bannerman, Bart., of [illegible], Chairman of the Ordinary Directors, in the Chair.

There was submitted to the meeting—

1.—Report by the Directors, which, on the motion of the Chairman, was cordially and unanimously approved of and adopted.

2.—The Balance Sheet for the past year, with detailed states relative thereto, duly certified as correct, in terms of the Act of Incorporation, by the Chairman and Manager, and also by the Auditor.

There was also laid on the Table the various Valuation States in connection with the Quinquennial Investigation into the state of the Company's affairs, as at 31st January, 1863.

The following particulars derived from the Balance Sheet and States beforementioned, show the results of the operations of the Company for the past year:—

Amount proposed for Life Assurance during the year, contained in 1189 Proposal £454,835 0 0

Amount of Proposals accepted, and for which 981 Policies were issued 359,680 0 0

ANNUAL PREMIUMS or said Policies 11,170 1 0

CLAIMS BY DEATH including BONUSES on PARTICIPAT ON POLICIES, and also declaring Sums recovered from other Offices under guarantees 12,999 1 0

TOTAL SUM Assured under 4,750 current LIFE POLICIES 1,553,95 0 0

TOTAL ACCUMULATED FUNDS 313,563 3 3

TOTAL ANNUAL REVENUE 96,156 4 4

With reference to the recent investigation into the state of the Company's affairs, as at 31st January last, the Report stated that from the principles of valuation and the details thereof, had been submitted to James John Downes, Esq., Actuary to the Economic Life Office in London, a gentleman well known as one of the highest authorities on such subjects in the kingdom, and had received his entire approval, as having been made on just and sound principles, and accurately carried out as certified in his report to the Directors, which formed part of the Appendix to their Report. This step the Directors considered could not fail to give the utmost confidence—both to the shareholders and the Policyholders—in the soundness and correctness of the valuation.

During the Quinquennial period, the claims by death, including the bonus additions which had been paid, and which had been considerably under the number that might have been expected from the Mortality Tables on which the Office rates are based, amounting to £93,975 6s 9d.

In valuing the Policies, each had been separately calculated, and nett premiums had only been used, thus leaving a surplus of annual revenue of £11,427 10s 7d., to meet future expenses and to form a source of profit for next investigation. The total amount of claims by death paid since the commencement of the Company, was £211,821 4s.

The Securities held by the Company were in a satisfactory position, and had been recently carefully scrutinized in detail by the Directors.

In conclusion, the Directors congratulated both the Proprietors and the Assured on the high position which the Company now occupied in the estimation of the public, and on the encouraging prospect of its business operations for the future.

DECLARATION OF BONUS.

From the profits realised on the Life business, a retrospective Bonus of £1 1s 6d per cent per annum for the Quinquennial period was declared, on the sums originally assured under all Participating Policies, increased by the previous additions thereto; also a further prospective Bonus of £1 per cent per annum, on the amount of the Policies with said Bonuses, on all such of said Policies as may become claims by Death previously to the 31st January, 1867.

It will be observed, that this rate of Bonus is equivalent in the case of our older Policies to £1 14s per cent per annum on the original sums assured; that the total additions to the sum assured, now vested, are equal to 33 per cent on the sum assured; and that in the younger ages the additions amount to upwards of 18 per cent of the premiums paid.

Statement showing the Progress of the Company's Business during the Quinquennial Period, ending 31st January, 1863:

Year ending 31st January.	Amounts proposed for Assurance.	Amount of New Policies Issued.	No. of Policies Issued.	New Annual Premiums.	Total Revenue in each year.	Accumulated Funds.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN!

The Best Mechanical Paper in the World.

EIGHTEENTH YEAR.

VOLUME VIII—NEW SERIES.

A NEW VOLUME of this popular Journal commences on the first of January. It is published weekly, and every number contains sixteen pages of useful information, and from five to ten original engravings of new inventions and discoveries, all of which are prepared expressly for its columns.

TO THE MECHANIC & MANUFACTURER.

No person engaged in any of the manufacturing pursuits should think of "doing without" the Scientific American. It costs but six cents per week; every number contains from six to ten engravings of new machines and inventions, which cannot be found in any other publication.

TO THE INVENTOR.

The Scientific American is indispensable to every inventor, as it not only contains illustrated descriptions of nearly all the best inventions as they come out, but each number contains a Official List of the Claims of all the Patents issued from the United States Patent Office during the week previous; thus giving a correct history of the progress of invention in this country. We are also receiving, every week, the best scientific journals of Great Britain, France and Germany; thus placing in our possession all that is transpiring in the mechanical science and art in these old countries. We continue to transfer to our columns copious extracts from the most valuable of whatever we may deem of interest to our readers.

A pamphlet of instruction as to the best mode of obtaining Letters Patent on new inventions is furnished gratis on application to

Messrs. Munn & Co. have acted as Patent Solicitors for more than seventeen years, in connection with the publication of the Scientific American, and they refer to 20,000 patentees for whom they have done business.

No charge is made for examining sketches and models of new inventions, and for advising inventors as to their patentability.

CHEMISTS, ARCHITECTS, MILLWRIGHTS & FARMERS

The Scientific American will be found a most useful journal to them. All the new discoveries in the science of chemistry are given in its columns, so that the practical architect and carpenter are not overlooked; all the new inventions and discoveries appertaining to these pursuits being published from week to week. Useful and practical information for farming, to the interests of millwrights and mill-owners will be found in the Scientific American, which information they can rely upon obtain from no any other source. Subjects in which farmers are interested will be found discussed in the Scientific American, on the best improvements in agricultural implements being illustrated in its columns.

TERMS.—To mail subscribers: Three Dollars a year, or One Dollar for four months.—The volumes commence on the first of January and July. Specimen copies will be sent gratis to any part of the country.

Western and Canadian money or Post-office stamps taken at par for subscriptions. Canadian subscribers will please to remit twenty-five cents extra on each year's subscription to prepay postage.

FINKLE & LYON

SEWING MACHINE COMPANY,

538 Broadway, New York.

TO parties little acquainted with the Finkle & Lyon Sewing Machines the careful perusal of the Company's Circular is specially commended. This circular can be had on application It is very specific, and will be found highly instructive, having been prepared with much care and we will abide by all statements therein made.

The following brief quotation is characteristic of the entire Circular:

"This Machine is better adapted than any other Sewing Machine in market to the frequent changes and almost endless variety of sewing required in a family; for it will sew from one to twenty-five thicknesses of cloth without stopping, and make every stitch perfect. Will sew from the finest gauze to the heaviest cloth, and even the sinuous [illegible] leather, without changing the feed needle or tension, or making any adjustment of machine whatever.

"This have we successfully overcome the most difficult point in the Sewing Machine art. It was to us a long triumph. It finally came we now say, "No other Machine combines with it in this respect. Hence, have we uniformly, almost without exception—taken the highest premium, wherever the Machine has been properly exhibited in competition with other first class Sewing Machines. Hence it is that we are able to offer the following guarantee, viz.: "We warrant every Machine we sell to give entire satisfaction to the user. Never a Machine in the market, or money refunded." We never sell a Machine on any other terms. The guarantee is as reliable as the note of any business man in the land. For more than five years have we relied upon such facts for the reputation of our Machines; and without a single travelling agent in the field, scarcely a neighborhood on the continent where the Machine is not favourably known. We prefer such a reputation to one based on mere "talking points," as they are technically called in the trade. Hence we make but one kind of stitch, viz. the look-stitch, alike on both sides, requiring only one-third the thread of other kinds of stitches.

N. B.—Local Agents wanted in every county throughout the West. ☞ Special inducements offered.

Poetry.

Maud and Claude.

BY A. B. GRUBB.

Maud was fair, and never fairer
Dwelt on earth or graced mankind;
Fair in form, in mind still fairer,
Chaste, affectionate, refined:
Beautiful, in word and motion—
Lovely as the spirits above—
Full of kindly, chaste emotion—
Gentle as a little dove.

Bred in affluence and splendor,
Yet as simple as a child;
Affable, and kind and tender—
As an angel, sweetly mild;
Wit, intelligence and beauty
She possessed in high degree:
High she aimed—and high the duty
She believed her destiny.

Claude she loved—not as a brother
But more ardent, tender, soft—
Loved him as she loved no other,
Ne'er expressed—experienced oft:
Her whole heart—and such a treasure
Rarely is man's lot below—
On her lover, without measure,
Ardently did she bestow.

As for Claude, could he be other
Than a noble, high-toned youth,
Thus beloved more than a brother,
And by one so full of truth?
One of earth's best, fairest creatures,
As an angel pure and kind;
Peerless, in her mind and features,
Goodness, sweetness, grace combined?

Loved, beloved, and, loving, knowing
That one love inspired the twain,
In Love's graces they were going—
Confident 'twould aye remain,
But, alas! this foul rebellion
Meant our country to defile—
This accursed horrid treason,
Works of slavocrats most vile.

To extend the "institution"
So "peculiar"—in all wrong—
Rarely stirs ok our Constitution,
Freedom, Flag and Union strong;
And have spread war's desolation,
With its horrors, oh! so rife!
And our once proud, happy nation
Cursed with fratricidal strife.

'Mong the first of patriot soldiers,
Burning with this sore disgrace,
Rose our hero, Claude the lover,
To resist that treason base,
'Mong the brave, than him a braver
Never walked or drew a blade;
And when country called to save her,
Promptly he the call obeyed.

Left his peaceful avocations,
Bade his Maud a sad adieu;
And exchanged home's sweet relations,
Wars dread perils to pursue,
Gallantly he rushed to battle,
And for freedom drew his sword;
'Mid the carnage, war and rattle,
Oft his voice was clearly heard.

In commanding tones, tho' blandly,
"Forward!" "steady!" "fire, boys, fire!"
"Charge upon them!" "bravely! grandly!"
"Freedom's flag will you inspire!"
But, the conflict fiercely raging—
Oh! it chokes my voice to tell—
Claude, our hero, still engaging,
Pierced with bullets, nobly fell.

Fell upholding Freedom, Union—
Fell, defending our loved Flag
'Gainst the hordes of foul disunion,
Who in mire its folds would drag.
This dread news was to Maud—the token
Of a life of pain and woe—
Was, by friends, as gently broken
As 'twere possible to do.

But, her grief, no earthly being
Can its magnitude portray—
Maud, sweet Maud, and the All-Seeing
Know 'tis wasting her life away.
Still she lives, but all love's sweetness
In another channel flows—
Spending life with love and meekness
In relieving others woes.

Miscellaneous.

Lesson in Composition.

Dr. Murray pursued his collegiate course at Williamstown, during the presidency of that acute and accomplished critic, the Rev. Dr Griffin. In his fourth year he was brought into more immediate contact with the venerable president, whose duty it was to examine and criticise the written exercises of the graduating class. Dr. Murray, when a young man, and even down to the day of his last illness, wrote a free, round and beautiful hand; and his exercise at this time, which was to undergo the scrutiny of his venerated preceptor, had been prepared with uncommon neatness and accuracy. Dr. Griffin was accustomed to use a quill pen with a very broad nib.

Introduced into his august presence, young Murray, with becoming diffidence, presented his elegantly written piece for the ordeal. The discerning eye of the president passed quickly over the first sentence, and with a benignant look, he turned to his pupil, and said in his peculiar way '—

"Murray, what do you mean by this first sentence?"

Murray answered, blushingly,

"I mean so and so, sir."

"Then say so, Murray," and at the same time drew his pen through line after line, striking out about one-third of it.

Having carefully read the next sentence, the venerable critic again inquired:—

"Murray, what do you mean by this?"

He tremblingly replied,

"Doctor, I mean so and so."

"Please just to say so," striking out again about one-half of the beautifully written page.

In this way, with his broad nib, (which made no clean mark) he proceeded to deface the nice clean paper of the young collegian, so that the close of the exercise, the erasure nearly equalled all that remained of the carefully written manuscript.

This trying scene was not lost upon young Murray. He considered it one of the most important events of his collegiate course. It taught him to think and write concisely; and when he had anything to say, to say it, in a simple, direct, and intelligible manner.

Indeed, much that distinguished him, as one of our most vigorous and pointed writers, may be attributed to that early lesson, "Say so, Murray."

"'Arry, 'op hup, and go down to Mr. 'Arkins and hask 'im if 'e 'as a bit hof hash hor hask to make a 'anmer 'andle."

Our wonderful Revenue.

(From the London Christian World.)

People naturally expected to learn from the annual Revenue Tables when they should be published that the National income had fallen off considerably this Cotton Famine year. They were, therefore, by no means prepared for the gratifying intelligence that so far from this being the case, there is an actual increase upon the year's receipts over the year of 1861 of £2,392,579, a sum very little short of two millions and a-half; and a total revenue of £70,996,129; only some two thousand short of seventy-one millions. As the Times puts it, this is not a casual, or a sudden, or an accidental result. It is the aggregate growth of a steady, unwavering increase. If we compare the Quarterly Returns of 1862 with those of 1861, we find, with one exception, which amounts only to a few pounds, that they have a proper relation to each other. Every quarter in each of the two years rises or falls, when compared with other quarters, according to the wholesome periodical vibrations occasioned by the usual trade causes. There is simply an increase as compared with the quarter of the previous year. It is not a lumped sum all in one quarter, and arising from some accidental cause, like Chinese ransome money or the happy recovery of a bad debt; it is all ordinary income, such as we may expect to get again next year, and we may hope to get again with a further increase. Nor does this increase arise from a prosperity which has been in action during the early portion of the year, but which is now yielding to unpropitious causes. The last quarter was the best of all. In the last quarter there was a total of £1,310,889 over the corresponding of 1861, and in that quarter even the Excise, so sensitive a measure of the comforts of the people, gave an excess of £104,000. We cannot, indeed, boast of our Excise during the whole year. It has felt the influence of the cotton famine, and shown a loss which had to be made up from other sources. But these compensating sources are of the most perennial character. Our customs have grown as though they fattened upon the troubles that vex the world. Upon the year they show an increase of £262,000, being £24,036,000 against £23,774,000 in 1861. What a mighty course of trade these figures mark, and how handsome an increase does this extra quarter of a million show! The Stamps are good for nearly half a million of increase in the year; and the Assessed Taxes, which are entirely a gauge of luxuries, show a small advance upon the year, although a trifling deficiency of £12,000 on the quarter. The miscellaneous sources have been abundant, and have yielded an extra million; and the post-office gives £100,000, which we fear has been too dearly bought. That willing horse which every Chancellor of the Exchequer loves to ride with whip and spur, and which we need hardly say is the Property Tax, has earned this last year an augmented revenue of £1,142,000. It may surely be hoped that under these circumstances the Government will announce upon the meeting of Parliament that it is their determination to propose the remission of some considerable taxes.

An Immoral Brewer.

(From an English Paper.)

Mr. Richard Berridge, the co-respondent in the late extraordinary trial, in Sir Cresswell Cresswell's Court, of Foster v. Foster and Berridge, is so dissatisfied with the verdict that he intends, on the first "motion day" next term, to move for a new trial, or, failing in the application, to appeal to the house of Lords. The action was brought against him by Major Foster for the seduction of his wife, the petitioner claiming £5,000 damages. Mr. Berridge is managing partner in the great brewery firm of Meux and Co., consisting of Sir Henry Meux (a person of unsound mind) Lord Earnest Bruce (father of Lady Meux), and one or two others. He met Mrs. Foster at a boarding-house in Bloomsbury Square, and subsequently visited her at a villa house which she occupied in Heath-cote Street. She had been sent with her children to England, while her husband remained with his regiment at India. The defence of Mr Berridge was, that he had not violated the confidence of the husband, as he had never seen him, and moreover that he (the husband) was not a person entitled to sympathy, or, rather, exemplary damages, as he had himself carried on an intrigue with the wife of a certain Major Ellis. This defence, however, broke down so completely, that the learned counsel who conducted the case for the co-respondent was compelled to abandon it, and Major and Mrs. Ellis, who had come expressly from Malta to meet the allegation, were not called as witnesses. The Jury then found their verdict for the petitioner, giving him the 5,000 which he claimed. This sum, although the largest which has yet been given in the new court, except in the case in which the Marquis of Anglesea was co-respondent, will not materially affect the financial prospects of the seducer, as the share of profits paid to him for the year 1861 by the trustees, who act as receivers over the brewery, amounted to the handsome sum of £13,259. As the evidence taken in course of the trial shows that Mr. Berridge has discharged his victim, Sir Cresswell Cresswell will have power to award the damages so that a portion may go to the husband, a portion for the maintenance of the divorced wife. The latter will, of course, have a claim against her seducer for the maintenance of the child. Mr. Berridge keeps a bachelor's menage in a style of extraordinary elegance and luxry at No. 18, Great Russell Street.

EPITAPH.—The following is the epitaph on a man who was too poor to be buried with his relations in the church of Knaresbridge:—

Here lies I, at the chancel door
Here I lie, because I'm poor;
The further in the more to pay:
Here I lie as warm as they.

TRYING TO THE BASTE.

A Hibernian, fresh from the green Isle, having sufficient means to provide himself with a horse and cart (the latter a kind probably he never saw before), went to work on a public road. Being directed by the overseer, to move a lot of stones near by and deposit them in a gully on the other side of the road. He forthwith loaded his cart, drove up to the place and had nearly finished throwing off his load by hand, when the 'boss' told him that was not the way—he must tilt or dump his load at once.

Paddy replied that he would know better next time.

After loading again he drove to the place, put his shoulder to the wheel and upset the cart, horse, and all, into the gully.

Scratching his head and looking rather doubtfully at his horse below him, he observed—

"Bedad it's a mighty expeditious way, but it must be thryin' to the baste!"

MAKING MERRY.—A New York paper sporting upon the existing frivolity in the Empire City, says: "Last winter, when the cause of the Union was not half so desperate as it is at present, and when the magnitude of the struggle was but imperfectly appreciated, balls, parties, and social enjoyments of almost every kind were suspended, and long faces cultivated. Now that the war has been going on for a couple of years, that exchange is at 160, and that a paper dollar will purchase very little more than half what it formerly did, we have become one of the most dissipated and extravagant of communities. Balls, parties, dinners and weddings take their daily course with as much of the nation was in the enjoyment of undisturbed prosperity and peace. In fact, we have never known a winter in which social gayety of every sort was pushed to greater lengths than in this.

Owing to the unprecedented demand for iron ships, and the high reputation Liverpool has attained for building iron sailing vessels, the yards during the past year have been in greater activity than was ever known before. This demand is attributable to the fact that iron ships can now be built at considerably less cost than wooden ones, and in point of durability much superior. The formation of an underwriters' association at Liverpool to class iron vessels on their merits for periods varying up to 22 years has had the effect of causing Lloyd's to alter their rules, which had hitherto militated against progress in iron ship-building.

The Lumber Trade and Settlement.

We (Ottawa Citizen) have much pleasure in complying with the request to publish the following letter. The subject on which it treats is one in which every one, in this section of the country at least, is largely interested. The writer, too, is a gentleman who, from his position at the head of the leading lumbering firm in Canada, necessarily speaks with an authority which must attain attention and respect. Much difference of opinion may, and no doubt does, attain regard to the views advanced; but, nevertheless, the suggestions offered, in order that the facts may be indisputably demonstrated, are so simple and practical that the duty of the Government in the premises does not appear to admit of doubt:—

OTTAWA, 10th February, 1863.

HONORABLE W. MCDOUGALL,
Commissioner of Crown Lands, Quebec.

SIR,—

The settlement of the Waste Lands of the Province, taken in connection with the preservation and economical use of its valuable Pine Forests, must be admitted by all as forming subjects of the first importance, and claiming from Government its most careful and judicious superintendance and management. Also, that correct and reliable information is indispensably necessary to enable those who control this important department of the Government to conduct it in such a manner as to promote the best interests of the Province at large no one will deny.

From my knowledge of a large extent of the country where lumbering operations have been carried on for many years, and where they are still continued, I have for a length of time been perfectly convinced that the cause which the Government has been pursuing in opening up Free Grant Roads, and forcing settlement into the Pine regions by undue encouragement, is an ill-judged and really suicidal one, and for these obvious and sufficient reasons.

The country as a whole into which settlement is being forced—on the Ottawa and Trent at least—I can safely affirm from my own observation, and the reports of others in whose judgment and truthfulness I have every confidence, is unfit for agricultural purposes, with some exceptions of small isolated spots, and few even of these composed of really good soil.

Upon these barren lands a number of settlers, within the last few years, have been induced to enter, principally in consequence of representations made by Government and its agents respecting the nature and quality thereof, they being represented as generally possessing good soil, well suited for Agricultural purposes; whereas they are, in fact, with few exceptions, composed of masses of rock where the plough cannot be used, or of gravel or sand possessing none of the substances necessary to produce grain or other crops after the decayed leaves and slight remains of vegetable matter which covers the surface is exhausted, as is generally the case after one or two years of cultivation. Quite a number of the present settlers, as also of those who have left their locations went in when the ground was covered with snow, so that they could not easily see what the soil was composed of; while many of those from abroad were at first no judges of the qualities of land to enable them to make a wise choice of their location. The result has been just what any one at all acquainted with the country attempted to be settled upon could have predicted. All, or nearly all, become dissatisfied, except, perhaps, a few tavern-keepers—many having left their clearances because of being wealth to make a living thereon—some half starving still cling to the miserable homes with all the necessary means to get away or wait in hopes of finding some one ignorant of the real value they themselves have learned who may be willing to purchase their rights even for a trifle while many of those who do remain on their locations have been compelled to resort to hunting, trapping or keeping small taverns or groggeries along the roads which are travelled for lumbering purposes, or find work with the manufacturers of timber or sawlogs in their neighborhood, to eke out their existence.

[illegible] can possibly result from [illegible] encouraging settlement [illegible] farms and upon [illegible] for agricultural purposes, but on the contrary much evil must arise from time and labour lost, disappointed hopes, and misery suffered by those who settle or attempt to settle upon them—and the Government, which not only spends a large sum of money to bring about this result, but employs agents at home and abroad to encourage settlement upon such lands, must be held responsible for acting in ignorance of the facts; for it cannot be imagined they are acting in bad faith in the matter.

There is, besides, another consideration of great importance to the interests of the country at large, and particularly to many extensive sections of the county and several large cities and towns whose prosperity is now mainly dependent upon the Lumber Trade, which is, that in consequence of settlers being unduly encouraged to enter upon the Pine Lands which require to be cleared off by having the timber thereon the fires which they originate frequently escape from their control and extend great distances into the forests, causing immense destruction of valuable timber, the incalculable consequences of which are the loss of valuable property, and the destruction of the Timber Trade of Canada.

This result some may look upon with indifference, others as a desirable event; but those who entertain such views and opinions cannot have given the matter much consideration, or made themselves acquainted with the facts necessary to form a correct estimate of the importance of the Lumber Trade, and the benefit it confers upon the Province at large, and especially on those sections of country and towns more directly interested in the trade. Take for example the whole valley of the Ottawa, the towns and villages thereon, and the city of Ottawa itself. What has enabled them to attain their present position, and what must they look to for many years to come to sustain them in their progress but to the Lumber Trade? Very few facts need be stated to demonstrate the correctness of this view of the case. Assuming as an average of years the quantity of white Pine to be 13,000 00 cubic feet; of Red Pine, 2,250,000; Quebec Standards and other sawn lumber (which finds its principle market in the United States) at 60,000,000 feet, inch measure, and putting on these what will be admitted as a fair valuation, we had the annual value of the exports of the valley of the Ottawa from Hawkesbury upwards, to be as follows:

White Pine, 13,000,000 cubic feet at 7d.	$1,516,666
Red Pine, 2,250,000 cubic feet at 9d.	337,500
Pine Deals, 2,250,000, Quebec std. hundred of 2,750 superficial feet, inch measure, at $32 per 1000	720,000
Lumber of different descriptions, 60,000,000 superficial feet, inch measure, at $9 per 1,000 feet.	540,000

Together amounting to $3,114,166

Besides a considerable quantity of Tamarac and some Elm timber not included.

Now, apart from this trade, the exports of the whole Ottawa Country, taking it as far back on the south as the Rideau Canal, and the towns situated thereon, consist chiefly of a few barrels of ashes and kegs of butter, with some beef cattle and horses, and a small quantity of furs, the exact value of which I have no means of ascertaining, but it probably does not exceed $400,000 if it comes up to that amount. Admitting all this to be true it may be said that if we had not the Lumber Trade, and were it at an end, the large quantity of farm produce now consumed in that business would find a market elsewhere. No doubt it would for the wheat, flour, beef, and pork now consumed in that trade; but these articles would not yield to the producers prices at all equal to those they now obtain. Instead of obtaining the prices they now do, being about those current in Montreal, freight and charge added, they would have to accept these prices, freight and charge deducted, making a difference against them of not less than $1 per barrel on flour, and $2 per barrel on beef or pork, and in some cases much more, as in the interior of the country the difference would be greater in proportion to the distance from market. Nor is this all. The farmers in Winter, when they can do little else to advantage, now find employment by drawing these articles to where they are required by the lumbermen, and thus obtain increased prices for what they have to dispose of, equal to about $2.50 per day for a man and two horses, which, instead of being idle, must be added as nett profits.

This is, however, but an insignificant part of the advantages which the farmer derives from the Lumber Trade being carried on in his neighborhood; for in large sections of the country he can raise nothing to dispose of except hay and oats, for which he now receives high prices, often as much as 60 and even 80 cents per bushel for oats, and $20 to $30 per ton for hay, which, if brought to market at towns in the older settlements, he could not in many cases dispose of for more than would pay the cost of transport. If so much, at the present rates paid for men and teams in the Timber Trade.

To this some will probably say let the farmers grow wheat, which is of more value and will better support the cost of transport than hay or oats; but to this the answer must be that very little of the country referred to is suited for or capable of growing wheat as a paying crop.

All this, it must be admitted, does not present a very encouraging prospect for the Ottawa and rear of the Trent country as depending purely on agricultural pursuits; but we cannot change the facts by refusing to look at them as they really exist, or by proclaiming them to be what they are not, the sooner the true state of the case is known, and a wise course of policy in recognition the better and more creditable it will be for all concerned.

A HAPPY WOMAN.—Is she not the very sparkle and sunshine of life? A woman who is happy because she can't help it—whose smiles even the coldest sprinkles of misfortune cannot dampen. Men make a terrible mistake when they marry for beauty, for talents, or for style. The smartest wives are those who possess the magic secret of being contented under any circumstances. "Rich or poor, high or low, it makes no difference; the bright little fountain of joy bubbles up just as musically in their hearts. Do they live in a log cabin, the fire that leaps up on its humble hearth becomes brighter than the gilded chandeliers in an Alladin palace. Were the stream of life so dark and unpropitious that the sunshine of a happy face failing on the turbid tide, would not awaken an answering glance? Why, these joyous-tempered people don't know half the good they do.

THE DEBATE ON THE ADDRESS.

The debates this year are characterised as the most tame and insignificant that ever occurred in the Assembly.

Mr. Brown, we remember, used to take up a deal of time in dealing out to the Ministry a denunciation of their evil doings, during the debate on the Address—a practice neither sensible nor praiseworthy. The Opposition now attempt to follow his practice, but they have neither the brains nor the cause that he had to pursue this objectionable course. The lame efforts of the present Opposition, and the contemptible position they place themselves in, will, we hope, have a salutary effect on the House, leading it in future to adopt British practice in getting through with the Address, and reserving their broadsides for a more fitting opportunity. As we hinted last week, sure enough, Mr. M. C. Cameron introduced the very amendment of Mr. McDougall's of last year on the Representation question, which was voted down—yeas 42, nays 64. This division upon one of the most stirring questions in Upper Canada will have a historic interest, and we shall therefore give the amendment, and the yeas and nays. It will be seen that many of the most bitter opponents heretofore of the measure have recorded their vote in favour of it; while many, heretofore its advocates, have voted against it. On both sides the recreants have lost an important weapon of attack and defense, and for all time to come, must stand or fall by their present endorsement. Here is the amendment proposed, and the votes thereon:—

"While we shall give our most respectful attention to any measure for the more fair adjustment of Parliamentary Representation which His Excellency may cause to be laid before us, as well as to any bill for the more equitable settlement of the relation between debtor and creditor, and to afford relief to insolvent debtors, and to any other measures of public utility in relation to the administration of justice, to the registration of titles, and to the law respecting patents for inventions, which may be submitted for our consideration—we must express our surprise that his Excellency has not been advised to make allusion to the recent census of this Province, by which the important fact is established that the population of Upper Canada exceeded that of Lower Canada in the month of February, 1861, by not less than 285,427 souls; that as the excess of population in Upper Canada was only 61,773 at the taking of the census in 1852, it is evident that the disproportion is becoming greater every year; that the continuance of a system which gives to the two sections an equal number of representatives in the Legislature, is, in view of those facts, manifestly unjust and fraught with great danger to the peace and good government of the country; that we therefore deeply regret that his Excellency has not been advised to recommend for our adoption some measure for securing to this large population in Upper Canada their rightful share of the Parliamentary representation and their just influence in the Government."

A division on this motion was then taken, when there appeared—for it 42, against it 64.

At the division, 10 members were absent and one seat was vacant.

The next move was the amendment of J. H. Cameron:—

Mr. J. H. CAMERON then moved:—"That the words 'in each section of the Province,' in the second line, be omitted, and that after the words 'before us' in the third line, the following be inserted:—'which, while providing for such an increased representation in the House as is demanded by the increased population of Upper Canada, will also preserve the federal character of the existing union, by maintaining an equal number of elected representatives from each section of the Province in the Legislative Council.'"

This was also negatived. Yeas 33; Nays 81.

It will be observed that there are three different definition to Representation by Population. The first, that intended by the first amendment, viz: that Upper Canada having an excess of population over Lower Canada of some 300,000 souls should have a corresponding voice in the Legislature and in the Councils of the country—should, in short, have a proportionate larger number of representatives in both Houses. That intended by the resolution of Hon. J. H. Cameron embraces the same idea with regard to the Lower House, but keeps the numbers in the Upper House even—preserving the federal character of the Union thereby. That intended in the Speech from the Throne may refer merely to adjusting the Representation by equalizing the electoral districts in proportion to numbers better than at present. Thus the towns of Cornwall, Brockville and Niagara would be disfranchised, and annexed to the Counties they are in, and large Counties would be better represented than now. It is possible, any quite easy, to take up either of these several views and say a great deal in favor of and against each. The chief seat of the vote of the two first in unquestionably in the Upper Province, and the majority there, we should think, are in favour of Representation by Population, pure and simple, without regard to a dividing line between Upper and Lower Canada. The question having become the most prominent one, the Lower Canadians may be induced as a demurrer resort to accept the last one, that of the Hon. J. H. Cameron's. Their national prejudices will suffer if a preponderance of the Legislature is from Upper Canada, and hence they will yield no point they can possibly help that may in any wise jeopardize these.

They have heretofore succeeded well in getting this fearful measure kept out of the house to a great degree. The vote of last week, however, on this question, is a direct warning to them that its adoption is but a question of time, and an unmistakeable sign that it is decreed that numbers, wealth and intelligence will and must be represented.

MUNICIPAL INDEBTEDNESS.

Since the introduction of Municipal Institutions amongst us there has been a proneness of a class of the Municipalities to run into debt. These are Cities, Towns and Counties. Townships and Villages are as a rule more careful and shy of debt.—County Councils being composed chiefly of Township representatives are next to Townships in shyness of increasing the liabilities of the Corporation. Still there are both opportunities and temptations to be extravagant, and an increasing desire exists in these bodies to expend money, to supply which taxation must be increased, or resort must be had to borrowing.

This state of affairs is attributable in part to the number of individuals brought together from remote sections of the County, each of whom having more interest in their own locality than in any other, imagines if he can secure some special benefit for it at the expense of the rest of the County he is a valuable and worthy representative thereof. The people think as he does, and they send him back to play his game over again. This is the result of a narrow, selfish spirit, and may be remedied by selecting men of liberal and just views of their duty to their country as well as to their constituency.

The machinery of the Counties Councils is yearly becoming more complicated and expensive, with very little real benefit to the people at large.

The most ready to seek credit are the Cities and Towns in the Province, the financial history of some of which furnishes a strong argument against our Municipal system. The facilities offered by the famous Municipal Loan Fund have been eagerly seized by several of these to their ruin. The cities of Hamilton, London and Ottawa are sadly in arrears, not only to Government but also to private individuals.

Hamilton seems hopelessly sunk in debt, execution against execution being put in the Sheriff's hands to no avail. Ottawa at the new year had current liabilities unprovided for amounting to..... $18,327
Amount of Executions in Sheriffs hands..... 10,360
Arrears of Municipal Loan Fund in Sheriffs hands '59, '60, '61 24,000
Making a total of..... $52,687,

Rather a formidable deficiency to find itself in in a year. The debt of the City is large. Still the Council are full of hope, ask but time to pay all, and boast that neither debentures nor coupons have been ever protested, but have been faithfully met.

London, like its fellows has a large funded debt, and is a heavy defaulter in the Municipal Loan Fund. Of the Towns we may mention Port Hope and Cobourg as being in any thing but an enviable position. The former, with a population of only some 4,000 souls, owes a million of dollars to the Municipal Loan Fund, being about $250 a head.

The recklessness so common, and the serious consequences entailed on the ratepayers by heavy taxation, call for the candid consideration of all parties interested with a view to the correction of the evils complained of.

Municipalities like individuals should be economical, careful in its outlays, and always keep its current expenses within its receipts.

THE VOTE ON MONDAY NEXT.

At the last meeting of the Council the resolution of Mr. Nicholls was amended, by substituting, sufficient rolling stock for one train a day in lieu of the whole of the rolling stock to be given in custody of a Receiver in case of default. This resolution as amended will be submitted to the electors for their approval or rejection on Monday next. The resolution is printed, as well as the legal opinions of Messrs. Wilson and Eccles, so that the rate-payers will have the matter before them, and it will rest entirely with them. The Council seem about equally divided in their opinion on the subject. Those in favor of the resolution seemed quite prepared to assume the responsibility of passing and acting upon it; those who are against it have sent it to the people. That every effort will be used to induce the rate-payers to reject the resolution by some parties, we believe.

We saw the other day a memorial for signature to the Governor and Legislature not to sanction the proposed measure.

It will be well for those opposing this measure to reflect, that in the event of their succeeding they must assume the responsibility, and be prepared to submit and carry out some scheme for the settlement of this vexed question. There must be no lying still in the matter—we have been long enough quiescent. We want something more than mere promises that we shall get arrears of interest and all our principal. If they are not prepared to substitute some matured, feasible plan to the people, in place of the one now before them, we shall not consider them sincere in their Opposition. And should they fail, they may depend upon it they will be reminded of their present conduct for all time to come. Under all the circumstances we believe it to be to the interest of the rate-payers to adopt the compromise of Mr. Covert. If they reject it, they must proceed for litigation, and when a municipality gets into the hands of the lawyers, they will take good care to figure it well. A fearful outlay of money in the first place, and if we succeed in our suit, we may possibly find we have got hold of an elephant, which we shall be only too glad for some one to accept from us gratis.

ENGLAND'S WARS.

From 1683 to 1861 England was for more than half the time—sixty-seven years—engaged in war. The war of the Spanish succession cost over $300,000,000 in eleven years; the seven years' war cost $[illegible]; the American revolutionary war cost England $680,000,000, and that of the French revolution $2,320,000,000. When at war with Napoleon from 1803 to 1810, England raised by taxes the enormous sum of $3,655,000,000, and by loans the further sum of $1,940,000—an average of over $1,322,000 per day. It has been said that for ninety days before the battle of Waterloo, she spent an average of $5,000,000 per day. The people of these countries are still overburdened with taxes, and the poor people have a slim chance to advance to wealth and position."

The above statement, which we first saw in an American paper, is not correct in more particulars than one. The war of the French Revolution from 1792 to 1816 cost England more than $3,100,000,000. From 1803 to 1810 England did not, could not, raise by taxes the sum stated above of $3,655,000,000. This would be over $600,000,000 annually, or over £121,000,000. In 1792 the debt of England stood at £239,663,421. In twenty-three years after, in 1816, the funded and unfunded debt was £861,039,049—the maximum point to which it ever reached. It stands now at about £805,000,000, about $4,000,000,000, and involves an annual charge of £28,204,299, or about $140,000,000, as interest.

To show the absurdity of the statement that England raised so large an amount of taxes in so short a time, let any one figure it up and he will find the average per day is much higher than stated above, and more than sufficient to have paid for all the war expenses. The small sum put down as borrowed is all wrong. The debt increased largely during the seven years. The American debt is piling up pretty fast, and our neighbours must ease off a little in twitting us as to high taxation. England has a large debt, but is funded, and it only requires interest at three and a half per cent. The United States debt involves from six to seven 20 per cent interest—a marked difference in favor of England.

THE AMERICAN BANKRUPT LAW.

A Bill is now before the Senate in Washington to enable the creditor to collect his just debts, and to relieve the unfortunate debtor when he gives up his all. It is passing strange that such a large commercial nation has not such a law. It is bad enough that we in Canada should be as we are, but worse for them. We sincerely trust that a good, just and merciful Bankrupt Act may be found on our Statute book the present year. On the subject of the proposed law in the Union, and of a Bankrupt law in general, one of the Editors of the New York Independent thus writes:

"What is done for the passage of this beneficent and humane measure must be done quickly. Those friendly to it should address members of Congress immediately—without the loss of a single day. Senator Foster's bill, now before the Senate, it is believed, will satisfy both the debtor and creditor interests. We want a law, like that of all other commercial nations, which shall be a fixture upon our statute-books; —a law which will enable our merchants to collect their Southern debts;—a law which will override all Southern stay-laws; —a law which will protect the honest but unfortunate debtor;—a law which will severely punish all rascality;—and, in a word, a law which this great commercial nation must have, if it would make available its entire industrial strength, its commercial and financial power. Secessionists South oppose the measure, for it would be a disturber of their notions in regard to repudiation. Their allies at the North don't want such a law, for the same reason, for it would coerce the dear rebels to disgorge their property, and make them pay their honest debts.

"We challenge any sane man who believes in the Savior's Golden Rule, in justice and in humanity, in considering the poor and the unfortunate, in Samaritan kindness, to those who cannot help themselves; who hates oppression, black or white; who is willing to show mercy as well as to receive mercy; who prays, "Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors"—we ask any such man to stand up, and, remembering his accountability to act for the good of his fellows, produce one valid sensible, Christian argument—one which will stand before the bar of his own conscience and the bar of God—why, when an honest man is willing, under oath, to surrender all his property to pay his debts, he should not be "set free." We want such Congressional intervention, now, as will permit an honest creditor to clear himself from the clutches of Shylock & Co., who, without the gentle coercion of a national enactment, would be likely to "hold the debt over him to all eternity,"—to use the vernacular of that special order of our fellow-citizens."

THE 25th Anniversary of the Peterboro Branch Bible Society was held on Wednesday, the 18th instant, in the Rev. Mr. Douglas' Church. The services were of a very interesting character, and the large assembly present seemed pleased with the exercises of the meeting. The Rev. Dr. Thornton, the Agent of the Upper Canada Bible Society, gave some very interesting details of that Institution, as well as of the Parent Society, and of the work of the distribution of the Bible in India, France and Italy, which were listened to with evident satisfaction—the address throughout was excellent. The Report of the Treasurer and Depository showed that the Society's issues have fallen short of the preceding year's issues by 570 copies, owing chiefly to not having a Collector, the number issued being only 397 copies. The subscriptions for the year amounted to only about £45, —a great falling off from preceding years. Still the friends of the Bible here are not discouraged, and the conviction grows stronger that the extensive circulation of the Scriptures throughout the world is increasing the happiness of the human family, and constitutes the peculiarity and glory of our age.

MISSIONARY MEETING.

A Missionary Meeting, in connection with the Wesleyan Methodist Congregation worshipping in the Village of Warsaw, was held in the building of the Presbyterian Church there, on Wednesday evening, the 11th instant.

Mr. Jas. Renfrew was called to the Chair.

The meeting was addressed by Peter Pearce, Esq., County Warden, by Rev. Mr. Anderson, Minister to the Congregation and Superintendent of the Circuit, and also by Rev. Mr. Sanderson of Belmont. The addresses were brief and to the point, and seemed to give satisfaction to every one present.

The annual General and District Reports showed a progress in the Wesleyan Church, which must have been very gratifying to every friend of Christian progress.

A Collection taken up at the close, amounted in all to over $20.

The proceedings of the evening were considerably enlivened by the delightful and appropriate Music discovered by the Choir, under the able direction of T. Choate, Esq.

After several votes of thanks had been moved and carried, the meeting dispersed. —Com.

Mr. THURLOW WEED.

It is known to many that this able pungent writer has withdrawn from the press after a long and successful connection with the Albany Journal. Several of the leading political ultras have spoken hard of Thurlow because he will not unite with them in their extreme views on public questions.

Mr. Weed thus answers an attack upon him, which appeared first in the Independent. He displays to our thinking more of the statesman than any of his detractors:

"To the Editors of the Commercial Advertiser:

"The Tribune of this morning copies an article from The Independent, in which that journal discovers "a striking likeness" to myself. The gist or argument, of the article is embraced in the following extract:

"'We are sorry to say that New York and Pennsylvania have bred for the last fifty years a generation of most astute politicians of the most unscrupulous and dangerous kind. They have been men without moral convictions. They have lost faith in human integrity. They believe that every man has his price. Such men must as length cease to reckon upon moral convictions as of validity or practical force in the conduct of state and national politics. There can be neither moral principle nor even patriotism in men who have learned to put party above country, and serve the party, even, by employing the worst motives for the accomplishment of the most selfish ends."

"Some three or four years ago, I found myself seated in a Hudson River Railroad car by the side of an intelligent stranger, with whom an agreeable conversation ensued. At Poughkeepsie I learned that this gentleman was Rev. Henry Ward Beecher. The conversation, when resumed, related to the "Maine Law," then pending in our Legislature, Mr. Beecher advocating and I opposing it. He urged it with zeal and fervor as a question of right and duty. I opposed it as inexpedient. He insisted that expediency had nothing to do with questions of conscience. His stand-point was "moral conviction"—mine, common sense. He demanded "total prohibition." I denied the possibility of so restraining a human appetite, and appealed to his common sense in favor of regulating and reforming an inevitable evil. He replied eloquently with arguments which I need not repeat.

"I rejoined, insisting that the ultra temperance views of Messrs. Greeley, Delavan, Gerrit Smith, etc., had already greatly damaged the beneficent temperance reformation inaugurated some years previously, by wiser, if not better philanthropists. He answered that the difference between us was, in effect, that as a Christian, it was his duty to exterminate an evil which has a politician, hoped to modify by temporizing; that pitch, if touched, defiled; and that half way remedies were worse than the disease. I closed the controversy by remarking that results would test the soundness or fallacy of our respective views, asking him to remember that in my opinion the passage of the "Maine Law" would place a dead statute in our archives, and that intemperance, overriding it, would run riot through the state.

The "Maine Law" passed, and may be found in our statute-books. Rev. Dr. Beecher will, perhaps, when his leisure serves, inform either his congregation or the readers of The Independent whether "his moral convictions" demonstrate the superiority, upon a legislative question, of the Divine over the Politician.

The existing rebellion places Rev. Henry Ward Beecher and myself in the same position of antagonism. We differ about the mode of prosecuting the war as radically as we differed about temperance. I have stated, in a series of articles commencing in December, 1860, my detestation of slavery, as the cause of a "monstrous and unnatural" rebellion. No man's zeal, in a vigorous prosecution of the war, exceeds my own; nor his solicitude for the welfare of my country occasioned in others more anxious days or more sleepless nights; nor, under mental pressure, have more hairs turned gray upon any other man's head.

This solicitude is now intensified by the attitude, arrogance, and insolence of Abolition journals, representatives, and lecturers in assuming to discover, in the President's proclamation, a "new policy," and one which converts and perverts the war waged in defense of the Government and Union into a crusade against slavery. I see sure and swift destruction. In Wendell Phillips's avowal that the Abolition motto is "Death to Slavery or the Union," indorsed by The Tribune and Independent, I see, unless the treasonable sentiment be rebuked, a divided North, with two thirds of our people against this fanaticism.

While there is much inviting reply in Rev. Mr. Beecher's article, I will not waste time or paper in noticing what is merely personal. But I desire to make this record: If it comes to be understood that the views and policy of Messrs SUMNER, WENDELL PHILLIPS, WARD BEECHER, etc., etc., obtain in the conduct of the war, it will result in the destruction of our Government and Union, and a triumph for Rebellion and Slavery.

CURLING EXTRAORDINARY.

In conformity with a challenge received from the Otonabee Curling Club, to compete with them in a friendly game at Keene, seventeen members of our Club left here on Tuesday morning last, for that purpose.

On their arrival they were received in the most hospitable and friendly manner by their confrere Curlers of Otonabee, but, like pugilists in the Ring, notwithstanding the friendly shake of the hand, each party seemed determined to do their best in the approaching encounter. After a mutual understanding regarding the rinks, which were decided to be three in number, the game commenced by the firing of a cannon at exactly 2 p. m., with the understanding that the game should continue until 5½ p.m., the termination of the contest again to be announced by the firing of the cannon.

The game continued in the most friendly manner throughout, and ultimately terminated as follows, being a dead lock—neither party being winners:

CONCERT IN PETERBORO.—We have much pleasure in announcing that Mr. W. Philp is about to give a Concert on or about the 10th of March next. This being the first Concert which Mr. Philp has given in Peterboro' for his own benefit, and from the willingness with which he has assisted at every musical effort since his residence in Peterboro, he deserves, and we hope he will be rewarded with a bumper house. From the richness, variety and entire newness of the programme to be performed, as also the rare combination of talent engaged, we have no hesitation in saying that a great musical treat is in store for the music loving portion of the community. Mr. Philp will have the assistance of several of his pupils on the above occasion, and his new Galop will be performed in full Orchestra.

FIRE.—A fire took place in the Village of Norwood, on Saturday morning last, by which the Boot and Shoe shop of Waters & Co. was burnt to the ground. Owing to the very early hour that the fire broke out, there were very few people on the ground until the shop was enveloped in flames. Mr. Robertson's premises which adjoins the store of Waters & Co., had a very narrow escape, and it was only by his friends using their utmost exertions that his building was saved. The shop and stock were insured for $800.

At a meeting of the Grand Officers and Delegates attending the G. O. L. of Central Canada, held at the Hastings House, Peterboro, Bro. M. Bowell P. G. M. in the chair, the following resolution was passed unanimously:—

Moved by John Flannagan, Esq., G. M., and seconded by Geo. C. Ward, Esq., D. G. M.,—That thanks be given to Mr. Hastings, of the Hastings House, Peterboro, for his attention to the members of the Grand Lodge of Central Canada, who have been comfortably and economically entertained at his hotel during the sittings of the Grand Lodge.

The Legislature of Mississippi have passed a Bill providing that not over 3 acres of Cotton shall be planted to a hand under a penalty of $500 per acre, half to the informer. The total amount of cotton purchased by the Confederate Government in the State of Mississippi reaches about 100,000 bales, and more is in negotiation.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—The Brantford Courier says, that a son of Mr. C. Jarvis, Jr., of that Town, accidently shot himself while playing with a large horse pistol, carelessly left loaded by his elder brother. The whole contents of shot remained in the upper part of his thigh, except two or three which came out below. He is only about seven years of age.

THE Amateur Dramatic Company's Entertainment takes place in the Town Hall, to-night, at 8 o'clock.

As the remainder of the proceeds, after defraying expenses, will be handed over for charitable purposes, we hope to see them have a good house.

The Vicksburg Whig of the 9th inst., says the river is overflowing its banks on the Louisiana side. The town of Desoto opposite Vicksburg, is nearly submerged. It was expected that the whole peninsula would soon be under water.

Messrs. E. & H. T. Anthony, of New York, advertise in this weeks issue that they have on hand the card photographs of the Lilliputian wedding party. See advertisement for particulars.

TORONTO MARKETS.—Fall Wheat 92c to 95c. Spring 80c to 84c. Oats 38c to 42c.

THERE has been nothing of any importance from the seat of War for the past week.

We publish to-day, to the exclusion of other matter, the legal opinions of Messrs. Wilson and Eccles. We bespeak for them a careful perusal.

We publish also the first part of a letter from Allan Gilmour, Esq., to the Commissioners of Crown Lands, on the Lumber Trade and Settlements. We shall review it again.

A Communication on Rev. Mr. McKenzie's Lecture is crowded out. If admitted in our columns we must alter the adopted person and number.

Mr. Bodwell, of Mount Elgin, is the Reform candidate selected by the Convention to contest South Oxford at the coming election.

Town Council.

February 23rd, 1863.

The Council met in special session on Monday evening last; present His Worship the Mayor, and Messrs. Toole, Fry, Ormond, Nicholls, Clarton, Dixon, Ryan and Landy.

His Worship stated his reason for calling the Council together, when a letter from Mr. Covert on Railway matters was read.

On motion of Mr. Clarton, and seconded by Mr. Dixon, that a vote of the Ratepayers be taken in each ward, on the 2nd day of March, at the same places where the Municipal Elections were held and by the same Returning Officers on the resolution introduced to the Council by Mr. Nicholls on the 9th instant, and amended as above in reference to our Railway matters. —Carried.

500 copies of Resolution were ordered to be printed.

The Council then adjourned.

Police Court.

Peter Garrity, for selling liquor without license, was fined $50 and costs, which not being paid was sent up for 21 days.

Charles Shanette, for breaking the windows of Madame Pego, was committed to gaol for 14 days.

Ignate Jenkins, for assaulting Mrs. Preston, was fined 50 cents and costs.

John Baker, on Tuesday last, for taking a horse and cutter out of the yard of Mr. Hastings' Hotel, was fined $9 and costs, but in default was committed for 30 days.

For the Examiner.

MR. EDITOR,—In pursuance to my promise, allow me a few more scattered thoughts upon the Village of Hastings.—But, before furthering my remarks, I may intimate to your readers a sad occurrence which has taken place since I wrote my last. The premises occupied by Mr. H. Lye as a Cabinet Manufactory has been destroyed by the ravages of fire, which doubtless will prove a serious drawback to that very enterprising young man, as his all was nearly invested in the same, and whose industry has gained for him quite a fine business. The loss is greater on account of having no insurance either on property or furniture. The loss is estimated at not less than $1,000, which is too much for poor Lye to lose. I am afraid it will prove considerable of a drawback upon the place in the meantime. Some of his best workmen have lost all their tools in the conflagration. It is to be hoped, however, that the public will try, if possible, to assist the young man in regaining his position.

Having taken a rough glance at the various streets in the place, with some of their particular buildings, let us see something of its future prospects, in particular those of a progressive nature.

The buildings now in course of erection are, for the most part, on the Percy side of the river, which is a fine site for a "City." its prospects are good in the mean while. The place possesses a fine Church, which for the present is used by the Presbyterians, Wesleyans and Episcopal Methodists, which has as yet been free from the least degree of enmity.

There is in course of erection a fine building for the use of the Established Church, a very fine structure which will place another feather in the cap of the fine little town. The surrounding country has of late been wonderfully improved, so that the impetus will prove very essential to the prosperity of the place. Its society is good, and, believe me, the place can boast of as many handsome "lasses" as the next place, and I am not prepared to say anything else than to apply the lines of our immortal Burns when he says,

"Of a' the toops our Ayr surpasses,
For honest men and bonney lasses."

The same may be applied to Hastings, though not in the rhyme of Burns, however the sentiment is there.

There are at present several institutions well represented in the place, viz: the body of the ancient free and accepted Masons, the Orange Institution, also, the Temperance banner is waiving proudly there, and has for years past.

The Village, or Town, possesses several able orators, who, when occasion offers display their oratorial powers none to their discredit. In fact we have often been of the mind to think that if the sages of by gone days were to listen to them on some grounds, their conclusion doubtless would be that Pericles, Lysias, Isocrates, Demosthenes and others would not disclaim them for pupils in the art. Their prospects are fair for being a city some time. However, it is to be hoped that envy is not to be thrown in the way of other places of more recent date, but let each co-operate in the affairs of improvement, and soon the back parts of this Canada of ours will vie with any frontier town or city. But I must close this, as I presume I have already tired you. At some other period I may take in hand the Village of Norwood, &c.

C. W.

Asphodel, February, 1863.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

MR. EDITOR,—For a number of years past certain inhabitants of the Township of Otonabee have deposited the last remains of some of their relatives in a burial ground on the farm of Mr. John Fife, Sen., but as the said burial ground was not established as such under any act of Parliament, it was considered necessary by the relatives of those that were already interred therein that such should be done. Therefore a number of gentlemen interested in the matter called a public meeting and appointed Trustees, to whom and their successors in office in perpetual succession the said burial ground is now conveyed, under Chapter LXVIII, Cap. Statutes Upper Canada, and known by the name expressed in the Deed of Conveyance as the "Fife Cemetery." It is therefore with pleasure that the said Trustees avail themselves of the opportunity of acknowledging the valuable services rendered by the following gentlemen in this matter, viz: To Mr. John Fife, sen., for a free gift of the ground; to H. Bawbell, Esq., for a very handsome Map of the lots, walks, &c., and also to Robt. Donaldson Esq., Peterboro, for the valuable services rendered by that gentleman in drafting the Deeds, Memorials &c., not forgetting yourself, Mr. Editor, for your kindness in giving the above a gratuitous insertion in your journal.

THOS. ESSON,
Sec. of Fife C. C., Otonabee.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR,—How amusing it is to see how the truth is sometimes altered to suit the ideas of prejudiced parties. A writer, "Vox Veritas," in your issue of the 12th inst., brings to task the Editor of the Review for ascribing the honor of singing at St. Mark's Church, Otonabee, the Concert at Omemee and the Concert at Fairmount Church, to the St. John's Church Choir, and says the credit rests mainly with Mr. T. Brown.

Another writer in the last Review substantiates the Editor's statement by saying he was right, and also that Mr. Brown is a member of St. John's Choir.

Now, admitting that he is, I say that the Editor of the Review, "Vox Veritas," and "One who Knows" are all wrong. The fact is out of fourteen who assisted at the opening of St. Mark's Church, out of nine at Omemee, and out of seven or eight at Fairmount, only five belonged to St. John's Church Choir. And on one occasion—the first Sunday services at St. Mark's Church—out of twelve who performed only one was from the Choir.

Now you will perhaps say this is a great deal of writing about a trifling affair, but when a person undertakes to make right what is wrong, and instead of doing so only leads further astray, it deserves to be noticed. The credit belongs to persons who are always called on to assist, but who very seldom get credit for it.

TRUTH.

Provincial Parliament.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Monday, Feb. 23, 1863.

The speaker took the chair at three o'clock.

Mr. CRAWFORD presented the final report of the West Elgin Election Committee, stating that at the last election George Macbeth, Esq., the sitting member, was duly elected, and John Scobie Esq., had a majority of the legal votes, and ought to have been returned as a member to represent the said Riding, but that neither the petition nor the defence was frivolous or vexatious. He then moved that the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery do attend this House forthwith, with the last return for West Elgin, and that he do amend the same by striking out the name of George Macbeth and inserting that of John Scobie in lieu thereof.

Col. HAULTAIN resumed the debate on the Address, and Mr. J. H. Cameron's motion in amendment thereto. He found fault in the manner in which the Militia law was carried out, and considered that the deputy Adjutant General should be a military man. He would feel greater confidence if he was sure that the Minister of Militia was assisted by one well acquainted in every respect with military matters. He did not find fault with, or desire to embarrass the Government.

The ATTORNEY GENERAL WEST said he had a previous intimation that his honorable friend intended to oppose the militia policy of the Government, and he prepared himself two or three days since with data to answer him. As he (Col. Haultain) had not spoken to the paragraph relating to the militia, but made opposition to the speech on the present paragraph, he (Mr. Macdonald) was not now so well prepared to explain as he was then. However, he would endeavor to answer the honorable gentleman. He denied that any injustice was done to class B, as charged by Col. Haultain. This class had clothed itself, but received no pay. The Government decided to pay them $6 after undergoing twelve days' drill last fall, and early this year $6 more for twelve days' drill—making $12 to go towards the payment of clothing which they had previously to supply themselves with. Under the measure of the late Government class B would have received no pay or allowance whatever. In fact that bill completely ignored the volunteer principle. The present Government found, when it took office, that the militia class B did not want pay, but clothing, arms, and instruction, and the Government pursued such a policy so as to encourage that feeling and aid them in their wishes.

Mr. BOWN asked if it was not understood, under the amended Act, that volunteers in Class B would get 50 cents a day.

Mr. J. S. MACDONALD said it was not understood that it should be paid, as in class A. He answered the assertion that a military man should occupy the position of Deputy Aujutant General. In Canada it was desirable that we should have a policy of our own, and not be tied down to military red tapeism. He held that a military man was unnecessary, and quoted from a speech made by Lord Rosslyn, commanding the volunteers in England, at Brighton, in which the nobleman declared that military tapeism did more to embarrass volunteers than otherwise, and that militia affairs would be much better were they kept away from the influence of military rule. He referred to the management of militia affairs in Canada, when Colonels O'Hara, Bullock and others filled the position of Deputy Adjutant General. Without throwing any reflection upon military men, his (Mr. Macdonald's) experience went to show that the dealings of military men with the militia was not suitable to us in Canada. As to the present incumb

LEGAL OPINIONS.

Of Messrs Wilson and Eccles on certain questions submitted to them by the Railway Committee, in reference to the liability of the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough in taking stock in the Port Hope, Lindsay & Beaverton Railway Company.

Toronto, 14th July, 1857.

Wm. Cluxton, Esq., Peterborough:

DEAR SIR,—The questions you have submitted for our opinion are,

1. Whether any Charter for the building of the portion of the Railway by the Port Hope, Lindsay & Beaverton Railway Company, between the Village of Lindsay and the Town of Peterboro' now legally exists?

2. Whether the Company can legally give a Lease of this portion of their Road?

3. Whether, in the event of the Lease being given, and of the Town of Peterborough taking the stock proposed in the By-Law, Peterboro' will be in any way mixed up in, or liable, for the debts of the Company; or whether this portion of the Road will be so liable?

4. What rights, powers, and authority, such Lease will confer upon the Lessees?

5. Whether, in the event of such Lease being given, if the right of way (which is not yet purchased, nor the line of the Road laid out nor located) were conveyed to the Lessees, or to Trustees, for the benefit of the Lessees, would this afford any protection against the claims of the Bondholders surpassing such claims covered the whole Road, or any of the liabilities or claims, past, present or future, on the part of the Company?

These questions are proposed as arising from the following general state of facts:

The Railway Company was incorporated by the "Act 9 Vic., C. 180. It recites that it is desirable for the general benefit of the inhabitants of the districts of Hamilton and Colborne that a Railway should be constructed from Peterborough to Lake Ontario, at or near Port Hope.

And it authorizes the Company to construct a Railway on and over any part of the country lying between Peterboro' and Lake Ontario.

This Road, it was provided, should be commenced in four years from the passing of the act, otherwise the act should cease, and it must be completed within twenty years, otherwise the act shall preserve to such part of the Road as may be then unfinished.

The work was not commenced within the four years.

But by the Act 16 Vic, C. 49, the time for commencing the work was extended to four years from the passing of this Act, that is from the 10th of November, 1852.

By the Act also, sundry clauses of the 14 and 15 Vic., C. 51, are made expressly applicable to this Company, and Municipalities are enabled to take stock by a By-Law according to the provisions of the Municipal Loan Fund Act, 16 Vic., C. 22.

On the 24th of May, 1853, the Company contracted with Zimmerman & Holch that the latter should build the main line from Port Hope to Peterborough, and in view of the passing of an act which was then proceeding through the Legislature enabling the Company to construct a branch line to Lindsay, that the contractors should also construct this branch.

On the 14th of June, 1853, by 16 Vic., C. 241, the Company was authorized to construct this branch line.

By the 16 Vic., C. 96, passed on the 18th of December, 1852, the Company was authorized, for the more speedy construction of the main and branch line, to issue bonds not exceeding £250,000,—and for the purpose of securing the holders of such bonds to make a mortgage of all the property of the Company, or of that which might be purchased or in any way acquired, or might be pertaining to the construction of the Railroad and of the Branch, and of all the right of way acquired, or which might be acquired by the Company, or any portion thereof, and also of the iron rails, &c., &c., &c. Providing that in describing the lands of the Company in such Mortgage or Memorial it shall be sufficient to say: "The line of the Railway, "and all the lands of this Company lying within "the Counties of——[enumerating them]," if the Mortgage be intended to cover the whole of such line and lands, or otherwise, as the case may be, without further particularity.

Zimmerman & Holch having constructed a great part of the Road from Port Hope to Lindsay obtained from the Company, on the 29th of November, 1855, a Mortgage under the Statute 16 Vic., C. 96, for the purpose of securing to them the payment of the Debentures of the Company, amounting to £125,000 Stg.

It is recited in this Mortgage that the Contractors are engaged in constructing a Railway "from Port Hope to Lindsay," and for that purpose had procured subscriptions to the stock of the Company to the amount of about £205,000, which had nearly all been expended on the said Railway; that it had been agreed that the Contractors of the said Railway should be paid in part in Debentures of the Company, to be secured by a first Mortgage on the Lands, Line of Way and Rolling Stock of the Company, and for this purpose, and to secure the completion of the said Railway, the Company had agreed to execute the Debentures in question.

Then the Company granted to Trustees for the holders of these Debentures: The Line of the Railway, all the lands of the Company lying in the Counties of Durham and Victoria, and in the Town of Port Hope and Village of Lindsay, all the branches or sidings of the Railway made or to be made between Port Hope and Lindsay and the line thereof, including the right of way and the land occupied thereby and laid out and set apart therefor, the Superstructure and Tracks thereon, all Bridges, Viaducts, &c., all other appertenances belonging to, or to belong to, the said Railway, or used or to be used therewith, all franchises, rights and privileges of the Company in and to the same, all income derivable or to be derived therefrom, all Iron Rails, Chairs, and equipments, all Engines, Cars, Tools, Materials, Machinery, Contracts and other personal property and Rolling Stock of the Company, now or hereafter belonging to the Company.

But the Company should, nevertheless, have power to sell or dispose of Bonds or Securities received in payment of Stock or otherwise, and of Lands or other property not forming part of their "Line of Road proper," and not necessary for their road way, depot, grounds, or stations, or for the construction or use of their Railway, and to collect monies due to the Company, so long as the Company had made no default in payment of their Debentures.

The Company then covenanted to execute and deliver to the Trustees on request any further conveyance of the premises or property conveyed or intended to be conveyed, particularly for the conveyance of any property the title to which shall subsequently to the date thereof be acquired by the Company, and which was comprehended in the description contained in the premises.

The Company also covenanted yearly to execute a fresh Mortgage of all the Rolling Stock, &c., &c., &c., now or at the time of such fresh Mortgage held or used by the Company for the purpose of securing the payment of the Debentures, and it is agreed that the Stock &c. of the Company now or hereafter from time to time belonging to the Company, and so assigned by the Company, shall be subject to such purpose.

The Town of Peterborough proposes to take Stock in this Company to the extent of £30,000, and to take a Lease of the Line for 999 years at is per annum rent, from Peterboro' to Millbrook, to construct and furnish this part of the Road, if it can be done with safety as against the creditors of the Company.

It is with this view the above questions have been submitted.

With regard to the first question I have no doubt this Company has full authority to construct the portion of the main line from Millbrook to Peterboro. It is said that because the Statute of 1846 recites that it is desirable a Railway should be constructed "from Peterboro to Lake Ontario," that the line must necessarily be begun at Peterborough, and because it was not commenced there within the four years from the 10th of Nov., 1852, therefore the Charter of the Company has determined.

The Line contemplated was to extend from Peterboro' to Lake Ontario, and no doubt it will when it is constructed of whichever point the work was first begun, and this is all the Legislature has said or intended to say. It is true the Legislature might have required that the work should be begun at Peterborough and so should be proceeded with from thence to Lake Ontario if there had been any good reason for such a provision, but in the absence of any such provision it is perfectly idle to expand or so construct a very plain act of Parliament.

With regard to the 2nd question I think the Company cannot give a lease of this portion of their road until they have acquired it, and that when they do acquire it it will be chargeable in equity with the Debentures above mentioned under the Mortgage of the 29th of Dec., 1855.

With regard to the 3rd question, I think if the Stock be subscribed by the Town of Peterboro' that it will of course be liable to the general creditors of the Company; so far, and so far only, will the Town of Peterboro' be liable to the debts of the company. The Lease also, if given, will be subject to any prior charge or Agreement against the property operating upon or operative against the property so leased, and for the reasons below I think the property proposed to be so leased is so affected by the Mortgage spoken of.

With regard to the 4th question (assuming that a Municipality can lease or construct a Railway, which it is, after it cannot) the Town of Peterboro', if, at a time upon trade to it by the company, would have just the same powers, rights, and authorities as any ordinary lessee would have on any other property so leased.

He would hold no better title than the landlord had to give, he could exercise no higher powers than his landlord could have exercised, and he would be subject to the same charges, covenants and encumbrances as bound the the landlord—of which the tenant had either legal, or actual, or constructive notice.

It is difficult to answer this more accurately, but it is probably better and more fully answered below.

And with respect to the 5th question, I think no Lease could be given by the Company to the Town of Peterboro, until the Company had acquired the right of way, and when they did the Road would be charged with the Mortgage, and so would pass burdened to the Town of Peterboro'. That the Road instead of being bought in the name of the Company might be bought in the names of Trustees. But even these Trustees would be bound to perform all that is binding upon the Company, their cestique trusts. But if the Road were bought by the Town of Peterboro' the Town would, the same as any other purchaser, have a lien on the property so bought for the unpaid purchase money—for in such a case the Town would be holding not from but superior or adversely to the company.

My general view of the case is as follows, which will I hope better explain my answers, if anything explanatory should be required:

There are two portions of Railway line—the main line extending from Port Hope to Peterboro, or to have the termini at these places, and the branch line extending from some point on the main line to some point at or near the western limit of Mariposa, and from thence to some point on the G. S. and Huron Union Railway.

That portion of the main line from Port Hope to Millbrook has been constructed, and that portion of the branch from Millbrook to or near to Lindsay has also been constructed.

That part of line between Port Hope and Millbrook is common to both the main and the branch line.

The Town of Peterboro is desirous of constructing that portion of the main line extending from Millbrook to Peterboro', if it shall be found that the Town can do so upon the following terms, namely: taking a lease from the company for 999 years at the nominal rent of 1s per annum, and holding this portion of the line free from the control of the company and its creditors. The question is not what the company might have done if the Mortgage of Dec. 1855 had not been made and if it had been free from debt, but what it can do now being in debt and having made the Mortgage in question.

The debts of the company, however, so long as they have no specific lien, as by a registered judgment, or a legal or equitable Mortgage, or some such peculiar charge as that, would be no impediment in the way of the company leasing its property or making any other disposition of it they thought fit.

But this Mortgage and the provisions contained in it are the cause of the doubt and difficulty.

Now it will be observed that as the company has not yet acquired the Line, or right of way, from Millbrook to Peterboro, that no legal estate has passed in or to that under the Mortgage, but the words are sufficiently comprehensive to have passed this portion of the company had then acquired a title to it. The property the company do charge with the payment of the Debentures is: The Line of Railway and all their lands in Durham and Victoria, &c., &c., but this description does not apply to any lands not forming part of "their line of road proper."

This shows they meant to pass everything they could then pass, and it exactly corresponds with the Statute which says that "if a Mortgage is intended to cover the whole of such line and lands," it shall be sufficient to describe them generally as follows: "The line of Railway, and all the lands of the company lying within the Counties of——[enumerating them."]

It then being clear that the company did not in fact at Law Mortgage more than they then had the power to Mortgage, but it being quite clear that they need language to cover all their line of Railway and lands in these two Counties, and that the portion between Millbrook and Peterboro' was in fact a part of their line, and for which they had the power and the intention, so far as the Statutes show, to acquire the necessary lands to complete it, the enquiry arises has the company engaged to convey this newly acquired portion of the line to the Trustees when ever they do acquire it?

The company has expressly covenanted to convey all their subsequently acquired personal property, and they use this language with respect to their future real property, that they will make further assurance to the Trustees "of the "premises or property hereby conveyed or in-"tended so to be, or any part thereof particularly "for the conveyance of any property the title "to which shall subsequently to the date hereof "be acquired by the company and comprehend-"ed in the description contained in the pre-"mises."

Now, as I have said, the premises of the Mortgage use language sufficiently large to comprehend this portion of the line, and so far as the company could do so they intended (to judge from the language) to convey it.

And as a person may covenant before he has acquired lands to settle them in a particular manner and for a particular purpose, when he has acquired them, and as this covenant will operate as a charge upon such subsequently acquired property, it follows that the moment the Company procures this portion of the line it will be chargeable in their hands for the benefit of the trustees, and any title derived from the company must be subject to such charge. A lease therefore from the company must certainly be objectionable.

If the Town of Peterboro' were to purchase the right of way along this "portion" of the line, it would have a lien upon the road so purchased and against the company and every one else for the purchase money, so if Peterboro' were to construct the Railroad and put the line in operation, it would have a lien if a bargain were made to that effect beforehand with the company upon the work as constructed, and against the company and every one else to the extent of that expenditure, but whenever that amount was paid to Peterboro', the line and all the Town of Peterboro's claim to it would stand chargeable under the Mortgage so often referred to. So that while Peterboro' could and would have a lien for any advance or expenditure it made under a special agreement to that effect, until that outlay was repaid, and which lien would be paramount to all other claims, but which could be redeemed or extinguished at any time by payment, it could have an absolute indefeasible estate in the property, because that can only be obtained thro' and in respect of the company, and whatever is procured from or under the company is chargeable already with the Mortgage, a lien would be good against the company because that would be superior and adversely to the company and not from or under it.

I do not therefore see any way that the Town of Peterboro' can be secured in any indefeasible estate in that portion of the Line from Millbrook to Peterboro', and therefore it could not take a Lease from the Railway company or from any one else [for such other person would in effect be a Trustee for the company, and whoever claimed from a Trustee would be in no better position than if he claimed from the cestui que trust] so as to maintain the Lease against the Mortgage.

The whole case is in fact reduced to this, will that portion of the line from Millbrook to Peterboro' be affected by the Mortgage, when it is acquired by the company, and for the reasons given I think it will.

I should not omit, in question of some nicety and difficulty, as to whether the company intended to have subjected the subsequently acquired property to the provisions of the Mortgage referring to the Debentures issued by the company, and so secured by the Mortgage, for they state on their face that they are 'secured by first Mortgage on the lands, stock and revenue of the company," applying to all lands of the company without exception, and so not inconsistent with such future acquisitions.

I remain,
Yours, very truly,
ADAM WILSON.

P. S.—Of course I should add that even if the Railway company could properly make a Lease, the Municipality of Peterboro' could not under the statutes applicable to Municipalities become the lessees of the road, this would be beyond their jurisdiction. My attention was through out more particularly directed to the position of the lessor than to the power of the lessee.

A. W.

In the matter of the Town Council of Peterboro', and the Port Hope, &c., Railway.

The questions which have been submitted for the opinions of Mr. Wilson and myself, being five in number, I beg to answer, in the order in which they are put, as follows, viz:—

To question No. 1.—The charter which exists authorizes the construction of a Road between the Towns of Port Hope and Peterboro', with branch to Lindsay, and therefore the construction of the portions of the line between Millbrook and Peterboro' is clearly within the charter in question.

To question No. 2.—There is no doubt that the company may give a Lease of the aforesaid portion of the Road, but, I am of opinion that the Council cannot accept such a Lease, unless it be by way of Mortgage security for any loan which they may make to the company, for it appears to me wholly foreign to the constitution of a Municipal Corporation, that they should become Lessees of a Railroad, and as a consequence common carriers and traders.

Should the Council, however, become traders, instead of stockholders, they may hold, and the company may grant to them a Mortgage upon any portion of the Road, either in fee or for a term of years by way of security for the loan. Beyond this I don't think the Council can hold a Lease.

To question No. 3.—If a Lease be taken by way of Mortgage, as above stated, the Council will not be liable for any debts of the company, except in so far as their Mortgage may be unsecured, they may be obliged to protect their security against the first incumbrance, in order to avoid foreclosure in case of default on the part of the company to keep down principal and interest, and in such case it might become necessary for them to redeem the first Mortgage and stand in the place of the first Mortgagee. Beyond this I can see not that the Council would incur any liability.

To question No. 4.—I can only answer this question by saying that the rights, powers and authority which the lessee, (by way of Mortgage) may confer upon the Council, must depend upon the form of the instrument itself.

On the view of the case, however, which I have above expressed, I may say that the rights, power and authority which ought to be conferred upon the Council, would be those which are incident to an ordinary Mortgage.

To question No. 5.—This is the important question for consideration, and the one which has occupied me for three days.

Upon first view of the case it appeared to me that the Mortgage given to the trustees to secure the Bonds issued to the contractors, did not cover that portion of the Road, which was intended to be constructed at a then future period, between Millbrook and Peterboro', for it appeared clear enough to me both by the language used in the Mortgage itself, and by other facts which you laid before me, that the parties did not intend the Mortgage to cover it.

However, upon further consideration, I have come to the conclusion that although that portion of the line of Road did not pass under the Mortgage to the Trustees, and although the legal title to the Lands and right of way to be acquired is not vested in them. Yet that the effect of the language used in the Mortgage would be held in equity to create a charge upon the lands and right of way in question, which charge would take priority to any Mortgage subsequent thereto in point of date.

I therefore express it as my opinion that in case a Mortgage should be made to the Council upon the portion of the Road in question, it would stand second to the charge created in favor of the Trustees by the former Mortgage.

University Extravagance.

To the Editor of the Grumbler.

AWFUL SIR:

With feelings of the profoundest awe I take up my trembling pen to address you on this important question. Knowing, Sir, as I do, that your only aim is to expose whatever is wrong, and apply the lash to the wrong-doer, I feel assured that you will give me the aid of your extended circulation for the purpose of exposing the godless institution whose extravagance is more than that of the Sybarites. I may say, sir, with all due regard to truth, that as I set out on my errand of investigation, I was actuated with naught but the purest principles, and in fact with a secret hope that the charges would prove false; but, sir, when as I approached the building and saw the place where it was built, I was almost speechless with amazement. What on earth could have induced them, I asked, to build in such a place as that when they might have had the gap in the Island for nothing, where the building would have appeared to much greater advantage, especially to travellers by boat visiting our city, who as they passed slowly through the narrow entrance would have a splended view of the building; then there would be the advantage to the city, in the filling up of the gap by such a noble edifice, to say nothing of the great practical benefit to students who could swim over every morning to their studies and back again at night. As I mournfully reflected on this item of extragance, my eye was caught by the glitter of the weathercock—or vane—on the top of the building, I need hardly say that I was almost struck senseless by the sight, for in this my keen perception detected something far more significial than then the sight would convey to the mind of the superficial observer. I saw in it nothing less than a premeditated attempt on the part of the godless professors, to strengthen infidelity, and subvert true religion. The case is clear. Does not the word say" The wind bloweth where it listeth, and no man knoweth the sound thereof whence it cometh or whither it goeth."

Now sir, what is their intention in surmounting the University with a vane but for the purpose of finding whence the wind comes and whither it goes, and thus to throw discredit on the Bible, and corrupt the youth of our land. But sir I feel confident that all such attacks on our religion will be forever vain, and impotent, as long, at least, as such papers as the Grumbler exist. But I cannot omit to notice that I consider this indecent mode of attacking religion, is calculated to produce far more evil than the bold and open onslaught of a Hume or even a C Ienzo.

As I passed along I notice that for several yards the path leading to the door was covered with inch planks. Now, sir, I do not object to this so much on the ground of extravagance as on that of the false doctrine which it inculcates. Does it not teach the student to think that he is better than the earth, when a plank forsooth is placed between him and it, in order that he may not dirty his feet! Now, sir, I would triumphantly ask, are we not made of earth? and does not this teaching us to despise that of which we are made teach us also to despise the being who made us? These, sir I consider irrefutable proofs of the infidel tendency of this vain and godless institution. But, sir, to proceed. I entered the hall and there, sir, (will you believe it?) I saw a tassel—yes, I repeat it, a tassel attached to the bell-rope. In this tassel there were at least 13 cords; each cord must have cost at least one cent and a half; 1½ by 13 —19½ cents; 19½ cents is almost a shilling; 1 shilling put out at compound interest for 100,000 years, would amount to millions of pounds. And here we find them squandering this immense sum on a tassel to a bell-rope. It is monstrous!

Sick at heart with what I had already seen, but yet resolved to go on, I requested the beadle to show me the points of interest in the building; he consented, and doubtless with the intention of astonishing me, called out the professors and drew them up in a line for my inspection, and I can assure you Mr., G., he did astonish me, for such a lot of barbu-rous, or rather barber-less men I never saw. There they stood, sir, fitting representatives of the one college monopoly, with as far as I could learn all the whiskers in the province planted in their faces. Is it not enough, sir, I would ask, that these men should receive large salaries from the country for doing nothing? Must the country also supply them with whiskers, free gratis, for nothing, as the poet says, while men of standing like myself and the Editor of the Guardian, are obliged to be hardfaced, as the jokers say? I think, sir, that these men should blush for shame, and as I directed my concentrated, and I may say my unanimous gaze on them; they did blush for once in their lives at least. But sir, I must close for the present, and remain, your, &c.,

E. R——N.

The leader of the Opposition in the British House of Lords is the Earl of Derby, the head of the princely house of Stanly; the leader of the Opposition in the Canadian House of Lords is Mr. Sidney Smith born of a family whose name is legion. Plebeian, patrician—extremes meet. Smith and Stanley—how strong the resemblance; how wide the difference! In manners and culture, too—surely, as Mrs. Partington says, "companions are 'oderiferous'" So we will pursue the painful theme no further.

Last Session, Mr. Smith finding himself translated to the peerage of the Lords, took the high in the Ministerial side. It is not for us to sharply criticise his management. He may have been disguised, or he may have been vulgar; polished or rude, in his manners; faulty or faultless in pronunciation. It is a man's right to be judged by his peers, and on these points there are hon. gentlemen in the Upper House sufficiently qualified to judge Mr. Sidney Smith. Of course, he came up to their standard whilst leading for the Government, or he would not now be chosen to lead for the Opposition. Mr. Smith is more fortunate than most men, to go as a stranger into the Council with no repute, and take and keep the foremost rank amongst his party. He must either possess uncommon abilities or uncommon assurance. We will be magnanimous and believe the former to be the case; and, whilst congratulating the Opposition members of the Legislative Council on their selection of spokesman, we would express the hope that before long we shall have the further pleasure of congratulating the spokesman himself to an increased respect for the English that belongeth to the Queen, and the dignity that belongeth to high position amongst her provincial peers. —Quebec Mercury.

To All whom it may Concern.

TAKE NOTICE,

THAT the following Memorial will be presented to His Excellency the Governor in Council, at the present Sessions of Parliament:—

To His Excellency the Right Honorable Charles Stanley Viscount Monk, Governor of British North America &c. in Council:

May it please your Excellency:

The Memorial of the Municipal Council of the Township of Galway, in the County of Peterboro', assembled, would respectfully set forth, that the settlement of the new Township of Galway, Snowden and Minden, &c., are very much impeded by parties buying up large tracts of Lands for the sake of the timber, and leaving the lands unimproved; and the Municipal Council pray that the Honorable the Crown Land Commissioner will be pleased to instruct the Crown Land Agent at Bobcaygeon to take steps to compel parties having purchased lands in all new Townships north of Bobcaygeon either to settle upon and improve the said lands or dispose of them to actual settlers, with as little delay as possible, and it will benefit and improve the country very much. And your Memorialists as in duty bound will ever pray, &c.

THOS. PROBERT,
Reeve of Galway.
WILLIAM GAINER,
Reeve of Minden and Stanhope.

Peterborough, December 9th, 1862. 44

$10,000 WORTH OF GROCERIES.

FOR SALE.

THE subscriber has opened a new store in the building lately occupied by R. P. McDougall, where he offers for sale a large and well selected assortment of GROCERIES, consisting in part of

SUGARS OF ALL KINDS.

Teas, Coffee, Spice, Rice, Tobacco,

COAL OIL LAMPS,

OF THE MOST IMPROVED KINDS,

COAL OIL, AMERICAN STONE WARE,

OF EVERY VARIETY,

And other articles too numerous to mention.

Well knowing (after an experience of twenty years in the trade) that the "nimble sixpence is better than the slow shilling," he will sell for small profits, having bought his stock with CASH he is confident that he can sell goods for ready pay cheaper than any other merchant in Peterboro', As the goods offered for sale by the undersigned are all paid for, he does not confine himself to selling them "cheap for cash only," he will cheerfully exchange them for all kinds of country produce, at cash prices. The subscriber does not attempt to enumerate all the articles which he offers for sale.

☞Call and examine the goods and see how cheap the "yankee" can sell them.

THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE.
1863.

THE NEW-YORK TRIBUNE, first issued in 1841, now in its twenty-second year, has obtained both a larger and more widely diffused circulation than any other newspaper ever published in America. Though it has suffered in common with other journals, from the volunteering and departure of tens of thousands of its patrons to serve in the War of the Union, its circulation on the 6th of December, 1862, is as follows:

DAILY	50,125
SEMI-WEEKLY	17,250
WEEKLY	148,000
Aggregate	215,375

Preeminently a journal of News and of Literature The Tribune has political convictions, which are well characterized by the single word REPUBLICAN. It is Republican in its hearty adhesion to the great truth that "God has made of one blood all nations of men"—Republican in its assertion of the equal and inalienable rights of all men to "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness"—Republican in its steadfast, earnest, defiant hostility to every scheme and effort of the Slave Power, from the Annexation of Texas to the great Rebellion, to grasp the empire of the New World and wield the resources of our country for its own aggrandizement—Republican in its antagonism to the aristocrats and despots of the Old World, who fondly hail in the perils and calamities suddenly thrust upon us by the American counterpart the overthrow and ruin of the Model Republic—Republican in its hope and trust, its faith and effort, that his atrocious Rebellion must result in the signal overthrow of its plotters, and the firm establishment of equal rights and equal laws throughout the whole extent of our country, wherein Liberty and Union shall indeed be "one and inseperable" henceforth and forever.

The Tribune devotes attention in calmer times, and to some extent in these, to Education Temperance, and Agriculture, Invention, and whatever else may minister to the spiritual and material progress and well-being of mankind; but for the present its energies and its columns are mainly devoted to the success of the War for the Union. Its special correspondents accompany every considerable army and report every important incident of that great struggle which we trust is soon to result in the signal and conclusive triumph of the National armsand in the restoration of Peace and Thrift to our bleeding country. We believe that no otherwise can a fuller or more accurate view of the progress and character of this momentous conflict be obtained than through the regular perusal of our columns. And we earnestly solicit the cooperation of all friends of the National cause, which we regard and uphold as that of Universal Humanity, to aid us in extending its circulation.

Land & Emigration Co'y, Limited,
OF LONDON, ENGLAND,
Capital, £250,000 Stg.

THE HON. MR. JUSTICE HALIBURTON, CHAIRMAN, offer for sale

250,000 Acres
OF LAND IN THE
COUNTIES OF PETERBORO & VICTORIA
consisting of parts of the

Townships of DYSART, DUDLEY, LONGFORD, GUILFORD, HARCOURT, HARBURN, BRUTON, HAVELOCK, &c., &c.

The following are some, among many other inducements held out to parties who may choose to take up lands in the above Townships:

Ten per cent of the purchase money paid to Government by the Company for these lands will be expended in constructing really good roads: these roads will intersect the Government Roads; namely, the Belmegeron, Victoria, Burleigh and Peterson Roads, at convenient points, and will converge to various Town plots which the Company have it in view to lay out in very carefully selected sites The Town Plots will, it is anticipated,—the whole of them being connected by good roads (for the construction of which the country affords excellent facilities)—become each the centre of a new and flourishing settlement; private enterprise in establishing Stores, Mills, &c., will here soon find its reward, and the several towns and townships being as it were knit together by good roads, will derive from that fact great advantages and mutual support.

In addition, the watchful supervision of the Company over every part of their lands will greatly tend to advance the interests of this district, which, being in the middle of Upper Canada, possessing a fertile soil, and a climate unsurpassed in its healthful effects upon the human frame, offers superior attractions, and all the elements of rapid progress and permanent prosperity.

ANNUAL MEETING
INVESTIGATION REPORT - - DECLARATION OF BONUS.

THE forty-sixth annual Meeting of this Company was held within the Royal Hotel, Aberdeen on Friday, the 10th April.

Alexander Stronach, Esq., of Drumallan, Chairman of the Ordinary Directors, in the Chair. There were submitted to the meeting—

1.—Report by the Directors, which, on the motion of the Chairman, was cordially and unanimously approved of and adopted.

2.—The Balance Sheet for the past year, with detailed states relative thereto, duly certified as correct, in terms of the Act of Incorporation, by the Chairman and Manager, and also by the Auditor.

There was also laid on the Table the various Valuation States in connection with the Quinquennial Investigation into the state of the Company's affairs, as at 31st January, 1862.

The following particulars derived from the Balance Sheet and States beforementioned, show the result of the operations of the Company for the past year:—

Amount proposed for Life Assurances during the year, contained in 1169 Proposal	£454,833 0 0
Amount of Proposals accepted, and for which 961 Policies were issued	359,680 0 0
ANNUAL PREMIUMS on said Policies	11,170 1 0
CLAIMS BY DEATH including BONUSES on PARTICIPAT ON POLICIES, and after deducting Sums recovered from other Offices under guarantees	22,999 1 0
TOTAL SUM Assured under 4,739 current LIFE POLICIES	1,935,95 0 0
TOTAL ACCUMULATED FUNDS	373,563 2 2
TOTAL ANNUAL REVENUE	96,756 4 4

With reference to the recent investigation into the state of the Company's affairs, as at 31st January last, the Report Stated that both the principles of valuation and the details thereof, had been submitted to James John Downes, Esq., Actuary to the Economic Life Office in London, a gentleman well known as one of the highest authorities on such subjects in the kingdom, and had received his entire approval, as having been made on just and sound principles, and accurately carried out as certified in his report to the Directors, which formed part of the Appendix to their Report. This step the Directors considered could not fail to give the utmost confidence—both to the shareholders and the Policyholders—in the soundness and correctness of the valuation.

During the Quinquennial period, the claims by death, including the bonus additions which had been paid, and which had been considerably under the number that might have been expected from the Mortality Tables on which the Office rates are based, amounting to £93,975 6s 6d.

In valuing the Policies, each had been separately calculated, and nett premiums had only been used, thus leaving a surplus of annual revenue of £11,427 16s 7d., to meet future expenses and to form a source of profit for next Investigation. The total amount of claims by death paid since the commencement of the Company, was £217,831 4s.

The Securities held by the Company were in a satisfactory position, and had been recently carefully scrutinised in detail by the Directors.

In conclusion, the Directors congratulated both the Proprietors and the Assured on the high position which the Company now occupied in the estimation of the public, and on the encouraging prospect of its business operations for the future.

DECLARATION OF BONUS.

From the profits realised on the Life business, a retrospective Bonus of £1 7s 6d per cent per annum for the Quinquennial period was declared, on the sums originally assured under all Participating Policies, increased by the previous additions thereto; also a further prospective Bonus of £1 per cent per annum, on the amount of the Policies with said Bonuses, on all such of said Policies as may become claims by Death previously to the 31st January, 1867.

It will be observed, that this rate of Bonus is equivalent in the case of our older Policies to £1 14s per cent per annum on the original sum assured; that the total additions to the sum assured, now vested, are equal to 32 per cent on the sum assured; and that as the younger ages the additions amount to upwards of 35 per cent of the premiums paid.

Statement showing the Progress of the Company's Business during the Quinquennial Period, ending 31st January, 1862:

Year ending 31st January.	Amounts proposed for Assurance.	Amount of New Policies issued.	No. of Policies issued	No. of Policies lapsed	New Annual Premiums.	Total Revenue in each year.	Accumulated Funds.
1858	£169,840	£136,190	435	350	£3,389 15 0	£60,706 11 10	£218,536 9 2
1859	208,305	169,171	540	477	5,492 1 6	68,701 5 3	287,434 3 4
1860	348,820	263,920	761	615	8,772 17 6	77,977 5 8	313,098 8 10
1861	349,076	230,746	833	736	7,971 17 6	87,580 7 5	334,806 11 0
1862	484,835	359,630	1169	891	11,170 1 1	96,756 4 4	373,563 2 2
Totals	£1,559,876	£1,219,657	3269	2259	37,400 15 10	336,421 14 6	1,327,339 15 6

Votes of thanks were passed to the Directors and Office-bearers of the Company at Head-Offices and Branches, and after a very hearty vote of thanks to the Chairman for his conduct in the Chair, the meeting was dissolved.

ILLUSTRATED
SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN!

The Best Mechanical Paper in the World.

EIGHTEENTH YEAR.

VOLUME VIII—NEW SERIES.

A NEW VOLUME of this popular Journal commences on the first of January. It is published weekly, and every number contains sixteen pages of useful information, and from five to ten original engravings of new inventions and discoveries, all of which are prepared expressly for its columns.

TO THE MECHANIC & MANUFACTURER.

No person engaged in any of the manufacturing pursuits should think of "doing without" the Scientific American. It costs but six cents per week; every number contains from six to ten engravings of new machines and inventions, which cannot be found in any other publication.

TO THE INVENTOR.

The Scientific American is indispensable to every inventor, as it not only contains illustrated descriptions of nearly all the best inventions as they come out, but each number contains an Official List of the Claims of all the Patents issued from the United States Patent Office during the week previous; thus giving a correct history of the progress of inventions in this country. We are also receiving, every week, the best scientific journals of Great Britain, France and Germany: thus placing in our possession all that is transpiring in mechanical science and art in these old countries. We continue to transfer to our columns copious extracts from these journals whatever we may deem of interest to our readers.

A pamphlet of instructions as to the best mode of obtaining Letters Patent on new inventions is furnished free on application.

Messrs. Munn & Co. have acted as Patent Solicitors for more than seventeen years, in connection with the publication of the Scientific American, and they refer to 20,000 patentees for whom they have done business.

No charge is made for examining sketches and models of new inventions and for advising inventors as to their patentability.

CHEMISTS, ARCHITECTS, MILLWRIGHTS & FARMERS.

The Scientific American will be found a most useful journal to them. All the new discoveries in the science of chemistry are given in its columns, and the interest of the architect and carpenter are not overlooked; all the new inventions and discoveries appertaining to these pursuits being published from week to week. Useful and practical information pertaining to the interests of millwrights and mill-owners will be found in the Scientific American, which information they can not possibly obtain from any other source. Subjects in which farmers are interested will be found discussed in the Scientific American; most of the improvements in agricultural implements being illustrated in its columns.

TERMS.—To mail subscribers: Three Dollars a year, or One Dollar for four months.—The volumes commence on the first of January and July. Specimen copies will be sent gratis to any part of the country.

Western and Canadian money or Post-office stamps taken at par for subscriptions. Canadian subscribers will please to remit twenty-five cents extra on each year's subscription to prepay postage.

Poetry.

"Can Ye help us a bit?"

The following stirring appeal, on behalf of the distressed operatives in Lancashire has been addressed to the working men of, Victoria, New South Wales, by Mr. W. Stitt Jenkins, of Geelong:—

A "Lancashire Lad" has been writing
Long letters at home to the press—
He tells how America's fighting
Has plunged in the direst distress
The men and the women and children—
The hands of the mill and the pit;
Heartbroken and famished they wander,
And cry, "Can ye help us a bit?"

No more at the bells' cheery ringing
We barry away to the mill;
At our labor no longer we're singing,
The loom and the shuttle are still;
Lord, lead us not into temptation,
To thee, in our sorrow, we cry,
Oh! stretch forth thine arm o'er our nation
Send succor, or thousands must die.

"Can ye help us a bit," O our brothers,
Who far from old England have fled?
Can ye help the poor fathers and mothers,
And children that perish for bread?
Can ye help us across the wide ocean,
For all kinds of work we are fit;
Dear friends, with the wildest emotion
We cry, "Can ye help us a bit?"

We are willing to work—oh! how willingly—
But work can no longer be had,
And gone is our very last shilling,
And hunger is driving us mad.
Ah! think of our sad desolation,
And say you can help us to flit
From wretchedness, woe, and starvation—
Can you help us, dear sisters, a bit?

To you, O our sisters! we're crying—
Can you spare some help from your store?
Alas! we are starving and dying,
And your eyes shall behold us no more.
Ah! say, can you revel in riches,
Or peacefully sleep on your bed,
While thousands of Lancashire "witches"
Are begging for morsels of bread!

Is it true—the fine tales they are telling
Of rivers and mountains of gold?
And that in the land where you're dwelling
Is room for the young and the old?
That there, in contentment reclining,
Each man 'neath his fig-tree may sit,
While we with grim hunger are pining?
Oh! say, "Can ye help us a bit?"

Miscellaneous.

The Lumber Trade and Settlement.

Concluded.

What has led more than anything else to this injudicious policy on the part of late governments of improperly encouraging settlement upon lands unsuited for agricultural purposes has been the incorrect and unjustifiably favourable reports of Surveyors employed to lay out the waste lands, and of Road Contractors and Settlement Agents who have found profitable employment in these occupations. But it is also understood that the Government itself has to a great extent been equally to blame for giving encouragement to such reports by continuing in its employment those who misrepresented lands as fit for settlement which were not so, while those who were more correct and conscientious in making their reports have had their services dispensed with, and this without any effectual means having been taken to test the correctness of such reports. However this may be, it is indeed difficult to account for the fact that the Government should so long have remained in ignorance of the true state of the case, continuing to make surveys of lands unfit for settlement, and to construct roads thereto at great cost, many of the townships surveyed, apart from the pine timber, not being worth the cost of survey, and would not for the land itself sell for so much.

Now, while finding so much fault with the course which the Government has been pursuing, it may be asked what course I should recommend to be followed in view of the general interests of the Province? To this my answer would be, let the Government adopt efficient measures to obtain correct and reliable information respecting the Public Lands before incurring the expense of surveying them, further than to have the outlines of townships run, but no subdivisions until carefully examined by competent and reliable parties appointed for the purpose of determining whether the lands are fit for settlement or not, and who have no interest in the settlement thereof. And as respects lands to be opened for Free Grants, or general settlement, where Government proposes to make the roads thereto, I should recommend that the country which it is considered desirable to have opened up for settlement should first be subjected to the like careful examination, and upon the report, favourable or otherwise, of those appointed to perform this service the action of Government should be taken.

The cost to Government of keeping permanently in its employment the requisite number of men properly qualified to perform this service would be infinately less than that which has been uselessly incurred in surveying into townships, ranges and lots, lands totally unfit for settlement, besides what has been still worse than uselessly incurred in making Free Grant Roads into miserable barren tracts of lands where settlement cannot be permanently established and maintained.

To the settlement of the country where the land is found to be suitable for agricultural purposes,—where it is susceptible of affording a comfortable permanent home and sustenance to the cultivator—I would give my fullest and most cordial approval, believing that the increase of the population, wealth and importance of the Province would thereby be promoted; but where the lands are found to be barren and unfit for settlement, and only valuable for the Pine Timber, I hold that the Government would best consult the general and permanent interests of the Province by not encouraging settlement thereon, but in protecting the timber by such regulations as would longest preserve to the country the benefits of the trade, and to the Government the revenue derived therefrom; and as I am under the impression that the importance of the Lumber Trade of the Province and the revenue it gives to the Government is not very generally understood, I will, therefore, state what were the value of the exports the products of the forest, as compared with those of agriculture, for the last five years as appears by the Trade and Navigation Returns made to Parliament during that time, namely.

	Products of the Forest.	Products of Agriculture.
Decrease in favor of the Forest in 1857, 1858 and 1859.	$ 2,847,562	$ 11,730,387	1857
Decrease in favor of Agriculture in 1860 and 1861.	$ 1,543,327	$ 9,447,727	1858.
	$ 2,324,164	$ 7,904,400	1859.
	$ 3,248,972	$ 7339,798	1860.
	$ 8,671,986	$ 14,259,225	1861.
	$ 19,182,971	$ 50,681,537

These figures, do not, however, correctly represent the value of the exports of products of the forest or of agriculture so as to show what properly belongs to each branch of industry, as in the above figures the value of Pot and Pearl Ashes is included as products of the forest, but as they are produced in the clearing of land by the agriculturist they should be ranked as the products of agriculture in the comparison now sought to be drawn. In the following statements this alteration is therefore made by deducting the value of ashes from the exports of products of the forest and adding it to those of agriculture, while in the statement of the value of exports of agricultural products, the produce of Canada, there should be included animals and their produce, and deducted therefrom the value of all the imports of the like nature as those included in the value of the exports so as to show the true value thereof being the growth and produce of Canada, and as will appear in the statement thereof which is subjoined.

Total in Five Years	$1,223,264 13	$1,127,067 05
Or per Annum	244,652 83	225,413 41

From these statements it will be seen that the value of the exports of the products of the forest, upon an average of the last five years, of which returns have been made, exceed those of agriculture by $1,430,306 per annum, from which the extent and importance of the Lumber Trade to the general interests of the Province will at once be apparent, while the amount of revenue it contributes directly (besides indirectly) to Government, is itself of no small importance in the present financial position of its affairs.

I have pointed out the dependence of the Ottawa country upon the successful continuance of its Lumber Trade, but it does not stand alone in this respect. Quebec without its share of this trade, upon which its existence as a city depends, would soon decay to the proportion of a second rate town, while the surrounding country would just as sensibly feel the change, and perhaps when too late recognize the benefits it derives from the Lumber Trade, but which, I believe, are now generally appreciated or fully understood.

It may be said that Quebec possesses in her ship-building as important branch of industry not dependent on the Lumber Trade; but it will require only a little consideration to convince any one that ship-building could not be successfully continued in Quebec apart from the Lumber Trade. The first of these considerations is, that the Lumber Trade gives employment during summer to a large number of men as timber-dressers and shippers, ship laborers, carpenters, etc., and this generally at high wages which induces them to remain in Quebec, as it also enables them to work for low wages in winter, frequently for less than would support themselves and families; and it is this class of people who are principally, if not entirely employed in the building, then, that the Lumber Trade of Quebec was at an end, or greatly reduced in its proportions, is it possible that ship-building could be successfully continued to anything like the present extent? The answer is obvious; the business heretofore not having been a very profitable one, even with the advantages of low labor from the causes already named. The large accumulation of timber in the port of Quebec has also afforded to the ship-builder a favorable opportunity for supplying himself with what he requires in this way, and has unquestionably been of great benefit to him, the loss of which would tell seriously against his business.

What I have here stated with reference to the barren nature of large tracts of the lands attempted to be settled, and the incorrect reports of many of the surveyors and agents employed about their settlements, will, I doubt not, be contradicted, but I deem the interests involved to be too great to allow this to have any weight in preventing me from bringing the matter before the public, my object being to show the necessity of having a thorough investigation made, and the facts established, when, if my allegations are not sustained, I shall hold myself justly liable to censure. But in the meantime I rest my justification for bringing before the public the statements now made upon the grounds of my conviction of their vital importance to the interest of the Province.

I am, Sir,
Your ob'dt serv't,
ALLAN GILMOUR.

OVERPRAYING HIMSELF.—Some years since, while the cholera was prevalent in Virginia, the inhabitants, particularly the negroes, were greatly alarmed. Among others was a negro boy, who having heard his father say the cholera would soon be along that way, left his work one day and betook himself to the woods. Here he was found by his overseer, soon after, fast asleep. Being taken to task for leaving his work, he excused himself on the ground that not being prepared to die, he had gone to the woods to meditate.

"But," said the overseer, "how was it that you went to sleep?"

"Well, I don't know, massa, how dat was 'xactly," responded the negro, "but I speak I must have overprayed myself!"

THE MAN WHO WONT PAY THE PRINTER.—A country editor, who works for glory and prints on trust, is responsible for the following anathematical aspirations on the man who won't pay the printer:

"May he have sore eyes, and a chesnut burr for an eye-stone. May every day of his life be more despotic than the Day of Algiers. May he never be permitted to kiss a handsome woman. May his boots leak, his gun hang fire, and his fishing lines break. May his coffee be sweetened with flies, and his soup seasoned with spiders. May his friend run off with his wife, and his children take the whooping cough. May his cattle die of the murrain, and his pigs destroy his garden. May a regiment of cats caterwaul under his window each night. May his cows give sour milk, and rancid butter. In short, may his daughter marry a one-eyed editor and his business go to ruin, and he go to ——— or the Legislature.

"LES MISERABLES."—Mrs. Partington cast her eye on the title page of Victor Hugo's late work and exclaimed—"Well, I thank the Lord that I am not so constipated as to feel the least commotion of envy toward any of my fellow creatures who are becoming less miserable, though my own sufferings continues as astute as ever.

THE COUNTRY ROADS IN WINTER.—The Montreal Herald says: We are sorry to hear that the country roads are far from good, so much so that travelling is seriously impeded. It is extraordinary that we do not learn from experience, that the only way to secure good roads is to adopt the Upper Canada princip

Peterborough Examiner

THURSDAY, MARCH 5, 1863.

PARLIAMENTARY.

The debate on the Address closed last week, and the answer delivered on Friday last, and the House has since been active in doing business. Many useful bills have been introduced, and progress made.

Mr. McBeth and Rankin have lost their seats. Daly and Smith (John Shuter) are expected to be sent home. Several other seats are disputed, among them we may mention Hon's. Foley, McDougall and Kierzkowski. The usual number of Petitions are being presented, and a number of returns handed in and laid on the table.

THE SOUTH OXFORD ELECTION.

Mr. George Brown has so far recruited his health and strength that he has resolved to attempt to get into Parliament a long way inside of his previously fixed period. He has gone into Oxford at the solicitation it is said of 1,100 electors, and has resolved to contest the County with Mr. Bodwell, the nominee of the Convention. Both at a public meeting and at the hustings Mr. Brown addressed the electors at some length as usual. His speeches, as reported in the Hamilton Times, are not creditable to him. The flippant and ungenerous allusions to his opponent, as well as his egotistical allusions to himself do not redound to his fame.

He assumes more of the craven style than we ever expected he could do. Strange enough there is no report in the Globe of his speech either on the night of his arrival or at the hustings—a remarkable and singular omission. All that is said of the former is that "Mr. Brown spoke for an hour and a half, reviewing the whole state of public affairs with great force," and at the nomination that "he spoke for two hours reviewing the aspect of public affairs." This omission is ominous, and seems to justify the criticisms on Mr. Brown's speeches elsewhere from the Hamilton Times.

Mr. Brown may succeed in his present canvass, and when in the house he may play again into the hands of the Tories. There he may figure again in his long winded tirades against them, when he has gotten them into power, provided he is not called into the administration, and he may dilate while in opposition upon his sundry impracticable theories. His advent to Parliament will be the signal for the present Ministry to put their house in order, and for the great body of the Reformers to prepare to submit to be lorded over again by their political opponents. We are indebted to him for the late coalition. He laboured, after being instrumental in installing them into power, for seven years to oust them, but failed. This was accomplished without him. It will require another such a game to be played over before the Reform body will be convinced that Mr. Brown is "a governmental impossibility." We believe Mr. Brown would serve the interest of the country better by conducting his newspaper than in attempting to carry out his visionary schemes in Parliament. So far Mr. Brown, with all his abilities, has failed to benefit the country to the extent that he might, nor has he secured for himself the respect or esteem so prominent a public man seems entitled to. At present we fear Mr. Brown is a losing card. The Polling began yesterday.

MR. ALLAN GILMOUR'S LETTER.

We intended to have noticed this letter somewhat at length, as it relates to some matters in which this part of the country is deeply interested, but are deterred for want of space. One very erroneous statement he sets out with is that very little of the country to the rear of us is fit for settlement—a statement refuted by the fact of the number of settlers who have gone in, many of whom are good judges of land, and who bear a very different testimony.

The truth is Mr. Gilmour is a lumberman, and one who considers the remaining part of the waste lands of the Crown should be reserved for lumbermen, and not given or sold to settlers. Like the Hudson Bay monopolists he imagines that because the cities he speaks of are a sort of pioneers in new regions that therefore the lumberers should be left in quiet possession of the soil. There is a vast difference however in another particular. The former are anxious to keep the public domain unimproved as it affords them hunting grounds for the fur of animals, by which the country suffers nothing in its physical aspect by their possession. The settler on occupation of the soil finds no traces of evil from its being used by hunters, and no hindrance in the way of clearing up the land. He has also the timber for his use or to sell, finding everything in the state of nature. Not so where the lumbermen has been; the settler finds the valuable timber all gone, and a very great annoyance and extra expense in clearing the land by the debris caused by making timber, an annoyance known only to those who have realized it.

It must not be denied however, that lumbermen very materially assists the settlers by creating a market for their produce, and in new settlement especially the benefit is very sensibly felt, but the reckless manner in which the timber business is often carried on, our valuable forests are laid desolate, and the country anything but benefitted thereby. It is a common thing for lumbermen to get legally in debt, and take from the settler his property and never pay him.

There are we admit many facts stated in Mr. Gilmour's letter worthy of serious consideration, both by the Government and those interested in settlements—which we may notice again. In the meantime we learn that a gentleman connected with the colonization and settlement of our back country intends to review the letter and refute the allegations in reference to this section of country.

South Oxford.

The Hon. George Brown, of Toronto, is now out full tilt as a candidate for this constituency. A more formidable opponent the convention man, Mr. Bodwell, could not possibly have, nor is there one in the whole of Canada whose election would be so galling to the Ministry. An unflinching advocate of Representation by Population, he would be a perpetual thorn in the sides of the renegades Foley, Wilson, McDougall, and McKellar. Hence the Ministerial party are strenuously opposing his return for the constituency. There is going on every conceivable amount of wire-pulling. The convention is bitter against him, and the prominent Grit journals are giving him friendly advice. Mr. Brown, however, is not to be intimidated or bamboozled by such procedures, and will go spiritedly forward with bright prospects of success. There can be no doubt of his making a far better member of South Oxford than any mere tool of a Toronto or Quebec clique.

There was a rumour some time ago that Mr. Brown was making overtures to the Conservatives, or rather they were making them to him. This was indignantly denied in the Globe, but subsequent movements have tended to support the rumour, and the above extract from the Brantford Courier, a Conservative paper of the ultra class, is satisfactory evidence that there is more truth than poetry in the rumour. Mr. B. has been entrapped two or three times before by the same party, who now urge him forward to effect the overthrow of their political enemies, whereby they expect to reap advantage to their party. We are of the same opinion as the Hamilton Times, that in his present contest a victory will have cost him more than he can possibly gain thereby. We do not charge him with acting the traitor to his party, but by his seeking to gratify his ambition and selfishness, he is playing into the hands of our political foes.

Complimentary Dinner.

Mr. David Porter, long and favourably known in this neighborhood, being about to remove to the West, was invited by his friends to a dinner, as a mark of respect. On Friday evening last, about thirty-two gentlemen, the neighbors and friends of Mr. Porter, met at the house of Mr. Geo. Hope, in the Township of Douro, where a very excellent dinner had been prepared. The company sat down about 6 o'clock, p. m. After ample justice had been done to the viands, Col. Strickland occupying the chair on his right was Mr. David Porter, guest of the evening, and on his left John Harvey Esq. 1st toast from the chair was "The Queen;" song by the company, "God save the Queen." Toast, "The Prince of Wales and the Royal family;" song by T. Brown, "Rule Britannia." The 3rd toast from the chair was the "Health and prosperity of Mr. David Porter," which was drank with all the honors, and responded to by a very affecting address; song, "Auld Lang Syne." Toast, "Governor General of Canada"; song, "the Irish Oak." Toast, the "Army and Navy," responded to by C. Dunlop, Esq.; song, "Red, White and Blue," by R. Graham. "Our Guests" responded to by John Harvey, Esq. "The Press," from the Vice Chair, which was responded to by A. Graham; song, "I'm afloat." "Douro Council," responded to by John Carnegie, Jr, Esq. "Volunteer Militia of Canada," responded to by Wm. Johnston, Col. Strickland and John Harvey, Esq. "The Ladies" health was then proposed, but we are sorry to say that Douro could not produce the bachelor who had the courage to respond to the toast on behalf of them. The health of Mr. and Mrs. Bateson was drank with all the honors, for the active part they took in getting the entertainment up. Several other volunteer toasts were given and songs sung, which made the evening pass off very pleasantly.

Mr. Porter, by his upright and consistent deportment during his long sojourn in the Township of Douro, has won the respect and esteem of his neighbors, who will miss him as a useful member of the community. He carries with him the good wishes for his success in his new home of all who have the pleasure of his acquaintance; where, we have no doubt, his upright and manly conduct will gain him many fast friends as those have done here.

The Vote on the Railroad Question.

On Monday last, according to notice, a Poll was held throughout the Wards of the Town on Mr. Nicholls' Resolution, which resulted in a majority in the whole of the Wards of 51. The total number of votes polled was 949—by far the greatest number for any similar measure ever given. It must be a satisfaction to all parties that there has been an expression by the rate-payers. The Council can now proceed and ratify the arrangement with Mr. Covert and thus save the Town the annoyance and expense of a lengthened and bootless law suit. We congratulate the Town on the result of the vote.

There was no meeting of the Town Council last Monday night.

The Board of School Trustees was to have had their meeting on Tuesday night but could not get a quorum. Those who won't attend should resign.

THE "REVIEW'S" ATTACK ON OUR MEMBER.

Last week the readers, of the Review were treated to rather a spicy as well as a lengthy article on the conduct of our member. It is from the pen of the individual who some time ago, owing to his commencing the profession of the law, which does not allow a student to retain the situation of editor of a newspaper, gave his valedictory to the public, and yet has all the time in reality been editing the Review. So much for his honorable conduct. This scurrilous, coarse, impertinent and unfair attack upon Colonel Haultain, marks a low, vicious mind, an implacable hat, and a black heart. No honest, candid person can read Colonel Haultain's speeches or letter, nor scrutinize his conduct during the election complained of, that could possibly so scandalously libel him as the editor of the Review has done. For whatever cause, the Colonel has had the misfortune some time to stand in the young man's sunshine, and he seems determined to look him for it. We care not to enter into the particulars of this unjust attack, its style protests us; we only refer to one statement to show the unfairness of this would-be guide of public opinion. He says that Col. Haultain is supporting Mr. Flint, ought to have resigned, when the County gave a member of the Government a majority of 360 votes. Does he forget that when the same County 5 years before, gave an opponent to the Ministry a majority of over 1,100 votes, that he never said a word about the supporter of the Government—Mr. Conger resigning then? "Oh!" perhaps he will say, "circumstances alter cases." Just so, Mr. Conger was his protege, and Col. Haultain never sought his favor. That is the secret of the whole affair. "Let us be thankful that there are not many men in" press the who can descend to the low, personal abuse and vituperation used in the Review, or who has so little of the milk of human kindness as it editor, as to wander out of his way to malign a man infinitely his superior, whose only misfortune is that he will not shape his public or private life to suit his whim. We have heard a number of persons speak of the attack as most uncalled for and vindictive. It will produce its fruits, and the writer will find, sooner or later, the truth of the old saying: "As a man sows so shall he reap." He may rest assured that his last effort will tend not a little to alienate him from the respect of his townsmen.

It has just been whispered in our ears that probably this article was written to please parties in Quebec, and to give an interest to the Review which has been rather tame of late; or, perhaps, it was intended to draw out the gallant Colonel in the newspapers. We know the Colonel too well to believe for a moment that he will view this fierce, unjust attack upon himself otherwise than with unmingled contempt.

Donations in money, provisions, wood or clothing will be thankfully received by the Treasurer or Secretary, or by Mr. Nicholls at his store. A list of all subscribers and donors will be printed after the next Audit of the accounts, which will take place on, or soon after, the 28th of May.

Canadian Postal Guide.

We have had sent up by the Post Master General, a pamphlet of 86 pages bearing the above title. It contains the chief regulations of the Post Office Department, rates of postage, information relating to money orders and parcel post, list of all the Post Offices in Canada with names of Post Masters, with sundry other information in connection with the Postal system. There is also a full statement of the Railways and the distances of the several stations from one another.

The whole compiled by John Dewe, Esq., P. O. Inspector, Toronto, and published by permission of the Post Master General. It is a valuable work, and should be in every counting house and office, in fact every one will find useful information in it. The price is 25 cents.

POLICE COURT.

Richard Martin, for refusing to obey summons served on him on the 2nd day of February last; charging him with breaking the windows of Louisa Potter, was fined $5 and costs.

Thos. Scarrah, of Norwood, was brought up on a charge of being drunk and disorderly, but was dismissed by his prosecutor to pay constable $1.

Francis Drake, who is an old offender, was brought from the lock-up charged by constable McDonald with interfering with him in the discharge of his duty on the night of the 27th ult.

Constable sworn: said that last night he found the girl Biddy (who is a prostitute) going round the streets, and while he was bringing her to the lock-up, the defendant came and said to him: he would be d—d if he should take her to the lock up. He (McD.) then let the girl go, and placed her friend in limbo. Fined $5 and costs, but in default was committed for 21 days to saw wood at the County Gaol.

Solomon Fish and James Bauvais was charged with fighting in a yard in the Town, but were dismissed.

John Wood, for being drunk and disorderly and using profane language; was fined $5 and costs, for which amount his mother gave a due bill to the Clerk.

John Sidley was arrested and put in the lock-up on Tuesday night last, by Constable McDonald, for fighting on the streets on the 13th Sept. last; also for fighting on Tuesday night. For the first offence he was fined $5 and costs, or in default, 21 days; second offence, $2 and costs, or 21 days. Was committed to saw wood at limbo.

Thos. B. Gannon, who is a school teacher, for being drunk on Tuesday night last was put in the lock-up and $2 and costs but in default was committed 14 days.

We hope Mr. Norton will keep these gentlemen busy until he gets all his wood cut; a good change from teaching to wood cutting!

Town Council.

February 27th, 1863.

Communications from Mr. Dennistoun, Messrs. Bradfield, Stevenson, R. Nicholls, and Wm. O'Donnell, were read.

The Mayor submitted the Auditor's Report, the Detailed Statement and Liabilities and Assets of the Town for the year 1863, which was ordered to be printed.

A report from the Committee on Appointments to Office, was read, received and adopted.

Mr. Nicholls was appointed to confer with the Town Commissioners on the leasing of the building on the market square.

The Tavern By-law and the By-law for Licensing Auctioneers, Pedlars, &c., and for appointing a Returning Officer for the South Ward were passed.

Mr. Edwin Poole was appointed Returning Officer, and Messrs. Haggart and Stevenson re-appointed Inspector of Licenses.

A committee was appointed to examine applicants premises for Tavern Licenses.

The taxes of several poor widows were ordered to be remitted.

The Council [illegible]

THE SHERIFF'S TAXES.—At a meeting of the City Council on Monday night, a communication was read from Government in reply to the memorial of the City Council on the subject of the taxes now being levied by the Sheriff. It stated that the memorial had been duly considered, but the Government could not grant the relief prayed for by the memorialists and five cents in the dollar would have to be collected. The wording of the letter, as may be supposed, created no little surprise, as it had been whispered that the Government had made some concession. It necessarily brought up the Mayor, who explained that despite the unsatisfactory appearance of things, a somewhat favorable arrangement, had, nevertheless, been come to. Although five cents in the dollar was to be paid, it was only to be paid for one year; and, as a necessary consequence, all who had paid more would have the difference refunded. The Attorney-General, for obvious reasons, had refused to give him a memorandum to this effect, but the necessary instructions would be conveyed to the Sheriff.

The above from the Ottawa Citizen of the 28th ult., reveals a piece of underhand dealing that should be exposed. The city of Ottawa is in arrears to the Municipal Loan Fund for 1859, '60 and '61. A Writ has been put in the hands of the Sheriff for the collection of the arrears, and now it comes out, that only one year's arrears are to be levied in place of three, and those of the rate-payers who have paid more will have them refunded. It would be better for the Government to come at once fairly out and recommend Parliament to assume the Municipal Loan Fund liabilities of the Municipalities. The way for us to get rid of indebtedness is, in like manner to fall behind for 3 or 4 years, and all we shall have to pay then will be for one year. Why should we and some others have to pay our debt yearly, and other municipalities escape with paying only one year in three?

Sabbath Funerals.

The following resolution, passed at the Wesleyan Methodist Quarterly meeting, held in November last, has been handed to us for publication:—

Resolved,—That the practice of Sabbath Funerals tending, as it does to a great amount of Sabbath desecration, is greatly to be condemned, and that in the opinion of this Board, the Pastor ought not to countenance such funerals, except in cases where the certificate of the physician as to the necessity of such interment is presented to him, and that a copy of this resolution be published in the local papers.

THE AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST for March is received. This is a good time to subscribe, as great attention is being paid to the farmers department, and as Spring is fast approaching, every farmer should subscribe for it. Send in your subscriptions before the first of April, directed to Orange Judd, 41 Park Row, New York city.

Masons.

The Peterboro' Lodge of F. and A. M. was opened on the evening of Wednesday the 25th inst.

Right Worshipful brother Thomas Ridout, D. D. G. M. presided.

Squire Trevlyn's Heir.

This is the title of a new story, just commenced in the Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post, by Mrs. Wood, the celebrated author of "East Lynne," "Verner's Pride," &c. Mrs. Wood has written for The Post for several years past. Marian Harland also is now writing a story for the Post, which paper is generally reputed to be one of the best now published. Its terms are $2 a year, or four copies for $6. Address Deacon & Patterson, 319 Walnut street, Philadelphia: who will send a sample number gratis to any one requesting it.

Curling Match.

The return match between the Peterborough and Keene Curling Clubs, was played on the Little Lake, yesterday, which resulted in favor of Peterboro, by eighteen points.

On Thursday last the Peterboro Amateur Dramatic Club gave another of their entertainments in the Town Hall, to a much larger audience, certainly, than we ever expected to see there considering the very wet and disagreeable nature of the weather on that evening, it should be highly gratifying to those gentlemen of thus having a proof that their exertions to amuse are appreciated by their good townsfolk. The performance on the whole came off well, and shows a decided improvement on their last. The Irish broom maker was well acted, and the laughable excitement kept up throughout the piece, much to the amusement of the audience who seemingly enjoyed it. The quadrille band under the leadership of Mr. Philp was in itself an attraction and discoursed the several pieces played by them with their usual ability. The loyalty of the club was evident in the hearty manner in which they sang the national anthem at the termination of the performance.

We have received from Mr. Travers of the Bank of Montreal, a very neat pocket Almanac, published by the North British and Mercantile Insurance Company, of which he is the agent. It contains a calendar, a prospectus of the company, the names of the members of the Government of Canada Post Office regulations, a list of the banks of their branches and agents, the Census of Canada, as well as of the united kingdom; the Royal family, Imperial Ministry, the Governor's of British Colonies, population of chief cities in England and Wales, interest tables, and a large amount of useful information. The North British though known only lately here in an old Institution, having been founded in 18.3. Its subscribed capital is £2,000,000; its invested fund to meet its liabilities is £1,734,000. It appears to be progresing very favorably in its business, and it claims to adopt lower rates than are usual. We recommend our friends requiring insurance in either life or fire department, to give Mr. Travers a call.

THE WEATHER.—March has come in like a lion—snow, storm and frost. There is most excellent sleighing just now, giving farmers and others an excellent opportunity to transport produce, lumber, timber, &c. To-day is the gauge day for the coming season, according to the doctrine of the Indiana Weather Prophet, who thus lays down to farmers his propositions, which he pretends to be equally certain with the ebbing and flowing of the tides:—"If at three o'clock p. m. to-day you find the wind W. N. W., snowing or cold day, you will have a cold, backward spring, frost in May and a prevalence of N. W. winds till June. In that case there will be no frost during summer. If, on the contrary, you find the wind S. W. S., or S. E.. with a pleasant day on the first Thursday of March, you will have an early spring. Put in all the spring wheat, barley and oats you can, with the assurance of a good crop if you do your part."

THE intelligence from the seat of war during the past week, is very meagre indeed. Strenuous efforts are to be made to subdue Vicksburg. A rumour came yesterday that the Federals were defeated with great loss, but the intelligence lacks confirmation.

Congress rose yesterday, leaving a deal of business undone. Only about 2 months is allowed for the war to last, but we shall not be surprised to see Congress meet and part again, before peace is proclaimed.

THE election for a Councillor in Mr. Barnhart's place in the South Ward, takes place on Monday next.

THE committee appointed to examine the houses and accomodations of the applicants for Tavern Licenses for the present year, report the following parties worthy of getting a License:—

L. Caisse, Wm. Armstrong, J. Sullivan, A. Niblock, L. McGregor, P. Hoffman, D. Faucher, Geo. Mitchell, J. Curtain, Wm Hoskin, S. W. Hastings, E. McCormick, W. H. Ostrom, M. McKellar, E. Phelan, M. Kiely.

When the chill winds blow, and the blinding snow sends the blood aglow—below zero, wherever you go, at home or no, whether or no, you will or no the shiver will go from head to toe, the cold toe, the frozen toe, with the gout you know; and the pain doth grow, and the throbbing flow of the veins below swell the poor old toe, with the corns, and O, you'd like to know where you could go, to friend or foe, and get relief for your suffering toe.

"I, George Brown."

We have given our readers the Speeches delivered by Mr. George Brown at Ingersoll and Hillman's Corners. In reading them over it is somewhat difficult to ascertain whether the George Brown said to have delivered them is the same Brown who left for Scotland some months ago. Brown is a very common name, and it is quite possible that the Brown in Oxford is not the Brown who was leader of the reform party prior to his departure for Europe. Our scepticism on this point is created by the extraordinary nature of the speeches delivered by the Brown in Oxford. The Brown we used to know, although, somewhat intemperate in his style, was generally earnest and dignified. The Oxford Brown is the direct opposite, and appears as a blustering egotist. The wants of the country and the interests of the reform party sink into insignificance when compared with the ambitious hopes of "I, George Brown." "I, George Brown," have been the father of every useful measure brought before the country. I, through the Globe, am the instructor of the people—the leader of political opinion in the country. I am the only man who can save the ministry and the country. I am at the top of the ladder, Bodwell is at the bottom. I am getting grey in my country's service, Bodwell should wait until his beard grows." Such is the pitch of the speeches made by one who wishes to rule the country. Nothing is said of the Reform party who labored for years before George Brown's name was known on this side of the Atlantic, and who, when he did become known, used his influence to overturn a liberal Government, and secured an eight years reign of the Corruptionists. Nothing is said of the mass of the Reform party, by whose strenuous exertions the coalition was overturned. The burden of the speech is "I, Brown, did this. I, Brown did that, I, Brown did everything that has been properly performed." The exhibition is a pitiable one, showing as it does, how too much praise may affect the intellect of even so venerable a man as George Brown.

The ever recurring use of the 'I,' however, has more significance if we look at the designs of Mr. Brown. He has cut himself loose from his old reform partners, and has no longer the right to use the "we," unless he includes in it the Tories, who, it seems are about to support him as a body. He has taken a step which is strongly condemned by the liberal party. He has acted against the advice of his warmest friends in both Houses, whose opinion he sought. He has succeeded in making the Tories jubilant, at the prospect of a split in the Reform party. When it comes to this, that Mr. Brown can only look at the Tories for sympathy in his cause, and when his success is to them a matter of rejoicing, we need hardly regret that he is compelled to use the 'I' only. While such is the case, we trust it will be "I, George Brown," solitary and alone, to the end of his chapter.

It may be that we are judging Mr. Brown harshly, but recent events justify us in judging Mr. Brown strictly. It has not been many months since we gave an account of the proposition, which emanated from the Globe office, soliciting the aid of Tories to defeat the Ministry. Mr. Brown's nomination at Oxford was seconded by a gentleman who supported the corruptionists through their whole course, and it is a well-known fact that at the request of John A. Macdonald the Tories in Oxford are to vote for Mr. Brown. This is surely enough to make Reformers suspicious of Mr. Brown's motives and intentions notwithstanding his pledges and promises.—Hamilton Times.

HORROR OF HORRORS.

THE CULMINATION OF MILITARY-MEDICAL BRUTALITY.

We have frequently called attention to the horrid condition of the medical department of Gen. Grant's army. It is growing worse and worse. The last, and a most chilling evidence of it comes to us from St. Louis. Day before yesterday, the hospital steamer J. C. Swan, arrived at that port, freighted with sick from Gen. Grant's army.

We learn from the Democrat, that she left Young's Point with 338 sick soldiers on board, of whom seventy five, or nearly one fourth, died on the passage!

This fearful mortality was caused not by an epidemic, but by sheer neglect and brutal carelessness. The Democrat says, that but one surgeon, Dr. Elmer Nichols, Second Assistant Surgeon of the 118th Illinois, was on board of the steamer, and to his charge alone was committed these 338 patients. He applied for assistance. Two more surgeons were assigned, but one was too sick to travel, and the other was placed under arrest by his colonel.

Dr. Nichols made known this state of affairs, but could get no other assistance. The sick were fairly piled on board of the boat, many in a dying condition. Two expired ten minutes after being placed upon the deck! Although most of the patients had been without nourishment twenty-four, and some twenty-eight hours, none were sent aboard of the boat until the night after the sick were received. No fresh meat was received until the boat reached Memphis, five days after the sick were received on the boat, so that the sick really had no nourishment during that whole time. But that is not the worst of the story. The sick were shipped on the 25th. The Democrat says:

No medicines were received till the night of the 26th, and then only a very inadequate supply, and fourteen patients expired between 3 p. m. of the 25th and 7 a. m. of the 26th.

The delay in getting medicines seems to have been caused by "red tape." The medical purveyor was with difficulty found, and then, when found, had to cut down the Doctor's requisition, before it could be regularly approved.

The boat left on the 27th, with 328 sick on board. Only a few medical assistants could be found to aid the Doctor in getting the necessary list of the patients. Before this work could be done, one man died whose name or regiment could not be learned.

At Memphis, the unexpected order was received to proceed to St. Louis. Further provisions and medicines were got and the boat started. The change of climate and the severe cold proved fatal to many who might have lived had they been left at Memphis.

Immediately upon her arrival at the wharf, the J. C. Swan was ordered to Jefferson Barracks, and at once proceeded thither to put off her patients there. She returned yesterday morning, bringing up 18 corpses for interment.

Great God! is this sad story never to end? How long, in the name of Heaven, we ask, is this brutality to be allowed?—Here, on one boat, seventy-five of our soldiers have been murdered, foul murdered through the damning carelessness of the medical department of Grant's army. It is insufferable. It cannot be submitted to.—Cincinnati Times.

A CURIOUS CASE OF DISTRESS IN NEW YORK—A YOUNG GIRL HOMELESS AND FRIENDLESS WANTS TO ENLIST.—A very curious case of great distress was brought to the notice of the police to-day, which goes to exemplify in some degree the misery and suffering brought about by the war. About two years ago, a French family of the name of Miller lived very comfortably on a small farm near Hackensack, N. J. The family consisted of the husband, wife and two children, a boy now about 18 years old and a girl near 17. Shortly after the wife died, and since then misfortune seemed to follow the family, until they were obliged to abandon the farm and hired a small cottage back of Jersey city, where they moved with what little furniture they had spared from the general ruin. Despairing of improving their fortunes the father and son determined to go to the war, and for that purpose enlisted in one of the Long Island regiments now at the seat of war. They left the girl Mary, a mere child, in charge of the house, promising to send her money for the purpose of keeping house. About six months ago she received $10 from her relatives, with which she paid part of her rent. Since then she has not seen or heard of her father or brother, and being in arrears with her landlord she was turned out of her only home and had her furniture taken away. The unfortunate child was thus left entirely destitute and houseless, without a relative or friend to apply to for assistance. This occurred some a month ago, and since that time Mary has been wandering through the wards in the neighborhood of Hackensack, subsisting on what she could find or beg, and sleeping under the trees. Sometimes she would catch a rabbit or some frogs, which she would live on for days. During the late cold spell she crouched under the rocks for protection, and when the nights were too cold for this even, she would creep into some barn or stable and entreat a night's shelter or a mouthful of food. When she left home she took with her a suit of clothes belonging to her brother, which she wore underneath her own attire; and cutting her hair short came to this city and endeavoured to enlist at some of the recruiting offices. Of course, on being examined, her sex was immediately discovered, and she was finally arrested and sent to the Police Headquarters, where she will be detained for the present. This poor outcast is a mere child in appearance, of very slight build, with an interesting and intelligent countenance, and makes a very likely looking lad. She related her story in a very artless and innocent manner, which did not fail to impress the truth of her statements on all her hearers.

A CASE OF TERRIBLE CRUELTY.—The Peoria Transcript says, a young girl, a sister of the wife of H. Bollinger, of Peoria, was brought from Pekin some two years since to board with the latter. The girl's name is Josephine Wyndhammer, and if she lives will come into possession of certain property, the rent of which was to pay her board with her sister, Mrs. B. Lately it has been hinted that her brother-in-law and sister were endeavoring to starve her to death, which resulted in a writ of habeas corpus being obtained for the child, who was found upon a chair, clothed in dirty rags, without shoes or dress, a shivering spectre, emaciated to the extreme, bending with pain, and too weak to walk. Her feet were deeply blue, have been repeatedly frozen, and she was covered with ulcerated sores, said to have been caused by the blows she received. Her feet being too sore to wear shoes, she was wrapped in a ragged coverlid from her own bed, and like an infant, scarcely weighing fifty pounds, she was conveyed to the city hospital. She had slept and been confined in a garret most of the winter, and on the floor was a little bed partially filled with straw, and not twenty inches wide, with a pillow stained black with blood and filth. Near it was a pile of dirty rags, hardened with clotted blood.

AN EXCITING SCENE IN ST. CATHARINES.—NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING.—The St. Catharines Journal gives the particulars of an exciting occurrence which took place there on Tuesday last. Some of the parties are known in this city, and we therefore give the article from the Journal:—

"Notwithstanding the insecurity of the ice on the Canal, there are some who will venture on it for the sake of enjoying a few hours skating. Yesterday afternoon, as Mrs Bowen and Miss Towers, accompanied by a younger brother, were proceeding across the canal below Lock No. 4, the treacherous element gave way beneath the feet of the two ladies, and they fell in. Their brother immediately went to their rescue, but the ice was too brittle to even bear his weight and he also went through, and all three were at once struggling in the water. The wildest excitement sprang up at once, people rushing to the rescue from all parts of the canal. The ice was too thin for any one to venture on it with any hope of saving the lives of those in the water or preserving his own, and attempts were made to erect a platform of boards around the spot where the now drowning persons were struggling, but before it could be completed the ice again gave way, and the number of strugglers was increased three or four. Capt. Fitzgibbens was in three or four times, and P. H. Bowen, and several others, once or twice each. For a time it was thought to be impossible to save those in danger, but a man employed in Mr. Cairns' Tannery opportunely arrived with a rope, which was thrown to the parties in the water by which means the whole party was rescued.

FEARFUL OCCURRENCE AT BALTIMORE.—Yesterday afternoon, we are informed by the telegraph, while Gen. Butler is company with the Committee of Reception and Gen. Schenck and staff were visiting the forts around the city, a melancholy accident took place, which passed quite a gloom over the whole party. They had visited Forts McHenry and Federal Hill, and had gone to Fort Marshall at the eastern extremity of the city. Here a salute was fired just as the General and his party had passed along the ramparts out of range of the gun. The gunner supposed that the party had passed, fired a 32-pounder; but, most unfortunately just as the gun was discharged, some of the party who had loitered behind came up, and one of them, Commander Maxwell Woodhull, received the whole charge, which blew the flesh from his lower limbs and caused his death in a few minutes. His body was blown over the ramparts to a distance of 30 feet. The unfortunate officer was about 50 years of age.

Mrs. Partington we are sorry to say, has not been very well of late. She complains of having a romantic affection in her shoulders, the necrology in her head, and the embargo in the lombardy region, besides a swelling of her jocular veins. She thinks she took cold from throwing open a window the other night, to shy a bottle at a couple of bellicose amatory cats, that were "making night hideous," and disturbing her rest.

For the Examiner.

MR. EDITOR,—In accordance with promise we resume the pleasant task of contributing a few more thoughts regarding this part of the County of Peterborough. On leaving the pleasant "Town" of Hamilton, looking northwards the stranger would very good-naturedly suppose that a place further back than the place just left would surely be the jumping off place in creation. But no! what a surprise the traveller gets as he traverses the line of road between the two places; on looking to the right and left of him what a fine description of farming districts, fine farm houses cheer him as he passes along. On reaching the farm of Mr. T. Hawson he perceives away ahead of him the "Norwood of old." Soon he strides along reaching the place in which we may pass a few broken hints on the Village and its men. The first building of note is that of the Grammar School, which stands as a monument of the enterprising qualities of the people of Asphodel. The Principal of the institution is a gentleman of considerable scholastic talents. The system of education there carried on is the Normal; in fact if old Greece was proud of her Halls of Learning, so ought we in this place.—Many bright youths, male and female, have already finished their education in the institution and have gone forth with their fortune on their brain, and doubtless will, I hope, prove bright stars in the firmament of intelligence. Close by is the "International Hotel," owned and kept by Mr. J. A. Johnson, good accomodation for the travelling community; indeed as a landlord and host he is just the man, and a never failing kindness from his wife—whoever puts up there are well cared for. The place has four public houses, all of which are very orderly, though your humble servant's opinion is that less might do for this place. As far as merchandize is concerned the place is well supplied and sometimes it is overstocked, for very often some house from your Town or others comes forth a lot of stuff, worth but little, and palm it upon our unsuspecting public; however they are getting to be "wide awake," and hold back from the "cheap Johns."

Much could be said concerning the prospects of the Village, but in the mean time we will leave it to some of the "Javons" who are better able than the writer. Suffice it to say that the place is not behind any of its sister Villages in business, tact and talent. At the eastern end of the place there stands the large stone Grist and Flouring Mill, owned by Mr Thos. Beck, which stands as a monument of that gentleman's enterprising abilities, whose labours are being crowned with success. Formerly there stood beside him a fine Saw Mill which unfortunately was destroyed by the ravages of fire in June, 1862. The same gentleman carries on the Lumbering operations to a very large extent, which naturally supplies many hardy, honest hands with employment which receives a good remuneration. In connection with all this he has a very fine Mercantile house in this place second to none in the County in which we live. As in all other places we have our share of Mechanical Trades going on: Tinkers, Tailors, Soldiers, Sailors, Shoemakers, Builders, Contractors, Drs. and D. Drs., and a small sprinkling of Epistolary writers, who doubtless would like to cope with the ancients Atticus, Cicero, Pliny, &c., but alas, alas, how far behind. At present the several benevolent institutions are well represented and carried on with good success, though few of the feathers take any part whatever therein, trusting that all such institutions may succeed as well as in every other part of this Canada of ours. Much may be said about the different aspects of the place and we leave it for some future period, but in the mean time allow me to subscribe myself as Norwood, Feb., 1863.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR,—It was with feelings of indignation and disgust that I read an article, for courtesy's sake I call it an editorial, although I feel I am disgracing the word by using it to name the contemptible production which appeared in the Review of last week, pretending to define the position taken by our member, Lieut. Col. Haultain, in the Legislative Assembly now in Session. This is done in language and manner so offensive as not only to be insulting to the friends of the Col., but to be at once an outrage upon the intelligence of the people, and a disgrace to our Town, in having a man connected with us who could be actuated by the motives which must have prompted him to write that article. But before going further I would wish every one who may see this letter to read the article I refer to, and on finishing it I would ask him if the dictatorial tone, untruthfulness, meanness, gratification of petty spite and jealousy, and other traits so characteristically displayed, does not stamp the author as one who has long since been an object of ridicule and contempt for all his fellow townsmen. Had the article been written in a manly, honorable manner, by a man of good judgment and sound principle, and who commanded a certain amount of respect, with an honest intention of edifying the readers of it by the relation of facts, we could have received it with good grace, but coming as it does from a man in the guise of the author, and written merely for the gratification of an implacable hate, a rankling spite and other like feelings so mean as to be peculiar to him, it is hardly sufferable. Is it certainly not amusing to see the true nature of the animal so glaringly displayed? Can we imagine anything more ridiculously amusing than the picture of this almost infallible judge of human nature, this magnani-nous scribbler, coming forth from the depth of his insignificance, it not vanity that made him run for a School Trustee? aye, a School Trustee, and was his vanity not highly flattered when he found that either it was not the right sort, or more probably, his numerous friends afraid lest his refined sensibilities would receive a shock if elected to such a menial office, considerately chose another. Is it not vanity that makes him hold office in a Rifle Company, which would be a good one, but from the fact of his having something to do with it, and thus being the means of keeping volunteers from defending their country and leaving it in danger of being stabbed by the steel bayonets of its enemies, and not the ink cans of the London Times? If his vanity would only induce him to run for parts unknown, and take "Toby" with him, I am certain he would find no one to oppose him. Is it not his vanity that makes Ito do all sorts of dirty and mean actions, such as asking members to get copies of correspondence, and telling people what it is before he knows himself, and making us believe he is a very great man down there, one of the lions in fact, when we all know so well that their is more of a certain animal with very long ears, in him, than the magnanimity of the former. That is not the way for him to serve his country, if he is so very anxious for its safety, let him resign from the aforementioned Company, and not keep others away who are sincere in their profession of loyalty; let him give up meddling with men who are discharging their duties with no honesty, he has so little knowledge of, as not to understand; let him not imagine that everything is done as he would do for a political purpose or to get votes; let him give over criticising men who are his superiors in every respect, and who have a character to sustain, not like himself, one who need not care how he acts, as it cannot make him any lower in the social scale; let him give up judging people by himself, and then he will find how different they are, give up the gratification of all the petty vices and passions so degenerating to man, in other words turn over a new leaf, and then perhaps he will get elected when he runs for Pound-keeper. To use his own words, "the public career of this gentleman is rather curious"—the only true thing in the article when applied to himself. His insinuations as to the Col. "being an honorable man," would lead us to ask if he is possessed of so much honor as would justify him in calling another's into question.—I am afraid not, and I "am in a position to say" that I could give many proofs in which the Church would figure conspicuously, would it not be taking up much valuable space, and occupying too much time. In finishing my letter I would call attention to the fact that I do so in the language he has himself chosen to define the position of another, forgetting how truly it applies to his own. I only add a word or two, "hereafter his pretentious claim to a character for independence" or anything else "will be estimated at its true value." That's so.

Yours, &c.,
ELECTOR.

Terrible Calamity.

A DWELLING BURNED—A MOTHER AND 3 CHILDREN PERISH IN THE FLAMES.

We have to record a most heartrending casualty, involving the destruction of an entire family, consisting of a woman and her three children. At half-past four o'clock, this morning, the tower bell sounded an alarm for the third district, which was found to proceed from a building on Bowery street. On reaching that locality, it was revealed that a frame house, belonging to a Mr. Robson, and occupied by a clergyman named Fraser, was so far burned that it was impossible to save it. Great excitement was manifest among the crowd when it was announced that none of the occupants could be found. It was soon ascertained that Mr. Fraser left the city on a journey to Canada, last evening. Hopes were indulged that his family were with him, but it seems fate had ordained otherwise, for on searching among the ruins four bodies were exhumed, showing conclusively their horrible end. That of the mother was not so much disfigured as the others, which were left mere trunks. All were probably suffocated in their beds, as they roomed in the rear of the building, where the fire is supposed to have originated. We learned this forenoon, that Mr. Fraser was formerly a barrister, of considerable practice, in Canada, but latterly has become a preacher, of the Swedenborgian faith. He was notified by telegraph of his misfortune, and will be back again this evening. Coroner Randall will hold an inquest on the bodies of the deceased, this forenoon.—There were two boys, the eldest aged 12 years, and a little girl about seven.—Buffalo Post, Feb. 27.

Singular Battle Incident.

There were many incidents in the battle of Stone's river that have not yet seen the light. One specially is worth mentioning. In the rebel charge upon McCook's right, the rebel Third Kentucky was advancing full upon one of our loyal Kentucky regiments. These two regiments were from the same county, and consequently were old friends and neighbors, now about to meet for the first time as enemies. As soon as they came close enough for recognition, they mutually ceased firing, and began abusing, and cursing, and swearing at each other, calling each other the most outlandish names; and all this time the battle was roaring around them without much attention from either side. It was hard to tell which regiment would come off the victor in this wordy battle. As far as I could hear both sides were terrible at swearing; but this could not always last; by mutual consent they finally ceased cursing, and, grasping their muskets, charged into each other with the most unearthly yell ever heard on any field of battle. Muskets were clubbed, bayonet met bayonet, and in dozens of instances, when old feuds made the belligerents crazy with passion, the musket was thrown away, and at it they went, pummelling, pulling and gouging in rough and tumble style, and in a manner that any looker on would consider it as a free fight.

The rebels were getting rather the better of the fight, when the twenty-third Kentucky succeeded in giving a flanking fire, which made them retreat with quite a number of prisoners in their hands. The rebels had fairly got under weigh, when the Ninth Ohio came up on the double quick, and, charging on their now disordered ranks, succeeded in capturing all their prisoners, besides taking in return a great many of the rebels. As the late belligerents were conducted to the rear they appeared to have forgotten all their late animosity, and were now on the best terms imaginable, laughing, and chatting, and joking; and, as the rebels were well supplied with whiskey, their canteens were readily handed about from one to the other, until they all became as jolly as possible under the circumstances.

OLD DR. LAWSON.—Many good stories are told of old Dr. Lawson, a Presbyrian minister in Scotland, who was quite insensible to the world around him.

One of his sons, who afterward became a highly-esteemed Christian minister, was a very tricky boy, perhaps as lachrymose in his tricks. Near the manse lived an old woman, of crabbed temper, and rather ungodly in her mode of living. She and the boy had quarrelled, and the result was that he took a quiet opportunity to kill one of her hens. She went immediately to Dr. Lawson and charged his son with the deed. She was believed, and it was not denied, and punishment was inflicted. He was ordered to abide in the house; and, to make his sentence more severe, his father took him into his study and commanded him to sit there with him. The son was restless, and frequently eyed the door. At last he saw his father drowned in thought, and quickly slipped out. He went directly to the old woman's and killed another hen, returning immediately after and taking his place in the library, his father having never missed him. The woman speedily made her appearance, and charged the slaughter again upon him. Dr. Lawson however, waxed angry—declared her to be a false accuser, as the boy had been closeted with him all the time, adding—"Besides, this convinces me that you had just as little ground for your first accusation; I therefore acquit him of both, and he may go now."

Something from a "Disbanded Volunteer."

The President, in the perplexities surrounding him, sent to "A Disbanded Volunteer" for counsel and sympathy. "D. V." describes the interview in the Sunday Mercury as follows:

He (the President) was standin' on the front door steps when I arrove at the White House, pullin on his left whisker as is his wont when his will is disregarded, and conducted me straight to his sanktum. He said he was worrid amazingly by the dogged obstinacy of the War Department, upon which I axed if he wanted a piece of an honest man's mind.

"Spit it out, Old Fidelity," sez he, his fetters lighten up with a hole-soled smile.

"Well," sez I, "wat I her'to say in the first place is this. It's not so easy to lick anybody as it is to lick nobody, is it?"

"He remained for a few minets absorbed in deep thort and then shook his head."

"But," I continued, "it's easier to lick a considerable than to lick the same body where it's twiste as considabul as't it?"

After a brief interval for reflexin he concurd.

"And," sez I resoomin agin, "It's easier—isn't it?—to smash horseteal boddies when we are able, than it is when they air able to raise Cain with us."

"D. V." he rejoined, amidlin complessantly, "you borrord that silly glim from a remark of mine in the Mis-sidge, and I am proud to say the I gic is correck."

"Ef so," sez I, "why in thunder don't you tell Burnside to go in and win afore the rebils sets their artilworks, and rifle pits and mast batteries atwixt him and Richmond, thacker's mink traps in a Western Swomp?"

"My nobel and esteemabul friend," he responded w pin his nose with visabul emosbin, "your sentimens does honor to your hed and hart; but I've gin the Secksatry of War discresenary powers."

"I'me right glad to larn it," I remarked sneeringly, "for it's the gineral opinyun that he hesn't enny of his own."

You should have seen the Honabul Abe lay back and shake his honest sides. It dun me good to look at him.

LENDING AN AX.—"Will you lend me your ax—you won't want to use it, I reckon."

"Why, yes, I'll let you take it, seein' you want it."

In about two months the owner does want to use his ax, and applies to the borrower, but he has not got it; "the last he used on it, Mr. Fletcher had it to cut some roots with."

The poor owner then goes to Mr. Fletcher.

"Stranger, have you seen my ax I lent Mr. Bent t'other day?"

"Why, yes, I reckon Mr. Bowen's got it; he said he wanted to chop some firewood, so I lent it to Lum. You'd best ask him for it."

He goes.

"Mornin', Mr. Bower—how's your wife?"

"Lively, I reckon—how's yourn?"

"About right, I reckon—have you lind a hold o' my ax?"

"I reckon I have. I have smashed the handle—it was a powerful weak one—but you can mend it; and, when you're done it, I'd like to borrow it again, 'cause I've a smart chance of wood to cut, and want to use it specially."

Do Good to Other

"Who blesses others in his daily deeds,
Shall find the healing that his spirit needs;
For every flower in others' path way thrown,
Confers its fragrant beauty on his own."

If this be true the proprietors of the "Canadian Pain Destroyer" must be the recipients of blessings innumerable. Its the safest and most sure remedy for sudden colds, rheumatism, burns, Sprains, &c., and removes all kinds of pains almost directly it is applied. 25 cents per Bottle. Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

HUNAR'S VERMONT LINIMENT will give relief. Downs' Elixir cures Colds. Price 25 cents.

The exportation of fresh meats from the western states to Europe, by the way of Portland, N. H., says the Portland Press, has grown to be an extensive business. The meats are cut up, partially dried and packed in boxes from three to four feet square; dry salted sufficiently to preserve them on their passage. They are brought by railroad from Ohio, Illinois, &c., and shipped principally by the Canadian line of steamers from Portland. During the month of January last, these steamers took 12,960 packages of meat, containing 7,371,360 pounds, valued at $870,496 60. Lard, hams, &c, are also exported largely by the same line.

RELIEF IN TEN MINUTES.
BRYAN'S
PULMONIC WAFERS.
The most certain and speedy remedy ever discovered for all Diseases of the Chest and Lungs, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Consumption, Bronchitis, Influenza, Hoarseness, Difficult breathing, Sore throat &c., &c., &c.

THESE WAFERS give the most instantaneous and perfect relief and when persevered with according to directions, never fail to effect a rapid and lasting cure. Thousands have been restored to perfect health who have tried other means in vain. To all classes and all constitutions they are equally a blessing and a cure—none need despair, no matter how long the disease may have existed, or however severe it may be, provided the organic structure of the vital organs is not hopelessly destroyed. Every one afflicted should give them an impartial trial.

To Vocalists and Public Speakers, these Wafers are peculiarly valuable; they will in one day remove the most severe occasional hoarseness; and their regular use for a few days will, at all times, increase the power and flexibility of the voice, greatly improving its tone, compass and clearness, for which purpose they are regularly used by many professional vocalists

SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL:
A FIRST CLASS FAMILY NEWSPAPER,
DEVOTED TO THE
Dissemination of Scottish Literature & News.

SIXTH YEAR.

The Sixth Volume of the SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL commenced January 1, 1863, each year constituting a complete volume of convenient size for binding: and each number containing a most entertaining and instructive repertory of reading matter, calculated to interest all readers of Scottish origin. The SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL, though decidedly international in its constant efforts to promote peace and prosperity between the people of Great Britain and America, is yet emphatically Scottish in its copious records of all events occurring in Scotland that can be of the latest interest to natives of that country residing in America; and to this "news from home" is added, weekly, a summary of general intelligence from England, Ireland and other parts of the world.

A distinguishing feature of the SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL is its regular republication—verbatim et literatim—of the "leading articles" of the prominent British newspapers and other periodicals upon the most important topics of the day. This feature is a unique one, and has been found very acceptable to the people of the United States and British North America, and supplies a long needed desideratum on the American Continent. In reference to the "editorials" of the SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL it is a significant fact that the British press frequently acknowledging their intrinsic truth and force by copiously extracting from our columns and declaring that the SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL is the most able and interesting paper published in America. A concise weekly summary is also given of the principal items of American news, and a similar narrative of events transpiring in the various British Provinces.

In the forthcoming volume of the SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL increased space will be devoted to the literary department in the publication of serial tales and sketches, vividly illustrating the customs habits, sentiments, and general characteristics of the people of Scotland; each tale emanating from the pen of an author of celebrity. As heretofore, particular care will be exercised in the choice of original poetry, composed by writers of acknowledged genius and purity of thought, resident here or abroad. The third number of the new volume contains the commencement of a deeply interesting prize tale, entitled

RACHEL NOBLE.

The Directors of the Scottish Temperance League gave a prize of One Hundred Guineas for this tale. The Rev. N. L. Walker, Rev. A. Johnson, Rev. James Hill, Rev. William Blair, and Rev. John Brown Johnson, D. D., acted as adjudicators, and after carefully perusing Eighty-three Manuscripts, awarded the prize to BRUCE EDWARDS. This tale will prove to be one of the most interesting ever published, and will be appreciated by all classes of readers.

THE MAGIC TIME OBSERVER!
The Perfection of Mechanism.
BEING A HUNTING AND OPEN FACE, or Lady or Gentleman's Watch combined. One of the prettiest, most convenient, and decidedly the best and cheapest timepieces for general and reliable use, ever offered. It has within it and connected with its machinery, its own winding attachment, rendering a key entirely unnecessary. The cases of this Watch are composed of two metals, the outer one being fine 18 carret gold. It has the improved ruby action lever movement, and is warranted an accurate timepiece. Price, superbly engraved, per case of a half dozen, $204.00. Sample Watches, in neat morocco boxes, for those proposing to buy at wholesale, $35, sent by express with bill payable on delivery. Soldiers must remit payment in advance, as we can't collect from those in the army. Address

EMPLOYMENT.

THE Undersigned has, for several years past, been engaged in a business, which has yielded him at the rate of three thousand dollars per annum, and is now willing to teach it to others. The business is of a highly useful and general character, adapted both to cities and villages, and one that any person of ordinary capacity, young or old, male or female, can acquire with a few hours' practice, and by which they can secure a very handsome income. Several young ladies who have received instructions from me, both in New York State and Pennsylvania, are earning upwards of $15 per week by it, and there is no reason why any one else cannot do the same. Invalids, even, can do well by it, as it is no peddling affair, but a business that is perfectly respectable. Gentleman and ladies of leisure who would like to learn the business for their own amusement or pleasure, will find the practice of it a pleasant pastime, and one that they will take great interest in. On receipt of $1, I will send printed instructions by which any person can readily acquire the art, and these instructions will also contain every particular relative to the carrying it on so that it will be highly profitable. The purchaser of the "printed instructions" will also be authorized to teach it to others; and I have sometimes received as high as $100, for teaching it personally to a single individual. I would state further that $3.50 or $3 will buy everything that is necessary to commence the business with, and the articles can be got almost anywhere, in city or country, or if preferred, I can furnish them. Address ALVORD T PARSONS, No. 36 LIBERTY ST., New York.

THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE.

THE New-York Tribune, first issued in 1841, is now in its twenty-second year, has obtained both a larger and more widely diffused circulation than any other newspaper ever published in America. Though it has suffered, in common with other journals, from the volunteering and departure of tens of thousands of its patrons to serve in the War of the Union, its circulation on the 6th of December, 1862, is as follows:

Daily	50,135
Semi-Weekly	17,250
Weekly	148,000
Aggregate	215,375

Preeminently a journal of News and of Literature The Tribune has political convictions, which are well characterized by the single word Republican. It is Republican in its hearty adhesion to the great truth that "God has made of one blood all nations of men"—Republican in its assertion of the equal and inalienable rights of all men to "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness"—Republican in its steadfast, earnest, defiant hostility to every scheme and effort of the Slave Power, from the Annexation of Texas to the great Rebellion, to grasp the empire of the New World and wield the resources of our country for its own aggrandizement—Republican in its antagonism to the aristocrats and despots of the Old World, who loudly bail in the perils and calamities suddenly thrust upon us by the American counterpart the overthrow and ruin of the Model Republic—Republican in its hope and trust, its faith and effort, that this atrocious Rebellion must result in the signal overthrow of its plotters, and the firm establishment of equal rights and equal laws throughout the whole extent of our country, wherein Liberty and Union shall indeed be "one and inseparable" henceforth and forever.

The Tribune devotes attention in calmer times, and to some extent in these, to Education Temperance, and Agriculture, Invention, and whatever else may minister to the spiritual and material progress and well-being of mankind; but for the present its energies and its columns are mainly devoted to the success of the War for the Union. Its special correspondents accompany every considerable army and report every important incident of that great struggle which we trust is soon to result in the signal and conclusive triumph of the National arms and in the restoration of Peace and Thrift to our bleeding country. We believe that no otherwise can a fuller or more accurate view of the progress and character of this momentous conflict be obtained than through the regular perusal of our columns. And we earnestly solicit the cooperation of all friends of the National cause, which we regard and uphold as that of Universal Humanity, to aid us in extending its circulation.

FARMS in UPPER CANADA.

THE CANADIAN

Land & Emigration Co'y, Limited,

OF LONDON, ENGLAND,

Capital, £250,000 Stg.

THE HON. MR. JUSTICE HALIBURTON, Chairman, offer for sale

250,000 Acres

OF LAND IN THE

COUNTIES OF PETERBORO & VICTORIA

consisting of parts of the

Townships of DYSART, DUDLEY, LONGFORD, GOULFORD, HARCOURT, HARBURN, BRUTON, HAVELOCK, &c., &c.

The following are some, among many other inducements to Settlers:

Ten per cent of the purchase money paid to Government by the Company for these lands will be expended in constructing really good roads; these roads will intersect the Government Roads; namely, the Bobcaygeon, Victoria Burleigh and Peterson Roads, at convenient points, and will converge to various Town plots which the Company have it in view to lay out in very carefully selected sites. The Town Plots will, it is anticipated,—the whole of them being connected by good roads (for the construction of which the country affords excellent facilities)—become each the centre of a new and flourishing settlement, private enterprise in establishing Stores, Mills, &c., will here soon find its reward, and the several towns and townships being as it were knit together by good roads, will derive from that fact great advantages and mutual support.

In addition, the watchful supervision of the Company over every part of their lands will greatly tend to advance the interests of this district, which, being in the middle of Upper Canada, possessing a fertile soil, and a climate unsurpassed in its healthful effects upon the human frame, offers superior attractions, and all the elements of rapid progress and permanent prosperity.

ANNUAL MEETING

INVESTIGATION REPORT - - DECLARATION OF BONUS.

THE thirty-sixth annual Meeting of this Company was held within the Royal Hotel, Aberdeen on Friday, the 18th April.

Alexander Stronach, Esq., of Drumallan, Chairman of the Ordinary Directors, in the Chair.

There were submitted to the meeting—

1.—Report by the Directors, which, on the motion of the Chairman, was cordially and unanimously approved of and adopted.

2.—The Balance Sheet for the past year, with detailed states relative thereto, duly certified as correct, in terms of the Act of Incorporation, by the Chairman and Manager, and also by the Auditor.

There was also laid on the Table the various Valuation States in connection with the Quinquennial Investigation into the state of the Company's affairs, as at 31st January, 1862.

The following particulars derived from the Balance Sheet and States before-mentioned, show the result of the operations of the Company for the past year:—

Amount proposed for Life Assurance during the year, contained in 1480 Proposals	£464,835 0 0
Amount of Proposals accepted, and for which 981 Policies were issued	359,680 0 0
ANNUAL PREMIUMS or said Policies	11,179 1 0
CLAIMS BY DEATH including BONUSES on PARTICIPAT ON POLICIES, and after-deducting Sums recovered from other Offices under guarantees	22,999 1 0
TOTAL SUM Assured under 4,759 current LIFE POLICIES	1,955,95 0 0
TOTAL ACCUMULAED FUNDS	373,562 2 2
TOTAL ANNUAL REVENUE	96,756 4 4

With reference to the recent investigation into the state of the Company's affairs, as at 31st January last, the Report Stated that both the principles of valuation and the details thereof, had been submitted to James John Downes, Esq., Actuary to the Economic Life Office in London, a gentleman well known as one of the highest authorities on such subjects in the kingdom, and had received his entire approval, as having been made on just and sound principles, and accurately carried out as certified in his report to the Directors, which formed part of the Appendix to their Report. This step the Directors considered could not fail to give the utmost confidence—both to the shareholders and the Policyholders—in the soundness and correctness of the valuation.

During the Quinquennial period, the claims by death, including the bonus additions which had been paid, and which had been considerably under the number that might have been expected from the Mortality Tables on which the Office rates are based, amounting to £35,975 6s 6d.

In valuing the Policies, each had been separately calculated, and nets premiums had only been used, thus leaving a surplus of annual revenue of £11,427 16s 7d., to meet future expenses and to form a source of profit for next investigation. The total amount of claims by death paid since the commencement of the Company, was £217,821 4s.

The Securities held by the Company were in a satisfactory position, and had been recently carefully scrutinised in detail by the Directors.

In conclusion, the Directors congratulated both the Proprietors and the Assured on the high position which the Company now occupied in the estimation of the public, and on the encouraging prospect of its business operations for the future.

DECLARATION OF BONUS.

From the profits realized on the Life business, a retrospective Bonus of £1 7s 6d per cent per annum for the Quinquennial period was declared, on the sums originally assured under all Participating Policies, increased by the previous additions thereto: also a further prospective Bonus of £1 per cent per annum, on the amount of the Policies with said Bonuses, on all such of said Policies as may become claims by Death previously to the 31st January, 1867.

It will be observed, that this rate of Bonus is equivalent in the case of our older Policies to £1 14s per cent per annum on the original sum assured; that the total additions to the sum assured, now vested, are equal to 31 per cent on the sum assured; and that as the younger ages the additions amount to upwards of 75 per cent of the premiums paid.

Statement shewing the Progress of the Company's Business during the Quinquennial Period, ending 31st January, 1862:

Year ending 31st January.	Amounts proposed for Assurance.	Amount of New Policies issued.	No. of Policies issued.	No. of Policies declined.	New Annual Premiums.	Total Revenue in each year.	Accumulated Funds.
1858	£168,840	£126,189	435	256	£3 980 18 0	£60 706 11 10	£249 558 9 2
1859	208,305	169,171	540	477	5,182 1 6	65,701 5 3	287,434 3 4
1860	316,320	282,930	802	539	8,778 17 9	77,877 5 8	312,098 8 10
1861	348,076	270,716	933	736	9,761 17 8	87,680 7 5	351,698 11 0
1862	401,835	306,850	1189	991	11,179 1 1	96,756 4 4	373,562 2 2
Totals	£1,526,376	£1,219,897	3899	3799	37,901 15 10	338,431 11 6	1,537,258 15 6

Votes of thanks were passed to the Directors and Office-bearers of the Company at Head-Offices and Branches, and after a very hearty vote of thanks to the Chairman for his conduct in the Chair, the meeting was dissolved.

ILLUSTRATED

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN!

The Best Mechanical Paper in the World.

EIGHTEENTH YEAR.

VOLUME VIII—NEW SERIES.

A NEW VOLUME of this popular Journal commences on the first of January. It is published weekly, and every number contains sixteen pages of useful information, and from five to ten original engravings of new inventions and discoveries, all of which are prepared expressly for its columns.

TO THE MECHANIC & MANUFACTURER.

No person engaged in any of the manufacturing pursuits should think of "doing without" the Scientific American. It costs but six cents per week, every number contains from six to ten engravings of new machines and inventions, which cannot be found in any other publication.

TO THE INVENTOR.

The Scientific American is indispensable to every inventor, as it not only contains illustrated descriptions of nearly all the best inventions as they come out, but each number contains an Official List of the Claims of all the Patents issued from the United States Patent Office during the week previous; thus giving a correct history of the progress of inventions in this country. We are also receiving, every week, the best scientific journals of Great Britain, France and Germany: thus placing in our possession all that is transpiring in mechanical science and art in these old countries. We continue to transfer to our columns copious extracts from these journals whatever we may deem of interest to our readers.

A pamphlet of instructions as to the best mode of obtaining Letters Patent on new inventions is furnished free on application.

Messrs. Munn & Co. have acted as Patent Solicitors for more than seventeen years, in connection with the publication of the Scientific American, and they refer to 20,000 patentees for whom they have done business.

No charge is made for examining sketches and models of new inventions and for advising inventors as to their patentability.

CHEMISTS, ARCHITECTS, MILLWRIGHTS & FARMERS.

The Scientific American will be found a most useful journal to them. All the new discoveries in the science of chemistry are given in its columns, and the interest of the architect and carpenter are not overlooked; all the new inventions and discoveries appertaining to these pursuits being published from week to week. Useful and practical information pertaining to the interests of millwrights and mill-owners will be found in the Scientific American, which information they can not possibly obtain from any other source. Subjects in which farmers are interested will be found discussed in the Scientific American; most of the improvements in agricultural implements being illustrated in its columns.

TERMS.—To mail subscribers: Three Dollars a year, or One Dollar for four months.—The volumes commence on the first of January and July. Specimen copies will be sent gratis to any part of the country.

Western and Canadian money or Post-office stamps taken at par for subscriptions. Canadian subscribers will please remit twenty-five cents extra on each year's subscription to prepay postage.

Poetry.

PARIS.

Imperial mistress of a thousand shows,
City some say sent in the world to please,
Thy beauties are a surprise and a study
To play with, as the fancy takes you!
Between thy palaces and thy hovels,
Strolling, pensive still of the Beauties Bower,
Its chill—and his who hurried pastime down,
As he went straining to his daily chore!
No matter; stop on his outward door,
Lights gleam, laughs, carouse here, and obscurity prolong!
The night is dawning by the sound and glare
Of chariots that through green Elysians flare!

All that there is of pleasure is mine, this—
The type and synonyme of costly France.

LONDON.

Like coiling of ancient hatred, I look before
Through London's current, I hear the roar
Till eyes and ears are weary with the strife
Amid the glare and gloom I hear the roar
Of Life's sea beating on a barren shore.
Terrible arbiter of joy and pain!
A thousand hopes are wrecks of thy disdain.
A thousand hearts have learned to love no more,
Over thy gleaming bridges—on the street
That ebbs and flows beneath the silent dome,
Life's pulse is throbbing as a fever beat;
City of cities, battle-field and home
Of England's greatest, greatly over their spoils,
Thou front and emblem of the old world's toils.

Miscellaneous.

How to Prophecy the State of the Weather.

Mr. W. W. Ryan, of Indiana, is a celebrated weather prophet. In the Fall he stated that a certain number of gales would occur within a certain period; that there would be a great number of vessels lost on the British coasts; and they happened as he stated. Other changes of the weather were predicted with equal certainty. Mr. Ryan seems to think that he is alone possessed of this knowledge, but promises that if the people of Toronto will send for him he will explain the whole matter. He thus writes to the Mirror of this city:

NOTRE DAME, Indiana, January 16th, 1860.

MR. EDITOR,—Who is the man, or has he inhaled the breath of life yet, will answer the following questions?

First, by what rule or mode of operation in my letters on the Northern Lights of last August, did I predict an early Fall, a cold Winter, and a late Spring? Second, how I came to find out the 1st day of December, 3 o'clock, p. m., the wind would be N. W.? Again, by what rule did I find out and tell the mariners, that in one moon, or 28 days from the snow on the 18th of October—that is, from the 18th to the 25th of November—to look out for destructive blows—and, sure, they came? Again, your thaw on the 5th and 6th of January, and a break up on the 3rd and 4th of February next, and then freeze up after seven days? Who is the man will come out over his name and name the point of the compass the wind will be on the first day of March next, at 3 o'clock, p. m., and then say how much the weather of next spring will differ from last spring—will we be subject to frost in May or not? I will not have the least difficulty in doing so. If the people of Toronto will send for me, form a class, I will give them perfect knowledge of those sublime and miraculous laws, which they never can forget or never fail.

W. W. RYAN.

In another part of the same paper an article appears from the pen of Mr. Ryan which is intended to explain the whole mystery. We quote it as follows:—

That my readers may better understand my method of prognostication, I give a more detailed view which will bring my Theory to the level of every one's apprehension.

There are but two secrets in it. The first is how to find the day on which the change takes place that gives the character of the weather for the season and in what the change consists. The second is how to find the number of storms in each season, and what the storm consists.

The first Thursdays in March, June, September, and December, are the days of observation. That in December regulates the weather till March, giving an idea of the winter; and the first Thursday in March for the Spring till June, and so on; the first Thursday in June for the Summer, and the first Thursday in September for the Fall.

From the quarters the wind blows on the first Thursdays, it will generally blow for the quarter. If on the first Thursday in December the wind should be W. or N. W., and cold keen weather, snowing all day, though not heavy W. heavy snow and squalls may be expected, clearing off for a time, and then again renewing, be sure there will be plenty of sleighing, if the place be in northern latitudes where the snow falls. On the other hand, if the wind should be S. W. or S. E., on the first Thursday in December, southerly winds will prevail till March following; which fact will convince any one that steady sleighing need not be expected, except in high northern latitudes not so apt to be affected by the heat of the sun.

As to the number of storms for the season. From the day on which the first snow falls after Thursday in November, count the number of days yet to come after it in that month, and add them to the number of days of the moon's age yet to come afterwards, and you will have it. For example if the snow takes place on the 12th, and the moon should be eight days old, you would have eighteen days of the month to add to twenty days of the moon's age, which will be the number of storms, rain or snow. The latter in the month and in the age of the moon the first snow occurs, the less will be the number of storms for the winter. The earlier, the more. Should none of these thirty-eight storms occur in December, or, they are to be looked for in the next two months. Or should twenty storms take place in the first month, and ten in the second, then the last seven will have to be in the third month. And so on with the rest, for the Thursdays in March, June, September, and December, will have their influence on the weather of the months in which they occur, and on the months following, until the next Thursday in the month succeeding. Thus, if on the first Thursday in March, the wind should blow, or it rain, or snow, from the S. S. W., or S. W., or S., or S. E., or E., or E. S. E., or E. N. E., or N. E., or N. N. E., or other stormy airt, and the moon should be coming up, there will have to be more or less rain, or snow, or sleet, according to the point the wind comes from, and the number of days it blows. If there should be no rain, for example, till the 16th of March, and the moon should then be fourteen days old, you will have to add fourteen of the latter to sixteen of the former, making thirty days of falling weather. If March and April should have few of the thirty, the weight of them will come in May, as was the case last spring. Neither the Advertiser nor the farmers understood my meaning when I wrote to the former, and said, "Farmers, plant your corn in the last week in April and the first of May. There is no guarantee that we will have thirteen days of Summer weather next Fall, but there is a guarantee that corn planted early will come out best next Fall." When I saw that we had but a few storms in March and April last Spring, knowing the storms would come, it was easy to foretell that May would be very wet, and consequently ploughing and planting would be delayed.

The same mode of computation can be applied to the Summer and the Fall.

If, on the first Thursday in September the wind blows from a southerly direction, there is no danger of an early Fall, and wheat need not be sown too early. On the contrary, if from W. or N. W., we shall have early frosts, and the sooner corn fodder is secured the better. The crops of corn and potatoes, should be gathered in by the first of November.

The Lifetime of Man.

When the world was created, and all creatures assembled to have their lifetime appointed, the ass first advanced and asked how long he would have to live?

"Thirty years," replied Nature," will that be agreeable to thee?"

"Alas!" answered the ass, "it is a long while. Remember what a wearisome existence will be mine; from morning until night. I shall have to bear heavy burdens, dragging carmacks to the mill, that others may eat bread, while I shall have no encouragement, nor be refreshed by anything but blows and kicks. Give me but a portion of that time, I pray.

Nature was moved with compassion, and presented but eighteen years. The ass went away comforted, and the dog came forward.

"How long dost thou require to live?" asked Nature. "Thirty years were too many for the ass, but wilt thou be contented with them?"

"Is it thy will that I should?" replied the dog. "Think how much I shall have to run about; my feet will not last for so long a time, and when I shall have lost my voice for barking, and my teeth for biting, what else shall I be fit for but be in the corner and growl?"

Nature thought he was right, and gave twelve years.

The ape then appeared.

"Thou wilt, doubtless, willingly live the thirty years," said Nature; "those will not have to labor as the ass and dog. Life will be pleasant to thee."

"Ah, no!" cried he; "so it may seem to others, but it will not be! Should puddings ever rain down, I shall excite laughter by my grimaces, and then be rewarded by a sour apple. How often sorrow lies concealed behind a jest! I shall not be able to endure for thirty years."

Nature was gracious, and he received but ten.

At last came man, healthy and strong, and asked the measure of his days.

"Will thirty years content thee?"

"How short a time!" exclaimed man. "When I shall have built my house, and kindled a fire upon my own hearth—when the trees I shall have planted are about to bloom and bear fruit—when life shall seem to me most desirable, I shall die. Oh, Nature, grant me a longer period."

"Then shalt thou have the eighteen years of the ass besides."

"That is not enough," replied the man.

"Take likewise the twelve years of the dog."

"It is not yet sufficient," reiterated man; "give me more."

"I will give thee, then, the ten years of the ape; and in vain wilt thou claim more."

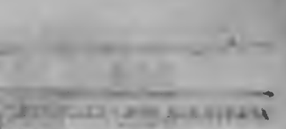
Man departed unsatisfied.

Thus man lives seventy years. The first thirty are his human years, and pass swiftly by. He is then healthy and happy. He labors carefully and rejoices in his existence. The eighteen of the ass come next; burden upon burden is heaped upon him—he carries the corn that is to feed others; blows and kicks are the reward of his faithful service. The twelve years of the dog follow, and he loses his teeth, and lies down in the corner and growls. When these are gone, the apes ten years form a conclusion. They are weak and silly, become the sport of children.—Translated from the German.

Well, Mary, are you going to the new place?' 'Sure, no, ma'am, the lady couldn't give satisfactory reference from her last cook.'

A country paper, speaking of the funeral of a suicide, says indignantly. 'They buried the woman like a dog, with all her clothes on!'

A Printer on Trump.



A Dutchman, sitting at the door of his tavern in [illegible], was accosted by a pedlar, who, after some [illegible] remarked:

"Good and Refreshment," replied the Printer.

"Supper and bodies, I reckon."

"Yes, supper and lodging."

"Do you a Yankee peddler, and obviously in pack to shtay to-night?"

"No sir, I am no Yankee peddler."

"No sir?"

"A chemical phrenologist, and lectur to measure in gals (Gals not maidens generally) to make to them?"

"No sir—how I should constantly have measured any gals about?"

"Vell, den, vat is to tempt you to stay?"

"Why, to get rid of your [illegible]."

"Choose again, sir. I am to teach myself."

"To improve—to destitute, practice the people's shaves, as a teller a shmug."

"No sir, I am no tooth-puller."

"Physiologist, den, fe-lie' to young folk heads like so many capsicks?"

"No, nor a physiologist."

"Well, den, vat is to tempt you, my?" Shoost tell, and you shall have to pay supper for supper, and shtay all night free gratis, without paying von cent, and shall be ready to shtart airly in the morning."

"I am an humble disciple of Faust—a professor of the art preservative of all arts—a typographer, at your service."

"Vatch dat?"

"A printer, sir; a man that prints both books and newspapers."

"A man vat prints newspapers! Oh, yaw! yaw! dat is it—a man vatch prints newspapers! Yaw! yaw! I vish I may be shot if I didn't think you vash a poor tuyvel of a district schoolmaster, who vorks for notin' and boards around de village. I thought you vash lean. Valk in, valk in, Mr. Trin'os man!"

The Irishman's Spurs.

Many years ago in England, when travelers were wont to journey on horseback, and sleep two in a bed at taverns, the annexed droll incident occurred at Chester. Two young bloods stopped at the Red Fox tavern, and while going out to find fun at night, it being hot weather, they discovered the door of one of the bed-rooms open. It so happened that a Scotchman and an Irishman were both asleep in the room; and the Irishman had partly "whisked the water off," and one of his legs lay naked and nearly out of bed. "I'll have some sport, said one of the bloods to his mate, "if you'll hold the candle a minute." The candle was held while the young chap went in, and taking up one of the gentleman's spurs—travelers on horseback always wore spurs in those days—buckled it on the heel of Paddy's naked foot. He then gave Paddy's leg a pinch and hid himself behind the door.—Paddy, though not awakened, drew his leg suddenly back, and in the step sadly damaged the Scotchman's naked leg with the spur. "The de'il d—n you!" exclaims Donald, rubbing his leg—"an' of ye dinna gang oot o' bed and cut yer toe-nails, I'll soon be gettin' up and throw ye out the window, per loot!" The Irishman yet slept soundly, and soon put his leg back in its old position, when the young joker who had put on the spur, stole up to the bed and pinched his leg a second time. Up went the leg again, the spur striking the Scotchman's leg, who now got up a terrible passion, and began to pummel Paddy, exclaiming as usual: "Get oot o' bed an' cut yer toe-nails, ye loot! Ge' you lush a Christian man to stan' such rough dogrin'!" The waked up the Irishman, who at that moment imagining the spur to bear on his own other leg, vaulted out of bed. Having procured a light, he looked down at the spur with the greatest astonishment. "By me sowl," said he, what a one of fool is the hostler of this inn; sure an' he tuk off me boots when I went to bed, and has left on one of me spurs! Strange it is, I didn't notice it." This explanation being satisfactory to Donald, harmony was restored, while the author of the mischief sneaked out of the room to his own seat.

A REAL GENTLEMAN.—He never dresses in the extreme of fashion, but avoids singularity in his person or habits.

Is affable with his equals, pleasant and attentive to his inferiors.

In conversing he avoids hasty, ill-tempered, or insulting remarks.

Never pries into other people's affairs.

Detests eaves-dropping as among the most disgraceful of crimes.

Never slanders an acquaintance.

Does never, under any circumstances, speak ill of a woman.

Never cuts an acquaintance who has met with a reverse of fortune.

He always pays the postage on his letters of business, and in advance for his newspaper.

Tailors Defined.

A tailor possesses the qualities of nine men combined in one, as will be seen by the following observations:

1st. As an economist, he cuts his cost according to his cloth.

2nd. As a gardener, he is careful of cabbage.

3d. As a sailor, he shoots off wherever it is proper.

4th. As a play-actor, he often humbles a hare before.

5th. As a lawyer he attends many suits.

6th. As an executioner, he provides suspenders and followers for many persons.

7th. As a cook he is generally furnished with a warm goose.

8th. As a sheriff's officer, he does much sponging.

9th. As a railroad and navigation director, his great aim is to form good nights for the benefit of himself.

THE CREDIT FONCIER.

We have received a pamphlet of 68 pages, defining the system of landed credits and giving the working of the system in Europe, and the opinions of the Political Economists there on its principles and advantages. The work is compiled by Mr. G. H. McAuley, and the chief contributions are translated from the French language. The fact that the system originated in France and has worked well there seems to have led away the Lower Canadians with the belief that it must work equally well amongst them—a vain and delusive idea. It is possible for clever men to introduce a bubble such as this among a people, and make them believe they are all going to become rich by embarking in it, when it in reality tends to impoverish them. Just so will it be if the habitants get this introduced among them. So sure as they get a facility to borrow money so sure will they eventually become poor. Let us put a few queries: Is it not a fact that the proposed loans are to be made on security of the borrower's land, and that the money so borrowed has to be repaid? Is it not a very common thing for borrowers to be obliged to sell a part, if not all their land, to pay back the loan? No transposition of figures can in any way alter the fact that the borrower has to pay back principal and interest to the lender—whether for a long or short period does not alter the case. There is a Credit Foncier in Paris under the thumb of the Emperor, and was there not a serious defalcation there owing to the manipulation of one of its chief men? And might not a system of this kind be suited to Europe and quite unsuited to Canada? Some of the leading papers in New York and elsewhere a short time ago in noticing the movement over here took occasion to refer something of the same kind formerly attempted there which proved a complete failure. And we ask those in favor of the present scheme to run over parties they personally know who have borrowed money on their farms if they are not hard up, and have had or will have to sell some of their land to pay the loan. Look again to the farmer who goes into the bank to borrow money, he is always behind: the fact is he pays too dear for the loan. No greater calamity could ever befall Lower Canada than the establishment of this loaning establishment. In fifty years or less, three fourths of the land now in the hands of the habitants would pass into the hands of wealthy men. We trust and hope the scheme will be thrown out in Parliament. If the present occupiers of the soil in Lower Canada cannot get along without borrowing money the sooner they stop the system the better. The present proposed relief is more temporary—merely lengthening the time of their final fall. If they are strong and active no fear but they can manage to find work. Teach them at once to break off the cursed system of credit which has been their ruin, no new system will help them.

The Recklessness of the "Globe."

Last week when referring to Mr. Brown's majority on the first days polling, our cotemporary thus delivers himself on the conduct of several papers on Mr. Brown's candidature in South Oxford:—"The Leader, the Hamilton Times, and its brother in name at Woodstock, the Ingersoll Chronicle, and the London Free Press, were unanimous in asserting that Mr. Brown should not and could not be elected." As far as the Hamilton Times is concerned, this statement is not correct. That journal during the canvass neither said "he should not nor could not be elected.' It was of opinion that it would be better for Mr. Brown and the reform party generally, that he should not be a candidate, and it did say, that it would require a strong man to beat Mr. Brown. "He may win Oxford" although we have no desire to see Mr. Brown defeated, we have a strong desire to see Mr. Bodwell elected." In this last quotation, as far as we can judge, the Times expresses the views it has held throughout towards Mr. Brown, and it is both ungenerous and unjust to charge a journal decidedly friendly to him so falsely, what it neither uttered nor insinuated. The most casual observer cannot fail in noticing that the Globe in down upon journals as well as individuals who not outside of its inspirations—or to adopt a homely saying, "who kick in the traces." The Times is decidedly friendly to Mr. Brown as a Reformer and as an unquestionable able man, but it has independence enough to express its views on his conduct, and express his mind and indignant course when it thinks fit. We regret thus to find fault with so able and influential an ally in the Reform ranks, but a regard for truth and right outweighs all considerations, and impels us to stand up for these even though we should have to pay a penalty for our temerity.

SOUTH OXFORD ELECTION.

The Hon. Geo. Brown has been returned for this constituency by a majority of 275 votes over [illegible]. This means a large majority [illegible] Bodwell may [illegible] proud of [illegible] so large a vote [illegible] the [illegible] of his opponent. We notice that it is a general impression among Reform journals that Mr. Brown's return to Parliament is a prelude to a dissolution of the House, that his consenting to be a candidate just now is a link in the chain of sequences foretold by some of a league proposed before himself and the Conservatory. All this has been stoutly denied by the Globe, but every day is unfolding something new in the great drama about to be played. The allegations of the talked of union with the Conservatives was indignantly denied in the Globe, and when it was announced that Mr. Brown would stand for Oxford that gentleman it was stated had no desire to enter Parliament. He received, however, a requisition from nearly 1100 electors asking him to stand, and so he goes to Oxford and gets elected. He was supported at the hustings by a thorough advocate of the late Coalition, receives the vote of that party, and yet the Globe would have us believe that there is no ground for the rumour that Mr. Brown appears playing into the hands of the Conservative party. Every day something transpires pointing to the correctness of the assertion. It is known that one of the editors of the Globe is at Quebec, and in a late contribution to that journal thus discourses about the Opposition and J. A. McDonald:

"It is exceedingly desirable, with an eye to the future, that the present Opposition should be thoroughly pledged to Representative reform, and it cannot but be noted that Mr. John A. Macdonald, although the leader of the Conservatives, most of whom voted for the amendments of Messrs. Cameron, separated from his followers and voted with the government on these resolutions. It is evident that if the Conservatives mean to make a decided movement on this question, they must put their leader right upon it. I hope that the process of conversion in Mr. Macdonald's case will not be a long one."

If "coming events cast their shadows before" this is a pretty plain indication that Mr. Brown intends joining the opposition, not only to "snuff out" the present Government but to unite with them in governing the country. Observe the opening sentence in the above extract: "It is exceedingly desirable, with an eye to the future, that the present opposition should be thoroughly pledged to representative reform." Just Mr. Brown over again, he will join conservatives, tories or any other combination to carry out his schemes, but unfortunately he has effected little real good either to himself or the country by such unions—that we are curious to know what this extraordinary care and anxiety about the training of the "opposition," and the conversion of J. A. McDonald means. We wait patiently but anxiously the developments to transpire by his presence in the House.

TUESDAY the 10th of March was kept as a general holiday in our good Town, as the day on which the heir apparent to the British Throne was to wed a Princess of Denmark. The business places of the Town were closed—flags were flying and the Town presented the appearance of a gala day. At 2 p. m. three Companies of Volunteers went through some exercises, and fired three salutes or a feu de joie. Three hearty cheers were given for the Prince of Wales and Her Majesty the Queen. Three cheers were also given to the Lakefield Company. After going through some more manoeuvres they marched over to Ashburnham and back. We were rather taken by surprise to see such a splendid company of volunteers from Lakefield under Captain Vizard—we congratulate that thriving Village on its patriotic public spirit in organising such a fine Company. Our own two Companies looked well, and the tout ensemble of the corps is a credit to this section of country.

We observe from our exchanges that Tuesday was very generally observed as a holiday. There is a chord in the Canadian as well as the British heart which, when struck, vibrates forcibly and distinctly, and that chord is loyalty. Whatever relates to our noble and gracious Queen or her interesting family concerns us, and the occasion of her eldest son's marriage is an occasion for us to express our joy. It is not a formal, feigned or forced expression of our joy that we make, but a spontaneous exuberant outburst of attachment to the Monarch who rules over us. There is no spot upon earth, or no people more ardently and unfeignedly attached to the British Throne than Canada and Canadians. Let those who doubt this take care that they give no occasion to test it. God save and bless their Royal Highnesses, the Prince and Princess of Wales.

A very interesting ceremony of the presentation of a Tea Service to the wife of Rev. Mr. Nells, by the Indians of the Six Nations, took place recently at the Village of Mowlawk, near Brantford. Mr. Nelles is the agent for the New England Company and the spiritual guide of the Indians. The presentation was made to his lady as a mark of their gratitude for the favours received from Mr. Nelles as the representative of the Company. The service consists of six pieces of chased silver electro plate, and its presentation was accompanied with an address signed by thirty-two of the sons of the forest, embracing eleven chiefs of six different tribes of Indians. The address and the reply were very interesting, and such a spontaneous act as this seems to have been, on the part of the red men is a convincing proof that gratitude if indigenous to the Indian heart can be cultivated. We are ready to admit that this affection though existing is seldom manifested, and we therefore had any expression of it with pleasure. The benign influences of the Gospel can draw out from the savage as well as the civilised, graces that adorn and ennoble our common humanity.

A Disastrous Fire.

It is our painful duty to record another of those sad events which are, alas, of too [illegible] occurrence in [illegible] the alarm of fire was [illegible], whilst many [illegible] was [illegible] occurred about 3 o'clock, a. m., and is supposed to have been caused by a defect in one of the chimneys. The inmates had scarcely time to escape, and had to flee, but partially dressed. The fire was first observed at the end of the house where the library was, and we regret to learn that with the exception of about 20 volumes, all Mr. Conger's valuable books have been burned, besides a quantity of valuable papers and correspondence. A few articles of furniture were saved, but the greater portion of their wearing apparel was consumed. Mr. Conger, we understand, loses very heavily by the fire—from £400 to £500. He grieves most of all for his books and papers, as many of these cannot be replaced. We sympathize with him in this serious mishap.

PRESBYTERIAN MISSIONARY MEETING AT WARSAW.—A Missionary Meeting, by appointment of the Presbytery, was held in the Canada Presbyterian Church, in the Village of Warsaw, on the evening of Tuesday, 24th ult., The congregation was the largest that has yet assembled at any similar meeting, in the building.

The proceedings were commenced appropriately by prayer, the singing of a psalm, and the chosing of Dr. Bigham to fill the Chair.

The chairman made a few remarks, alluding to the progress of Christianity in different parts of the world in the past century or two. He also spoke of the moral and material progress made in that time.

Rev. Mr. Bowie of Norwood, followed, and stated some interesting facts concerning Missionary enterprise.

Rev. Mr. Roger, of Peterboro, delivered an address of good effect, and congratulated the congregation on the cordiality among the different denominations in the Village; he urged a continuance of that union and brotherly harmony.

Mr. Choate, and the choir under his care and instruction, contributed much to the agreeableness of the evening.

The collection taken up amounted to over $9 (It should here be observed that the sum published in a former issue as the collection at the Wesleyan Missionary Meeting, included subscriptions.—Com.

ON Wednesday evening, 4th instant, the good people of Ashburnham were treated to a very instructive and pleasing Lecture, by the Rev'd Mr. Douglass, on "School Organization." The Rev'd Lecturer commenced by showing that organization consisted in arranging the pupils furniture of a school-room, so as to enable the teacher to do the most to the best advantage in a given time. He then, in his usual pleasant style, shewed there was no royal road to learning; the only sure method of obtaining it being hard drill; that money might be obtained by easy ways, as by birth, death of a friend, or by joining in matrimony with a wealthy companion—but learning could not be left by will, or come by birthright, and none can gain it by uniting with learned consorts. He also tried to impress those present with the fact, that unless the pupils attended punctually to the hour, no good order could be advantageously carried out. And very clearly showed that the delay of one kept back the whole class, perhaps the whole school. His remarks on building and arranging a school-house were calculated to throw much light on the subject of school architecture, and ought to have been heard by all Trustees. As much injury is done to pupils by not having the desks and seats arranged to suit their different sizes. He recommended neither laxity nor strictness in discipline, but the happy medium as the safest and best.

At the close of the lecture, which was received with great attention by those present, the Chairman of the Board, R. Moore Esq., made a few very appropriate remarks pointing out the present compared with the past, and in a very happy manner exhorted the children to avail themselves of the opportunities offered, that they may become wise and good, and thus be an honor to the present and a blessing to future generations. The whole was received with devout attention, and the proceeding was brought to a close by singing the Doxology, when all left highly pleased and, no doubt, benefitted. —COM.

ASHBURNHAM COUNCIL.

The Council of Ashburnham met on the 2nd instant.

Present: R. D. Rogers, Reeve; John Ludgate, H. Bennett, and R. T. Strickland.

Previous business was confirmed; and a By-law passed providing for the commuting of Statute Labor.

Also, a By-law imposing a tax of one dollar each, on all dogs that may be within the limits of said Village.

Philip Sargent was appointed Assessor for this current year.

J. Sedgwick, H. Morgan, & W. Taylor petitioned for License to keep hotels in said Village.

The time for collecting the taxes of 1862 was extended to April 1st, 1863.

The Council adjourned, to meet on the 16th instant, at 7 o'clock, p. m.

—The Port Hope British Canadian says:—We understand the householders of the Port Hope Harbour—The Bank of Upper Canada and Messrs. James Smith and William Fraser—have been defeated in Chancery, and that the case has been dismissed with costs. This is good news for the rate-payers of this town.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK.—This excellent monthly for March is received. It is fully equal to its predecessors, and the work seems to be extensively patronised. We advise our lady friends to take Godey. Now is a good time to subscribe.

SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
Quebec, 28th February, 1863.

His Excellency the Governor General has been pleased to make the following appointments, viz:

Donald Guthrie, of Guelph, Gentleman, to be a Notary Public in Upper Canada.

Charles Bidwell Orde, of Lindsay, Esq., Attorney at Law, to be a Notary Public in Upper Canada.

William Henry Walker, of Ottawa, Esq., Attorney at Law, to be a Notary Public in Upper Canada.

John Downey, of Toronto, Esq., Attorney at Law, to be a Notary Public in Upper Canada.

Thomas Simon Fitzgerald, of Brockville, Esq. Attorney at Law, to be a Notary Public in Upper Canada.

His Excellency the Governor General has also been pleased to grant a License to Thomas P. Eckardt, of Markham, Esquire, to enable him to practice Physic, Surgery and Midwifery, in Upper Canada.

Town Council Proceedings.

The Council met on Monday night last, His Worship the Mayor in the chair.

All the members of the Council were present.

The clerk read over the number of votes recorded in the several Wards for and against the Resolution submitted to the rate-payers on the 2nd inst., showing a majority in the whole town of 51 in favor of the resolution. A By-Law was introduced and passed to carry out the measure, and authorising the Mayor to act in any necessary way to give effect to the arrangement contemplated in the Resolution.

A communication from John O'Donnell, Secretary of the fire company, in reference to clothing, was referred to a special committee; also, a communication was read from Messrs. Thos. Nicholls and T. Clementi, proposing to undertake a new survey of the Town, and publishing a new map thereof, and asking assistance from the Council in the undertaking.

Four petitions for Tavern Licenses were referred to the committee previously appointed for that purpose.

A Report from the committee on Finance and Assessment, ordering the payment of several accounts was handed in and after some sharp discussion upon some accounts which were not included, the report was received and adopted.

Mr. Chaton introduced a By-Law to amend the Market By-Law so as to have a free market.

A motion of Mr. Toole's, on the second reading gave it a three months hoist.

The Treasurer was ordered to pay E. Wilson $47 at once due him for the Bridge on Park Street.

The Council then adjourned for two weeks.

Mr. John Tervottole, of the Village of Hastings, will receive our thanks for becoming agent for the Examiner in that locality, and he is the only person authorised to receive moneys and grant receipts for the same.

THE Court of Quarter Sessions opened in this Town on Tuesday last, but owing to it being a holiday very little business was transacted. Proceedings will be given in next week's issue.

—Captain Slade of the Rifle Brigade, while skating on the covered rink at Hamilton, on Thursday last, fell and broke one of his arms. The fracture is said to be a very severe one.

—About a week ago a saw mill, the property of Mr. Arnold Brethour, situated about a mile and a quarter north of the Village of Udora, in the Township of Georgia, North Ontario, was totally destroyed by fire. Mr. Brethour's loss is estimated at between $1,000 and $1,200.

THE PAST.

Dim and mysterious past! a mighty power
Silently dwells within thee. None can tell
How much the actions of the passing hour
Are fashioned by thy influence.—for we dwell
Ever beneath the enchantment of thy spell.
Things present are the offspring of things past;
And though the future blest may not foretell,
Thy spirit o'er its destiny is cast
Over all its hopes and fears, so glorious, grand and vast.

Look back into past with solemn awe,
And read its thoughts and actions. Is it not strange?
Oft has the veriest trifle proved a law
To all our future being:—we may range
To farthest Ind., its sultry glow exchange
For Artic winters—yet around us still,
Hangs the same spell—nor time, nor place can change
Its influence o'er us, either good or ill,
Our spirits feel its power, go wander where we will.

Otonabee, 6th March, 1863.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Peterboro, 11th March, 1863.

Dear Editor,—It must have been very gratifying, indeed, to Mr. Philp to see the success which attended his endeavors, last night, to give the people of Peterborough a musical entertainment. (Such, I am sorry to say, are too "few and far between.") As is well known, Mr. Philp has always been ready to lend his services in assisting others; and the truth of that saying: "One good turn deserves another" was fully sustained by the many friends who assisted him, as well as by the crowded house.

The ability of the majority of those who took a part, are so well known that it is unnecessary to say anything more than that they did as usual upon such occasions—well. The selection from the Opera of Lodoiska, "Sweet spirit hear my prayer," and sung by Miss Rush, was deservedly encored, and certainly was the gem of the evening. She possesses a fine, clear, full voice, which, undoubtedly, would sound very well to a good Music Hall—a thing we are very deficient in.

I cannot help making one exception, however, and that to the piece sung as a "Comic," which I should be inclined to call a "vulgar song" "The used up man," and I know I only speak the minds of many that that or similar songs should not be sung before an audience collected to hear something of a more valuable character. It was an unfortunate selection of the arrangers of the programme to include it therein. The effect of such cannot be to elevate the feelings, but must have the very opposite tendency, especially upon the young. Unfortunately there are too many real cases of "used up men" in our town, which can be seen any day on our streets, and we do not need to have them shewn upon such occasions.

Yours truly,
F. K. Q.

Woods and Forests.

To the Editor of the Morning Chronicle, Quebec.

SIR,—Mr. Allan Gilmour, with a laudable desire, no doubt, of saving himself in print, has written a long letter, in which he deliberately "affirms" that the whole country from Ottawa to the head waters of the Trent (which comprises a large and valuable portion of the waste lands of the Crown in Western Canada,) are, with trifling exception, unfit for Agricultural purposes; and that the settlers who have gone upon these lands within the last few years, have been induced to enter thereon, principally in consequence of the representations of the Government, and their agents.

The prominent part which I have heretofore taken in opening up to settlement the waste lands of the Crown in this Province, more particularly that portion of them lying in rear of the Counties of Peterborough & Victoria, which I examined at my own cost in 1850, for the purpose of ascertaining their agricultural value—renders it necessary that I should give Mr. Gilmour's rather extraordinary and most untruthful letter something more than a passing notice. If its publication were to be confined to Canada, where both the author and his subject are known, I should not trouble myself to write a line in refutation. But as it is doubtless intended for the English market, and has all the appearance of having been written to order, with a decided "look to Washington" about it, it might, if permitted to pass uncontradicted, though unsupported as it is by a particle of evidence, be attended with mischievous consequences.

In 1856, when the system of Colonization Roads was first introduced into this section of the country, many intelligent and well-disposed persons, who had drawn their information from similar sources with Mr. Gilmour, were of opinion that the country in rear of the then settled Townships was a mass of rock, totally unfit for settlement, and were unsparing in their denunciations of the scheme of settlement, its promoters and advocates,—but afterwards, when they had an opportunity of examining for themselves, or hearing the testimony of others, manfully acknowledged their error, and are since to be found among its warmest friends.

These parties, however, it must be acknowledged, were not connected with any of the great Liverpool lumbering establishments, and therefore did not feel the importance of keeping the country closed against settlers until a few overgrown monopolies should enrich themselves with its plunder.

Mr. Gilmour sets out, with a truism, that is "the duty of the Government to give attention to the settlement of the waste lands of the Crown, and the preservation of its Pine Forests. It is, doubtless, the duty of those entrusted with the care of our affairs, not only to preserve, but to foster all sources of revenue, whether arising from the forests or otherwise. And this, I shall endeavour to show, was the policy of the late Government and their friends in reference to the sale and management of the Crown Lands in this Province.

Mr. Gilmour, modestly, assures us, that his object is to give correct and reliable information. If so, it is perhaps unfortunate that he did not rely more upon his own observation, and less upon the "reports of others," before putting forth to the world a statement which, so far as regards the Trent District, is false in every particular, and incapable of being sustained by a particle of testimony. Innocent, also,—of containing any information, except it may be found in his extracts from the trade returns, which he may yet discover proves too much. But Mr. Gilmour must be allowed to continue:—

"From my knowledge of a large extent of the country where lumbering operations have been carried on for many years, and where they are still continued, I have for a length of time been perfectly convinced that the course which the Government has been pursuing in opening up Free Grant Roads, and forcing settlement into the pine regions by undue encouragement, is an ill-judged and really suicidal one, and for these obvious and sufficient reasons.

"The country, as a whole, into which settlement is being forced on the Ottawa and Trent at least—I can safely affirm, from my own observation, and the reports of others in whose judgment and truthfulness I have every confidence, is unfit for agricultural purposes, with some exceptions of small isolated spots, and few even of these composed of really good soil.

"Upon these barren lands a number of settlers, within the last few years, have been induced to enter, principally in consequence of representations made by Government, and its agents respecting the nature and quality thereof, they being represented as generally possessing good soil, well suited for agricultural purposes; whereas they are in fact, with few exceptions, composed of masses of rock."

Previous to 1858, the management of the Territorial Revenue was exceedingly loose, and the net receipts therefrom very small indeed; and I will venture to say, that even Mr. Gilmour will remember upon what easy terms large quantities of valuable Pine Timber were obtained. The late Government, which he desires to assail, introduced and carried into effect a more stringent system of management of the public domain than hitherto prevailed, and timber after that period could no longer be had for the taking. They also caused the country to be explored by competent Surveyors of their own selection; men of veracity, whose reports made under oath, shewed the new country to contain a large per centage of good arable land, and the remainder, though in places, considerably rocky and broken, to be well watered, and heavily timbered,—chiefly with hardwood, slightly intermixed with pine and hemlock, —with occasional groves of pine about the margin of some of the lakes and rivers. This is the general character of the country, as seen by me in 1850, and as it was subsequently seen by surveyors and others who followed.

Since that period, the Government have caused to be blocked out about 40 townships most of which have been laid off into farm lots. They have also opened up the Bobcaygeon, Victoria, Burleigh and Peterson Lane, Roads—the field notes of all these surveys proving most incontestably the correctness of first reports.

Upon these lands, within the last five years, have entered over one thousand heads of families, chiefly Upper Canadian, and those who have been long in the country, most of whom are practical and intelligent farmers, from the old townships, with means to settle themselves comfortably in any part of the Province—and who are as good, if not better, judges of the soil than either Mr. Gilmour or myself. These people have found what they are wont to call good land, and have made themselves comfortable homes, and are now raising fair crops of wheat, oats, barley, peas, potatoes, turnips, &c.,—thereby furnishing the most conclusive evidence of the fertility of the soil, and its adaptation to agricultural purposes. And yet, these are the lands Mr. Gilmour is pleased, in his sweeping denunciation, to call "barren." So much for his knowledge of the country?

Mr. Gilmour speaks of the settlement being forced. How forced, pray? Was there ever a settler sent there at the country's expense? Not one. Then why this statement?

Again let us hear him:—

"Quite a number of the present settlers as also of those who have left their locations, went in when the ground was covered with snow, so that they could not easily see what the soil was composed of; while many of those from abroad were at first no judges of the qualities of land so as to enable them to to make a wise choice of their location.—The result has been just what any one at all acquainted with the country attempted to be settled upon could have predicted. All, or nearly all, became dissatisfied, except, perhaps, a few tavern-keepers—many having left their clearances because of being unable to make a living thereon—some half-starving still cling to their miserable homes without the necessary means to get away, or wait in hopes of finding some one ignorant of the reality which they themselves have learned who may be willing to purchase their rights even for a trifle; while many of those who do remain on their locations have been compelled to resort to hunting, trapping, or keeping small taverns or groggries along the roads which are travelled for lumbering purposes, or find work with the manufacturers of timber or saw-logs in their neighborhood, to eke out their existence."

Pray, Mr. Gilmour, who are these people who went in upon the snow, or who were unable to make a wise choice? what are their names? what township or townships did they enter? where did they come from? when did they leave? and whence have they gone?

Mr. Gilmour has given us a long list of what he "affirms to be facts. I now ask him for the proofs; nay, I demand them—and I challenge him also to produce the name of one settler—much less "nearly all"—who has left for the reasons he assigns, or for any others.

Again hear him:—

"What has led more than anything else to this injudicious policy on the part of late governments of improperly encouraging settlement upon lands unsuited for agricultural purposes has been the incorrect and unjustifiably favorable reports of Surveyors employed to lay out the waste lands, and of Road Contractors and settlement agents, who have found profitable employment in these occupations."

Sweeping charges these, certainly, to be brought against a body of professional men; who, in addition to being educated and intelligent, are supposed to rank, morally, quite as high as the class represented by Mr. Gilmour:—will any one for a moment believe that these gentlemen, or any number of them, could be induced to falsify their reports, and thus perjure themselves to obtain employment? My estimate of human character is not quite low enough yet to credit this statement, and I therefore ask Mr. Gilmour either to withdraw this wholesale charge of perjury and corruption, or publish to the world the names of the offending parties.

Mr. Gilmour then attempts to prove the great importance of the Lumber trade in this Province; and labours hard to convince your readers that settlers should not be permitted to enter upon lands where pine is found, until such time as it shall have been removed: This view of the case my suit those—who, like Mr. Gilmour, estimate a country's value by the number of pine sticks it may yield—forgetting that there are other interests—and one in particular, that of agriculture; of greater importance, because more lucrative and permanent in its character, freed also from much of the slavery and moral degredation attendant upon the business of lumbering.

This great and absorbing interest (agriculture) under the fostering care of the Government, has already, by supplying actual settlers with cheap lands and facilities of access, prevented thousands of Canada's sturdy sons from leaving us for the far West—and will, also, if steadily and judiciously carried out, supply comfortable homes for the entire redundant population of Great Britain and other nations during the next twenty years.

It is a mistake to suppose that the commerce of the country would be at all injured by allowing the timber to pass into the hands of actual settlers. These parties understand its worth just as well as they would its representative value in gold, and would as carefully preserve it. And although the manufacturer might have to pay a higher rate for it than now charged by the Government, yet this would rather improve than injure the trade, as it would prevent that shameful waste of valuable timber, which has for years characterized the manufacture of square lumber in this part of Canada.

Mr. Gilmour, as he himself admits, having found much fault, proceeds to give the present Government the benefit of his advice as to the course it should follow, in view, as he says, of the general interest of the Province.

The outlines of Townships, he thinks, should first be run, but no subdivisions made until carefully examined by competent and reliable parties appointed for the purpose of determining whether the lands are fit for settlement or not, and who have no interest in the settlement thereof. This is really sublime! Pray, Mr. Gilmour, where will the Government find these competent and reliable men who have no interest in the settlement and material progress of their own country? Are they to be brought from Washington, or are they to be taken from the class of men you represent?

Had he (Mr. Gilmour) given as much attention to the working of the Crown Lands department, as he evidently expects the public to give him credit for; he would have known that the only valuable part of his advice, that of blocking out townships and exploring, with a view of learning the character of the country, had been adopted by the Government in 1856—who, as I have before stated, instructed their Surveyors to examine and report upon the character of the soil, and description of timber—and who more competent or fitting for that duty than professional men of all shades of politics, who were neither land speculators or timber hunters? But Mr. Gilmour is evidently in favour of "Commissions," and would undoubtedly desire to see another Ottawa Commission;—costing the country $100 per day—appointed to enquire into the fitness of lands for settlement—it might serve a few friends and relieve the Hon. the Commissioners of Crown Land of much responsibility.

Mr. Gilmour then treats us to a large array of figures to prove the importance of the lumber trade, and winds up with the following:—

"From these statements it will be seen that [illegible] of the exports of the products of the forest, upon an average of the last five years, of which returns have been made, exceed those of agriculture by $1,430,306 per annum, from which the extent and importance of the Lumber Trade to the general interests of the Province will at once be apparent, while the amount of revenue it contributes directly (besides indirectly) to Government, is itself of no small importance in the present financial position of affairs."

Had on examining the Public Accounts for 1861, that the Gross Revenue derived from "Woods and Forests" in that year, is just $225,013.99c! How, heretofore, the proceeds of the Forest has exceed that of the Soil by one million, four hundred and thirty thousand, three hundred and eighty dollars, per annum, I shall leave Mr. Gilmour to explain.

Unwilling as I am to understate any branch of our Colonial trade, I am as little desirous that any one portion of it should be built up at the expense of the general interest of the country. That the lumber trade of Canada has been productive of many advantages, and will continue so for many years, no one will deny; but it should be remembered it is a trade evanescent in its nature, which must, as a matter of course, disappear with the raw material—giving employment for a limited period only, and in the best of times, to a comparatively small number of persons, most of them poorly paid, and whose condition is not permanently improved, while on the other hand, the tilling of the soil furnishes homes and bread for all, and enriches the country in a far greater and more desirable degree.

I have not yet examined the extracts from the trade returns, but take it for granted they are correctly copied, although the conclusions drawn therefrom are incorrect.

If Mr. Gilmour desires fairly to compare the products of the forest with that of the soil, he must add to the exports of the latter, the quantity consumed in lumbering operations, which will be found, I think, to more than balance the account.

We are also favored with a statement of timber dues and ground rents, which have accrued during the years 1857, '58, '59, '60 and '61. Would it not have been equally fair had Mr. Gilmour extended his enquiries back to 1845, in order that we might have compared the revenue derived from this source, under previous administrations, against this array of figures. I might place the sum received for lands sold during the same period. In the counties of Peterborough and Victoria, during the last four years, the sales have amounted to over $100000. What the total Revenue for the Province during that period may be I am unable at this moment to state. But there is one other view of this matter which Mr. Gilmour has perhaps never considered. It is estimated, and I think very justly, that every family settler upon lands contributes to the customs revenue a sum equal to about ten dollars per annum, besides being producers,—the one thousand families who have gone upon these "barren" lands spoken of by Mr. Gilmour, in rear of these counties, add at least $10,000 to the provincial revenue, which may be fairly expected to increase to $25,000 within the next 5 years—without the loss of a pine stick, except so much as may be required for local purposes.

It will be observed that I have confined my remarks entirely to the section of country opened up by the Bobcaygeon, Victoria, Burleigh, and western portion of the Peterson Line, Roads; because it is with this portion of the newly surveyed country I have had most to do, and for what has been done (except in the sale, Er Block, of the 10 townships to an English Company) I am perhaps more responsible than any one else, not a member of the Government; and, also, because there are other parties living in the Eastern or Ottawa Sections of the country, Mr. Gilmour describes as "barren" and unproductive, who are more conversant with the details of settlement there, and quite as able to repel the attack upon it as I am.

In my letter I have shown that the country was first partially examined and brought into notice by persons who had no other object in view than the advancement of their country's interest. That afterwards parties were sent out to explore by running the outlines of Townships, who report to the Crown Lands Department the character of the country they had examined; these parties, as I have before stated, were professional men, Surveyors and Engineers, men of intelligence and veracity, upon whose reports the Government felt themselves justified in adopting and carrying into effect a proper system of settlement—the success of which has so far been unparalled in Canada. These reports, favorable as they were, have received the endorsation of hundreds of intelligent, practical, well-to-do farmers, who have taken up lands in these townships, and who daily declare their entire satisfaction with the country, its soil, resources and climate—and in no instance has any one individual either left or expressed a desire to leave on account of the soil, or incongenial character of the climate.

Mr. Gilmour will, therefore, readily perceive, if not dead to all sense of truth and justice, the unenviable position he has placed himself in by becoming the mouthpiece of a party, averse to the true interest of the Province; and how unjust, ill-advised, and unwarrantable, his untruthful attack upon this the country of his adoption.

I am, Sir,
Your ob'dt servant,
W. S. CONGER,
Late M. P. P. for the County of Peterborough.
Peterborough, 28th Feb., 1863.

Quebec Sugar Refinery.

It is not generally known that in this city, during the last two months, workmen have been employed in fitting up an establishment in St. Paul street, which is now in readiness to manufacture a superior article of coffee sugar and the best quality of refined syrup. The business is to be carried on by wealthy capitalists of this city. The establishment is fitted up with the latest improvements, under the superintendence of a gentleman who thoroughly understood sugar-making (from planting the cane, upwards) in all its branches, thus insuring undoubted success.

It is calculated that when in full working order, the present set of machinery will produce, by working 12 hours per day, about four thousand pounds of sugar and six hundred gallons of syrup. By very slight additions, should the demand require it, sixteen thousand pounds of sugar and two thousand four hundred gallons of syrup could be produced daily, by working day and night—24 hours.

Many advantages must accrue to this section of country from the establishment of this sugar refinery, and it may have the effect of reducing the price of sugars, by competing with the Montreal refinery, which hereafter has had a monopoly of this branch of business in Canada.

The manufacture of sugar and syrup, for the present, will be chiefly from molasses, which may be imported in bond from the United States—or, during the season of navigation, direct from the West Indies. By adopting the latter mode of transportation, and a thriving trade might be established by return cargoes.

There is no danger of being undersold by supplies of sugar manufactured in the United States, as the war in that country has not only lessened the supply, but prices has been greatly enhanced by the imposition of war taxes, which cannot be removed for years; while the Canadian tariff of 3 cents per lb., and 15 per cent. ad valorem on refined sugar, and 2 cents per lb., and 10 per cent. ad valorem on brown sugar, protects the Canadian manufacturer, who, however, contributes to the revenue of the country by paying on molasses imported by him, the duty imposed by the tariff, viz., 5 cts. per gallon and 10 per cent. ad valorem.

It is to be hoped that those gentlemen who have embarked in the manufacture of this article of domestic use, which now is deemed absolutely necessary both by rich and poor, will, while benefiting the country, realize a handsome fortune for themselves. —Quebec Mercury.

THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION.

FORT MONROE, March 8th.—The Queen of the West left in such a hurry as to leave part of her crew on shore.

A later despatch states that the Indianola is not destroyed and that they are rising her.

The Federal gunboats are making great destruction on Lake Providence.

The Federals attacked General Van Doren on the 1st of March at Thompson, near Franklin. He drove them back and captured 2,200 officers and men. The Confederate loss is not yet reported.

MOBILE, March 5.—The Jackson Mississippian says that the destruction of the Indianola was a most unnecessary and unfortunate affair. The turreted monster proved to be a flat boat with sundry fixtures to create deception. She passed Vicksburg on Tuesday night, and the officers believing she was really a turreted monster blew the Indianola up, but the guns fell into the hands of the enemy.

The Inquirer has a ludicrous article on the loss of the Princess Royal. She was fitted out by a Manchester firm, to whom the Confederates are under many obligations for favors. It publishes a manifest of her cargo, which footed up 78,308 pounds.

VICKSBURG, March 5.—Com Porter has proclaimed that any parties bring on unarmed vessels shall be hanged; also persons burning cotton or levying contributions.

The Jackson, Miss., correspondent says here are but 2,000 Union troops in Arkansas.

CAIRO, March 7.—The advices from Vicksburg of Monday say that a flag of truce came to the Federals on Sunday. The object is unknown. 3,000 men with dredging machines, are at work on he canals. The Yazoo expedition is progressing favorably. Admiral Porter thanks the Indianola and Webb were both rank in the late engagement.

A special despatch to the Tribune says an arrival from Richmond yesterday states that the Confederates consider Vicksburg their most valuable point, as they now receive most of their supplies via Texas and Vicksburg but they are apprehensive it will be taken.

The Charleston and Savannah forts are ironclad and thought to be able to hold out against our troops and fleet.

It is not thought Fort McAllister will make much more resistance. It was built to defend Nashville. At noon of the 4th, heavy firing had been heard all the morning in the direction of McAllister, where 4 monitors, 3 mortar and 5 gunboats were pounding away, and its capture expected by night.

NEW YORK, March 9—A special despatch from Washington says that 300 Confederates who were captured on Saturday arrived at Washington prison last night.

A special despatch to the Times states that refugees from Richmond say that 25,000 troops had passed through Richmond from the south-west in a few weeks. Several thousands are being sent to reinforce Pryor on the Blackwater.

The Richmond Examiner of the 2nd, states that the Confederate, cavalry 500, in number crossed the Rappahannock last Wednesday, fell upon the Federals and drove them, killing, wounding and capturing over 200.

The Confederates then retreated, losing only one killed and wounded.

The World's Port Royal correspondent states that the Montauk, when returning from destroying the Nashville, ran over a torpedo which, exploding, lifted the vessel up two feet, but not injuring her only by slight disarrangement of machinery.

NASHVILLE, March 9—Late news from Franklin states that our troops fought with great valor until their ammunition was exhausted. Our loss in killed and wounded is about 200. We also lose about 1,000 prisoners.

The following is a special despatch, dated Franklin, Ten., March:

"An officer of Gen. Granger's staff arrived here last night from a conference with Vander's Confederates, under a fl

Baron Rothschild's Little Miff.

An amusing adventure is related as having happened to the Bank of England, which had committed the great disrespect of refusing to discount a bill of a large amount, drawn by Anselm Rothschild, of Frankfort, on Nathan Rothschild, of London. The bank had haughtily replied "that they discounted only their own bills, and not those of private persons." But they had to do with one stronger than the bank. "Private persons! Well! make these gentlemen see what sort of private persons we are!" Three weeks afterward Nathan Rothschild—who had employed the interval in gathering all the £5 notes he could procure in England and on the continent—presented himself at the bank at the opening of the office. He drew from his pocket-book a £5 note, and they naturally counted out five sovereigns, at the same time looking quite astonished that the Baron Rothschild should have personally troubled himself for such a trifle. The Baron examined one by one the coins, and put them into a little canvas bag; then drew out another note, a third, a tenth, a hundredth. He never put the pieces of gold into the bag without scrupulously examining them in the balance, as, he said, "the law gave him the right to do." The first pocket-book being emptied, and the first bag full, he passed them to his clerk and received a second, and thus continued to the close of the bank. The Baron had employed seven hours to change £21,000. But as he had also nine employees of his house engaged in the same manner, it resulted that the house of Rothschild had drawn £210,000 in gold from the bank, and that he had so occupied the tellers that no other person could change a single note. Everything which bears the stamp of eccentricity has always pleased the English. They were therefore, the first day, very much amused at the little pique of Baron Rothschild. They, however, laughed less when they saw him return the next day at the opening of the bank, flanked by his nine clerks, and followed by many drays, destined to carry away the specie. They laughed no longer, when the king of the bankers said with ironic simplicity:—"These gentlemen refuse to pay my bills, I have sworn not to keep theirs. At their leisure only I notify them that I have enough to employ them for two months!" For two months! Eleven millions in gold drawn from the Bank of England, which they have never possessed! The bank took alarm. There was something to be done. The next morning, notice appeared in the journals that hence orth the bank would pay Rothschild's bills the same as their own.

When the chill winds blow, and the blinding snow sends the blood aglow—below zero, wherever you go, at home or no, whether or no, you will or no the shiver will go from head to toe, the cold toe, the frozen toe with the gout you know; and the pain doth grow, and the throubing flow of the veins below swell the poor old toe, with the corns, and O, you'd like to know where you could go, to friend or foe, and get relief for your suffering toe.

HENRY'S VEGMONT LINIMENT will give relief. Downs' Elixir cures Colds. Price 25 cents.

'Kity, have you laid the cloth for breakfast yet?—An' sure I have, mum—and everything else but eggs; an' isn't that the old hen's work, surely?'

SINGULAR FASHIONS.—The Esquimaux grease themselves as the first fashion of the day; The Indians daub themselves with mud and paint; the North Sea savages live on train oil; the Arabians live on dates; some of the Mississippians on mint juleps. But for a good voice, to cure a cough, hoarseness, sore throat, etc, use Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers, 25 cents a box. All Druggists sell it.

WISHING TO OBTAIN

FARMS IN UPPER CANADA.

THE CANADIAN

Land & Emigration Co'y, Limited,

OF LONDON, ENGLAND,

Capital, £250,000 Stg.

THE HON. MR. JUSTICE HALIBURTON, CHAIRMAN, offer for sale

250,000 Acres

OF LAND IN THE

COUNTIES OF PETERBORO & VICTORIA

consisting of parts of the

Townships of D'ESART, DUDLEY, LONGFORD, GUILFORD, HARCOURT, HARBURN, BRUTON, HAVELOCK, &c., &c.

The following are some, among many other inducements held out to parties who may choose to take up lands in the above Townships:

Ten per cent of the purchase money paid to Government by the Company for these lands will be expended in constructing really good roads: these roads will intersect the Government Roads; namely, the Bobcaygeon, Victoria Burleigh and Peterson Roads, at convenient points, and will converge to various Town plots which the Company have it in view to lay out in very carefully selected sites. The Town Plots will, it is anticipated,—the whole of them being connected by good roads (for the construction of which the country affords excellent facilities)—become each the centre of a new and flourishing settlement; private enterprise in establishing Stores, Mills, &c., will here soon find its reward, and the several towns and townships being as it were knit together by good roads, will derive from that fact great advantages and mutual support.

In addition, the watchful supervision of the Company over every part of their lands will greatly tend to advance the interests of this district, which, being in the middle of Upper Canada, possessing a fertile soil, and a climate unsurpassed in its healthful effects upon the human frame, offers superior attractions, and all the elements of rapid progress and permanent prosperity.

PROSPECTUS

SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL:

A FIRST CLASS FAMILY NEWSPAPER,

DEVOTED TO THE

Dissemination of Scottish Literature & News.

SIXTH YEAR.

The Sixth Volume of the SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL commenced January 1, 1863, each year constituting a complete volume of convenient size for binding; and each number containing a most entertaining and instructive repertory of reading matter, calculated to interest all readers of British origin. The SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL, though decidedly international in its constant efforts to promote peace and prosperity between the people of Great Britain and America, is yet emphatically Scottish in its copious records of all events occurring in Scotland that can be of the least interest to natives of that country residing in America; and to this "news from home" is added, weekly, a summary of general intelligence from England, Ireland and other parts of the world.

A distinguishing feature of the SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL is its regular republication—verbatim et literatim—of the "leading articles" of the prominent British newspapers and other periodicals upon the most important topics of the day. This feature is a unique one, and has been found very acceptable to the people of the United States and British North America, and supplies a long needed desideratum on the American Continent. In reference to the "editorials" of the SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL it is a significant fact that the British press frequently acknowledging their intrinsic truth and force by copiously extracting from our columns and declaring that the SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL is the most able and interesting paper published in America. A concise weekly summary is also given of the principal items of American news, and a similar narrative of events transpiring in the various British Provinces.

In the forthcoming volume of the SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL, increased space will be devoted to the literary department as in the publication of serial tales and sketches, vividly illustrating the customs, habits, manners, and general characteristics of the people of Scotland; each tale emanating from the pen of an author of celebrity. The best efforts, particular care will be exercised in the choice of original poetry, composed by writers of acknowledged genius and purity of thought, resident here or abroad. The third number of the new volume contains the commencement of a deeply interesting prize tale, entitled

RACHEL NOBLE.

The Directors of the Scottish Temperance League gave a prize of One Hundred Guineas for this tale. The Rev. N. L. Walker, Rev. A. Johnson, Rev. James Hill, Rev. William Blair, and Rev. John Brown Johnson, D. D., acted as adjudicators, and after carefully perusing Eighty-three Manuscripts, awarded the prize to BRUCE EDWARDS. T. is tale will prove to be one of the most interesting ever published and will be appreciated by all classes of readers.

THE MAGIC TIME OBSERVER!

The Perfection of Mechanism.

BEING A HUNTING AND OPEN FACE, or Lady or Gentleman's Watch combined. One of the prettiest, most convenient, and decidedly the best and cheapest timepieces for general and reliable use, ever offered. It has within it and connected with its machinery, its own winding attachment, rendering a key entirely unnecessary. The cases of this Watch are composed of two metals, the outer one being fine 18 carrot gold. It has the improved ruby action lever movement, and is warranted an accurate timepiece. Price, superbly engraved, per case of a half dozen, $204.00. Sample Watches, in neat morocco boxes, for those proposing to buy at wholesale, $35, sent by express with bill payable on delivery. Soldiers must remit payment in advance, as we cannot collect from those in the army. Address

EMPLOYMENT.

THE Undersigned has, for several years past, been engaged in a business, which has yielded him at the rate of three thousand dollars per annum, and is now willing to teach it to others. The business is of a highly useful and general character, adapted both to cities and villages, and one that any person of ordinary capacity, young or old, male or female, can acquire with a few hours' practice, and by which they can secure a very handsome income. Several young ladies who have received instructions from me, both in New York State and Pennsylvania, are earning upwards of $18 per week by it, and there is no reason why any one else cannot do the same. Invalids, even, can do well by it, as it is no peddling affair, but a business that is perfectly respectable. Gentlemen and ladies of leisure who would like to learn the business for their own amusement or pleasure, will find the practice of it a pleasant pastime, and one that they will take great interest in. On receipt of $1, I will send printed instructions by which any person can readily acquire the art, and these instructions will also contain every particular relative to the carrying it on so that it will be highly profitable. To purchaser of the "printed instructions" will also be authorized to teach it to others; and I have sometimes received as high as $20 for teaching it personally to a single individual. I would state further that $3.50 or $5 will buy everything that is necessary to commence the business with, and the articles can be got almost anywhere, in city or country, or if preferred, I can furnish them. Address ALFORD T. PARSONS, No. 36 Lumber St., New York.

THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE. 1863.

THE NEW-YORK TRIBUNE, first issued in 1841, now in its twenty-second year, has obtained both a larger and more widely diffused circulation than any other newspaper ever published in America. Though it has suffered, in common with other journals, from the volunteering and departure of tens of thousands of its patrons to serve it is in the War of the Union, its circulation on the 6th of December, 1862, is as follows:

DAILY	50,125
SEMI-WEEKLY	17,250
WEEKLY	148,000
Aggregate	215,375

Preeminently a journal of News and of Literature The Tribune has political convictions, which are well characterized by the single word Republican. It is Republican in its hearty adhesion to the great truth that "God has made of one blood all nations of men"—Republican in its assertion of the equal and inalienable rights of all men to "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness"—Republican in its steadiest, earnest, defiant hostility to every scheme and effort of the Slave Power, from the Annexation of Texas to the great Rebellion, to grasp the empire of the New World and wield the resources of our country for its own aggrandizement—Republican in its antagonism to the aristocratic and despotic of the Old World, who fondly hail in the perils and calamities suddenly thrust upon us by the American counterpart the overthrow and ruin of the Model Republic—Republican in its hope and trust, its faith and effort, that his atrocious Rebellion must result in the signal overthrow of its plotters, and the firm establishment of equal rights and equal laws throughout the whole extent of our country, wherein Liberty and Union shall indeed be "one and inseparable" henceforth and forever.

The Tribune devotes attention in calmer times, and to some extent in these, to Education Temperance, and Agriculture, Invention, and whatever else may minister to the spiritual and material progress and well-being of mankind; but for the present its energies and its columns are mainly devoted to the success of the War for the Union. Its special correspondents accompany every considerable army and report every important incident of that great struggle which we trust is soon to result in the signal and conclusive triumph of the National arms and in the restoration of Peace and Thrift to our bleeding country. We believe that no otherwise can a fuller or more accurate view of the progress and character of this momentous conflict be obtained than through the regular perusal of our columns. And we earnestly solicit the cooperation of all friends of the National cause, which we regard and uphold as that of Universal Humanity, to aid us in extending its circulation.

ANNUAL MEETING

INVESTIGATION REPORT - - DECLARATION OF BONUS.

THE thirty-sixth annual Meeting of this Company was held within the Royal Hotel, Aberdeen on Friday, the 18th April.

Alexander Stronach, Esq., of Drumallan, Chairman of the Ordinary Directors, in the Chair.

There were submitted to the meeting—

1.—Report by the Directors, which, on the motion of the Chairman, was cordially and unanimously approved of and adopted.

2.—The Balance Sheet for the past year, with detailed states relative thereto, duly certified as correct, in terms of the Act of Incorporation, by the Chairman and Manager, and also by the Auditor.

There was also laid on the Table the various Valuation States in connection with the Quinquennial Investigation into the state of the Company's affairs, as at 31st January, 1862.

The following particulars derived from the Balance Sheet and States before mentioned, show the result of the operations of the Company for the past year:—

Amount proposed for Life Assurances during the year, contained in 1789 Proposals	£446,925 0 0
Amount of Proposals accepted, had for which 981 Policies were issued	359,680 0 0
ANNUAL PREMIUMS on said Policies	11,176 1 0
CLAIMS BY DEATH including BONUSES on PARTICIPAT ON POLICIES, and after deducting Sums recovered from other Offices under guarantees	22,999 1 0
TOTAL SUM Assured under 4,750 current LIFE POLICIES	1,965,95 0 0
TOTAL ACCUMULAED FUNDS	373,562 3 2
TOTAL ANNUAL REVENUE	94,786 4 4

With reference to the recent investigation into the state of the Company's affairs, as at 31st January last, the Report States that both the principles of valuation and the details thereof, had been submitted to James John Downes, Esq., Actuary to the Economic Life Office in London, a gentleman well known as one of the highest authorities on such subjects in the kingdom, and had received his approval, as having been made on just and sound principles, and accurately carried out as certified in his report to the Directors, which formed part of the Appendix to their Report. This step the Directors considered could not fail to give the utmost confidence—both to the shareholders and the Policyholders—in the soundness and correctness of the valuation.

During the Quinquennial period, the claims by death, including the bonus additions which had been paid, and which had been considerably under the number that might have been expected from the Mortality Tables on which the Office rates are based, amounting to £93,975 6s 6d.

In valuing the Policies, each had been separately calculated, and nett premiums had only been used, thus leaving a surplus of annual revenue of £11,427 10s 7d., to meet future expenses and to form a source of profit for next investigation. The total amount of claims by death paid since the commencement of the Company, was £217,821 4s.

The Securities held by the Company were in a satisfactory position, and had been recently carefully scrutinized in detail by the Directors.

In conclusion, the Directors congratulated both the Proprietors and the Assured on the high position which the Company now occupied in the estimation of the public, and on the encouraging prospect of its business operations for the future.

DECLARATION OF BONUS.

From the profits realized on the Life business, a retrospective Bonus of £1 7s 6d per cent per annum for the Quinquennial period was declared, on the sums originally assured under all Participating Policies, increased by the previous additions thereto; also a further prospective Bonus of £1 per cent per annum, on the amount of the Policies with said Bonuses, on all such of said Policies as may become claims by Death previously to the 31st January, 1867.

It will be observed, that this rate of Bonus is equivalent in the case of our older Policies to £1 14s per cent per annum on the original sum assured; that the total additions to the sum assured, now vest d, are equal to 32 per cent on the sum assured: and that as the younger ages the additions amount to upwards of 75 per cent of the premiums paid.

Statement showing the Progress of the Company's Business during the Quinquennial Period, ending 31st January, 1862:

Year ending 31st January.	Amounts proposed for Assurance.	Amount of New Policies issued.	No. of Policies issued.	No. of Policies lapsed.	New Annual Premiums.	Total Revenue in each year.	Accumulated Funds.
1858	£183,849	£134,180	445	256	£3,899 14 5	£40,706 11 10	£349,556 5 2
1859	306,305	199,171	540	271	5,492 1 6	69,701 5 3	367,434 3 4
1860	348,230	283,920	804	256	8,776 17 9	77,977 6 8	343,091 0 10
1861	349,076	270,346	933	736	7,911 17 6	87,260 7 0	334,996 11 0
1862	434,325	368,580	1169	881	11,170 1 1	90,756 4 6	373,563 2 2
Totals...	£1,621,785	£1,256,197	3890	2200	£37,400 15 10	£386,431 14 6	£1,571,258 15 6

Votes of thanks were passed to the Directors and Office-bearers of the Company at Head-Offices and branches, and after a very hearty vote of thanks to the Chairman for his conduct in the Chair, the meeting was dissolved.

ILLUSTRATED

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN!

The Best Mechanical Paper in the World.

EIGHTEENTH YEAR.

VOLUME VIII—NEW SERIES.

A NEW VOLUME of this popular Journal commences on the first of January. It is published weekly, and every number contains sixteen pages of useful information, and from five to ten original engravings of new inventions and discoveries, all of which are prepared expressly for its columns.

TO THE MECHANIC & MANUFACTURER.

No person engaged in any of the manufacturing pursuits should think of "doing without" the Scientific American. It costs but six cents per week; every number contains from six to ten engravings of new machines and inventions, which cannot be found in any other publication.

TO THE INVENTOR.

The Scientific American is indispensable to every inventor, as it not only contains illustrated descriptions of nearly all the best inventions as they come out, but each number contains an Official List of the Claims of all the Patents Issued from the United States Patent Office during the week previous; thus giving a correct history of the progress of inventions in this country. We are also receiving, every week the best scientific journals of Great Britain, France and Germany: thus placing in our possession all that is transpiring in mechanical science and art in these old countries. We continue to transfer to our columns copious extracts from these journals whatever we may deem of interest to our readers.

A pamphlet of instruction as to the best mode of obtaining Letters Patent on new inventions is furnished free on application.

Messrs. Munn & Co. have acted as Patent Solicitors for more than seventeen years, in connection with the publication of the Scientific American, and they refer to 20,000 patentees for whom they have done business.

No charge is made for examining sketches and models of new inventions and for advising inventors as to their patentability.

CHEMISTS, ARCHITECTS, MILLWRIGHTS & FARMERS.

The Scientific American will be found a most useful journal to them. All the new discoveries in the science of chemistry are given in its columns, and the interest of the architect and carpenter are not overlooked; all the new inventions and discoveries appertaining to these pursuits being published from week to week. Useful and practical information pertaining to the interests of millwrights and mill-owners will be found in the Scientific American, which information they can not possibly obtain from any other source. Subjects in which farmers are interested will be found discussed in the Scientific American; most of the improvements in agricultural implements being illustrated in its columns.

TERMS.—To mail subscribers: Three Dollars a year, or One Dollar for four months.—The volumes commence on the first of January and July. Specimen copies will be sent gratis to any part of the country.

Western and Canadian money or Post-office stamps taken at par for subscriptions. Canadian subscribers will please to remit twenty-five cents extra on each year's subscription to prepay postage.

Poetry.

Not Sighs, but Smiles.

Why sigh o'er the cares of the way?
This vale, though a vale of tears,
Hath many a sunny spot,
Here and there along its years.

Then chase with smiles the dark spell,
For who'll pretend to deny
That the laughing face of May
Charms more than an April sigh?

The skies weep sorely, we know,
When clouds hang heavy with rain?
But gleam with joy when the sun
Breaks forth in brightness again.

The nights may be dark and cold
When wint'ry winds are high;
But the golden stars shine forth
In hosts from the jewelled sky.

And so, methinks we'll find—
If we only look aright—
Though pain and pleasure meet,
There is less of shadow than light.

Up yonder—where clouds never come
Where God and the angels dwell,
Where grief from sorrowing earth
Go up, the vast cares to swell—

No shadow dares dim the light
Of His his never-failing smile;
He hears on His holy heart,
Creation's vast vault the while;

He smiles to think of the bliss
Stored up for us above;
His smiles will welcome us there,
In His banquet-hall of Love.

Ah! then, at the feast He'll spread
No care shall light on the brow—
No ears—but smiles, all smiles,
In God's eternal Now.

Miscellaneous.

A Thrilling Story of Female Courage.

A striking trait of courage in a lady forms the subject of conversation at present in the French metropolis. Madame Aubry lives in a solitory chateau not far from the town of ——. The family consists only of M. Aubry, his wife, a child about a year old, and one maid-servant. In the little town every light is out at ten o'clock, and of course the most perfect solitude reigns at that hour in their house, which lies off the road, and is completely hidden by trees.

One night last winter, Madame Aubry was sitting alone reading. Her husband had left her in the morning to visit a few friends six or eight miles off, and, as he expected to bring home a considerable sum of money, he had taken the precaution of arming himself with a pair of pistols. At about six o'clock the lady went up to the room to put her child to bed. Her apartment was a large room on the first floor, filled up on one side by an old-fashioned chimney, and on the other by a deep, spacious alcove, near which stood her infant's cradle.

The night was gloomy one, cold and dark. Every now and then a dash of rain beat against the gothic windows. The trees in the garden bowed to the wind, and their branches came sweeping against the casement; in short, it was a night in which the solitude of the mansion was more complete and melancholy than usual.

Madame Aubry sat down in a chair near the fire, which, by its sudden flashes, cast an uncertain light over the apartment, throwing its antique carving and mouldings by turns into brighter relief or deeper shade. She had her child on her lap, and had just finished preparing it for the cradle. She cast her eyes toward the alcove to see if the cradle was ready to receive its little occupant, whose eyes were already closed. Just then the fire flashed up brightly, and threw a strong light on the alcove, by which the lady distinguished a pair of feet, cased in heavy, muffled shoes, peeping out from under the curtain in front of the bed. A thousand thoughts passed through her mind in an instant. The person was a thief—perhaps an assassin; that was clear. She had no protection, no aid, at hand. Her husband was not to return till eight at the soonest, and it was only half-past six. What was to be done?

She did not utter a single cry, nor even start on her seat. The servant girl would probably not have had such presence of mind. The robber probably meant to remain quiet where he was till midnight, and then seize the money her husband was to bring with him, but that if he should find he was discovered, he would not fail to leave his hiding-place and secure their silence by murdering them. Besides, might the girl not be the robber's accomplice? Several slight causes of suspicion occurred to her at once; and all these reflections passed through her mind in less time than it takes us to write them. She decided at once what she should do, which was to send the girl out of the room.

"You know that dish my husband likes," said she, without betraying her alarm by the least change in the tones of her voice; "I ought to have remembered to have got it ready for supper. Go down stairs and see about it at once."

"Does not madame require my help here, as she generally does?"

"No, no; I will attend to everything myself. I know my husband would not be pleased if he was to come home after his ride, to such bad weather and not find a good supper ready."

After some delays, which increased in the lady's mind that suspicion she was forced to conceal, the girl left the room. The noise of her steps on the stairs died away gradually, and Madame Aubry was left alone with her child, whose two feet, motionless at their post, still peeping out under the curtain. She kept by the fire, with her child on her lap, and had just finished preparing it for the cradle. She cast her eyes toward the alcove to see if the cradle was ready to receive its little occupant, whose eyes were already closed. Just then the fire flashed up brightly, and threw a strong light on the alcove, by which the lady distinguished a pair of feet, cased in heavy, muffled shoes, peeping out from under the curtain in front of the bed. A thousand thoughts passed through her mind in an instant. The person was a thief—perhaps an assassin; that was clear. She had no protection, no aid, at hand. Her husband was not to return till eight at the soonest, and it was only half-past six. What was to be done?

She did not utter a single cry, nor even start on her seat. The servant girl would probably not have had such presence of mind. The robber probably meant to remain quiet where he was till midnight, and then seize the money her husband was to bring with him, but that if he should find he was discovered, he would not fail to leave his hiding-place and secure their silence by murdering them. Besides, might the girl not be the robber's accomplice? Several slight causes of suspicion occurred to her at once; and all these reflections passed through her mind in less time than it takes us to write them. She decided at once what she should do, which was to send the girl out of the room.

"You know that dish my husband likes," said she, without betraying her alarm by the least change in the tones of her voice; "I ought to have remembered to have got it ready for supper. Go down stairs and see about it at once."

"Does not madame require my help here, as she generally does?"

"No, no; I will attend to everything myself. I know my husband would not be pleased if he was to come home after his ride, to such bad weather and not find a good supper ready."

After some delays, which increased in the lady's mind that suspicion she was forced to conceal, the girl left the room. The noise of her steps on the stairs died away gradually, and Madame Aubry was left alone with her child, whose two feet, motionless at their post, still peeping out under the curtain. She kept by the fire, with her child on her lap, continuing to caress it and sing to it almost mechanically. The child cried; but its cradle was near the alcove—near those dreadful feet!—how could she find courage to go near them! At last she made a violent effort.

"Come, my child!" said she, and got up.

Hardly able to stand erect, she walked toward the alcove close to the robber. She put the child in the cradle, singing it to sleep as usual. We may imagine what nonsense she had to sing. When the child fell asleep she left it, and resumed her seat by the fire. She did not dare to leave the room: it would arouse the suspicions of the robber, and of the girl—probably his accomplice. Besides, she could not bear the thought of leaving her child, even if it was to purchase her own safety.

The clock pointed to seven. An hour and a half more, before her husband would arrive. Her eyes were fixed on those feet, which threatened her death at any moment, with a sort of fascination. The most profound silence reigned in the room. The infant slept quietly. We do not know whether even an Amazon, in her place, would have been bold enough to try a struggle with the robber.

She [illegible] that passive courage founded on reflection, which is far the rarer of the two. Every few minutes she would hear a noise in the garden. In that noise, a ray of hope shone on her for a moment: it was her husband—it was deliverance! But no; it was only the wind and rain, or the shutters creaking. What an age every minute seemed to be!

Just heaven! the feet moved! Does the thief intend to leave his hiding-place? No; it was only a slight, probably involuntary, movement, to ease himself by changing his position.

The clock strikes—only once; it is the half hour only, and the clock is too fast, besides! How much anguish—how many silent prayers—in these trying minutes! She took a book of devotion and tried to read, but her eyes would wander from the page to fix on those heavy shoes. All at once, a thought arose that chilled her to the very heart: suppose her husband should not come! The weather is stormy, and he has relatives in the village he went to. Perhaps they have persuaded him it was unsafe to travel at night with so large a sum of money about him; perhaps they have forced him, with friendly violence, to yield to their urgent invitations to wait till morning. It is striking eight, and nobody comes; and the idea we have alluded to appears to her more and more probable.

After two hours of such agony, the unhappy lady, whose courage had been kept up by the hope of final rescue, finds her strength and hope fail her. Soon she hears a noise under the window, and listens, trustingly, doubtfully. This time she is not mistaken. The heavy out-door creeks on its hinges, and shuts with clamor: a well-known step is heard on the stairs, and a man enters—a tall, stout man. It is he—it is he! At that moment, if he had been the worst of all husbands, he would have been perfection in his wife's eyes. He had only taken off his wet cloak and put away his pistols, and delighted at again seeing what he loved most on earth, opens his arms to embrace his wife. She clasps him convulsively; but in a moment recovering her self-possession, puts her finger on his lips and points to the two feet peeping under the curtain.

If M. Aubry had been wanting in presence of mind, he would not have deserved to be the husband of such a woman. He made a slight gesture to show that he understood her and said, aloud—

"Excuse me, my dear; I left my money down stairs. I'll be back in two minutes."

Within that time he returns, pistol in hand. He looks at the pruning, walks to the alcove, stops, and while the forefinger of his right hand is on the trigger, with the other hand he seizes one of the feet, and cries, in a voice of thunder—

"Surrender, or you're a dead man!"

He drags into the middle of the room by the feet, a man of most ill-favored aspect, crouching low to avoid the pistol which he held within an inch of his head. He is searched and a sharp dagger found on him. He confesses that the girl was his accomplice, and had told him that M. Aubry would bring a large sum home that night. Nothing remains now, but to give them over to the authorities. Madame Aubry asks her husband to pardon them; but the voice of duty is stronger than that of pity.

When M. Aubry heard from his wife all she had gone through, he could only say—

"Who would have thought you so courageous."

But, in spite of her courage, she was attacked that night with a violent nervous fever, and did not get over her heroism for several days.

Talking to Boys.

Billy Ross is a great temperance lecturer, and at Roseville, Illinois, was preaching to the young on his favorite theme. He said:

Now boys, when I ask you a question you mustn't be afraid to speak right out and answer me. When you look around and see all these fine houses, farms, and cattle, do you ever think who owns them all now?—Your fathers owns them do they not?

"Yes sir!" shouted a hundred voices.

"Well, where will your fathers be twenty years from now?"

"Dead!" shouted the boys.

"That's right and who will own all this property then?"

"Us boys!"

"Right. Now tell me did you ever, in going along the streets, notice the drunkards lounging about the saloon doors, waiting for some one to treat them?"

"Yes sir; lots of 'em."

"Well, where will they be twenty years from now?"

"Dead!" shouted the urchins.

"And who will be the drunkards then?"

"Us boys!"

Billy was thunderstruck for a moment, but recovering himself, tried to show them how they might escape such a fate.

THE SUEZ CANAL.—The canal across the Isthmus of Suez, which has been so long talked of, is half finished. By next year it will have progressed so far that all the coal destined for the steamship companies, which has now to be transported around the Cape of Good Hope, will be sent to the Red Sea by canal. In three or four years the whole work will be completed, at a cost of $40,000,000, and the ancient track of commerce be again resumed.

A CLEAR CASE.—Newspaper people are proverbially temperate as well as virtuous. We believe one of the craft did get tightly slight, a few days ago, and the following is a sample of his paper the next day: "Yesterday morning, at 4 o'clock p. m., a small man, named James or Smith, with a hoe in the hole of his trowsers, committed arsenic by swallowing a dose of suicide. The verdict of the inquest returned a jury that the deceased came to the fact in accordance with his death. He left a child and six small wives to lament the end of his unfortunate loss. In death we are in the midst of life.

When the chill winds blow, and the blinding snow sends the blood aglow—below zero, wherever you go, at home or no, whether [illegible] with the gout you know, or the pain doth grow, and the throbbing flow of the veins below swell the poor old toe, with the corns, and O, you'd like to know where you could go, to friend or foe, and get relief for your suffering toe.

'De Congregation will please be to sing de vun thousandth and two'th psalm,' said a Dutch Parson, as he gave out the hymn. 'There are not so many in the book,' said the chorister. 'Vell, den, please be to sing as many as can dare pe.'

'What stingy fellows they must be in New York,' continued a fine country girl. 'Our Sallie says she never could get a beau without paying five cents for it.'

An American witness was called upon to give his testimony. Having taken his place in the witness box he turned to the counsel at the bar, and before testifying, very earnestly said,—

Say, stranger, which side am I on?'

'O papa, Dr. March had such hard work to pull mother's tooth out.' 'Had he my son?' 'Yes, I see him try first with his pincers, then he put his mouth right close to mother's, and pulled it out with his teeth!"

—We learn from the St. Mary's Argus that on Tuesday morning last the freight train which left that village about six o'clock a. m., came in contact, seven miles west of there, with a broken rail in the track, which resulted in a smash up of cars and freight. The engine and two cars passed over the broken rail in safety, but the third and eight following cars were broken up and completely destroyed. Fortunately no lives were lost. The train comprised twenty-two cars. Three of the cars destroyed were laden with through freight for Chicago, the others being empty.

—The amount of Northern property destroyed at sea by the Confederate cruisers and privateers Alabama, Florida, Retribution, Sumter, Jeff Davis, &c., may be estimated at from ten to fifteen millions of dollars. The damage inflicted on Federal commerce by the panic created by these losses it would not be easy to calculate.

GOT HIS TICKET.—The notorious Redpath, whose extensive defalcations to the Great Northern Railway Company will be remembered, has been granted a ticket of leave, having earned it by good conduct. He was not allowed to leave the colony to which he was transported, but was living on his own house, being maintained by an allowance of £200 a year from his wife.

SMITH O'BRIEN.—The Munster (Irish) News of the 15th ult says: William Smith O'Brien, Esq., visited the eternal city after Christmas, and was most graciously received by the venerable pontiff. The distinguished Irishman was engaged for some time in consulting the Roman archieves with a view to the completion of a history of Ireland.

NEW SEPARATE SCHOOL ACT.

Mr. Scott, of Ottawa, has managed to carry his School Bill through the Lower House. It has yet to pass the Upper House before it becomes law, but of this there is little danger.

This troublesome measure has left the Administration in a fix. The Bill affecting as it does, only Upper Canada has been passed by a Lower Canada majority. If it should pass the Upper House and become come law, it will be safe to pronounce the double majorit "a myth." This measure though introduced and carried through by a private member, was acknowledged by members of the Government as containing the views of the Administration on the subject, and consequently they have suffered a defeat of one of their measures. Rumours are rife of the resignation of the Premier, if Upper Canada supporters play so loose.

There are not two other questions likely to engage the attention of the House which can place several of the we tern members of the cabinet in a more awkward fix than this Separate School and Representation by Population questions. We are grieved to have to record the fact that on these two all engrossing subjects in Upper Canada these members have, by their recent votes, ignored their former opinions. And the most remarkable feature of their conduct has been their labouring to show that their last votes were perfectly consistent with their previous ones. They might almost as well try to make us believe that the St. Lawrence runs west towards the sea, in place of east If this last measure had been merely to make the Separate School Act less troublesome without imparing the efficiency of the Common Schools, and without giving increased facilities to increase Separate Schools, it would be the duty of the Government to have aided in passing the Bill, but when the chief object of the measure is to increase the facilities for their extension, and thereby injuring the Common Schools—lowering the standard of teachers—giving five hundreds of families who live within 3 miles of the site of a School house power to establish a Separate School, it is passing strange how men could vote as the western members of the Cabinet have done. The only points of importance, however, we observe wherein the new Bill differs from the old, are the substituting residents within 3 miles of a School house, for residents in a Ward, and the repeal of the yearly notice of a Roman Catholic to the Clerk, that he is a supporter of a Separate School. He is now to give notice before the first day of March, and that notice is to remain until it is cancelled by himself. So that after all, the chief objection to the new measure is giving increased facility to extend the School, and in proportion impairing the Common Schools. We have often expressed our opinions on these Schools. They exist as a part of our School system introduced after its institution, but originally not necessarily a part of it. They are so now, however, and we believe they are like the worm at the root of the gourd, destined to blast and destroy the lauded School system of Upper Canada. To deprive the Catholics now of their privileges would be no easy task, apart from the injustice in such a case. We hope that Mr. McGee states the truth when he says that the Catholic's receive the present measure as a "finality." The incessant agitation of this question, awakens feelings on both sides that had better have lain dormant—doing more to keep men of different creeds apart, than a little.

We noticed a short time ago a very severe philippic in the Quebec Mercury, which appears elsewhere in our columns, against the Upper Canada members of the House who opposed Mr. Scott's Bill. The article we refer to has been severely criticised by several Western papers, and deserves the condemnation of every right thinking man. It abounds with injustice as well as invective, and betrays a recklessness we have seldom seen equalled.

We cannot give the writer credit of ignorance of the views and feelings of Western members on this question, he knows these as well as any man, and therefore it is the more reprehensible as it shows a wanton disregard of truth, unworthy of a member of the Press.

Upper Canadians are attached to their School System. They are aware that the graft of Seperate Schools into it threatens its very existence, and they are jealous of any new more, to increase the danger. The principle too on which these Seperate Schools was founded destroys a long cherished principle of equal rights to all irrespective of origin or creed, and now forsooth when they in the exercise of their rights raise their voice against further encroachments, they are to be hounded down by a hireling.

It is pretty well known who the writer of the article is, and he receives as he deserves the condemnation of all right thinking men. Only fancy the impertinence to compare the disenfranchisement School in Lower Canada for Protestants to the Seperate Schools in Upper Canada for Catholics.—In the former Section the Common Schools are all denominational, while in the latter they are non denominational—the Dissentients there seek freedom from sectarianism; the Roman Catholics here want sectarianism. When a man reasons so he ought to be put down for a fool or an arrant knave.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY IN PETERBOROUGH.

It was known for some time past that the Roman Catholics in and around Peterboro' intend having a Procession in the Town on Ireland's Patron Saint's day. It was rumoured last week that the Orangemen and Protestants from the country intend coming in to prevent the talked of procession. Letters were received by the Roman Catholic priest and the Mayor of the Town informing them that the talked of walk through the Town should not be allowed, and advising them to interfere to prevent it, so as to save the consequences, if it was insisted upon. Not much heed was given to these threats, and so on Tuesday morning the Catholics began to muster for the purpose of forming the procession. They had proceeded but a short way, when the Mayor and the Sheriff spoke to the leaders acquainting them of the presence of a large number of men who were on the march to stop them. While they were considering what to do, the first part of a long line of men were marching on the Market Square, proceeding to R. Patterson & Co.'s shoe store. After reaching Simcoe Street, they turned south on Water Street, and had proceeded as far as the door of the Bank of Montreal, when their leader with drawn sword called "halt." They were then but a few yards from the front of the procession. The marshals directed the men to take off their sashes and their colours, and disperse, which was done. By this time the great body of Orangemen and Protestants had got upon the Market Square. When they saw that the procession was broken up they cheered loudly, and fired off a number of shots from muskets and fire arms. They then paraded the streets for some time and again met on the Market Square, when a cannon, apparently a nine pounder, was fired —three cheers were given for the Queen. They again marched through the streets and came to the Court House Square, where they were addressed by the County Master for Victoria, and by the Rev. Messrs. Sparrow and Colwill. They again formed in procession and paraded the streets.

We are happy to say that no row or fight took place—a remarkable occurrence when it is considered the great number of people in Town, and the exciting circumstances. At one time, a row was near taking place at Chelsea's Hotel, but owing to the presence of mind, and the energy and pluck of the Mayor, it was prevented. Great credit is due to the Rev. Mr. Kelly, the Sheriff and the Mayor, for the efforts they employed so opportunely in preventing bloodshed which at one time appeared inevitable.

Post Master General's Report.

We are pleased to find a steady increase in the prosperity of this important branch of the public service. From the report ending 30th Sept., 1862, before us we observe an increase of letters passing through the Post of 800,000 over 1861, and an increase of income of over $25,000. The total Revenue collected for the year was $723,052 97, the total expenditure $695,514 15, showing that the Post Office is not only self sustaining but producing a revenue of over $27,500 to the general fund while there has been a steady increase of new Post Offices and mail routes.

The Report is replete with details of the several particulars of the Department, such as payments for mail importation, salaries, commissions and allowances to Postmasters, expenditures for printing, advertising and incidental and miscellaneous items of disbursements. And here we were curious to spend some time in noting some of these. The Post Office year seems to be from September to September. We find under this head the following:—S. B. Foote, Stationery for the Post Office Department $9,358 60. Ditto, for Printing and Advertising two bills $2,562 40,—nearly $12,000 for Stationery and Printing to one individual.

The former item of Stationery was ordered by the Hon. Sidney Smith prior to 30th Sept., 1861, and embraced those precious knives and expensive mucillage which caused such indignation through the country. How a public officer and a head of a Department could allow such barefaced robbery we are at a loss to imagine, unless he be lost to every principle of right and wrong.

There are two gross of pens charged $40, a number of maps, gazetters and almanacs, which are all useful enough. But who would ever imagine that the Post Office Department required for its official twelve copies Biographies of celebrated Canadians to enable them to get through their duty? This is another shameful job lying at the door to the Ex-Postmaster General.

The amount of commission allowed the Peterborough Post Master is $1,212 25, and an allowance for stationery of $24. There is also $200 for rent and taxes.

COMPETITION between the Lindsay Printing Offices (which are three in number) is so great that the Advocate publishes the Auditors' Report for the Township of Ops for nothing, sooner than see a contemporary get it; that is "working for nothing and boarding your self" with a vengeance.

Michael Hogan was the purchaser of the Market Tolls for $375.

The Legislature is busy getting through the business of the Session.

A large number of Bills have been introduced, some of them very trifling ones. One has just arrested our attention, which proposes to abolish the property qualification of members of the Legislative Assembly—a measure which we hope will not pass. It is true that we have reduced the qualification of voters very much, still we have not universal suffrage, and surely until we have, let some property qualification be required of a candidate seeking suffrages of a qualified constituency. We should have no objection to see the amount reduced, but we are not prepared to advocate its abolition.

It is a poor argument to adduce that as many members in both houses are not qualified within the meaning of the Statute —therefore it is better to do away with any such requirements.

We know dishonest men will try to evade, every bar to their designs, and will quibble and evade the law be it ever so stringent. The best way to cure this is to select honest men, and no fear, but then you will have honest laws.

We have also seen a Bill to improve the Grammar Schools in Upper Canada. It provides for the assessment of the County for Grammar Schools in the same manner as Common Schools, i. e. for the County to raise by assessment an equivalent to that furnished by Government. Also that the County is to elect three Trustees and the City, Town or Village three, making the number six. It repeals the clause in the former act of limiting the number of Common School Teachers to six—so that in the Joint board there can be but six Grammar School while there may be eight Common School Trustees in the Board, thus reversing the order in which it was supposed formerly to stand.

SOUTHERN HISTORY OF THE GREAT CIVIL WAR IN THE UNITED STATES.

The above is the title of a new book, just published by P. R. Randall, Esq., Toronto, who has kindly sent us a copy. It is written by Edward A Pollard, a member of the Confederate Congress, and the manuscript had to be sent over to Canada to get published. It brings the history of the war down to the end of September last. It is written in a free intelligent manner, without any attempt of literary effort, and in such a straight forward and candid way as carries the reader along, with the consiction that he is reading truth.

It gives a very rational account of the causes that have led to the unhappy rupture, and the author seems to do justice to the North, while he is anxious to place the South in its proper position.

The work is well printed and neatly got up, and Mr. S. M. Wait is now canvassing for subscribers.

We are free to confess that as far as we have gone we have read no work or report on the great struggle so candid and apparently truthful, as this book of Mr. Pollard's. We advise our readers to buy it, as it seems to us to place the great questions involved in the war in their proper light. When authors write dispassionately as the present one does, the truth is more apt to appear, than when they under the influence of strong excitement.

FRANK LESLIES' LADIES' MAGAZINE FOR APRIL.—This magnificent monthly has reached us, and, as usual, contains a vast amount of reading, and more than the usual amount of illustrations. It has no less than 73 plates of the newest Spring fashions. It has an account of the marriage of General Tom Thumb, with a sketch of his history. Altogether, Frank Leslie is a really useful work for ladies, and we recommend it to the patronage of our lady friends.

THE Board of School Trustees were called together on Tuesday night, in consequence of there not being a meeting on the regular night—the first Tuesday of the month. The annual accounts have not yet been submitted to the Board, and there are several pressing matters requiring the attention of the Board, and yet but five members and the Secretary could be got together. There was, of course, no business done, there not being a quorum. We think it would be advisable for the Board to pass a resolution publishing the names of those who attend and those who do not, so that parties concerned can know who to elect and who to reject.

THE WAR NEWS is very meagre indeed—very little of importance having transpired of late. It is thought that Vicksburg will be evacuated, the Federals having succeeded by a canal to transport their vessel into the Yazo river, which connects with Vicksburg, and where it is not fortified. The rebels, it is said, intend permanently to occupy Kentucky. If so, we shall hear of some sharp work soon. The end of the struggle appears as far off as ever.

In the Old World a serious revolt has taken place in Poland, and last reports say Hungary has also risen to throw off the Hapsburg yoke.

WE have a communication from a respected correspondent in Galway, calling our attention to the importance of having a road made from Buckhorn to Silver Lake. He says this route is about 18 miles nearer to Peterborough than the route of Cowan's Bridge. He says that if Peterboro' does not move to secure the trade of the back country, it will find its way to Lindsay. The inhabitants of the Town of Peterboro seem not to be alive to their real interests in neglecting this trade. We should be most happy in inserting a communication from our correspondent on the subject.

WE are pleased to learn that a new Infantry Company, numbering 65, has been formed under the command of A. Smith, Esq. The notice and list have been forwarded to the Brigade Major, who is expected shortly to inspect the new Company. Success to Captain Smith's Volunteers.

We are requested to state that Infantry Company No. 3, (Capt. Smith's) will meet in the Town Hall, this evening, at half past eight o'clock, for the election of officers and the transaction of other business.

Police Court.

Mary Pero brought up Antoine Dubois for tearing a bed tick on the 11th inst. The Defendant in reply to the charge said that Mrs. Bauvais came to him on Wednesday last, crying and begging him to go with her and to try and persuade her husband to come and live with her. He learned that, Bauvais was in the house kept by Madams Shenette and Pero, and he went accordingly with Mrs. Beauvias who is his sister—When he got inside of the house Bauvias caught hold of him, he at once put him down and kept him for some time, asked him if he would go home to his wife, he replied he would not he then let him up—when he Bauvais threw himself on a bed, Defendant dragged him off—while doing so he partially tore the bed tick, he then seized hold of it and threw it out and tore it up. He was fined 5s. damages but no costs.

William Mooney was brought up charged with leaving employment of Jeremiah Carew, he was fined 5s. and costs, and ordered to go back to his employer.

Baptiste Frenier was charged with leaving the employment of John Thompson. He was fined $10 and costs, and in default of payment was committed to durance vile for 30 days.

Robt. H. Cronn was summond up before the Mayor and J. Edwards Esq., charged with selling spirituous liquors by retail without license. He was fined $50 and costs.

William Butler, a decent looking man, was brought up yesterday morning by Constable McDonald with being drunk and abusive on the Streets. It appears he had got tight and did not know what he was about. Fined 5s and costs, which he paid on the spot.

The Grand Jury handed in the following presentment.

County of Peterboro', } THE Grand
To Wit } Jurors on their oath present,—That they have examined the Jail and find every thing clean and orderly, and no complaints; but they regret to find that there is not sufficient accomodation in the jail to classify the prisoners. The placing of juvenile offenders in Jail for a short time with old offenders, cannot be otherwise than injurous, for they too frequently come forth from Jail far more depraved than when committed to prison; and it is to be feared that many of the youth that are placed in confinement, for the purpose of correction and improvement, frequently become criminals of the worst character. Therefore, we consider it very desirable that such buildings should be erected that would enable the Sheriff and Jailer so to classify the prisoners that the end we complain of may be corrected.

VINCENT CLEMENTI,
Hon. Secretary.

Mr. Scott has introduced his Separate School Bill, for Upper Canada, in the shape in which it stood when talked out by Mr. Ferguson last session. That it will pass in this or any shape without opposition, it were folly to expect, considering the vital force of intolerance, and the temptation which such a measure affords to those who have taken Protestantism under their peculiar charge. Their hatred of "the Papacy" is usually a good deal stronger than their hatred of sin; and the idea of according to Catholics, the educational privileges which they claim unhesitatingly for themselves, troubles their consciences to an extent that will render some explosions in Parliament inevitable.

Happily, however, Protestant bigotry is not omnipotent in Upper Canada. The "no popery" horse, which once upon a time galloped hard throughout that section of the Province, now moves at a beggarly jog-trot, like a steed that has had its day, and is going as fast as it can to the dogs. Even Mr. Ferguson, whose leather lungs would out-do a steam engine when shrieking is required—even he, who last session saved Protestantism from extinction, has constituted himself the apologist of Catholic murders, and makes a show of dropping a tear upon their unhonored graves. There is, therefore, hope in the land. The white horse no ighteth modestly, like an animal that is half ashamed of itself, and would remain out of sight, if possible.

The only favor to be asked either of the traditional pet of the Hanoverian Prince or its now unprincelike riders, is, that these pranks in behalf of Protestantism shall not permanently obstruct the business of the session. There is no valid reason why this "No Popery" nonsense, of which sensible people are heartily ashamed in common life, should usurp time and space amongst the assembled wisdom. It has crept for shelter into divers mysterious Lodges in Western Canada, and there may it be left to slumber peacefully with no prospect of a resurrection. There are no windows in these Lodges, or the bright sun would shame them out of existence; and a stray bat may now and then descend by the chimney to prove its affinity to the "No Popery" corpse.

It is desirable, then, to remove this Separate School question from the legislative arena without further delay. There has been wrangling enough about it in years gone by, to satisfy the demands of as much narrow-mindedness as is left; and for decency's sake, let it be disposed of in a generous spirit. On the Christian maxim, Mr. Scott may be content to take his stand. He asks for the Catholics of Upper Canada simply what the Protestants of Lower Canada long since sought and obtained—facilities for educating their children in the manner consonant with their ideas of duty; and he belies his protestantism who would avail himself of numerical superiority to deny to his Catholic neighbors the opportunities for which he would howl most lustily if withheld from himself

The struggle and the occasion for it are not so creditable to the intelligence or liberality or godliness of the country, that we should consent to its prolongation. The fact that Upper Canada is, after all, only following in the footsteps of Lower Canada in the matter of educational liberality, may not be flattering to Western pride; but it is a fact, nevertheless, and one that does not stand without a parallel. Amongst the old British American colonies, Catholic Maryland affirmed a religious toleration which puritan New England obstinately decried. And in the same manner Catholic Lower Canada affords to protestant Upper Canada what is at once a rebuke and an example.—Quebec Mercury.

Wall Street Creed.

From the N. Y. Independent.

When a rich man in this city retires from the dry-good trade, the hardware business, or any other commercial calling, he usually turns up, very soon, in Wall street. He is there called a "capitalist." He now gives his thoughts and his time exclusively to money matters. To make money is just as much his vocation, there, as during any of the previous twenty years, when he sold tape, jewsharps, or ginger. He has only "changed his base of operations"—that's all. Now a man, to succeed in Wall street, must have a "single eye" to one object. It won't do to mix himself up with matters and things in general. He must have some general principle of doing business there, as well as elsewhere, and confine himself strictly to them. A great deal has already been said and written about Wall street—its capitalists, financiers, money-changers, stock gamblers, and fancy operators. Much more can be said. Indeed, it would require volumes to give a full history of this great money center of the nation. The thousands who daily throng that busy street are, as the world goes, very clever men. They are mostly good-looking, well-dressed, and generally well behaved, and any man having money will always be received by them with "distinguished consideration."

At such a time as the present, Wall street is very much blamed for not doing this thing and that thing to help the Government. It is expected, by all outsiders, that Uncle Sam has only to say "Open Sesame," when every money vault will immediately vomit forth at his feet, all its golden treasures.

Now it is our business to post our readers on all financial matters, to state the precise position of these money-changers from their own stand-point, and therefore we have decided to publish their creed. The devotees of Mammon have creeds as other folks; and when this fact is not only known, but generally recognized, there will be less complaining. We believe that its publication will have a tendency to convince people that Wall street patriots will do anything—sell Joan or give away millions—to save the country—provided they can make money by it. Our sources of information are correct, and the following may be relied on as a "true copy of the original"

WALL STREET CREED.

We believe in money-making as the chief end of man.

We believe in patriotism per se, for that sort don't cost a dollar.

We believe that all political questions should be settled at the Stock Board.

We believe that Congress, in order to save the Union, should consult financiers.

We believe in liberty to secure a fortune as we please, without being "stamped" or "taxed" by anybody.

We believe in the self-evident proposition that there is a cheating in all trades except ours.

We believe in buying cheap and selling dear as the only true principle of doing business.

We believe in major-generals who never fight, for then the soldiers poor fellows! —are never hurt.

We believe, solemnly, that a man has character in proportion to the length of his purse.

We believe that this wicked rebellion will be put down when no more money can be made out of it—and not one minute before.

We believe that, in such times as these, no man should part with a dollar, but lay it aside for a rainy day.

We believe, with all true bears and patriots, in hammering away at Government sixes and seven-thirties with the same freedom as we do at old Erie, Harlem, or Pacific Mail—always provided we can make money—not otherwise.

We believe that the recent and uncalled for opposition to our gold speculations is a blow aimed directly at our liberties, which no true lover of justice and freedom should submit to, for one instant.

We believe that in such a trying hour as the present, any man who has money should be a little cool to Uncle Sam, and lean a trifle toward Jeff Davis, for we don't know yet, exactly, what will happen.

We believe that it is nobody's business what we do, provided we maintain our good and regular standing at the Stock Board.

We believe in abstract principles and in sundry duties to our fellow men—which they, who have plenty of time, should attend to.

We believe that Wall street brokers, financiers and capitalists are created free and equal, and have certain inalienable financial rights which outsiders have no business to meddle with.

We believe, with old Dr. Sam. Johnson, that every man has his price, and that if he cannot get it he is a patriot.

We believe that all men of our vocation should persevere unto the end, and that they are justified in so doing, otherwise there would be no hope of dying as rich as Stephen Girard or John Jacob Astor.

We believe that cotton is the great lever with which the money vaults of Europe must be opened, and hence our standing is a little "mixed," at times, in regard to the war.

We believe that we are all effectually called to make money, so that our children may have the means to cultivate their taste at Barnum's, Dodsworth's, or Disbrow's, and also to travel considerably abroad—as far East as the "Holy Land."

We believe in forcordination or predestination in regard to troublous times, in money matters, and that we are forearmed with the "choicest securities."

We believe that "special revelations" are often made with great profit, and that accordingly we expect the Secretary of the Treasury to keep us privately advised of all his movements.

We believe that there should be a "for and in consideration, etc.," attached to every benevolent and patriotic movement—otherwise how should we know what we can make by it?

We believe that colored people are faring considerably, just now, with our financial prosperity, and that they all should be sent to Africa, where white folks will cease from troubling and no more molest or make them afraid.

We believe in that kind of perfection which consists in having sufficient brains to make a close calculation, in bidding for a Government loan—so as to make a fortune at one stroke.

We believe that a day of reckoning is at hand when either Uncle Sam or Jeff Davis—we don't know which—will call upon us to shell out, and that prudence requires us to maintain friendly relations to both parties. We must be right on the record.

We believe, finally, in the administration of any white man in Washington who will see that our craft is never in danger, so that our aggregate profits, in the end, shall be a proper reward for our life service in the glorious cause of—Mammon.

We submit the foregoing to our readers, with the single remark that we have endeavoured to do justice to those of our fellow-citizens who are specially referred to.—N. Y. Independent.

THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION.

LATEST NEWS.

Washington, March 17.—The Navy Department has been informed of the capture, off New Inlet, St. George's Sound, of the schooner Hortense, bound from Havana for Mobile, and of the schooner Anna White, endeavoring to break the blockade on the sand barr off the mouth of the Sawnee river, Florida.

No official intelligence had been received up to one o'clock to-day, as to the victory reported on the Yazoo.

New, York, March 17.—A Washington letter to the Commercial Advertiser, says that despatches have been received at the State Department from Mr. Dayton, announcing that he had an interview with the French Minister of Foreign relations, to whom he read the letter from Mr. Seward, declining mediation. M. Drouyn de l'Huys listened with marked attention, but made no comments of any sort.

A meeting was held at the Exchange today, in aid of the Atlantic Telegraph. It was addressed by Cyrus W. Field, W. A. Dodge, and A. A. Low, Esquires. £1,550 sterling was raised on the spot, and a committee was appointed to act in concert with the committee of the Chamber of Commerce, in obtaining subscriptions. There is no doubt but a large sum will be raised among the class of citizens. Mr. Field addresses the Board of Brokers to-morrow.

The steamer Champion, from Aspinwall on the 8th, has arrived with a few passengers and a quarter of a million in treasure.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The recent action of Congress, in regard to the re-instatement of the two years men whose term expires this spring is attracting some attention in the regiments.

Among the first to take action is the 30th New York, one of Hatch's iron brigade, who have done honor to themselves and State, on the Rappahannock, Gainesville, Bull Run, South Mountain, Antietam and Fredericksburg. Col. Searing, on Saturday, presented to Gen. Halleck a paper, signed by every officer on duty with the regiment, excepting one, stating that they had consulted with their men, and if they should be sent home about the 1st of April, which is a month before their term expires, the officers and men of the regiment would re-enlist for the war, and recruit their ranks to the maximum number. The paper will probably be laid before the President and Secretary of War. There is much esprit du corps in the 30th, as well as other regiments, and their officers and men would prefer to enlist in a body without bounty rather than to go into other regiments with the highest bounties.

Boston, March 17.—The Irish citizens of Boston and vicinity, including the several charitable associations, observed St. Patrick's day with a grand procession and other exercises appropriate to the occasion.

New Haven, March 17.—An immense Union meeting was held here this evening with unbounded enthusiasm. A union league was inaugurated, and speeches were made by S. Montgomery, Esq., of the Vicksburg Whig Hon. D. S. Dickinson and others.

THREATENED INVASION.—The following advertisement appears in the New York Clipper. Our time has come at last.

WANTED—(To travel through the British provinces,) 20 good Canvass Men, weighing from 200 to 225 lbs each. Men of great muscular power, who are willing to fight, and are capable of Defending the Stars and Stripes on British soil.

Address O. S. WHEELER, Bostor.

LARGE TURNIP.—"Le Journal de Quebec" mentions having seen a turnip of the crop of last fall, grown in the Saguenay District, measuring three feet six inches in circumference, and weighing twenty-seven pounds! Our contemporary is further informed that out of a crop of one thousand bushels fully one-third of the turnips weighed from 12 to 13 pounds each.

A TOUCHING CONTRIBUTION.—In a bale of promiscuous clothing recently received in Manchester for distribution among the distressed, from some place, the names of which is not given, there was found a boy's Scotch cap. In the cap was a letter addressed. "For an orphan or motherless boy." On opening the letter a shilling was found enclosed, and the following touching epistle:—"May the youthful wearer of this cap meet its late owner in heaven. He is beatiful and good, and was removed by an accident from this world to a better one. A weeping mother's blessing be on the future wearer of her bright boy's cap. November, 22, 1862.

A YEAR'S INCREASE.—In the year 1862 there were 711,691 children born in England and Wales, the largest number ever born in the kingdom in a year, and amounted to no less than 1,950 a day. 436,514 persons died, 1,196 a day, a number which in a then smaller population, was exceeded in 1854, 1858, and 1859. The result of the year may be represented thus:—Among every 10,000 persons 213 died, and 350 new faces made their appearance. The most prolific population is found in the coal-producing district of the North in Staffordshire, and in the thriving ports on the Tyne and Wear.

A clear, smooth, musical voice is half the attraction in many beautiful women. But a harsh, shrill shrewish voice certainly has nothing admirable about it. To expel cough or hoarseness, Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers are incomparable. Only 25 cents a box. Sold by all Druggists.

GOOD SIGNS.—It is a good sign to see a man doing an act of charity to his fellows. It is a good sign to see the color of health in a man's face. It is a good sign to see an honest man wearing old clothes, and the immense sales of the "Canadian Pain Destroyer," is a good sign that it is a scientific preparation, and properly appreciated by the people. Sold every where at 25 cents a Bottle.

The Prince of Wales has ordered a medal to be struck to commemorate his marriage with the Princess Alexandra. Messrs. Hunt and Roskell been intrusted with its production, and Mr. Leonard C. Wyon has been honored with a sitting, and is now busily engaged in engraving the medal, which will be in gold, silver, and bronze.—Court Journal.

NAPOLEON'S NEGROES FROM EGYPT.—The screw transport Seine anchored on the 25th of January in the roads of the island of Madeira, on its passage from Alexandria to Vera Cruz, having on board the battalion of negroes supplied by the late Pasha of Egypt. The Seine sailed again from Madeira on the 27th January, her commander having the intention of touching at Martinique. It was said that there was no sickness on board the Seine, and that the best understanding prevailed between the French crew and the Egyptian troops.

A CLERGYMAN CONVICTED OF FORGERY.—At the Lancaster spring assizes, the Rev. Joseph Wood, incumbent of Clayton-le-Moors, near Blackburn, was charged with feloniously forging and uttering a certain acquittance and receipt for £400 upon the Commissioners for the reduction of the National Debt. Particulars of this case have appeared in the Mercury. After evidence had been given, the jury returned a verdict of "Guilty," and the prisoner was sentenced to ten years' penal servitude.

PROSPECTUS

SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL:

A FIRST CLASS FAMILY NEWSPAPER,

DEVOTED TO THE

Dissemination of Scottish Literature & News.

SIXTH YEAR.

The Sixth Volume of the SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL commenced January 1, 1863, each year constituting a complete volume of convenient size for binding: and each number containing a most entertaining and instructive repertory of reading matter, calculated to interest all readers of British origin. The SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL, though decidedly international in its constant efforts to promote peace and prosperity between the people of Great Britain and America, is yet emphatically Scottish in its copious records of all events occurring in Scotland that can be of the least interest to natives of that country residing in America; and to this "news from home" is added, weekly, a summary of general intelligence from England, Ireland and other parts of the world.

A distinguishing feature of the SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL is its regular republication—verbatim et literatim—of the "leading articles" of the prominent British newspapers and other periodicals upon the most important topics of the day. This feature is a unique one, and has been found very acceptable to the people of the United States and British North America, and supplies a long needed desideratum on the American Continent. In reference to the "editorials" of the SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL it is a significant fact that the British press frequently acknowledging their intrinsic truth and force by copiously extracting from our columns and declaring that the SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL is the most able and interesting paper published in America. A concise weekly summary is also given of the principal items of American news, and a similar narrative of events transpiring in the various British Provinces.

In the forthcoming volume of the SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL, increased space will be devoted to the literary department in the publication of serial tales and sketches, vividly illustrating the customs habits, sentiments, and general characteristics of the people of Scotland; each tale emanating from the pen of an author of celebrity. As heretofore, particular care will be exercised in the choice of original poetry, composed by writers of acknowledged genius and purity of thought, resident here or abroad. The third number of the new volume contains the commencement of a deeply interesting prize tale, entitled

RACHEL NOBLE.

The Directors of the Scottish Temperance League gave a prize of One Hundred Guineas for this tale. The Rev. N. L. Walker, Rev. A. Johnson, Rev. James Hill, Rev. William Blair, and Rev. John Brown Johnson, D. D., acted as adjudicators, and after carefully perusing Eighty-three Manuscripts, awarded the prize to BRUCE EDWARDS. The tale will prove to be one of the most interesting ever published and will be appreciated by all classes of readers.

TO OLD SETTLERS & OTHERS

WISHING TO OBTAIN

FARMS IN UPPER CANADA.

THE CANADIAN

Land & Emigration Co'y, Limited,

OF LONDON, ENGLAND,

Capital, £250,000 Stg.

THE HON. MR. JUSTICE HALIBURTON, CHAIRMAN, offer for sale

250,000 Acres

OF LAND IN THE

COUNTIES OF PETERBORO & VICTORIA

consisting of parts of the

Townships of DYSART, DUDLEY, LONGFORD, GUILFORD, HARCOURT, HARBURN, BRUTON, HAVELOCK, &c., &c.

The following are some, among many other inducements held out to parties who may choose to take up lands in the above Townships:

Ten per cent of the purchase money paid to Government by the Company for these lands will be expended in constructing really good roads: these roads will intersect the Government Roads: namely, the Bobcaygeon, Victoria Burleigh and Peterson Roads, at convenient points, and will converge to various Town plots which the Company have it in view to lay out in very carefully selected sites. The Town Plots will, it is anticipated,—the whole of them being connected by good roads (for the construction of which the country affords excellent facilities)—become each the centre of a new and flourishing settlement; private enterprise in establishing Stores, Mills, &c., will here soon find its reward, and the several towns and townships being as it were knit together by good roads, will derive from that fact great advantages and mutual support.

In addition, the watchful supervision of the Company over every part of their lands will greatly tend to advance the interests of this district, which, being in the middle of Upper Canada, possessing a fertile soil, and a climate unsurpassed in its healthful effects upon the human frame, offers superior attractions, and all the elements of rapid progress and permanent prosperity.

THE MAGIC TIME OBSERVER!

The Perfection of Mechanism.

BEING A HUNTING AND OPEN FACE, or Lady or Gentleman's Watch combined. One of the prettiest, most convenient, and decidedly the best and cheapest timepieces for general and reliable use, ever offered. It has within it and connected with its machinery, its own winding attachment, rendering a key entirely unnecessary. The cases of this Watch are composed of two metals, the outer one being fine 16 carrot gold. It has the improved ruby action lever movement, and is warranted an accurate timepiece. Price, superbly engraved, per case of a half dozen, $204.00. Sample Watches, in neat morocco boxes, for those proposing to buy at wholesale, $35, sent by express with bill payable on delivery. Soldiers must remit payment in advance, as we cannot collect from those in the army. Address

THE ORIGINAL HOWE SEWING MACHINES.

ESTABLISHED 1845—PERFECTED 62.

RECENT and important improvements having been put to this Machine, renders it now the most perfect before the public, and persons at a distance can order a Machine with a guarantee of its prompt and safe delivery, and that they will be able to manage it to their entire satisfaction. No more breaking needles. No more missing stitches! No trouble in making any garment, however delicate or heavy, on the same Machine, either in cambric, cloth or leather; and for dress makers, shirt makers, tailors, hat binders, shoe binders, or gaiter fitting, as well as every variety of family sewing, they have no superior, and will be sold at a much less price than any other machine capable of doing the same range of work.

Send for Descriptive Catalogue of styles and prices. A few responsible Agents will be dealt with liberally.

EMPLOYMENT.

THE Undersigned has, for several years past, been engaged in a business, which has yielded him at the rate of three thousand dollars per annum, and is now willing to teach it to others. The business is of a highly useful and general character, adapted both to cities and villages, and one that any person of ordinary capacity, young or old, male or female, can acquire with a few hours' practice, and by which they can secure a very handsome income. Several young ladies who have received instructions from me, both in New York State and Pennsylvania, are earning upwards of $15 per week by it, and there is no reason why any one else cannot do the same Invalids, even, can do well by it, as it is no peddling affair, but a business that is perfectly respectable. Gentleman and ladies of leisure who would like to learn the business for their own amusement or pleasure, will find the practice of it a pleasant pastime, and one that they will take great interest in. On receipt of $1, I will send printed instructions by which any person can readily acquire the art, and these instructions will also contain every particular relative to the carrying it on so that it will be highly profitable. To a purchaser of the "printed instructions" will also be authorized to teach it to others; and I have sometimes received as high as $100, for teaching it personally to a single individual. I would state further that $3.50 or $5 will buy everything that is necessary to commence the business with, and the articles can be got almost anywhere, in city or country, or if preferred, I can furnish them. ANNUAL MEETING

INVESTIGATION REPORT - - DECLARATION OF BONUS

THE forty-sixth annual Meeting of this Company was held within the Royal Hotel, Aberdeen on Friday, the 18th April.

Alexander Stronach, Esq., of Dramallan, Chairman of the Ordinary Directors, in the Chair. There were submitted to the meeting—

1.—Report by the Directors, which, on the motion of the Chairman, was cordially and unanimously approved of and adopted.

2.—The Balance Sheet for the past year, with detailed states relative thereto, duly certified as correct, in terms of the Act of Incorporation, by the Chairman and Manager, and also by the Auditor.

There was also laid on the Table the various Valuation States in connection with the Quinquennial Investigation into the state of the Company's affairs, as at 31st January, 1863.

The following particulars derived from the Balance Sheet and States before-mentioned, show the result of the operations of the Company for the past year:—

Amount proposed for Life Assurance during the year, contained in 1180 Proposal	£454,835 0 0
Amount of Proposals accepted, and for which 981 Policies were issued	359,080 0 0
ANNUAL PREMIUMS on said Policies	11,170 1 0
CLAIMS BY DEATH including BONUSES on PARTICIPATION POLICIES, and after deducting Sums recovered from other Offices under guarantees	22,990 1 0
TOTAL SUM Assured under 4,759 current LIFE POLICIES	1,955,95 0 0
TOTAL ACCUMULATED FUNDS	873,563 3 2
TOTAL ANNUAL REVENUE	94,756 4 4

With reference to the recent investigation into the state of the Company's affairs, as at 31st January last, the Report States that both the principles of valuation and the details thereof, had been submitted to James John Downes, Esq., Actuary to the Economic Life Office in London, a gentleman well known as one of the highest authorities on such subjects in the Kingdom, and had received his entire approval, as having been made on just and sound principles, and accurately carried out as certified in his report to the Directors, which formed part of the Appendix to their Report. This step the Directors considered could not fail to give the utmost confidence—both to the shareholders and the Policyholders—in the soundness and correctness of the valuation.

During the Quinquennial period, the claims by death, including the bonus additions which had been paid, and which had been considerably under the number that might have been expected from the Mortality Tables on which the Office rates are based, amounting to £93,975 6s 6d.

In valuing the Policies, each had been separately calculated, and nett premiums had only been used, thus leaving a surplus of annual revenue of £11,427 16s 7d., to meet future expenses and to form a source of profit for next investigation. The total amount of claims by death paid since the commencement of the Company, was £217,831 4s.

The Securities held by the Company were in a satisfactory position, and had been recently carefully scrutinized in detail by the Directors.

In conclusion, the Directors congratulated both the Proprietors and the Assured on the high position which the Company now occupied in the estimation of the public, and on the encouraging prospect of its business operations for the future.

DECLARATION OF BONUS.

From the profits realised on the Life business, a retrospective Bonus of £1 7s 6d per cent per annum for the Quinquennial period was declared, on the sums originally assured under all Participating Policies, increased by the previous additions thereto; also a further prospective Bonus of £1 per cent per annum, on the amount of the Policies with said Bonuses, on all such of said Policies as may become claims by Death previously to the 31st January, 1867.

It will be observed, that this rate of Bonus is equivalent in the case of our older Policies to £1 14s per cent per annum on the original sum assured; that the total additions to the sum assured, now vested, are equal to 32 per cent on the sum assured; and that as the younger ages the additions amount to upwards of 75 per cent of the premiums paid.

Statement showing the Progress of the Company's Business during the Quinquennial Period, ending 31st January, 1863:

Year ending 31st January.	Amounts proposed for Assurance.	Amount of New Policies Issued.	No. of Policies Issued.	No. of Policies Lapsed.	New Annual Premiums.	Total Revenue in each year.	Accumulated Funds.
1858	£169,810	£136,180	435	256	£3,989 18 0	£60,706 11 10	£249,556 9 2
1859	208,305	169,171	540	477	5,499 1 6	65,701 5 3	297,134 3 4

1862	454,835	359,830	1180	981	11,170 1 1	96,756 4 4	873,563 3 2
Totals	£1,528,376	£1,219,607	3890	3209	37,409 15 10	388,631 14 6	1,577,258 15 6

Votes of thanks were passed to the Directors and Office-bearers of the Company at Head-Offices and Branches, and after a very hearty vote of thanks to the Chairman for his conduct in the Chair, the meeting was dissolved.

FINKLE & LYON

SEWING MACHINE COMPANY,

538 Broadway, New York.

TO parties little acquainted with the Finkle & Lyon Sewing Machines the careful perusal of the Company's Circular is specially commended. This circular can be had on application. It is very specific, and will be found highly instructive, having been prepared without care and we will abide by all statements therein made.

The following brief quotation is characteristic of the entire Circular:

"This Machine is better adapted than any other Sewing Machine in market to the frequent changes and almost endless variety of sewing required in a family; for it will sew from one to twenty thicknesses of Marseilles without stopping, and make every stitch perfect. Will sew from the finest gauze to the heaviest cloth, and even the stoutest harness leather, without changing the feed needle or tension, or making any adjustment of machine whatever."

This have we successfully overcome the most difficult point in the Sewing Machine art. It was no ordinary triumph. Definitely can we now say, "No other Machine compares with it in this respect." Hence, have we uniformly,—almost without exception—taken the highest premium, whenever the Machine has been properly exhibited in competition with other first class Sewing Machines. Hence it is that we are able to offer the following guarantee, viz;:

"We warrant every Machine we sell to give BETTER satisfaction than any other Sewing Machine in the market, or money refunded." We never sell a Machine on any other terms. The guarantee is as reliable as the note of any business man in the land. For more than five years have we relied upon such facts for the reputation of our Machine; and, without a single travelling agent in the field, there is scarcely a neighborhood

Poetry.

IRISH WIT.

One of those tales which embellish the sea,
Where the "sprig of shillelah" whirls high in the air.
And the shamrock so green is frequently seen.
There exists a huge tower, much worse for the wear.

A wayworn, inquisitive traveller came,
And down by the roadside determined to sit;
Being fond of a jest, he thought he would test
The truth of all stories about Irish wit.

An Englishman came, with a visage austere,
And the traveller on seeing this terrible wight
Said, 'What will you take, for a poor Yankee's sake,
To sleep in that horrid old tower all night?'

Quoth the Englishman, "Ha!" with a hideous frown,
And a curl of his lip, which a Spartan would pall,
"By all that's victorious, happy and glorious,
For the sake of a Yankee, I wouldn't at all."

A Scotchman then came, with a bundle on back,
And, as you well know, he's quite fond of a fee,
When asked what he'd take, for a poor Yankee's sake,
To sleep in that tower, he said, "What will ye gie?"

But here is a genuine son of the Isle,
And sparkling enjoyment is seen in his face.
"I'm brimful of joy, like a Limerick boy,
Och! Limerick, Limerick is a fine place."

The Yankee arose, with penknife in hand—
To be minus that he would perish outright:
"Pray, what would you take, for a poor Yankee's sake,
To s'eep in that horrid old tower all night?"

"Arrah, holy Moses! what would ye, my man?
As sure as I stand here, an Irishman bowld,
If I sleep but an hour in that chilly tower,
By the holy St. Patrick, I'll take—A BAD COWLD!"

Miscellaneous.

The Last Penny.

Thomas Claire, a son of St. Crispie, was a clever sort of a man, though not well off in the world. He was industrious, but as his abilities were small, his reward was proportioned thereto. His skill went but little beyond half-soles, heel-taps, and patches. Those who, willing to encourage Thomas, ventured to order from him a new pair of boots or shoes, never repeated the order. That would have been carrying their good wishes for his prosperity rather too far.

As intimated, the income of Thomas Claire was not large. Industrious though he was, the amount earned proved so small, that his frugal wife alone found it insufficient for an adequate supply of the wants of the family, which consisted of her husband, herself, and three children. It cannot be denied, however, that if Thomas had cared less about his pipe and mug of ale, the supply of bread would have been more liberal. But he had to work hard, and must take some little self-indulgence; at least, so he very unwisely argued. The self-indulgence cost from two to three shillings every week, a sum which would have purchased many comforts for the needy family.

The eldest of Claire's children, a girl of ten years of age, had been sickly from her birth. She was a gentle, loving child, the favourite of all the house, and more especially of her father. Little Lizzy would come up into the garret where Claire worked, and sit with him sometimes for hours, talking in a strain that caused him to wonder: and sometimes, when she did not feel as well as usual, lying upon the floor and fixing upon him her large bright eyes for almost as long a period. Lizzy never was so contented as when she was with her father; and he never worked so cheerfully as when she was near him.

Gradually, as month after month went by, Lizzy wasted away. Her cheeks became paler and paler, her eyes larger and brighter, and such a weakness fell upon her slender limbs, that they could with difficulty sustain her weight. She was no longer able to clamber up the steep stairs into the garret or loft where her father worked, yet she was there as often as before. Claire had made for her a little bed, raised a short space from the floor, and here she lay talking to him or looking at him, as of old. He rarely went up or down the stairs without having Lizzy in his arms. Usually her head was lying upon his shoulder.

And thus the time went on; Claire, for all the love he felt for the sick child—for all the regard he entertained for his family—indulging in his beer and tobacco as usual, and thus consuming, weekly, a portion of their little income that would have brought to his children many a comfort. No one but himself had any luxuries. Not even for Lizzy's weak appetite were dainties procured. It was as much as the mother could do, out of the weekly pittance she received, to get enough of coarse food for the table, and cover the nakedness of her family.

To supply the pipe and mug of Claire, from two or three shillings a week were required. This sum he usually retained out of his earnings, and gave the balance, whether large or small, to his frugal wife. No matter what his income happened to be, the amount necessary to obtain these articles was rigidly deducted, and as certainly expended. Without his beer, Claire really imagined that he would not have strength sufficient to go through with his weekly toil—how his wife managed to get along without even her regular cup of good tea, it had never occurred to him to ask—and not to have had a pipe to smoke in the evening, or after each meal, would have been a deprivation beyond his ability to endure. So the two or three shillings went regularly in the old way. When the sixpences and pennies congregated in the shoemakers pocket, his visits to the ale-house were often repeated, and his extra pipe smoked more frequently. But, as his allowance for the week diminished, and it required some searching in the capacious pockets, where they hid themselves away, to find the straggling coins Claire found it necessary to put some check upon his appetite. And so it went on, week after week, and month after month. The beer was drunk and the pipe smoked as usual, while the whole family bent under the weight of poverty that was laid upon them.

Weaker and weaker grew little Lizzy.—From the coarse food that was daily set before her, her weak stomach turned, and she hardly took sufficient nourishment to keep life in her attenuated frame.

'Poor child!' said the mother one morning, 'she cannot live if she doesn't eat.—But coarse bread and potatoes and buttermilk go against her weak stomach. Ah me; if we only had a little that the rich waste.'

'There is a curse in poverty!' replied Claire, with a bitterness that was unusual to him, as he turned his eyes upon his child, who had pushed away the food that had been placed before her, and was looking at it with an expression of disappointment in her wan face. 'A curse in poverty!' he repeated.—' Why should my child die for want of nourishing food, while the children of the rich have every luxury?'

In the mind of Claire, there was suddenly a dead calm. He plodded on from day to day, eating his potatoes and buttermilk, or whatever came before him, and working steadily through the hours allotted to labor, his hopes or fears in life rarely exciting him to an expression of discontent. But he loved Lizzy better than any earthly thing, and to see her turn off with loathing from her coarse food, the best he was able to procure for her, aroused his sluggish nature into rebellion against his lot. But he saw no remedy.

'Can't we get something a little better for Lizzy?' said he, as he pushed his plate aside, his appetite for once gone before his meal was half eaten.

'Not unless you can earn more,' replied the wife. 'Cut and carve and manage as I will, it is as much as I can do to get common food.'

Claire pushed himself back from the table, and without saying a word more, went up to his shop in the garret, and sat down to work. There was a troubled and despondent feeling about his heart. He did not light his pipe as usual, for he had smoked up the last of his tobbacco on the evening before. But he had a penny left, and with that as soon as he had finished mending a pair of boots and taken them home, he meant to get a new supply of the fragrant weed. The boots had only half an hour's work on them. But a few stitches had been taken by the cobbler, when he heard the feeble voice of Lizzy calling to him from the bottom of the stairs. That voice never came unregarded to his ears.—He laid aside his work, and went down for his patient child, and as he took her light form in his arms, and bore her up into his little workshop, he felt that he pressed against his heart the dearest thing to him in life. And with this feeling came the bitter certainty that soon she would pass away and be no more seen. Thomas Claire did not often indulge in external manifestations of feeling, but now, as he held Lizzy in his arms, he bent down his face and kissed her cheek tenderly. A light, like a gleam of sunshine, fell suddenly upon the pale countenance of the child, while a faint and loving smile played about her lips. Her father kissed her again, and then laid her upon the little bed that was always ready for her, and once more resumed his work.

Claire's mind had been awakened from its usual tender quiet. The waste of his failing child aroused it into disturbed activity. Thought beat for a while, like a caged bird, against the bars of necessity, and then fluttered back into panting imbecility.

At last the boots were done, and with his thoughts now more occupied with the supply of tobacco he was to obtain than with anything else, Claire started to take them home. As he walked along he passed a fruit shop, and the thought of Lizzy came into his head.

'If we could afford her some of these nice things!' he said to himself, 'they would be food and medicine both to the dear child. But, (he added with a sigh), we are poor!—we are poor! Such dainties are not for the children of poverty.'

He passed along until he came to the ale-house where he intended to get his pennyworth of tobacco. For the first time a thought of self-denial entered his mind, as he stood by the door, with his hand in his pocket, feeling for his solitary copper.

'This would buy Lizzy an orange,' he said to himself. 'But then,' was quietly added, 'I wont have any tobacco to-day nor to-morrow, for I won't be paid for these boots before Saturday, when Barton will get his wages.'

Then came a long and hesitating pause. There was before the mind of Claire the image of the faint and feeble child with the refreshing orange to her lips; and there was also the image of himself uncheered for two long days by the pipe. But could he for a moment hesitate, if he really loved that sick child? is asked. Yes, he could hesitate, and yet love the little sufferer; for to one of his order of mind and habits of acting and feeling, a self-indulgence like that of his pipe, or a regular draught of beer, becomes so much like second nature, that it is as it were a part of the very life; and to give it up, costs more than a light effort.

The penny was between his fingers, and he took a single step towards the alehouse door; but so vividly came back the image of little Lizzy, then he stooped suddenly. The conflict, even though the spending of a single penny was concerned, now became severe; love for the child pleaded earnestly, and as earnestly pleaded the old habit that seemed as if it would take no denial.

It was his last penny that was between the cobbler's fingers. Had there been two pennies in his pocket, all difficulty would immediately have vanished. Having thought of the orange, he would have bought it with one of them, and supplied his pipe with the other. But, as affairs now stood, he must utterly deny himself, or else deny his child.

For minutes the question was debated.

'I will see as I come back,' said Claire, at last starting on his errand, and thus, for the time, making a sort of compromise. As he walked along, the argument still went on in his mind. The more his thoughts acted in this new channel, the more light came into the cobbler's mind, at all times rather dark and dull. Certain discriminations, never before thought of, were made; and certain superstitions forced themselves upon him.

'What is a pipe of tobacco to a healthy man, compared with an orange to a sick child?' uttered half aloud, marked at last the final conclusion of his mind; and as this was said, the penny which was in his fingers was thrust determinedly into his pocket.

As he returned home, Claire bought the orange, and in the act experienced a new pleasure. By a kind of necessity, he had worked on daily for his family, upon which was expended nearly all his earnings; and the whole matter came up so much as a thing of course, that it was no subject of consideration thought, and produced no emotion of delight or pain. But the giving up of his tobacco for the sake of his little Lizzy, was an act of self-denial entirely out of his ordinary course, and it brought with it its own sweet reward.

When Claire got back to his home, Lizzy was lying at the bottom of the stairs, waiting for his return. He lifted her, as usual, in his arms, and carried her up to his shop. After placing her upon the rude couch he had prepared for her, he sat down upon his bench, and as he looked upon the white, shrunken face of his dear child, and met the fixed, and grave of her large, earnest eye, a more than usual tenderness came over his feelings. Then without a word, he took the orange from his pocket, and gave it into her hand.

Instantly there came over Lizzy's face a deep flush of surprise and pleasure. A smile trembled around her wan lips, and an unusual delight glittered in her eyes. Eagerly she placed the fruit to her mouth and drank its refreshing juice, while every part of her body seemed quivering with a sense of delight.

'Is it good, dear?' at length asked the father, who sat looking on with a new feeling at his heart.

The child did not answer in words; but words could not have expressed her sense of pleasure so eloquently as the smile that lit up and made beautiful every feature of her face.

While the orange was yet at the lips of Lizzy, Mrs. Claire came up into the shop for some purpose.

'An orange!' she exclaimed with surprise. 'Where did that come from?'

'Oh, mother, it is so good!' said the child, taking from her lips the portion that yet remained, and looking at it with a happy face.

'Where in the world did that come from, Thomas?' asked the mother.

'I bought it with my last penny,' replied Claire. 'I thought it would taste nice to her.'

'But you had no tobacco.'

'I'll do without that until to-morrow,' replied Claire.

'It was kind in you to deny yourself for Lizzy's sake.'

This was said in an approving voice, and added another pleasurable emotion to those he was already feeling. The mother sat down, and for a few moments enjoyed the sight of her sick child, as with unabated eagerness, she continued to extract the refreshing juice from the fruit. When she went down stairs, and resumed her household duties, her heart beat more lightly in her bosom than it had beat for a long time.

Not once through the whole day did Claire feel that want of his pipe; for the thought of the orange kept his mind in so pleasant a state, that a more sensual desire like that of a whiff of tobacco had no power over him.

Thinking of the orange, of course, brought other thoughts; and before the day closed, Claire had made a calculation of how much his beer and tobacco money would amount to in a year. The sum astonished him. He paid rent for the little house in which he lived, four pounds sterling a year, which he thought always a large sum. But his beer and tobacco cost nearly seven pounds! He went over and over the calculation a dozen times in doubt of the first estimate, but it always came out the same. Then he began to go over in his mind the many comforts seven pounds per annum would give to his family; and particularly how many little luxuries might be procured for Lizzy, whose delicate appetite turned from the coarse food that was daily set before her.

But to give up the beer and tobacco in toto, when it was thought of seriously, appeared impossible. How could he live without them. On that evening the customer whose boots he had taken home in the morning, called in unexpectedly, and paid for them. Claire retained a sixpence of the money, and gave the balance to his wife. With this sixpence in his pocket he went out for a mug of beer and some tobacco to replenish his pipe. He stayed some time—longer than he usually took for such an errand.

When he came back, he had three oranges in his pockets, and in his hands were two fresh buns and a cup of sweet new milk. No beer had passed his lips, and his pipe was yet unpurchased. He had passed through another long conflict with his old appetites; but love for his child came off, as before, the conqueror.

Lizzy, who drooped about all day, lying down most of her time, never went to sleep early. She was awake as usual, when her father returned. With scarcely less eagerness than she had eaten the orange in the morning, did she now drink the nourishing milk, and eat the sweet buns, while her father sat looking at her, his heart throbbing with inexpressible delight.

From that day the pipe and the mug were thrown aside. It cost a prolonged struggle. But the man conquered the mere animal; and Claire found himself no worse in health. He could work as many hours, with as little fatigue; in fact, he found himself brighter in the morning, and ready to go to his work earlier, by which he was able to increase, at least a shilling or two, his weekly income. Added to the comfort of his family, eight or ten pounds a year produced a great change. But the greatest change was in little Lizzy. For a few weeks, every penny saved from the beer and tobacco, the father regularly expended for the sick child; and it soon became apparent that it was nourishing food, more than medicine, that Lizzy needed. She revived wonderfully, and no long time passed before she could sit up for hours. Her little tongue, too, became free once more, and many an hour of labor did her voice again beguile. And the blessing of better food came also in time to the other children, and to all.

'So much to come from the right spending of a single penny!' said Claire to himself, as he sat and reflected one day. 'Who could have believed it?'

And as it was with the poor cobbler, so it will be with all of us.

There are little matters of self-denial, which, if we had but the true benevolence, justice and resolution to practice, would be the beginning of more important acts of a like nature, that, when performed, would bless not only our families, but others, and be returned upon us in a reward of delight incomparably beyond anything that selfish and sensual indulgences have it in their power to bring.

Mr. Murphy's Speech.

The following is the speech delivered at Toronto, by Mr. Murphy, President of the Hibernian Society, on the 17th inst:

Mr. M. MURPHY, President of the Hibernian Society, then mounted the perch and was loudly cheered. He said they had met that day to perpetuate the memory of Ireland's Patron Saint, and to show their feelings towards their natives. (Loud cheers.) The Society to which they belonged had prospered and progressed favorably during the past year, and they had assisted in establishing Hibernian Societies in many places besides Toronto. (Cheers.) With the able assistance of the clergy, the Hibernian Society had been enabled to do something for the poor in Ireland during the past year, and he was glad to say the movement had been highly successful.—(Cheers.) It was certainly very strange that Ireland, the finest and wealthies country in the world, was always a beggar and asking for help. There must be something wrong in our Government, he said, that this should occur; in his opinion there must be something radically wrong in the tyrannical manner in which the Government was administered in Ireland. (A VOICE—It will always be the way while Britan has the power.) It seemed strange that this should be, while Irishmen occupied, in many instances, the highest positions, and yet they appeared unable to do anything for their native land. They had news from Poland—that the people of that country had got up to demand their freedom from one of the most powerful military nations in the world. They were determined to fight and die for their freedom. They had gone forward to do so, and he was sorry that Ireland stood still while the youth of Poland marched forward to gain their freedom. (Cheers.) He hoped soon to see the day when Irishmen would demand that freedom to which their native land was entitled. (Loud cries of "So they will.") There were at present organizations in Australia, California, New York, and the principal cities of the United States, which were determined to make one grand effort for the freedom of Ireland. (Loud cheers.) Many of these organizations were, he was glad to say, in process of formation for the purpose, and would act in concert with the O'Donoghue in Ireland. He believed that these organizations were a necessity, and they were determined to demand their freedom even if it required the sacrifice of human blood. (Cheers.) If the time had come when it was necessary to sacrifice a million of lives to gain the freedom of Ireland, they would be willing to sacrifice them. (Great cheering.) He hoped soon to see Ireland in a more prosperous state, but he believed they would go home to do what was needed if they were required to contribute towards giving freedom to their native land. He believed that three-fourths of the Irish Roman Catholics on this continent would sacrifice their lives if it was necessary to carry freedom to their fellow-countrymen. There was nothing to resist our Irish bayonet. (Loud and prolonged cheering.) He then went on to say that only where 1,200 or 1,500 Irishmen were collected together in the American army they made their mark. But with the organizations he had spoken of, a thousand men here and a thousand men there, when massed together, no person on earth would dare to refuse them their freedom. (Cheers) He had to thank the members of the Hibernian Society for the excellent manner in which they had conducted themselves that day. The display had been highly creditable to them. (Cheers.) There were men who did not approve of such displays, and there were others who wished the spirit of nationality to die out, but he was glad that the Hibernian Society were determined to keep up the spirit of nationality and by doing so give freedom to their native land. He went with the majority, and that majority considered it was beneficial to keep up the national spirit, and they could never be beat down. (Loud cheers.) Their opponents had stated that it was the intention to carry the Sacred Host through the streets of the city in the procession that day, but there was no truth in it. He would, however, say that if His Lordship the Bishop had thought it necessary that it should be done, it would have been done, as there was no power to deter them. (Great cheers.) They were permitted to do anything within the laws of the country. They were satisfied with the Government of the country, and were willing to abide by the laws. (Cheers.) As there were other speakers, he would now retire."

"I'm sorry, Mr. Wilson, to see this splendid field of potatoes so seriously diseased," said a sympathising spectator. "Ah well, it is a great pity," replied the farmer," but there is one comfort—Jack Thompson's is not a bit better.

A man who was sentenced to be hung was visited by his wife, who said, "My dear, would you like the children to see you executed?" "No," replied he. "That's just like you," said she, "for you never wanted the children to have any enjoyment."

The weather was very fine and very mild.

Flour was at a reduced sale at a reduction of 2s per barrel on the week. Western Canal 22s 6d to 23s. Philadelphia and Baltimore 24s to 25s 6d. Wheat business only of a moderate amount, at a decline of 3d per cental on the week. White and mixed, per 100 lbs., 10s 6d to 12s. Corn business unimportant at a reduction of 9d to 1s on the week. White 30s to 31s.—Mixed 28s 6d to 29s 9d. Yellow 28s to 29s 6d. Sugar continues quiet. Tea—public sales progressing heavily. Coffee—nothing further has taken place.

The Times city article says the proposal of the Washington Government for issuing letters of marque with other indications have revived the impression that a certain portion of the Washington Cabinet was endeavoring to obtain a solution of the existing difficulty forcing on foreign war, so as to enable the breaking up of the Union to be attributed to the overwhelming power of zealous European aristocrats.

This theory alone explains Mr. Seward's determination to insist that the Federal power has met with nothing but success, and that there is actually no Southern insurrection. The same writer points out the total impossibility of conducting any sound business in New York under the violent fluctuations of gold now experienced, and expresses fear, for the movements for the future would be still more rapid and violent.

A grand dejeuner was given at Manchester on the 4th, to honor of Captain Lent, of the George Griswold, and a formal address of thanks was presented to him. Among the toasts drank was one in honor of the New York contributors, proposed by Sir J. K. Shuttleworth, and responded to by Mr. Lord, the American Consul.

In the House of Commons, on the 4th inst., the first important division of the session took place upon the bill to abolish certain declarations as to qualifications for office. The Government supported and the Conservatives opposed the measure, which was carried by 9 majority.

FRANCE.

La France asserts that the cabinet council at St. Cloud had resolved to act diplomatically at St. Petersburg in favor of Poland.

Bourse steady at 70:20.

SPAIN.

The ministerial crisis terminated. Marguis Miraflores is President of the Council and Minister of Foreign Affairs. The Chambers will shortly be re-opened.

POLAND.

Nothing new as to the movements of the insurgents.

The latest letters from Cracoware are favorable to the Poles. Prince Dorurski had been killed whilst cutting his way through some Russians who surrounded him and several refugees.

The appointment of Gen. de Kerg as commander of the Russian troops in Poland is considered indicative of a stern and unrelenting determination to crush the revolt.

In London, influential noblemen and members of Parliament had resolved to memorialize the Lord Mayor to call a meeting to express sympathy with the Poles.

GREAT BRITAIN.

The steamship North American arrived at Londonderry on the morning of the 6th instant.

The Paris correspondent of the London Times quotes a letter from Warsaw stating that the Russian Government fears to send treasure from St. Petersburg to Warsaw, consequent on the frequent insurgent attacks on the railway trains. The Warsaw treasury was empty.

The Paris correspondent of the Times says that the English and French governments have quite agreed as to the tenor of the note to the Russian Government relative to Poland. Both governments speak as earnestly as diplomatic rules allow of their hopes for the fulfilment of the solemn promise made to the Poles, by granting them liberal institutions.

Austria is as emphatic in the same sense, but discreetly says nothing.

The Royal squadron with the Princess Alexandra, arrived at Margate at eleven o'clock on the night of the 5th inst.

Le Nord states that Mr. Slidell had just had an interview with Mr. Drouyn de l'Huys, in the course of which mention was made of Mr. Seward's recent despatch.

Mr. Slidell is said not to have concealed from the French Minister his surprise that Mr. Seward could think the Seceding States were willing to send members to the Washington Congress. It is also reported, says Le Nord, that the Government of Richmond has just contracted at Paris a loan for 60,000,000 francs.

A deputation had waited upon Mr. Adams, in London, and presented him with an address signed by more than 13,500 citizens of Birmingham, sympathising with the slavery policy of President Lincoln.

In the House of Lords, Lord Strathedon's notice in favor of the recognition of the South, whenever France was ready to concur in the movement, had not been brought forward.

The Times strongly condemns the motion, deprecated discussion on the subject, and urged continued strict neutrality.

In the House of Commons a member asked if the Government were informed of the steps preparing for the Confederates in England similar to the Alabama.

Mr. Layard said the attention of the Government had been called to more than one vessel of this kind, but no evidence was yet furnished to enable the Government to interfere. Strict orders have been given for all suspected vessels to be closely watched.

A motion was made by Mr. Fitzgerald for the production of all correspondence relating to the rape and imprisonment, contrary to the Convention, of Mason and Slidell, which was adopted.

It is reported that strong efforts are being made to divert the Galway line to [illegible]

Efforts are being made to have a portion of the tariff of 1861 applied to the assistance of cotton operatives.

The Polish question remained unchanged. It is believed that the Prussian Government had yielded to European pressure in favor of non-interference. There was some quarter less panic and apprehension as to the results likely to come.

The Prussian Chambers had voted, by an overwhelming majority, in favor of neutrality.

It is rumoured that Russia is prepared to grant an amnesty and reforms.

The accounts of the insurrection are most contradictory. According to one statement Langiewicz had beat the Russians after five hours fighting near Malogoscez. Another version claims a victory for the Russians and the flight of Langiewicz and his insurgents. Other insurgent reverses are reported.

Cardinal Antonelli tendered his resignation, owing to the arrest of his attache for political complicity.

It is stated that Gen. Forey made a demand for more men and material for Mexico until that the demand could not be complied with.

A Lyons letter states that the American war not only affected cotton and silk manufactures in France, but other branches of industry were suffering from the same cause.

It is supposed that the Marquis Havana would be minister of war, and Senor Sierra, minister of finance, under Miraflores.

The passport system is abolished in Spain.

A Petersburg telegram says, that serfdom in Russia expired on the 3rd. A Te Deum was sung in all the Russian churches, in celebration of the event; complete tranquility prevailed notwithstanding the alarming rumors that were current.

The Grand Duke Constantine was appointed commander in chief in Poland.

TURKEY.

The Levant Herald announces that a compromise has been brought about on the Montenegro question, upon the understanding that forts should be constructed at the terminal of the military road through Montenegro.

Arrival of the Europa.

Halifax, March 22.—The Royal Mail Steamship Europa, from Liverpool on the 7th at 10 a. m., and Queenstown on the evening of the 8th, arrived here at 11:30 this a. m. en route for Boston.

The Etna, from New York, arrived at Liverpool on the 5th, and the North American on the 7th.

The City of Manchester left Liverpool for New York shortly after the Europa.

The English news is not of great importance, the all absorbing topic being the entry of the Princess Alexandria into London, on the day the Europa sailed.

The preparations were made on an unexampled scale, and a brilliant demonstration would take place.

The Times asserts that during the whole history of London, she has never seen such a day, and the scene of the demonstration in the pride entertained by the nation for the several eminence of the Royal Family, chimed by the virtues of its head.

The comments on American affairs in the journals are unimportant.

A Washington letter in the London Herald, asserts that a secret society has been discovered, the members of which were sworn to kill President Lincoln.

In the House of Commons on the 5th, another debate took place.

Mr. Cobden made a vigorous attack upon the general policy of the Admiralty, in maintaining obsolete vessels, after the valuable experience furnished by American, in favor of iron-plated ships. He denounced the idea of obtaining seamen to man vessels utterly useless for warlike purposes.

Lord C. Paget and Sir John Packington defended their respective administration of admiralty affairs, and finally all the remainder of the navy votes were agreed to.

In the House of Lords on the 6th inst., Earl Hardwick asked if in restoring the way contract it was intended to make any alteration in the ports of destination or departure.

Lord Stanley said there had been no proposals of the kind whatever.

In the House of Commons Mr. Bramley-Moore moved a resolution regretting the disturbance of friendly relations with Brazil, and hoping that the Government will take all honorable means to restore amity. He denounced the proceedings of the British minister at Brazil.

A general debate followed, in the course of which Mr. Layard indicated the diplomatic action of the Government.

The resolution was finally withdrawn.

The king of Belgium has accepted the arbitration between Brazil and England.

The latest Malta despatches say that the fever has entirely left Prince Alfred and he is steadily improving. He would not be able to attend his brother's wedding.

Bishop Colenso declines the suggestion of his brother Bishops that he should resign.

It is stated that the English and French were quite agreed as to the tenor of their notes to Russia regarding Poland. Regret is expressed for the various partitions to which Poland has been the victim, but they are regarded as things of the past and not to be remedied. Both Governments, however, speak as earnestly as diplomacy allows of their hopes for the fulfilment of the promise previously made to the Poles by granting liberal institutions.

FRANCE.

Political news unimportant.

The Paris bourse was dull, rather lower and closed at 69 80c.

SPAIN.

The ministry intends to submit the budget to the Cortes in a modified form.

The Chamber will not be opened before the first of April.

ITALY.

The Pope has refused to accept Cardinal Antonelli's resignation.

The East India and China mail reached Suez on the 6th instant.

The steamer Nemisis struck a rock when entering Point de Galle but got into the harbor safely although leaking.

Shanghai, 26th January.—Preparations are making for the re-organization of the expedition against Nankin.

The French contingent has been defeated at Chunking near Ningpo.

SOUTH AMERICA.

The Brazil mail has been received.—There is nothing [illegible] to the warlike [illegible] of the Anglo-Brazilian [illegible] Christie [illegible] to his [illegible] of quality [illegible].

The Indian Mutiny of the Sepoys [illegible] Nepaul [illegible] in considerable force [illegible].

London, March 7.—The English funds were lively and declining, owing principally to the very serious demand for money and partly to the anticipated early introduction of the Italian loan.

The Europa passed the Ark from New York for Queenstown at 1[illegible] 8th, eight [illegible] Bay [illegible]. The [illegible] Europa has on board 68 passengers for Boston, and [illegible] specie for Halifax.

Latest.

London, March 7.—The event of the day has been the passage of the Princess Alexandra and the Prince of Wales thro' London. The Royal equipage left the Nova early this morning and arrived at Gravesend before noon. The welcome on landing there was enthusiastic and brilliant. The party reached London at 7.30 and proceeded towards the city amid the utmost excitement and enthusiasm, never before equalled in England.

Very Latest.

The Princess Alexandra has arrived safely at Windsor.

Liverpool, March 7th, evening.—Cotton firmer, with an upward tendency, but there is no change in prices.

Breadstuffs quiet and tending downward. Provisions dull and tend downward.

London, March 7th, evening.—Markets all closed, it being a general holiday.

Liverpool, March 7th, a. m.—Wakefield Nash & Co. and others, report flour dull and unchanged at 21s a 22s. Wheat quiet and tendency downward; red winter 8s a 8s 9d; white western 10s a 10s 6d; white southern 10s 9d a 11s 3d. Corn dull, 3d a 6d lower; mixed 28s a 28s 3d; white 29s 6d a 30s 6d. The same authorities report beef quiet, and tending downwards. Pork quiet but steady. Bacon easy. Lard dull, and 2s fewer. Tallow heavy, and 6d lower.

The brokers' circular reports ashes steady; sugar heavy; coffee steady; petroleum Ref, at 1s 3d a 1s 4½ per gallon.

LONDON MARKETS.

Barings' circular reports breadstuffs quiet and quotations barely maintained; sugar has a declining tendency; coffee firm; tea steady; petroleum very dull.

Barings' circular reports a large business in United States stocks, at higher prices, not sustained, however, at the close, when the market was dull.

SERVANT GAL-UM IN FRANCE.—A servant girl named Maria Gagneur appeared before the Tribunal of Correctional Police, on a charge of robbing her mistress. This lady, who appeared as a witness, stated that within the last six months she had successively discharged four servants for misconduct, and could not imagine how girls who had been sent to her from the country with good characters should in a week or two have contracted all the worst habits of Parisian servants, until she at last ascertained that they had all been corrupted by a servant in the employ of a family residing in the same house. It appears that this mischievous person took upon herself to instruct all novices in service. She had even drawn up a set of rules for their guidance, a copy of which was found in possession of the prisoner. After laying down the general principles that servants are quite as good as their employers, and that every servant is entitled to be absent from the house two hours a day between breakfast and dinner, and to have one day to herself every fortnight, this precious instructress gives the following rules of conduct:—Every servant who has any self respect ought—1. To insist on going to market unaccompanied by her mistress; 2. To refuse to debase herself by washing or dry scrubbing; 3. To allow no meddling with her private affairs or dress; 4. To receive whom she pleases in the kitchen; 5. Not to allow her letters to be read; 6. To wear crinoline, a long shawl and bonnet; 7. To demand an increase of wages every three months, never to give a week's notice, but to insist on the same from her employer; 8. To take a fortnight's holidays twice a year to visit her relatives; 9. To leave any family if she does not receive a present after two months' service. The witness added that the prisoner followed the programme to the letter, was frequently absent when wanted, and was guilty of constant peculations in either selling the provisions purchased or charging for more than she had bought.—Several tradespeople gave evidence which fully proved the charge of theft, and the tribunal accordingly sentenced the prisoner to two months' imprisonment.

TELEGRAPH WITHOUT WIRES.—A new system of telegraphing has been discovered which supersedes wires. A correspondent says:—At present it is well known that the electric force does not require a return wire to enable it to complete the necessary magnetic circle, but that if the wires at each end of the circle are sunk into the earth, the wonderful force to which we owe so much, and of which we know so little, finds its way back to the original starting point, however far the distance it may have travelled. The Atlantic wire was single, the ends being sunk in Ireland and Newfoundland respectively, and the force was left to complete its circle by burrowing through the world the best way it could. This new scheme professes to be able to dispense with the wires, by enabling the force to complete its circle solely through the earth, and in its own way, and moreover, it is asserted, that to pass through the water is an advantage instead of the reverse. The instruments here already been tried, and found to work well for moderate distances. Of course, the inexplicable part of the discovery that strikes every one is, how can the message be directed to the proper spot? may not the force, instead of travelling from London to Stirling, just as likely to go off southwards, and quiver some instrument in France or Spain? It does seem very inexplicable; but that is "the secret." The plan must be feasible, for certain very shrewd Manchester men, who are not all likely persons to be fooled, have advanced £10,000 to secure the patents in Europe and America. Should this idea come to fruition, a telegraphic despatch should not cost more than a letter, and the Post-office would be considerably relieved.

THURSDAY, MARCH 26TH, 1863.

THE PUBLIC LANDS.

We have just learned, with surprise and regret, that the Government are about stopping the opening up of the lands in the rear of this and the neighboring County. We hope that there is no good ground for the rumour, though it has reached us from a reliable source. When we read Allan Gilmour's letter to the Commissioner of Crown Lands we were apprehensive that such a plausible statement might have weight in some parts, but never did we think that it would induce the Government to discontinue its operations up here, where so many settlers are constantly going in, and where there is so much good arable land.

Mr. Gilmour and the whole tribe of lumbermen are extremely anxious to keep as much land as possible in its primitive state, or rather they do not wish to see settlements increase.

There never could be a more miserable policy than to harken to such advice as Mr. Gilmour and his brother lumbermen give. Their object is to strip the land of its valuable timber for their personal benefit, but the benefit derived from them by these operations is only incidental and casual, but every family settled on the public domain is a permanent benefit to the locality and country. Emigration is the best and most enduring policy of the Government of the country. Canada above all countries is slow to learn this important lesson. So awake has the American Government always been to this policy that its public lands have been offered to the settler at a nominal price, yea often free. It is of late we have seemed to be aware of our error, and when some progress has been made in opening up roads and throwing open large tracts of country for the intending settler it appears foolish to go back again to our old stand still policy.

We trust the Government before adopting so suicidal a policy to the prosperity of the country will first employ means to test the correctness of Mr. Gilmour's statements as to the fitness of this section of country for settlement. If they do we have no fear of the issue.

According to notice Capt. Smith's Infantry Company met on Thursday evening last, for the election of their Officers.

The Company having assembled, and upon the motion, that Lieutenant Col. Benson be chairman and Mr. Gilbert, Secretary, being seconded, the business of the evening commenced. The following were the gentlemen chosen as officers:—

Lieutenant.....Jas. H. Dixon,
Ensign.....H. C. Rogers,
Color Sergeant.....George McDonald,
1st do .....Alex. Graham,
2nd do .....Edward Benson,
3rd do .....W. H. Wrighton,
1st Corporal.....John McMillan,
2nd do .....Jas. Jeffrey,
3rd do .....John Griffith.

The selection of Officers we think is good and cannot fail to give satisfaction. Other business having been transacted and the Company organized, three hearty cheers were given for the Queen, three for the chairman, three for the Captain, and three for Infantry Company No. 2, when all went away apparently satisfied and well pleased. The meeting was decidedly a success in every respect and one of the most enthusiastic of the kind we ever had the pleasure of attending in this place, it was certainly creditable to our Town to see so many young men met together for so laudable a purpose. We again wish them every success and may prove as they indeed promise to be second to no company in our good Town. We cannot but notice the praiseworthy enthusiasm and zeal exhibited by the young gentleman who acted as Secretary, and to whose energetic exertions in recruiting the company, are in a great measure indebted for their formation. We beg most heartily to congratulate him upon the success which has attended his exertions and of them having a proof of his deserved popularity.

FIRE.—A dwelling house on the farm of Mr. Wm. Lundy, at the Douro Chapel, was burned to the ground on Sunday night last, the 22nd instant. The house was empty at the time, with the exception of a few articles of furniture and about thirty bushels of potatoes which was put in about a week before the occurrence. There was no insurance.

A communication from "Orangeman," is too late for insertion this week, but will appear in next issue. None of the truth in it will lose any of their force from being kept over to that time.

THE Office in Mr. Adam Oliver's Mills, in Ingersoll, lumber merchant, was broken into on the 16th inst., and the safe smashed open with a blacksmith's sledge, and $1,700 taken from the till.

PARLIAMENTARY.

There has been quite a number of Bills brought before the House; some have passed the third reading, others are on the way. We observe a Bill to amend the Division Courts Act, which in some important clauses we disapprobate. It is intended to put the appointment and removal of the Clerk and Bailiff in the hands of the County Councils. Officers of the Division Court are not to be allowed to vote at a Parliamentary or Municipal election. The County Councils will also determine when and how often the Courts shall be holden.

We have not had a peep at the Municipal Bill, but we have seen it stated that it is an excellent measure—that the Solicitor General East deserves credit for the excellent measure he has introduced. On Thursday last, the 19th inst., both Houses rose for the Easter Holidays. The house is to assemble again on the 9th of April.

County Council.

The County Council met in Special Session yesterday afternoon. Proceedings will be given in next week's issue.

Correction.

The Leader in noticing the doings in Peterborough on the 17th instant, says:—"The Orangemen of the surrounding country, to the number of some four or five hundred, assembled in the Town in regalia and all the paraphernalia of the order to prevent the Roman Catholics walking." This is only partly true. The Orangemen were no "regalia," nor had they "paraphernalia" of any sort. They came into Town in perfect shirt sleeves. Never have we seen such a number of men in the Town so poorly dressed; they seemed to wear the dress they work in—not a ribbon or flag, nor emblem of any kind, to denote who they were. Many of them carried guns or muskets, some had swords and clubs as well as pistols. They appeared to have come in to stop the procession, and in this they succeeded. The reason they give for doing so, was, that it was not a St. Patrick's Society but a Ribbon Society. The Leader has drawn upon its own imaginations for the "regalia" part of the affair.

We publish to-day, the speech of Mr. Murphy, President of the Hibernian Society, delivered on St. Patrick's Day, in Toronto. Our readers may form different opinions upon it, but all cannot help remarking that it is one calculated to awake feelings of indignation and disgust, by seeking to arouse feelings of disloyalty in the minds of a quiet and contented people. Whatever ills Ireland may be subject to—and we are free to admit that it has evils to complain of—yet be it remembered that it is both unjust and wicked to attribute all its subjects of complaint, to the form of government, under which it is placed. We might just as well blame our government just now for the hard times we endure, as to say that the ills which afflict Ireland are caused by its being under the British Government. That is one sore and a painful one too, we confess that Ireland endures which one would like to see removed, and that is the system of tithes being exacted for the English Church. This is a burden sorely felt and complained of, and justly too we think, yet who laying claim to the least spark of loyalty, would like this Murphy speak of raising in America 1,000,000 of men to go over and conquer Ireland, or of the organization of Societies all over Canada, for the purpose of raising funds and men for the purpose of emancipating Ireland.

We had hoped this spirit had passed away a generation ago, but we are sorry to see it revived. The just evils of which Ireland complains if represented in an intelligent manner, and sought to be remedied in a constitutional way, the friends of Ireland would find thousands of other nationalities ready with heart and hand to assist them. But when they speak as Mr. Murphy did openly and publicly advocate rebellion and treason, the loyal of every kind will frown it down. Such speeches will do much to keep up the feeling manifested in our midst last St. Patrick's day—which we would rather see allayed. As Canadians we ought to rally together & protest ourselves from a common foe, in place of making enemies of each other.

We have received from the Citizen office a very neat "Directory" of the City of Ottawa, the Capital of our County. It is neatly got up and contains a full reference to names of the inhabitants, the different professions and trades public institutions and a vast of useful information to parties desiring such.

The Citizen has always stood forward in the rank of Journalism. When first published its enterprising proprietor looked forward with confidence to the time when humble "Bytown" st ould be transformed to a City—hence the choice of the designation of his paper. We well remember passing the site before it was thought of as a Town or City, and now it is in advance of some older places, numbering over 15,000 inhabitants, being ahead of Kingston and London The work is the best of its kind we know of, and is a useful book to have at hand, giving as it does a deal of useful business information, of the country around as well as being a directory of the City.

THE Brantford Courier like many of its ilk in Upper Canada, has, since the inauguration of the present Ministry to power, been suddenly converted to the belief in the doctrine of Representation by Population. The chief objection to the "Grit" position of the Cabinet this journal has declared, was their abandonment of this measure—a measure demanded by Upper Canada. In the portraits of the ex-leaders of the late Ministry, painted by this exquisite artist, they are presented as faultless. Mr. Cartier is a "truly excellent man" and John A. is a "distinguished statesman." Now the former is an inveterate enemy to Representation by Population, and when in power, said that Upper Canadians should not have it—that Lower Canada could offset the excess of numbers and wealth of Upper Canada by ensilage. The "distinguished statesman" who runs over with "patriotism," is opposed to Representation by Population! Now we fear that our cotemporary's prejudices somewhat warp his judgment. If the great Grit leader, Geo. Brown, is now tolerable for his "consistency" as Representation by Population, pray how can the Courier be consistent in lauding those enemies to the new doctrine. There is a screw loose somewhere. The fact is, Representation by Population with the Courier is not a principle at all, merely assumed for party purposes.

We have been requested to publish the following resolution and letter, by the Amateur Dramatic Club. The spirit evinced by the Club in offering to assist the Relief Society is worthy of notice, and shows the charitable intentions of the Club, notwithstanding the trouble and loss of time entailed by the such assistance.

At a meeting of the Peterboro' Amateur Dramatic Club held on Wednesday evening March 18th, 1863, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved,—That the Secretary is authorized to publish in the local papers the letter received from the Peterborough Relief Society in reply to the offer made by this Club to give an entertainment in aid of the funds of the Relief Society.

(Copy.)
Peterboro', March 6, 1863.

Sir,—

At a meeting of the "Peterborough Relief Society," held on Wednesday the 4th day of March, the kind offer of the "Peterbrough Amateur Dramatic Club" to give an entertainment in aid of our funds was made known, and being put to the vote it was found that while all were sensible of the generosity of your intentions all were united in declining the same.

I am authorized to convey to your Club the respectful thanks and decision of our Committee, and have the honor to be,

Sir,
Yours faithfully,

Murder Caused by Drink.

A week ago last Saturday a drunken man named Thomas Lynight was killed in a drunken row, at the Commercial Hotel, Elora, by kicks and blows administered by John Bain, the keeper of the Hotel, and his son. The young man effected his escape, but the old drunkard maker is now incarcerated in Guelph Jail, to take his trial at next Assizes, for murder. Will the people of Canada learn wisdom, from the results of the liquor traffic? There is only one radical cure for this great evil, and that may be expressed in two words, namely "Legal Prohibition."

The above we clip from the Woodstock Sentinel. With all due deference to our cotemporary, we beg to correct him. The "only one radical cure" for intemperance is not Legal Prohibition, but total abstinence. If the friends of Temperance would expend the energy they employ in yearly besieging the Legislature with petitions for "Legal Prohibitions" in persuading people to abandon the use of intoxicating drinks, they would do a vast more good. Brother Sentinel you seek others to do what is especially thy work. Acts of Parliament will no more make men sober, than they can make them christians.

THE WEATHER.—March, up the 23rd has been a rough, stormy month. We have never known so long a continuance of rough, wintery weather in March. On Sunday, after the snow storm, the weather began to moderate, and sign of a thaw began. On Tuesday and yesterday we had a deal of rain which is making the snow less and impairing the roads. The season is remarkable—since the sleighing commenced we have had uninterrupted good sleighing, and even now it is passable. We have had neither thaws nor drifts to impede locomotion. The lumbermen have got out their timber, and the farmers have got their work through. Spring will be upon us soon, and if the weather prophet's predictions are correct, farmers should put in all the Spring crop they can, with the assurance if they do their part, that they will receive a good return.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK AND FASHIONS for April is received. It is an excellent number, and well embellished with Spring engravings; besides, a large amount of reading matter, which is very entertaining. The fact of the matter is, that no centre table is complete unless the Lady's Book adorns it; and in whatever family it appears is, refinement and culture is sure to follow. Subscriptions sent and addressed to L. A. Godey, 323 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa., will receive prompt attention.

Town Council.

The Council met on Wednesday morning last, present His worship the Mayor, and Messrs Nicholls, Fry, Ormond, Lawson, Clinton, Dixon and Lundy.

The minutes of the former meeting were read and confirmed.

The Clerk stated that the Returning Officer of the South Ward had returned Wm. Coulter Esq., as duly elected for that Ward.

A communication from A. Young in relation to the Collector for seizing his timber for taxes, was referred to the finance committee.

Several accounts were read and referred to the finance committe.

On motion of Mr. Lawson the following gentlemen were appointed as a Court of Revision, viz., Messrs Ormond, Lundy, Toole, Fry and Jos. Dixon.

A memorial to the Legislative Assembly praying that the Bill before it for limiting the area of Cities and Towns may not become Law, or if it be passed, exempting the Town of Peterboro from its operations, was read and ordered to be engrossed and forwarded to Quebec.

The council then adjourned, sine die.

Rowdyism.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

SIR,—On the night of the 18th inst., a number of rowdies assembled around the house of Mr. Gustus Harper, on the 5th Con. of Douro. After making unearthly noises, and uttering sundry threats, they fired several shots into the house. Mr. Harper was from home at the time, so you may imagine the plight Mrs. Harper and the children were in.

Mr. Harper is one of the most inoffensive men in the Township, and what he has done to displease these ruffians, is impossible to say, but I hope the perpetrators of this outrage may be found out and punished as they deserve.

By giving the above a place in your valuable journal, you will much oblige one of your subscribers.

I have the honor to be,
Yours, &c.,

THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION.

Suffolk, Va., March 17.—A special despatch to the Herald at one o'clock this morning, says two sections of Capt. Davis' 7th Massachusetts battery and the 11th Pennsylvania cavalry were despatched by Major General Peck, under command of Colonel Pray to attack the enemy in his entrenchments on this side of the Blackwater opposite Franklin. We were to make the attack at daylight but owing to the bad condition of the roads it was found impossible to do so until 9 a. m.

The fight lasted for nearly an hour, and was highly spirited in its character. Two separate cavalry charges were made on the intrenchments. These were found to be literally lined with infantry, who poured a deadly fire into our ranks, wounding many in the first charge, which was made by Major Stratton. The Major was wounded in the shoulder; also Lieutenant Moseley in the side of the hip, the latter, it is thought fatally. The second charge was conducted by Major Corney in person, who took his men up and down in front of the fortifications to try and jump the ditch; but the move was soon found to be impracticable.

The enemy opposed a heavy force of infantry and cavalry to the right and left of our position in order to try and outflank us, but with little show of success. The enemy are strongly entrenched behind well constructed breastworks.

Gen. Jenkins, of S. C., is in command of the Confederate forces. Reinforcements are daily being sent to defend and prevent the passage of the Blackwater by the Federal troops. The Confederates are strongly of the opinion that we will soon move from this direction, and are making preparations accordingly. We took some prisoners; among them some wounded ones.

Washington, March 19.—Gen. Burnside leaves to-day for his command.

It is untrue that Gen. Sigel has withdrawn his resignation.

While posting pickets on Tuesday night at Herndon Station, near Drainesville, Major Wells was captured; also three or four privates were captured by the Confederates.

Gold has gone to 400 per cent in Richmond, and transactions are reported there as high as 600 per cent.

Port Royal letters say there is a rumour by the steamer from Fernandina, that the force of 1,000 negroes which ascended St. Mary's river, met with a severe reverse and have probably been captured.

Louisville, Ky., March 18.—A Union Democratic Convention, composed of loyal men of all parties, met to-day. The convention was the largest ever assembled in this State, and composed of the most influential men in Kentucky.

Fort Monro, March 17.—Last night Lieut-Col. Whipple, of the 19th Wisconsin, captured a small boat attempting to run the blockade in the Elizabeth river, near Norfolk. She had about $2,000 worth of contraband goods on board.

The Yorktown Cavalier of March 17 contains the following from Williamsburg: On Wednesday some 30 or 40 of the enemy hired upon our pickets standing in the direction of Richmond. The pickets returned the fire and the enemy beat a retreat.

On Saturday last Gen. Fitz Hugh Lee, with about 2,000 cavalry and two pieces of artillery made a hurried advance upon our lines at Gloucester, but hearing of some reinforcement to our forces at that point they retired as rapidly as they came. It is rumoured that they had gone for reinforcements, but we are ready for them.

Cincinnati, March 22.—The Gazette has additional particulars of the Milton battle. Our forces were commanded by Col. Hall of the 10th Ohio, who, finding that he was being attacked by superior numbers, fell back to a commanding position and sent a courier back to Murfreesboro for reinforcements, promising to hold his ground until they arrived. Part of the Confederate cavalry dismounted and attacked our position with impetuosity, but were repulsed at every point. Section 1st of the Harris battery kept up all the time a most effective fire. The enemy engaged at its execution massed three regiments and charged the battery with hideous yells. The 1st Missouri regiment, which was lying concealed behind the battery, waited until the enemy was within 30 yards when they opened a destructive fire causing them to recoil and finally to retreat in confusion from the field leaving their dead and wounded. Colonel Hall's victory was complete before the reinforcements arrived. Among the Confederate killed was one Colonel, one Captain and three Lieutenants. Our loss was 7 killed and 31 wounded. The battle lasted about four hours.

A special despatch from Paris, Ky., to the Commercial says:—The Confederate Colonel Clue surrounded Mount Sterling, Ky., at two o'clock this morning. Our forces, amounting to 200, fought from the houses for four hours, but were finally compelled to surrender. The Confederates then burned up the town. It is believed that Clue intends to attack Paris to-night.

St. Louis, March 22.—The Republican's Memphis despatch of the 20th says advices from Greenwood to Monday last, are to the effect that the gunboat Chillicothe bombarded Fort Pemberton on Saturday and Sunday, but without decisive result.

The Confederate battery is so situated that it cannot be attacked by a land force on account of high water.

The guns of the Decalb had been taken ashore, and a land battery constructed near the Confederate works.

The Confederate force is estimated at 6,000 under Gen. Loring.

Reinforcements are being rapidly sent to the seat of operations, and it is expected that our fleet will soon be able to reduce all the Confederate fortifications in the Yazoo.

The Vicksburg Whig on the 11th says that the crew of the Indianola, 92 in number, arrived there the day before.

A brakesman, named John Tennahan was killed on the Grand Trunk near Baden on Saturday last, while engaged in coupling the cars.

Rev. Mr. Spurgeon, the sensation preacher of London, is described as a stout man, weighing, say 225 pounds, yet of good height and figure, although very full in the face, clear complexion, dark chesnut hair, and small half whiskers. In some intellectual traits he resembles H. W. Beecher, although less fiery or emotional. There is nothing about him approaching to a ranting style. His voice is powerful, sweet and earnest, filling every one with the thought of his subject. It is always gentle, yet strong and clear, without any apparent effort he is young, not over 32 or 33 years of age; a remarkable reader, and must have studied elocution thoroughly. He is graceful in every gesture, and always preaches without notes. His audiences range from 6,000 to 7,000 persons.

Destructive Fires in Norfolk.

THE COURT HOUSE, MUSIC HALL AND "NORFOLK HOUSE" DESTROYED.

From the Norfolk Reformer, March 19.

About ten o'clock yesterday morning we were alarmed by the cry of "fire!" and upon looking out of our office window we discovered that dense volumes of smoke were issuing from the roof of the court house. On proceeding to the building we found that the upper part of the court house was filling with smoke, and in five minutes it was impossible to remain in the upper story. All efforts were now directed to the saving of the papers in the various offices in the court house. In a remarkably short time the whole of the roof was on fire, and, it being evident that there was no use in trying to save the court house, the crowd turned their attention to the jail, which immediately joined the burning building. The engines were worked with a will, and a line was formed to the well at Sheppard's corner, and a stream of water was kept constantly pouring on various portions of the jail. In the meantime the flames were making rapid progress, and in about an hour from the time of the alarm all that was left of the court house was a heap of burning ruins.

The total loss to the county will probably reach $16,000. There was an insurance on the building for $6,000, in the following companies:—$3,000 in the Liverpool and London; $2,000 in the Gore Mutual; and $1,000 in the Phœnix, of London. The principal portion of the papers were saved, but, of course, some of them will be missing—how many, or of what importance, cannot be told until they are somewhat righted. The prisoners that were in the jail at the time were removed to a place of safety, and are now, we believe, in their cells. The damage done to Mr. Osborne's furniture by its hasty removal will be considerable. We are not aware whether he was insured or not.

Strange to say, not one of the persons whose office was in the court house, with the exception of Mr. Ermatinger, was in town on Wednesday. Mr. Deeder, the Sheriff; Col. Wilson, Clerk of the Peace; his partner, Mr. T. G. Matheson, and Mr. Osborne, jailer, were all absent in Hamilton on some law matters.

* * * * *

Just as the above was in type, another alarm of fire was sounded. The Music Hall on Norfolk street, and adjoining the Norfolk House, was on fire. When first discovered, the smoke was issuing in thick clouds from the side of the building, next to the Norfolk House, and in about ten minutes from the time of the discovery of the fire, the whole structure was enveloped in flames. The destruction of the Norfolk House seemed to be inevitable, and the furniture was removed with all possible speed. The engines were both in a bad state, from the hard usage they had received in the morning. The hose were burst so badly that but a few feet were of any use. By the time that the "Cataract" was got into working order, the Norfolk House had caught, and despite all the efforts that were made to save it, the fire spread rapidly.

The fire was by hard work kept in the main body of the Norfolk House, an almost steady stream of water being kept playing on it.

The origin of the fire is a mystery. It is believed by some that it is the work of an incendiary. Others say that the fire originated from the papers which had been carried from the court house in the morning. The papers in the hall, we are informed, mostly belonged to the office of the Clerk of the Peace. The most important documents, however, happened to be carried to some other place.

The hall was built only a short time since, and its destruction will be a serious loss to the town. It was owned by a joint stock company, so that the loss will not fall on one person. It was valued at $1,500, and was insured in the Phœnix for $1,000.

The Norfolk House is owned by Aquilla Walsh, Esq., M. P. P. The building was worth from $6,000 to $7,000. The damage done will amount to about $4,000. We have not been able to learn positively whether there was any insurance on the building; but we believe there was an insurance in the British American for $3,000.

Mr. Purcell's furniture was all removed, but it was badly damaged by being thrown out of the windows, etc. His loss will be fully covered by an insurance for $1,200 in the Gore Mutual. Mr. Powell will lose considerably on account of the damage done to his furniture, which was not insured.

The Toronto "Leader."

After a seven years' advocacy of corruption and misrule, the Leader, last summer, screwed up its courage to support a Reform government. This was, no doubt, very gratifying, for it showed that the world was making progress. We suppose the Leader had a perfect right to change its tune. When there was no longer any prospect of getting nibblings from Cartier-Macdonald, the Leader, with the sagacity of a rat, deserted the sinking hulk and became body and boots an admirer of Hon. J. S. Macdonald. O course our cotemporary's conduct was regulated by conscientious motives. Just at the time the old government was defeated on the Militia Bill, Lindsey and the Leader discovered that John A. was not a statesman, and Cartier was a political scoundrel. Just at that moment, also, our Toronto cotemporary awakened to the fact that the member for Cornwall was a sort of demi-god. This was a tremendous discovery, and the Leader was the discoverer.

The Leader has lately assumed to itself the right of supreme organship for the Administration. No official intelligence can bear evidence of authenticity unless it first sees light in the columns of the Leader. No appointment can be genuine unless the Leader says so. The Leader is a wonderful paper, and is owned by a wonderful man. Its course in politics might seem more disinterested, if Beaty had not stolen so much money out of the public exchequer.

The policy which the Leader has pursued in connection with the recent Ministerial difficulties at Quebec must be painful to contemplate by every friend of the Government in Canada. By far the most compact phalanx of the Reform party has been held up to contempt and pelted with abusive epithets because they voted against the Separate School Bill. The Clear Grits have been singled out as special objects of hatred and persecution by a journal that has lived for the last eight years on public plunder. The Premier is a patriot, and all the rest of his colleagues are knaves and demagogues, according to the doctrine of the Leader. We beg to inform the self-constituted organ, on what we deem excellent authority, that he does not speak the sentiments of the hon. the Premier in his abuse of the Reform party of Canada. The Grits have always stood firm to their principles, and never—like the Toronto Leader—deserted their party in the hour of misfortune. That they will support an administration which pays the Leader to ridicule them, cannot be expected. Without their support no Reform government can exist a single day, and the "Copperheads"—as the impertinent organ in Toronto is pleased to designate them—constitute three fourths of the members from Upper Canada. It is satisfactory to know, however, that the newspaper which so much the Reform party does not represent the opinions of the Government. Its organship is a sham. It never spoke for a Reform Ministry, and unless it greatly changes its course of conduct for the better, certainly never will. It may be accepted as an axiom that the Leader's advocacy would ruin any Liberal Administration in two weeks. With that paper's black catalogue of crimes—its connection with John and swindles—does anybody imagine that its reputation did not long ago sink in the contempt of the people of Upper Canada?

We call upon the Government to investigate the York Roads. That transaction—we hesitate not to say—was one of the blackest pieces of robbery in the page of John A. Macdonald's history. For a consideration of a $100,000 of road money, the Leader defended every dishonest operation of the worst administration Canada ever saw. Will not a Liberal Government bring to daylight the disreputable affair, and stop the impudent pulling of this excrescence of corruption? Let Beaty pay the Government what he owes, and replace what he has stolen, before he dares to abuse the great Reform party of Canada.—Hamilton Evening Times.

Copperhead Principles.

The Copperheads are doing all in their power to convince the people that the war will prove our financial ruin, that we are to be crushed by taxation, that there soon will be a general smash-up, and that the funds will be a general repudiation of the war-debt. With them, the wish is father to the thought. They don't, however, object to make large sums of money out of the Government, whenever they can get a chance, even though the people are to be heavily taxed to pay their bills. They will steal from the pockets of the people extra mileage for their services in Congress. They will take contracts to supply the army with everything, from a tin cup to a pair of boots, from a drove of broken-winded and sparined horses to a cargo of musty wheat sour flour—or, as a "special favor," they will lease a steam-boat, earning nothing, for a thousand dollars per day. They will do all these things, and more, without a thought of being called inconsistent.

These Northern rebels know very well that Jeff Davis, and the whole infamous crew of conspirators which support him, are the sole cause of all the mischief they talk about, the sole cause of the immense war-debt now piling up, the sole cause of all the commercial and financial disturbances which now exist—embarrassing alike our own country and all the nations of Europe. Who fired the first gun at our national flag—at our beloved Stars and Stripes? Where did the plottings commence for the overthrow of our beneficent Government? Answer, ye Copperheads? No, no. Let us hear from them no more whinings about financial troubles. Let them dry up the crocodile tears, and speak up their minds that when they talk repudiation they talk treason. The loyal North will pay the war-debt to the last dollar, though it may cost our entire property. The Copperheads know very well that this statement is truth.

Educational Column.

"Knowledge is Power."

Arrangements have been made, through the courtesy and liberality of the proprietor of the Examiner, to devote this column, hereafter, to the interests of Education, generally, and of Teachers in particular. It will be under the management of experienced and competent parties, who must be held responsible for what may appear in it from time to time. It will be the aim of the conductors to make the contents of the column as varied, and interesting, and as practical and profitable as possible.

Letters on Educational matters, &c., must be addressed: "Educational Column," Box 326, Peterborough.

Letters to receive attention must be, invariably, post-paid.

Teachers' County Convention.

On Saturday next, 28th inst., the second Quarterly Meeting of the Peterborough Teachers' Convention will be held in the Peterborough Grammar and Union School building, commencing at 11 a. m. Teachers and other friends of Education are warmly invited to attend.

Peterborough, 24th March, 1863.

We would earnestly, but respectfully call the attention of teachers and other friends of Education to the above notice. To teachers, especially, it is an important notice. It shows that an attempt is being made by some to elevate their profession and advance their interests. It is to be hoped, therefore, they will show their appreciation of these efforts in some tangible manner—by attending the next meeting, and actively co-operating with those who have "begun the good work." There is no doubt some who may find objections to prevent them from attending; but however strong these objections may be to their own opinions, they may depend upon it they are, when sifted, weak and unworthy of attention. For instance, a teacher may think he cannot learn anything from those who compose the Convention, and therefore it is a waste of time for him to attend. This indeed may be true, but he should remember that such a view of things is an extremely selfish one, and one unworthy of an honest, faithful teacher. If he cannot learn anything he might be able to impart something to others less favored than himself. If he can it is his duty to do it. Besides, after all, might there not be others there just as well informed as himself—if not better? If so his excuse is flimsy as it possibly can be. Another may say, I am busy, it will make no difference about my attending, nobody will miss me; I have no influence, &c.

The reason of this one is just as bad as that of the former. He will be missed, every teacher who is absent will be missed. If he has no influence and thinks so poorly of himself, it seems to us, that he is but poorly qualified to discharge the duties which he has assumed. A teacher should have some influence, and that influence should make a permanent impression upon those with whom he daily comes in contact. Moreover, if every teacher were to say the same thing, there would be no Convention at all; and the ends it contemplated would never be agitated, and hence never consummated. In fact it will be found that wherever "there is a will there is a way." It will be found also that the contrary is just as true.

One thing is certain if teachers did not take advantage of this chance to improve their Status in society, and their interests generally, they must blame themselves hereafter, if they are moved about from "pillar to post" and get such miserable salaries that without a little exaggeration, they be looked upon as "working for nothing and boarding themselves". If teachers want the public to respect and value them, they must first begin to respect and value themselves. They must take the initiative, they must set the example. This is the way other professions have obtained their present standing. Why cannot, why will not teachers take a lesson from them in this respect. The other benefits to teachers derivable from such Conventions as the proposed one, are of the most important nature. We need not enumerate them.

The advantages resulting from a mutual interchange of thought and sympathy, are not among the least.

We hope there will be a number of other friends of education present. It is the benefit of all to have the interests of education advanced. In no way can this better be done by people than by their employing good teachers,—giving them all the aid, sympathy and support in their power. We know of no more efficient plan of accomplishing this later object than by giving their presence at meetings such as that it is purposed to hold on Saturday next.

John A. Macdonald.

With much pleasure we learn that the Imperial Government, with much good taste and commendable consideration, offered to the Hon. John A. Macdonald, when he was in England, the Governorship of the Australian Colonies. The generous and honorable offer was, however, respectfully declined, upon the ground that a sense of duty to Canada as a statesman, forbade his withdrawal from her political field at the present juncture of affairs. It is his belief that the Province really needs his services very much just now, when Grit mismanagement threatens our ruin, and he nobly and promptly submitted to the pecuniary self denial, of refusing the splendid offer; and returned to the onerous duties of leader of the Opposition. The patriotism of the member for Kingston, must be admired even by his political opponents, and he will receive the gratitude of his party. His presence was indeed much needed by the Opposition; and his return was hailed with great enthusiasm. This distinguished statesman is now fairly engaged in the contest, and is marshalling his forces for those onslaughts upon the Grits, which will shortly hurl them from office.—Brantford Courier.

OUR CHANGEABLE CLIMATE.—People should guard against our changeable climate; it is as liable to vapour, that a little more or indeed. To-day, the mercury hunters at 90 and upwards; to-morrow you shake and shiver for the want of the overcoat you have bartered off to the old ale, man. To avoid colds and to cure all diseases of the lungs, get a box of Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers; only 25 cents, sold at all druggists.

Disloyal Hibernians.

We have a few words to say about the speech of Mr. Michael Murphy on St. Patrick's day. There are some people, we hear, angry about the disloyal sentiments he uttered, and who think that means ought to be adopted to prevent a repetition of such sentiments in future. Others, more charitably disposed, incline to the belief that the President of the Hibernians had become excited by thinking too deeply and fervently of the virtues of the Patron Saint of the Green Isle. We cannot agree with either party.

The clearness with which Mr. Murphy expressed the hopes and aspirations of the class which he represents, leaves us no doubt of his clearness of apprehension. The approbation bestowed upon him by the clergy, and the benediction subsequently pronounced by the Bishop upon the crowd who applauded him, confirm our belief. Difficult as it may be for the loyal citizens of Toronto to understand that men, claiming to be possessed of common sense, can either utter such nonsense or listen to it in patience, all we can say is, the fact remains.

The truth is this. The sentiments expressed on St. Patrick's day are neither new nor uncommon. It is simply because they happened to be published in a newspaper read by others than Irish Roman Catholics, that they have attracted attention. Very few Protestants ever see the True Witness the Catholic Freeman, or the Toronto Mirror. But if they were under the same necessity of reading them as we are—from which affliction may they long be spared—they would soon learn to take such trash as that talked by Mr. Murphy as a matter of course. It means nothing. It is utterly and absolutely devoid of the least tincture of the practical. It is mere bombast, "buncombe," smoke! It's a way the disloyal Hibernians have of easing their minds now and again. Very, very seldom indeed does it get elevated into the dignity of action.

The British Government have had great experience in dealing with men of the Murphy-ite order. Before it learned wisdom it used to prosecute and punish from the treasonable talk. But the worst of it was, that the demagogues who were so prosecuted, generally emerged from the ordeal, not felons, but martyrs, and were followed by a host of imitators as like each other as potatoes. And not only did they gain the sympathy of their fellow-subjects and co-religionists, but many Protestants thought—and sometimes with justice—that it was beneath the dignity of the State to interfere with these misled men. A different policy has, therefore, been adopted, and the success which has attended it is most encouraging. They are now permitted to talk treason when they like, how they like, and whenever they like, so long as they do not commit treason. They may invoke the aid of Louis Napoleon, they may threaten the English people with the sword of Marshall O'Donnell or of Mr. Thomas Meagher, they may call the British Government by the ugliest terms they can "lay their tongues to," they may denounce till they are breathless as the Anglo-Saxon—"the premier blackguard of the world,"—just as long as ever they please; nobody now thinks of interfering with them. In fact, the nearer the more extravagant they are, the better; first, because they seldom become dangerous so long as they are allowed to talk treason; and secondly, because the very liberty allowed shows proves the absurdity of their complaints. If such men were in Paris or in Rome, in Vienna or in Madrid, or in any other "Catholic and Apostolic Capital," they would speedily be walked off to some dark and dismal dungeon, deprived alike of the society of their friends and spiritual consolations of their ghostly advisers. Their domestic relations are undisturbed, and they may go and get blessed by their Bishop, after talking their treasonable nonsense, as often as they like. By pursuing this tolerant course toward them, a most ludicrous aspect is given to their whole proceedings. The position in which they are placed is that of men who, while actively endeavoring to make out a case, are practically doing their utmost to disprove it. What better can a Government desire? It is a far wiser plan than that of screwing down the safety valve, and waiting till the boiler bursts.

But we may be told that where there is so much smoke, there must be fire—and what if the flames break out? Why, then, the British Government have the sympathies of the nation in their efforts to extinguish them. The utter unjustifiableness of rebellion is so apparent, that there is no latent suspicion that the rebels may have justice on their side. But there is no danger, under the liberal "free-trade" system, as we may denominate it, of the apprehended conflagration. Whenever it is planned, there is always some Murphy to give a hint.

We should be very sorry if our remarks conveyed the idea that the mass of the Irish Catholics, either at home or in Canada, are ill-disposed to the Crown. That would be a mistake. But that there is a section which would rebel if it dared, none will gainsay. It is in the power of the priesthood to remove this blot from the escutcheon of the empire if they think fit. Unfortunately, for their own ends, they appear to cherish the growth and increase of that party which desires to perpetuate national distinctions. Especially to be deplored is it that this should be the case in Canada. We must, however, accept the fact, and by assiduously keeping before us the example set at home, deprive our enemies of the least real ground of just complaint. By that means their power must be lessened, if not completely broken, and in time, let us hope, they will come to see the error of their ways. —Globe.

Flax Culture.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

DEAR SIR,—Permit me, through the columns of your paper, to make a few remarks on the culture of flax in Canada, both East and West.

The scarcity and high price of cotton have called the attention of agriculturists to the cultivation of this valuable plant in many countries where it has never been grown before. In the London Times, a short time ago, the attention of the farmers in England was called to the importance of its cultivation. In California, also, it is highly recommended, as a profitable crop. In a paper, a few days ago, the farmers in the Northern States are reminded of its importance.

In Ireland, where it is so extensively cultivated, the manufacturers have subscribed large sums of money to send competent agents to India to give instructions in its cultivation there. Large quantities of seed and machinery for preparing it for market, have also been sent by them. Why, then, should not the Canadian farmer turn his attention also to the cultivation of flax, with soil and climate so admirably adapted to its growth? A most successful trial has already been made in Western Canada, in the County of Waterloo, among a number of industrious and thrifty Dutch farmers who have been encouraged by a very enterprising firm, the Messrs. Petrie, Bros. & Co., who have not only erected scutching mills, but opened a market in various parts of the country for both seed and fibre, and are at present putting up a large manufactory for spinning and weaving, thereby converting the raw material into the manufactured goods ready for the consumer, at the same time giving employment to a large number of mechanics and the working classes. We should also have our oil mills for converting the seed into linseed oil, and oil cakes for feeding cattle. Upwards of twenty thousand bushels of surplus seed reached Montreal last season, the bulk of which was supplied from Upper Canada.

For the information of those who have not given it their attention, I may add that the quantity of seed required for the acre is about two bushels, and the average yield in harvest sixteen bushels. The average quantity of fibre, when scutched and ready for market, is 500 lbs., which is worth $12 per 100 lbs., netting the farmer some $60 more than he can realize by any other crop, especially wheat, which is failing rapidly in quantity to the acre of late years, and at present is at a very low price. This new and profitable branch of Canadian industry should, then, be taken up by the Canadian farmer. Why not try it?

Your obedient servant,
JOHN A. DONALDSON.
Quebec, 12th March, 1863.

George Brown in Parliament.

(From the Brantford Courier.)

All that the Government could do did not prevent this gentleman's return for South Oxford. The contest was pretty sharp, and the convention man was thrown overboard. We are glad of this part of the affair at any rate, for these conventions are Yankee "institutions," which should be totally abandoned. We are sorry that Conservatives took any part in the election, for they have nothing whatever in common with these men, and they must soon be disgusted with their new member. We may expect, however, from Mr. Brown that he will retain so much of respectability as to be consistent relative to Representation by Population. Thus far he has not proven himself a humbug at any rate, although he somewhat compromised the thing in the matter of "some joint authority." If he catches the bait which these unprincipled men now in power hold out before him, no man of any shade in politics can ever afterwards place the smallest degree of confidence in him. We cannot think he will act so meanly. Time will tell.

Useful Receipts.

TO FRY TOMATOES.—Slice them, season with pepper and salt, and fry in hot butter; if they are green, dip them in flour after being seasoned. To Cure Rheumatism—Bathe the parts affected freely with "Canadian Pain Destroyer," (to be had at any Druggists.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—A melancholy event occurred at the Ormond mills, Woodstock, on Tuesday morning last, by which an industrious, sober, and trustworthy man named William Dunn was killed, leaving a wife and four children to mourn his loss. The deceased was employed by Messrs. Eaton & Wood, as a miller, and about 7 o'clock in the morning he went up to the upper flat of the mill, as was his usual custom, to oil the machinery. His long absence began fears that something had happened to him, and Mr Hall, one of the workmen, went up through the mill, and found deceased suspended by his clothes from a horizontal shaft, which was in motion. In the act of oiling the coupling of the shaft, it appears that the key of the coupling had caught the vest of the deceased, and whirled him round with the shaft, his head striking a beam about 18 inches from the shaft. It is not known how often he revolved with the shaft, but when found he was suspended by his clothes and his arms extending along the shaft. Deceased must have been in that position upwards of half-an-hour, but doubtless the first revolution of the shaft after he was caught caused instant death. An inquest was held by Dr. Wm. Scott, coroner, on view of the body, and the jury rendered a verdict in accordance with the above facts.—Woodstock Sentinel.

ROBBERY OF ADAMS' EXPRESS.—The safe of the Adams' Express Company was robbed on Wednesday night between Baltimore and Harrisburg. It contained various sums of money in currency and gold, a large number of United States certificates of indebtedness, United States five-twenty bonds, and checks of the United States Treasurer on the Assistant Treasurer of New York payable to the order of the Adams' Express Company. A reward of five thousand dollars is offered by the Company. The amount taken is said to by nearly $80,000.

A FATAL HABIT.—The habit referred to is not vicious in itself, but it leads to vice, creeping upon its victim with a fatal facility, the penalty of which many a fine heart has paid at the scaffold. It is the habit of irresolution. The idler, the spendthrift, the epicurean, and the drunkard, are among its victims. Perhaps in the latter its effects appear in the most hideous form.—He knows, for the example of thousands has painted it in glaring colors, that it will deaden all his faculties, take the strength from his limbs and the happiness from his heart, oppress him with disease, and hurry his progress to a dishonored grave, yet he drains it. How beautiful, on the contrary is the power of resolution, enabling the one who possesses it to pass through perils and dangers, trials and temptations. Avoid then the contraction of the habit of irresolution. Strive against it to the end.

But ere he had sounded a note,
He fell from the limb—a dead bird was him—
The music had friz in his throat!

☞In the south of France a harvest of two and a half millions of pounds weight of flower leaves is gathered every year, and sold for about a quarter of a million pounds sterling. It consists of 100,000 pounds of leaves of the orange blossom, 500,000 pounds of rose leaves, 100,000 pounds of jasmine blooms, 60,000 pounds of violets, 65,000 pounds of acacia buds, 30,000 pounds tuberoses, and 5,000 pounds of jonquil flowers.

When the chill winds blow, and the blinding snow sends the blood eglow—below zero, wherever you go, at home or no, whether or no, you will or no the shiver will go from head to toe, the cold toe, the frozen toe with the goat you know; and the pain doth grow, and the throbbing flow of the veins below swell the poor old toe, with the corns, and O, you'd like to know where you could go, to friend or foe, and get relief for your suffering toe.

What the Breaking of an Egg led to.

A young couple had passed the first few weeks of their marriage at the house of a friend. Having at length completed their new house, they were taking their first breakfast, when the following scene took place:

The young husband was tenderly opening a boiled egg in an egg-cup. The bride observed that he was breaking the shell at what she thought the wrong end.—"How strange it looks," said she, "to see you break your egg at the small end, my dear! No one else does so; and it looks so odd."

"Oh, I think it is quite as good, in fact better than breaking it at the large end, my love; for when you break the large end the egg runs over the top," replied the husband.

"But it looks very odd when no one else does so," rejoined the wife.

"Well, now, I really do think it is not a nice way you have got of eating an egg. Thus dipping strips of bread and butter into an egg certainly is not tidy. But I do not object to your doing as you please, if you will let me break my egg at the small end," retorted the husband.

"I am sure my way is not quite as bad as eating fruit-pie with a knife, as you do, instead of using a fork; and you always eat the syrup, as if you were not accustomed to have such things. You really do not see how very bad it looks, or I am sure you would not do so," added the wife.

"The syrup is made to be eaten with the pie; and why should I send it away on the plate?" asked the husband.

"No well-bred persons ever clear their plates as if they were starved," said the bride with a contemptuous cast of her head.

"Well then, I am not a well-bred person," replied the husband angrily.

"But you must be, if we are to live comfortably together," was the sharp answer of the fastidious lady.

"Well I must break my egg at the small end, as it does not signify; and I must also eat the syrup."

"Then I will not have either fruit-pie or eggs at the table."

"But I will have them," petulantly exclaimed the husband.

"Then I wish I had not been married to you," cried the young wife, bursting into tears.

"And so do I," added the now incensed husband, as he rose and walked out of the room.

This domestic quarrel was followed by others equally trifling in their origin, and disgraceful in their character, until the silly couple made themselves so disagreeable to each other that their home became unendurable, and they separated.—Am. Paper.

TALE OF AN ELEPHANT.—"Tell my grandchildren," said the late Right Rev. Daniel Wilson, writing home from India, "that an elephant here had a disease in his eyes. For three days he had been completely blind. His owner, an engineer officer, asked my dear Dr. Webb if he could do anything to relieve the poor animal. The doctor said he would try nitrate of silver, which was a remedy commonly applied to similar diseases of the human eye. The huge animal was ordered to lie down, and at first, on the application of the remedy, raised a most extraordinary roar at the acute pain which it occasioned. The effect, however, was wonderful. The eye was in a manner, restored, and the animal could see. The next day, when he was brought, and heard the doctor's voice, he lay down of himself, placed his enormous dead on one side, curled up his trunk, drew in his breath just like a man about to endure an operation, gave a sign of relief when it was over, and then, by trunk, and gestures, evidently wished to express his gratitude. What sagacity! What a lesson to us of patience!"

WISHING TO OBTAIN
FARMS IN UPPER CANADA.

THE CANADIAN
Land & Emigration Co'y, Limited,

OF LONDON, ENGLAND,
Capital, £250,000 Stg.

THE HON. MR. JUSTICE HALIBURTON, Chairman, offer for sale

250,000 Acres
OF LAND IN THE
COUNTIES OF PETERBORO & VICTORIA
consisting of parts of the
Townships of DYSART, DUDLEY, LONGFORD, GUILFORD, HARCOURT, HARBURN, BRUTON, HAVELOCK, &c., &c.

The following are some, among many other inducements held out to parties to be engaged to take up lands in the above Townships:

Ten per cent of the purchase money paid to Government by the Company for these lands will be expended in constructing really good roads: these roads will be additional to the Government Roads; namely, the Lake Shore, Victoria Burleigh and Peterboro Roads, at convenient points, and will converge to various Town plots which the Company have in view to lay out in very carefully selected sites. The Town Plots will, it is anticipated,—the whole of them being connected by good roads (for the construction of which the country affords excellent facilities),—become each the centre of a new and flourishing settlement; private enterprise in establishing Stores, Mills, &c., will here soon find its reward, and the several towns and townships being as it were knit together by good roads, will derive from that fact great advantages and mutual support.

In addition, the watchful supervision of the Company over every part of their lands will greatly tend to advance the interests of this district, which, being in the middle of Upper Canada, possessing a fertile soil, and a climate unsurpassed in its healthful effects upon the human frame, offers superior attractions, and all the elements of rapid progress and permanent prosperity.

THE MAGIC THE OBSERVER!

The Perfection of Mechanism.

BEING A HUNTING AND OPEN FACE, Lady or Gentleman's Watch combined. One of the prettiest, most convenient, and decidedly the best and cheapest timepieces for general and reliable use ever offered. It has within it and connected with its machinery, its own winding attachment, rendering a key entirely unnecessary. The cases of this Watch are composed of two metals, the outer one being fine 16 carrot gold. It has the improved ruby action lever movement, and is warranted an accurate timepiece. Price, superbly engraved, per case of 6 half dozen, $204.00. Sample Watches, in neat morocco boxes, for those proposing to buy at wholesale, $35, sent by express with bill payable on delivery. Soldiers must remit payment in advance, as we cannot collect from those in the army. Address

EMPLOYMENT.

THE Undersigned has, for several years past, been engaged in the business, which has yielded him at the rate of three thousand dollars per annum, and is now willing to teach it to others. The field is of wide, and almost general character, adapted both to cities and villages, and one that any person of ordinary common sense, young or old, male or female, can acquire with little trouble, and by which they can secure a very handsome income. Several young ladies who have received instructions from me, both in New York State and Pennsylvania, are earning upwards of $15 per week by it, and there is no reason why any one else cannot do the same. Investigation, you will find, is all I ask in pedaling off a secret of business, and sell for 26 cents a box; 6 boxes for $1.

Every society, advantage and facility which prudence or liberality can suggest, are offered by this Company. The rates, which are founded on the higher interest obtainable in this country than in Great Britain, are lower than those of British Offices.

Tables of Rates for any form of Life Assurance may be obtained on application.

The Company has also in all its principal Towns throughout Canada, and a correspondent in London (England) authorised to accept premiums when that may be convenient to the assured.

Every information may be obtained at the Head Office, in Hamilton, C. W., or at any of the Agencies.

ANNUAL MEETING
INVESTIGATION REPORT - DECLARATION OF BONUS.

THE seventy-sixth annual Meeting of this Company was held within the Royal Hotel, Aberdeen on Friday, the 10th April.

Alexander Stronach, Esq., of Drumallan, Chairman of the Ordinary Directors, in the Chair.

There were submitted to the meeting—

1.—Report by the Directors, which, on the motion of the Chairman, was cordially and unanimously approved of and adopted.

2.—The Balance Sheet for the past year, with detailed states relative thereto, duly certified as correct, in terms of the Act of Incorporation, by the Chairman and Manager, and also by the Auditor.

There was also laid on the Table the various Valuation States in connection with the Quinquennial Investigation into the state of the Company's affairs, as at 31st January, 1863.

The following particulars derived from the Balance Sheet and States before-mentioned, show the result of the operations of the Company for the past year:—

Amount proposed for Life Assurances during the year, contained in 1189 Proposal	£454,835 0 0
Amount of Proposals accepted, and for which 961 Policies were issued	350,626 0 0
ANNUAL PREMIUMS or said Policies	11,170 1 0
CLAIMS BY DEATH including BONUSES on PARTICIPAT ON POLICIES, and after deducting Sums recovered from other Offices under guarantees	22,990 1 0
TOTAL SUM Assured under 4,760 current LIFE POLICIES	1,955,95 0 0
TOTAL ACCUMULATED FUNDS	373,563 3 2
TOTAL ANNUAL REVENUE	96,756 4 4

With reference to the recent investigation into the state of the Company's affairs, as at 31st January last, the Report States that both the principles of valuation and the details thereof had been submitted to James John Downes, Esq., Actuary to the Economic Life Office in London, a gentleman well known as one of the highest authorities on such subjects in the kingdom, and had received his entire approval, as having been made on just and sound principles, and accurately carried out as certified in his report to the Directors, which formed part of the Appendix to their Report. This step the Directors considered could not fail to give the utmost confidence—both to the shareholders and the Policyholders—in the soundness and correctness of the valuation.

During the Quinquennial period, the claims by death, including the bonus additions which had been paid, and which had been considerably under the number that might have been expected from the Mortality Tables on which the Office rates are based, amounting to £262,975 6s 6d.

In valuing the Policies, each had been separately calculated, and next premiums had only been used, thus leaving a surplus of annual revenue of £11,427 16s 7d., to meet future expenses and to form a source of profit for next investigation. The total amount of claims by death paid since the commencement of the Company, was £317,821 4s.

The Securities held by the Company were in a satisfactory position, and had been recently carefully scrutinised in detail by the Directors.

In conclusion, the Directors congratulated both the Proprietors and the Assured on the high position which the Company now occupied in the estimation of the public, and on the encouraging prospect of its business operations for the future.

DECLARATION OF BONUS.

From the profits realised on the Life business, a retrospective Bonus of £1 1s 6d per cent per annum for the Quinquennial period was declared, on the sums originally assured under all Participating Policies, increased by the previous additions thereto; also a further prospective Bonus of £1 per cent per annum, on the amount of the Policies with said Bonuses, on all such of said Policies as may become claims by Death previously to the 31st January, 1867.

It will be observed, that this rate of Bonus is equivalent in the case of our older Policies to £1 14s per cent per annum on the original sums assured; that the total additions to the sum assured, now vested, are equal to 32 per cent on the sum assured: and that as the younger ages the additions amount to upwards of 70 per cent of the premiums paid.

Statement showing the Progress of the Company's Business during the Quinquennial Period, ending 31st January, 1862:

Year ending 31st January.	Amounts proposed for Assurance.	Amount of New Policies Issued.	No. of Policies Issued.	No. of Persons Assured.	New Annual Premiums.	Total Revenue in each year.	Accumulated Funds.
1858	£169,840	£136,180	435	398	£3 890 18 0	£60,708 11 10	£240,586 9 2
1859	206,305	169,171	540	477	5,492 1 6	65,701 5 5	307,434 3 4

MARGARETTA.

WORDS BY MORRIS—MUSIC BY BALFE.

When I was in my teens,
I loved dear Margaretta:
I know not what it mean's,
I cannot now forget her!
That vision of the past
My head is ever craning;
Yet, when I saw her last,
I could not speak for gazing!
Oh, lingering bud of May!
Dear as when first I met her;
Worn in my heart alway,
Life-cherished Margaretta!

We parted near the stile,
As morn was faintly breaking:
For many a weary mile
Oh how my heart was aching!
But distance time and change,
Have lost me Margaretta;
And yet 'tis sadly strange
That I cannot forget her!
O queen of rural maids—
My dark-eyed Margaretta—
The heart the mind upbraids
That struggles to forget her!

My love, I know, will seem
A wayward, boyish folly;
But ah! it was a dream
Most sweet—most melancholy.
Were mine the world's domain,
To me 'twere fortune better
To be a boy again,
And dream of Margaretta.
Oh! in memory of the past,
Why linger to regret her?
My first love was my last!
And that is Margaretta!

Miscellaneous.

A boy that will never be a man.

In New York, as elsewhere, it is becoming quite customary to send home articles purchased at the stores; some "stuck up" people have even a spool of thread sent home. Happening to be in a book store this morning, we saw a lady purchasing some books for her son, who was with her—for Christmas presents probably. When put up they made a package about ten inches long five inches high, and six wide. She ordered them to be sent home to her residence, about 3½ miles up town The bookseller said to her boy: "Can't you take them up to the cars with you, my man? my porter is sick to-day, and it is quite inconvenient for me to send them so far home." "No! I don't carry bundles for a living." We pitied that boy from our heart, and could not but feel that his mother was spoiling him by indulging him in such notions. Here was a boy 13 or 14 years old, who could not, or rather would not, carry a bundle of books for himself, that was not at all bulky, and weighed perhaps, only five or six pounds. He was above "carrying bundles"—rather he was below it. He had not dignity or independence enough to be seen with a bundle, though it was for himself. He probably does not read the newspapers of the day, and so we cannot speak to him directly, but to other boys we say, that if that boy lives to be forty years old, he will never be a man, in the true sense of the word. His parents may leave him money enough to keep a long while, but he will never earn or save much. He is coming up with habits that will unfit him for the real work which all successful men must go through with, no matter what their calling or business. Two good illustrations are given in the life of Girard, of Philadelphia, who rose from poverty to great wealth. While in a provision store, a man came in and bought a fish. Instead of carrying the fish himself, he offered the clerk a shilling to hire some one to carry the fish a few blocks. Girard at once offered to do it, and actually went by his side carrying the fish, and received the shilling. You may guess the man's surprise when he afterwards learned who had carried his fish. Girard owned the entire block in which this man hired a dwelling. At another time, two young men commenced the sail-making business. They bought a lot of canvass from Girard, on credit, a friend having agreed to endorse their note. They each took up a roll to carry off, when Girard remarked: "Had you not better get a cart?" "Oh, no," they responded, "it is not far, and we can carry it ourselves." "All right," said Girard, "but you may tell you. friend he need not trouble himself to endorse your note it's good enough without!" He well knew that men not above their business, not ashamed to do an honourable act, were the very men to succeed.

—A Revolting case of cruelty to a house servant is reported in a recent London paper. A Mrs. Thomas widow, of excellent connexions, and described by the counsel for the defense as having brought up a family of nine children "in the paths of honesty and virtue," was tried for unlawfully and maliciously doing grievous bodily harm to a servant girl of seventeen years, in her employ. It appeared in evidence that she cut off the girl's back hair, beat her with rolling-pins and fishing-rods, starved her, kept her without clothing, and in many comparatively trifling ways, made the child's life a burden. On one day, however, in the middle of December, she caused the poor creature to undress herself, leaving upon her only one garment, then sent her into the yard, and dispatched her own son, a promising lad of twelve, to bring pails of water cold from the pump; when they arrived, Mrs. Thomas mounted upon a chair and poured their contents upon the shrinking girl, varying the proceedings by making the victim lie down upon the frosty stones while receiving the third ablution. The servant ran away then, and this complaint was made. The defense labored to blast the character of the girl, and to hold up Mrs. Thomas as a model of the Christian virtues generally; but as the strongest testimony in her favor seemed to be that of a clergyman who could only assert that he had never been in her house when he had not found enough to eat, she was found guilty by the jury after an absence of 20 minutes, and in spite of her respectable connexions, was sentenced to three months at hard labor.

More Rogue than Fool.

About forty years ago, there lived in the parish of Dalhil a man of the name of John Cumming, alias Iain na Gaoil, who was remarkable in his day and generation for his ready wit and bonhomie. John kept a small public house, one of those few and far between as now nearly does away with all hope of not entirely [illegible] will may be, between Carr Bridge and Aviemore. It happened on a certain evening that two of John's neighbors met at the inn resolved on having a spree. John could supply the best Highland whiskey at 5s a bottle—there were no Gladstones in those days—and in order to dispense with the services of the waiter a huge pint bottle was placed on the table, and the drinking commenced. In the course of the night the two cronies quarrelled, and a fight ensued, John having been quarrelsome and the combatants. One of the parties was horribly mutilated. The affair came under the cognizance of the authorities and the two were cited before the Sheriff of the county. On the appointed hours were again [illegible] anxious that the affair should be hushed up. John was the only witness, and as it was thought proper that in giving his evidence he should feign to be of weak intellect. On the day of the trial the defender pleaded not guilty, and the case went to proof. John was placed in the witness-box where his very appearance went far to corroborate his imbecility. Having pretended entire ignorance of the English language, an interpreter was sworn and the examination proceeded with. The Sheriff commenced by saying, "Your place of residence is situated on the Highland road in the vicinity of Aviemore." John replied, "No, my Lord, my place of residence is a few yards of the road." Sheriff—"Is not your house on the road betwixt Carr Bridge and Aviemore?" "With your honour's leave," replied John, "my house would not be allowed to be placed on the road; as stated before it is a few feet off." The Sheriff, somewhat irritated, in an authoritative tone, asked, "What is the name of your house, then?" "Well," says John, "I never heard any name to it but just the house." The Sheriff then ordered the man to be put out, as he was evidently in an unsound state of mind, but just as John was at the door, his Lordship ordered him to be recalled, and the question was asked, "Are you a married man?" "Yes, my Lord," replied John, "but I don't blame you for that." This put a climax to the proceedings and, no other witnesses being forthcoming, the case was dismissed. John and his quondam friends returned home, where another pint bottle made them forget their fatiguing journey to the county town, and the circumstances which gave rise to it.—Correspondent Nairn Telegraph.

Soaking Roots in Gin.

It appeared best to the excise commissioners of the town of M———, of northern New York, to refuse license for the sale of intoxicating liquors to all persons save a doctor of well known integrity and strong temperance principles, who promised not to sell except for medicinal or mechanical purposes. One Wheeler—an eccentric Irish cobbler—longed for a quiet drink, and with a sober air and smooth tongue, petitioned the doctor for a quart of gin.

"For what purpose do you wish it?" asked the doctor.

"Sure, doctor, I've been very bad for nearly ten days back with a great queasiness in me stomach, and not a heporth of good can I get from anything, in these turns but gin to soak some roots in."

"And do you tell me upon your honor, Wheeler, that you only wish the gin to soak some roots in, and to be taken as a medicine for a weak stomach?"

"Faith, as I live, doctor, I only want the gin to soak some roots."

The doctor, confident from his sallow appearance, that the man was sick, and that a little tonic bitters would set him on his feet, filled his quart bottle and received his pay. Wheeler, on reaching the sidewalk, fronted the doctor, who was still standing in the door, placed his thumb upon his nose, and made sundry gyrations with his fingers, while with the other hand he placed the bottle to his mouth, and took a long, invigorating guzzle of the gin.

"Stop!" cried the doctor, "you gave your honor that you only wanted the gin to soak some roots; and here you are drinking yourself dead drunk."

"Faith, doctor, and I've also telling you no lies. I wanted the gin, sure, to soak the roots of me old tongue, which were so dry I could never swallow a mouthful of mate to stret ghen me stomach."

The doctor, like his gin, was sold.

Sheep

The income from sheep is said to be greater in proportion to their value than from any other farm stock; they have sometimes paid as high as 150 per cent: a case in Ludlow is cited where 10 native ewes produced two crops of lambs in one year, the first in January and the second in June; the former sold at $5 per head, at 2.90—to the butchers. In nine years these ten sheep averaged $2 worth of wool; 25 other ewes on the same farm cost $50 to keep, and yielded $100. In another case, $225 invested in sheep in the town of Victory, N. Y., yielded $132, themselves included, in two years. Sheep are said by some to deteriorate pastures, and others to improve them. One thing is sure they will thrive in poorer pastures than any other farm animals, and subdue brushy and briary land. Ten medium sized sheep will eat as much as a medium-sized cow. Mutton therefore costs less than beef, and usually costs a higher price per pound. Like all other domestic animals, they pay for shelter and protection. Forty English sheep of nearly equal weights, were kept three winter months, for experiment, half in the open field and half under a comfortable shelter, and fed alike; the former increased in weight, 512 pounds, the latter 792 pounds: those sheltered consumed as much at first as the others but after the third week consumed less; in all each consumed about one-third less oil-cake, and one-fifth less turnips.—Springfield Republican.

A puzzled Officer.

Some years ago a small sized man went to the plantation of a gentleman not far from Lakeville, who was light in wit but rather heavy in flesh, with a piece of paper instead head, folded in a form and known by the abbreviation of Jr. so. Having found the owner of the plantation in the field, he requested to read his papers, which commenced as usual:

"You are hereby commanded without delay to take the body of," &c.

"Hurra!" says the prisoner, stretching himself on his back, "I am ready."

"Oh, but you don't expect me to carry you in my arms?"

"Certainly, you must take my body you know. I do not resist the prosecution of the law, but submit with cheerfulness."

"Will you wait until I can get a cart, for I am unable to carry you in my arms?"

"Can't promise. I may recover from fatigue in the meantime."

"Well, what must I do?"

"You must do your duty."

And he lay immovable until the Sheriff left, when he left also.

HOUSE IN THE MOON.—A Mr. George Fox relates the following anecdote: A rustic having gone to Carlton Hill Observatory to get a sight at the moon, after having got a glance of it, drew away his head to wipe his eyes, and in the interval the end of the telescope nonchalantly fell, so as, instead of pointing to the heavens, to point down to the earth. The rustic surprise was unutterable when he again looked through and beheld the sign of a public house at a short distance, with the customary declarations—"Edinburgh ale," &c. He started back and exclaimed, "Edinburgh ale in the moon! that beats a'!"

—Who gave the first kiss? Was it Adam? Was it Eve? At any rate kissing was one of the pleasures of Paradise, according to Lord Byron, who says:

"One remnant of Paradise still is on earth
And Eden revives, in the first kiss of love."

And Byron knew a good deal about kissing, whatever he may have known of Paradise. The different varieties of kissing are too numerous for convenient classification. The principal sorts, however, are the kiss of respect (on the hand,) the kiss of love (on the cheeks, or lips, according to the measure of the pass on and the relation of the parties.) What sort of a kiss was it that Leicester placed upon the lips of Queen Bess, and which, according to a chronicle of the time, "she took right heartily?" It was certainly a bold proceeding "before folks," considering who the parties were. However, the "Virgin Queen" might still be virgo vere sensa in spite of a kiss. Was Hannah Moore ever kissed?—that is to say by a man, "a horrid man," as prudish ladies call everything that wears coat and trousers.—It is impossible to conceive of such a thing! Imagination revolts at the idea! But only think of her being kissed "on the sly," and in church time! Impossible! And yet Horace Smith says on a certain occasion:

"Sidney Morgan was playing the organ
While behind the vestry door
Horace Twiss was snatching a kiss
From the lips of Hannah Moore!"

Oh! monstrous calumny!

An excellent Hint.

The way to keep money is to earn it fairly and honestly. Money so obtained is pretty certain to abide with its possessor. But money that is inherited, or that in any way comes without a fair and just equivalent, is almost as certain to go as it came. This young man who begins by saving a few shillings, and thriftily increases his store every coin being the representative of good solid work, honestly and manfully done—stands a better chance to spend the last half of his life in affluence and comfort than he who, in his haste to become rich, obtains money by dashing speculations, or the devious means which abound in the foggy regions lying between fair dealing and actual fraud. Among the wisest and most thrifty men of wealth, the current proverb is, "Money goes as money comes." Let the young make a note of this, and see that their money comes fairly, that it may long abide with them.

WEATHER BOUND!—A noble ship is fully freighted with a rich cargo. Her sails are set, the wind is fair; she is sailing swiftly on the broad ocean, everything betokening her onward progress in a prosperous voyage. She is hailed by another vessel—

'Ship ahoy! whither bound?'
'Nowhere!'

The question is supposed to be misunderstood, and is repeated. The answer comes—

'Don't know.'
'Have you a captain?'
'Yes, but we don't mind his orders.'
'Have you a captain?'
'Yes, but we don't mind his orders'
'Have you a chart, a compass, a chronometer?'
'Yes, but we never use nor look at them.'

Young man, outward bound on the ocean of life, how does this compare with your experience, your prospects, your destination as an immortal being?

A BLESSING.—A poor old Irish cripple sat begging at a bridge, urging his appeal to the charity of passengers with the eager and versatile eloquence of his country. A gentleman and lady, young, gay and handsome, with that peculiar look of gratified and complacent consciousness which indicates the first few weeks of married life, crossed the bridge. They regarded not the petitions of the beggar; so, just as they passed on, he exclaimed: "May the blessing of the Lord, which brings love, and joy, and wealth, and a fine family, follow you all the days of your life." A pause; the couple passed mercilessly on, and the beggar with a fine caustic humor, added, "and never overtake you."

THURSDAY, APRIL 2ND, 1863.

The Prince of Wales' Marriage.

The imposing ceremony took place as was announced on the 10th ultimo, and was one of the most splendid affairs ever witnessed in the old city of London. The last arrivals brought the mail containing the details of the ceremony, which are full of interest. We should gladly have transferred the whole account to our columns as given in the Times, but for its great length. The daily papers have a full description of the arrival of the Princess Alexandra and her royal suite, the procession and the marriage. Never was there more interest shown by a people on any similar occurrence, and never probably was there a more splendid reception given to any stranger in London than that given to the Princess of Denmark on her arrival on the 7th ultimo. Only fancy the providing of seats in St. Paul's Church Yard for 1,200 people at a cost of £9,000 stg., which were not only filled, but every available standing spot also. The enthusiasm of the people was unbounded, which deeply impressed the royal strangers, and the tout ensemble will afford material for the historian. We note a few particulars. It was known that the Princess and her royal suite were to land at Gravesend, and at early dawn crowds of people began to assemble at the piers and along the route of the procession. The river also was crowded with craft of every description, filled with anxious spectators.—Shortly before noon the Royal Yacht was descried in the distance, accompanied with a number of steamers and vessels of all sorts. At 12 o'clock the vessel was along side of the pier. As soon as the gang way was put ashore the Prince of Wales made his appearance, went on board, when his bride advanced towards him. He took off his hat and gave her a hearty kiss. They went into the cabin, and salutations were interchanged. They shortly appeared on deck again, when the Princess took the arm of the Prince and walked ashore, accompanied by her mother, father, two brothers and a brilliant suite. Sixty young girls were stationed with baskets of flowers to scatter them in the pathway of the Princess. The Mayoress of Gravesend presented Her Royal Highness with a bouquet. The party proceeded amidst the rejoicing of the assembled thousands to the Railway station, where they arrived shortly before one o'clock. At twenty minutes before two the train arrived at Bricklayers' Station, where the party partook of a dejeuner. They then proceeded in six carriages through the route marked out. The Prince and Princess of Wales, and the father and mother of the bride were in the last carriage. The throng made it difficult to proceed, and several times injuries were apprehended, but nothing serious occurred. The party finally got through, and were glad to escape to a quiet spot to get rest. Several attempts were made to get the horses from the carriage of the happy pair, but the crowd was prevented by the equerries.

On Tuesday, the 10th, the marriage ceremony was performed. The Royal party proceeded from Windsor Castle, at fifteen minutes before twelve, towards St. George's Chapel. It was filled, of course, to its utmost capacity, and the interesting ceremony is performed amidst all the pageantry and grandeur to be expected on so auspicious an occasion.

Her Majesty was a spectator of the ceremony, and was observed in tears while the beautiful lines, to music composed by the late Prince Consort, were sung. The following are the words of the chorale:

"This day, with joyful heart and voice,
To Heaven be raised a nations prayer,
Almighty Father, deign to grant
Thy blessing to the wedded pair.

So shall no clouds of sorrow dim
The sunshine of their early days,
But happiness in endless rounds
Shall still encompass all their ways."

There was a large assemblage of Royalty and nobles, both male and female, and the whole affair is described as one of the most grand and imposing ever beheld in England. An entire nation's prayers ascend for blessings to the noble pair, and a united people rejoice in the happy union. Never did an heir of the British Crown enlist more sympathy from the people than does Albert Edward, and never has a Prince had a better practical example set before him of the truth of the saying that "goodness is greatness." In the life of his father and mother he cannot have failed to discover that by pursuing a course of virtue they have endeared themselves to the nation. We hope he has wisdom and discretion to tread in their footsteps and so secure the fealty and love of Britain and all her dependencies. We say, in all sincerity, God Almighty bless the Prince and Princess of Wales, and make them a blessing.

Unfair Charges.

It has been the practice of certain journals, for some time past, to charge certain members of the present Ministry with acting traitorously towards Upper Canada in voting for Mr. Scott's Separate School Bill; and not only that, but they have thereby truckled to the Romish hierarchy, and sanctioned a measure destined to rend in pieces our Common School System.—These charges are reiterated week after week, and as a consequence the great bulk of the readers are led to believe that the charges are all correct, and the members in question deserving the indignation of the community at large. No pains were spared to make the case as bad as possible, so as to render these men unpopular, and, if possible, to remove them from the treasury benches. Not only have Conservative journals eagerly seized hold of the opportunity afforded to hurl against Ministers, denunciations of treachery and wrong, but Reform journals joined in the hue and cry of treachery and truckling, and, if possible, have been more loud in denouncing the conduct of the Upper Canada portion of the Government in supporting Mr. Scott's Bill.

Now let us look at the matter fairly, that is, if we can, the truth in connection with these men stand, and whether they really deserve all the censure heaped upon them for the support they gave to this measure. It should be borne in mind that the principle of Separate Schools was first admitted in the School Act of 1850—that Protestants, Coloured people, or Catholics, could have them if twelve heads of families of either party joined in asking for a School. A proviso was however made to enable Protestants, that only in the township of the Teacher of the School being a Catholic, could they form a Separate School, while the twelve heads of the Catholic families could have a School if they wished it, without any bar whatever—a species of injustice unworthy of an enlightened individual like Dr. Ryerson.

This was the first serious error in our system of National Education. It was nothing short of respecting the religious convictions of one denomination in the country while virtually ignoring the others.—This Separate School Act was amended in 1853, but it was in 1855 that its most objectionable features appeared in the act of that session.

The chief and the most objectionable feature of this Bill was that it gave power to five heads of families in a School Section to establish a Roman Catholic School, thereby greatly facilitating their establishment, and as a consequence impairing the Common Schools. Notwithstanding the great concessions yielded to the Catholics by the act of 1855, their Hierarchy have been in cessant since in demanding yet greater cessations and privileges to Catholics. Bills have been introduced again and again, but no measure of importance has since passed. The Bill of the present session gives five heads of families living within three miles of a School House the power of establishing a Separate School in place of living in a School Section—which is the only objectionable feature in the bill. The other alterations we do not look on as evils to any concerned.

This then is all the head and front of the offending of Messrs. McDougall, Foley and Wilson—that they should by their votes sanction a measure said to be a final one on a most vexed subject.

The hateful principle of Separate Schools is incorporated in our School System. The measure proposed does, we admit, sanction their extension, and, as an enemy to the principle, we should, if an opportunity offered, have hesitated to have voted for the passage of the Bill. At the same time if the Bill, as was stated, would set the question at rest, we should upon that ground alone have sanctioned it. The evil, as we have before remarked, has been in the introduction of Separate Schools at all. Yet Dr. Ryerson says they have not impaired our national system, nor are they likely to do so. If they have not, surely the present one will not. We are aware that our Chief Superintendent can blow hot or cold as it suits him. He is directly responsible for the introduction of Separate Schools, and his expressed opinion of their harmlessness must be received with caution.

We are satisfied that their introduction is an injury to the system, and to individuals as well, besides being distasteful to a large portion of the people of Upper Canada.—The cry of Separate Schools has been a famous clap trap at the hustings, and in to-day a chief staple with politicians who talk and write not so much to enlighten their auditory as to advance their social ends. Ask a large portion of the readers of the Globe what about the conduct of Ministers on the Separate School question, and they immediately tell you that they have betrayed Upper Canada into the hands of Romish Hierarchy, and if you attempt to reason with them you are at once put down as having "turned rouse." In Canada, where such conflicting elements exist, a set of men can carry on the Government of the country without some concessions on both sides. And if the McDonald-Sicotte Administration yield no more than they have yet done they stand a long way in advance of any other Administration that have preceded them.

☞ We have a crow to pick with our neighbour the Cobourg Sun. It is pleased in its last issue to copy a paragraph from our columns without giving us credit therefor, and to copy an account of the doings on St. Patrick's day from the Review, and crediting it to us instead of the Review.—Such carelessness should be guarded against.

☞ Several errors and omissions appeared in our last issue, which we were sorry to observe only when too late to correct.

We owe an apology to "An Irishman" for the non appearance of his letter last week. It appears to-day, and will lose nothing of its value for being kept over.

The man who occupies the post of an Editor of a newspaper, whether a daily or a weekly, whether in City or Town, has an onerous and troublesome duty to perform. He has to treat of all passing events and subjects, is supposed to notice every thing of moment transpiring in his own locality, to call from the sources at his command the contemporary items of news, prices current, subjects of interest occurring, and catering for the various tastes of his readers as he best can—anxious that the commercial, literary and general public may find something suited to their wish. But there is a large class of readers that express their disapprobation of the manner in which the Editor is conducting his paper: he leaves out this, and he puts in that—he does not come out stiff on this measure, or is too spicy on that—is afraid to speak out on this, or is too personal in that—is either too washy-washy, or too severe—too long on this, or too short on that,—and perhaps winds up with a [illegible] of the publisher to stop my paper, &c., &c. I never heard a subscriber say that about [illegible]. It is that is the case, the Examiner notices the doings on St. Patrick's Day, in Peterborough, we must have a new Editor. Must we should like, if some of these fault-finding critics would try their hand a short time to please every one of their thousand readers. We know a short trial would cure them of their grumbling, and lead them to have a little sympathy for the poor wight who is set up as a target, and who is the butt of every dissatisfied reader who is so ready at fault finding. In fact it is just as impossible for an Editor to please all his readers as it was for the old man in the fable, who rashly attempted to please all those who grumbled, and his ass, and failed in satisfying any body. We do not, however, mean to say that a writer for the public, should be careless to reasonable suggestions or hints from his readers, but we do say that he who is too ready to notice all that is said about his efforts has yet to learn some of the first principles of human nature. Having laid down a course which he is satisfied is right, let him pursue it steadily and fearlessly, and no fear if he is the right man for the place he will succeed.

Winter "still lingers in the lap of Spring." March came in rough and stormy and has gone out blustering and wintry.

There has been very little of fine weather during the whole month. The ground is still covered with snow, and it must be some time yet ere the farmer can resume his labours in the fields. We were amused in reading of the fine weather for sowing grain in Britain, and the progress of the farmer there, in getting in his crops.

What must agriculturalists there think when we tell them that it will be two weeks yet at least, before we can sow anything! Notwithstanding our backwardness in getting in our crop, such is the rapid growth here that we can harvest our crop before our transatlantic friends. At present, however, the indications favor a late Spring here—a circumstance much to be regretted as fodder is very scarce in many localities, and cattle are suffering, and indeed dying in places. The roads in and near the Town are used up, although there is excellent sleighing in many parts of the country.

A few warm days will work wonders in transforming the Snow into water, and we hope that April—although she makes her introduction with a decidedly wintry breath—will effect what March failed in doing.

A Soldier in the Northern Army, in Tennessee, writing to his sister in Canada says:—"We have not lost over 200 in killed, wounded and prisoners in our regiment, and we cannot now muster over 330 fit for duty. The balance of the 1,000 men who left their peaceful and happy homes under the delusion that the rebellion would be crushed in three or six months have either died in hospitals or are sick in them all the way from Louisville to this place,—and what for God only knows."

☞ Upwards of 40 Archbishops and Bishops have signed an address to Bishop Orlenzo, respectfully suggesting to him while holding his present views, the propriety of his resigning his see—to which, however, he declines. The law cannot compel him, nor remove him so he seems determined to set all at defiance, and continue an avowed sceptic, and yet a Bishop of the Church of England. What a dishonest, mean and contemptible man this Colenzo must be.

From a recent return it appears that there are 125,000 men who have skedaddled from the Northern Army—not a bad army in itself.

☞ There is nothing specially to note of the War. Vicksburg has not yet been taken. The Federal Steamer, the Mississippi, in attempting to pass Fort Hodson, got aground, and after a gallant resistance she was abandoned, and set fire to.

Tennessee is said to be invested by the Rebels. The whole body is said to be near Murfreesboro. There is said to be fearful destitution in the South. The Army of the Potomac is described as being in fine order, and eager for the field.

The movements of the belligerents seem to indicate that the valley of the Shenandoah, will soon witness active operations. Gold which recently underwent a fall of 14 per cent in two days, and going down to 138, has risen again to 1464. A few Northern victories would cause a speedy decline.

The draft will soon be enforced, and some of the Western Sections appear disposed to resist it. Men will be raised and the North has the decided advantage, having in addition to men, the sinews of war.

The end may be near, but we incline to the belief, that it is but beginning.

A determined people fighting for existence are not easily conquered.

Blood on both sides and treasure must yet flow forth, ere this bloody struggle will terminate. We may prepare to hear of battles soon.

The Scientific American.—This excellent periodical is unquestionably the best of its kind published on the Continent of America. The typography is faultless, the cuts are exquisitely excellent, and its matter is excellent.—No mechanic should be without it. It is a useful work and worth its price ten times to the scientific.

It is published weekly by Munn & Co. New York at $3 per year, or in clubs of 20 at $2.

Dramatic Performance.—We are requested to state that the Peterborough Amateur Dramatic Club will give an entertainment, on Tuesday evening, the 14th of April inst. Mr. George Weller, of Lindsay has kindly consented to assist, and will appear as "Toodles" in the domestic Drama entitled "The Toodles."

At a meeting of Capt. Smith's Infantry Company, on Friday evening last, Dr. Brown was elected Surgeon. We congratulate the Company on the choice they have made, and are certain the Dr. will be at his post when the Company turn out.

A special despatch to the Tribune, dated March 30, says that the Confederates are preparing to evacuate Richmond, and have already moved large quantities of supplies which have been stored there for the use of the army.

We regret to learn that six women were trodden to death on the night of the 10th of March, in London. There were also 30 or 40 who had limbs broken or dislocated.

The Hon. Ferguson Blair, the new Receiver General was re-elected in the Brock Division on the 28th inst., at the Town of Guelph. Query, how did the Review get its information on the 27th—a day before? Mr. Rankin received the majority at the Essex nomination, made a capital speech. It is thought he will be elected.

M. Pinsonault, the independent candidate, has been returned for the County of Lapairie, by a majority of 278 over his opponent.

The Total Debenture debt of the City of Toronto, on the 31st of December, 1862, was $2,287,828.06, over and above the sinking fund on hand towards its redemption.

POLICE COURT.

Solomon Fish, Henry Michael and Michal Bileau were charged with leaving the employment of George Hilliard and fined 50c. and costs.

Edward Carr for breaking open the house of Mary Pero was fined $1 and costs.—Ann Brennin, Elizabeth Parker and Mary Fell, 3 Prostitutes, for being disorderly about the streets, were sent up for 30 days.

Michael Kiley, W. B. Ward and S. W. Hastings, were charged by the Inspector of License, with selling spirituous Liquors without license, and fined $50 and costs, each.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

The County Council met in Special Session on Wednesday, 25th day of March.

Present: Peter Pearce, Esq., Warden; and Messrs. Birdsall, Crow, Clark, Galvin, Gunier, Grover, Ingram, Lockie, Probert, Rogers, Ritchie, Sullivan and Walton.

The minutes of former Session were read and confirmed.

The Warden read his address which was referred to a Special Committee, consisting of Messrs. Grover, Rogers, Walton, Crow and Birdsall.

Moved by Mr. Probert and seconded by Mr. Gunier,—That this Council do memorialize the Government to open a road from Buckhorn Bridge, through the Township of Harvey, and part of the Township of Galway, to connect with the Bobcaygeon Road, and that this motion be referred to committee on Roads and Bridges.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Ingram, seconded by Mr. Lockie,—That a motion passed by this Council, authorizing the Clerk to procure Deeds for certain old Road allowances in the Township of Asphodel, be erased from the minutes.—Carried.

On motion of Mr. Ingram, the Warden of the County of Victoria was heard on the subject of a settlement with the County of Peterboro'.

Moved by Mr. Ingram and seconded by Mr. Crew,—That Messrs. Grover, Roger and the mover, together with the Warden be a committee to investigate and report to this Council, concerning the books and documents of both Counties.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Grover and seconded by Mr. Rogers,—That the information conveyed by the Warden of the County of Victoria is perfectly satisfactory, and that the Council fully corroborates the statements made by him, as the basis of settlement, and it was understood that the payments should be at the times set forth in that basis; this Council is willing to receive the amounts at the time set forth in the report of the committee appointed to ascertain the indebtedness of the County of Victoria to this County, viz.:—

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I perceive in your last issue that you have devoted some space to the proceedings in your good Town on last St. Patrick's Day. Should it not be too late will you be kind enough to allow me a small corner for a few ideas which have occurred to me.

Being in Town on that day, and keeping a strict neutrality—yet I was not an inattentive observer—I could see and judge for myself, mingling indiscriminately with Roman Catholics and Protestants, when of course the opposition to the St. Patrick's Society procession was the topic of the day. Being alike an Irishman and an Orangeman, I regretted to see such a state of affairs amongst my fellow countrymen, preferring rather to see them live in love and harmony together. Falling in at one time with three or four Roman Catholics—good neighbors—one remarked, "Mr.——, did not our forefathers fight under the crown of England, and was there not as much Catholic blood spilled on the various battle fields as that of Protestants?" I nodded assent, but had not time to suggest what I conceive a remedy for existing matters, and which I here propose. Having always understood that St. Patrick's Society consisted of well-conducted Irishmen, without regard to creed or politics—I am told such is not the case with the Peterborough one. Another objection: having the Catholic Priest for its President,—an unusual thing. Should Roman Catholics stand to the assertion above referred to by my friend, why object to unfurl in front of their procession that flag (that for a thousand years, &c.,) with the crown and St. George's Cross, next followed up by our national emblems, harp, St. Patrick, snakes and frogs, &c. Come out in this liberal way and I will be bound that every Orange man and Protestant in town will, if they don't join the ranks, hail them with three cheers, and be delighted to hear the old soul stirring air of "Patrick's day in the morning."

Since our confusion on that day we have heard of proceedings in Toronto on the 17th, where an excited individual named Murphy spoke rather freely. Mr. Murphy seems a host within himself, and no doubt a little more romancing about the "Harp that once," the "Minstrel Boy," &c., would make him fancy that he could walk on the water.

The general opinion amongst the Protestant community is that those recently got up St. Patrick's Societies are old Irish Ribbon Societies. If such be the case they must be tolerated, nor can they succeed in Upper Canada.

Yours, &c.,
An Irishman.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Mr. Editor,—The Woodstock Sentinel says: "the only radical cure for intemperance is not only Legal Prohibition but Total Abstinence." He begs of men to beseige the Legislature with petitions for Legal Prohibition, and persuade people to abandon the use of intoxicating drinks, and this would do a vast amount of good.

Now, sir, my opinion is for the Churches to enforce their laws on that subject, and prohibit every one who deals in intoxicating drinks from holding communion or connection with their body; for as long as a minister of the gospel of Jesus Christ countenances those whose daily practice is to sell, or give away to others that which they know will in the end ruin both soul and body. They are at enmity with God. He that encourageth another to steal is as bad as the thief. It is painful for every Christian to see so many of our fellow mortals reeling in the streets under the influence of liquor. The liquor dealers say it is lawful, but I say it is expedient. Paul says: "if the eating of meat would make his brother stumble, he would eat no meat while the world lasts." Now, sir, if the ministers and office bearers of our Christian Churches would say "as for us and our house we will serve the Lord", we will put the unclean thing from amongst us, then we may and shall receive his blessing.

The above is simply my opinion, it may amount to little or much, it is given in good part, not as instruction.

Decidedly Cool.

A certain newspaper published within one hundred miles of Whitby, is edited by a Customs' House clerk, who prepares, weekly, an article against the present Ministry, containing nothing but falsehood.—This person was appointed by the late Ministry to his present office simply to remunerate him for editing the paper referred to. His services are not required in the Customs' office; and could be advantageously dispensed with.—Whitby Gazette.

The Polish Insurrection.

The insurrection in Poland against the tyranny and oppressions of the Czar is fast gaining ground. It is estimated that the insurgents under arms have already reached the number of 80,000. A provisional government has been formed, and General Langowitz appointed Dictator. He has issued a spirited address to the people of Poland calling them to arms to throw off the hateful yoke of the Muscovite. A great battle was expected when the last steamer left, for which the Dictator was reported to be prepared.

What is to be the issue of this great uprising? Time alone can solve the problem. At first blush it may seem impossible for a comparatively small country like that which was once known among the kingdoms of Europe, as Poland, to succeed against the mighty power of Russia; and the probability is that the result of the struggle will be to fasten more closely upon the Poles the fetters which now bind them under the bitter yoke of the autocrat of Russia. But with that unanimity and earnestness which animates the people of Poland, what may not be expected? The sympathies of the whole civilized world are with them in their struggle for independence and the efforts which they are now making to free themselves from the grasp of a hard taskmaster. Whether the European Governments will take any direct action in the struggle, beyond that which comes within the range of diplomacy, does not yet appear. The probability is that they will not; and that the Poles will be left to fight single-handed against their powerful oppressors, until thousands upon thousands of them have shed their blood a sacrifice upon the altar of their country. Russia has expressed her determination not to yield one iota until the revolutionists have laid down their arms of rebellion; and the Poles we may feel assured, will not succumb while there is the slightest prospect of success. A bitter war is in prospect—a war, too, which may involve the other countries of Europe in all its horrors. —London.

The Royal Marriage.

(From the London Times March 5th.)

It has been said of the English people that, although slow to appropriate a sentiment, they abandon themselves to it, after the first hesitation is over, with their whole hearts. Never did the nation more truly deserve this character than it does at the present moment. When we become fully aware of the irreparable loss that we had sustained in the death of the Prince Consort, the homage paid to his memory was so hearty and unreserved as to surprise many of our Continental neighbors. When it was known, later in the same year, that the choice of the Princess Alexandra of Denmark, no impulsive outburst of sympathy took place till it had been ascertained that she possessed all the qualities which could adorn her high position. Then, and not till then, did she receive, from all the inhabitants of these Islands, the assurance of a welcome such as no other country could give, and no former generation of Englishmen has ever given to a stranger. It is not too much to say that the passionate loyalty to which this alliance occasion is without precedent. It is impossible to read the account of the preparation now being made in every town and hamlet of Great Britain, or to walk the streets of London, or to mingle in society, or to watch the thousand nameless symptoms by which the temper of the public betrays itself, without becoming conscious of a prevailing enthusiasm more spontaneous and intense than has been kindled by any event within living memory. There were rejoicings equally sincere and universal at her wedding, nor can we forget the proofs of regard and attachment which were showered on the Princess Royal when she left her parent's roof. But it is no disparagement to the happy reminiscences of those occasions, or rather it is a testimony to the Queen's long-tried popularity, to say that they failed to excite the same interest as the Prince of Wales's marriage. And yet, if crowds are chiefly attracted by the grandeur of a show, there is nothing in the programme of Saturday which can account for so general a desire to be present at it. A coronation is a gorgeous ceremony; at the Duke of Wellington's funeral the procession was swelled by some of the most famous living soldiers and statesmen; but here there will be little to gratify curiosity and love of display. Half-a-dozen Royal carriages, and well-known equipages of the Lord Mayor and dignitaries, and a squadron of Life Guards—such sights as these would hardly tempt the whole population of the metropolis away from their homes and callings. The grand avenue of windows and balconies, alive with human faces, through which the Prince and Princess will pass, cannot but be a notable spectacle, but it is one which only those who form the procession can witness. We have taken thought for weeks and laid many thousands of pounds, ostensibly for the sake of an experience which will last less than a minute, and yet none of us is ashamed of it.

This is a phenomenon which needs to be explained, and of which the explanation may help to dispel some illusions already discredited, about the spirit of our age. First and foremost, there is the fact that two young people on whom the eyes of nations are fixed are going to be married. That fact by itself is quite sufficient to win them many affectionate good wishes. There are no qualities but youth and beauty which can command this kind of allegiance, and it must be grievous failings indeed which can deprive youth and beauty of its support, when they are placed on so lofty a pinnacle. But these enviable qualities, though they may carry men's hearts by storm, cannot influence their judgments. There must be much more than this chivalrous feeling to account for the deliberate expression of loyalty to which we have all committed ourselves. It must proceed from a deep and renewed conviction that the principle of Monarchy and those emotions of loyalty which no form of government except Monarchy has ever succeeded in inspiring, do not belong to that Age of Ruins which we have left behind us. We do not mean to say that Burke himself, when he predicted the approaching reign of selfishness and anarchy, or those later theorists of a very different school who have done what they could to verify these rash prophecies, ever seriously framed to themselves the idea of a Republican England. The one gave currency to a vague apprehension, the others to a vague aspiration, founded respectively on very incorrect readings of the political barometer. There never was any real danger that this great and wise nation would so cut itself off from its past history, and so recklessly imperil the destiny which Providence has intrusted to our keeping, as to follow the desperate career of revolutionary France. The danger was not that the people should wilfully desert the Throne but that the Throne should prove unworthy of the people; not that Monarchy should be condemned as worn out and effete, but that our Monarchs should not know how to adapt themselves to the altered conditions of politics and manners. The Royal power had triumphantly weathered the French Revolution, but would it survive the Court of George IV.? It had shown that it was compatible with Parliamentary Government, but could it be reconciled with modern notions of economy and the requirements of modern public opinion.

Anything Over! said an old borrower to a friend. "Yes," was the reply. "Just enough to buy a box of Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers to cure my children's coughs, and keep peace at home." Only 25 cents a box. Sold by all druggists.

Mr. Brown and the Reform Party.

The question as to what position Mr. Brown will assume towards the present Government, is receiving considerable attention throughout the country—more, perhaps, than its importance deserves. As it is being discussed, however, it is as well that the discussion should be complete. The first thing that strikes us, and the same fact has probably been noticed by Mr. Brown himself, is that the time when he could rule the Reform party by his ipse dixit has passed. Reformers have discovered they are many, and he is but one. It is beginning to be understood that, with some forty Reform representatives on one side, and the member of South Oxford, solitary and alone, on the other, it is more prudent to listen to the forty than to the one. The growth of this feeling since the advent of the present Government to power, is evidenced by the tone of the Reform Press throughout the country. With some three or four exceptions, (and they not very hearty,) Reform journals have spoken out boldly in favor of the Ministry, and with equal boldness against the course which Mr. Brown has threatened to take.

We have all along held to the opinion that Mr. Brown intended to oppose the Ministry and events as they have transpired have confirmed it. The opinion was founded on the simple fact that Mr. Brown is a man—a suggestion which even that confectionary paper the Globe will hardly attempt to deny—a great man, a good man and an able man if you will, but yet a man, and subject to certain foibles and weaknesses to which humanity, in its best development, is subject. Among Mr. Brown's many excellent qualities are to be found some not so good; such, for instance, as vanity. This was brought into play when the personnel of the present Ministry was made known. His personal dislike to Messrs. J. S. McDonald and Sicotte, his jealousy of Mr. McDougall, his old quarrels with Mr. Foley, his chagrin at losing his influence over Messrs. Wilson and Howland, together with an idea which possesses him that he has a vested right to the leadership and control of the Reform party, all tended to wound his vanity, when he found these men ruling the country without his consent and dictation. It is "very sad" to form such an opinion, yet we fear that these private feelings have had more influence over Mr. Brown's subsequent conduct, than they should to the exclusion of more noble motives.

We cannot account for his threatened hostility to the government on any other grounds. It cannot be purely for the good of the country, unless indeed Mr. Brown's ideas of good government have become hopelessly confused. The question at issue is a very simple one. Representation by Population cannot be carried during the present Parliament. This Mr. Brown knows as well as any one. With no possible ministry can we have representative reform. The only question that remains is whether we shall have a government pledged to, and earnestly carrying out, financial reform, or whether we shall have the old ministry, with all its corruption and extravagance back again. If Mr. Brown succeeds in defeating the government we will have Cartier and John A. McDonald back again, stronger than ever. The Lower Canadian members of Parliament will have come to the conclusion that any alliance with the Upper Canada Reform party is hopeless, or that those who do ally with them are doomed to remain in hopeless opposition, and the consequence will be that, deserting Mr. Sicotte, they will flock back to Cartier, and the country will be deprived of the measure of relief afforded by the double majority and financial reform. It is for this Mr. Brown threatens to work. If he accomplishes his work, will reformers be satisfied?

It is possible that Mr. Brown hopes to be able to form a new government, with himself at its head, strong enough to secure all the demands of Upper Canada. If he does, he is more vain and sanguine than we could have imagined. Mr. Brown is in as bad odor now in Lower Canada as he ever was, and would receive no support from it unless he abandoned the policy of the present ministry at least during the present Parliament.

On the other hand, Mr. Brown may again have recognized himself as a "governmental impossibility," and identifying himself with Representation by Population resolve to place himself in perpetual opposition to every government which would not sanction the principle. In this case we cannot object to Mr. Brown's conduct as an individual, but as we must protest against the reform party consenting to follow his lead. Mr. Brown may think it advisable for the reform party to remain in opposition, and allow the country to be governed by corrupt coalitions, and led on to financial ruin and bankruptcy until representation by population is obtained. We think it advisable, on the contrary, that in the interim we should have as much good government, as large a degree of financial reform as possible, and as much justice to Upper Canada as the double majority affords. Surely, the acquisition of these benefits will not injure us nor stand in the way of obtaining more when practicable. The conclusion we draw is, that if Mr. Brown is determined to place himself in antagonism to the present government, the duty of reform members of Parliament is to give their firm and undivided allegiance to the latter in preference to him.

The College Question.—A committee of the Wesleyan Conference, consisting of six or seven ministers, is publishing in the Christian Guardian a series of articles on "University Reform Defended." If there are abuses in the management of the Toronto University, by all means let an investigation be made; but we question the wisdom of a body of Christian ministers setting themselves up as the accusers especially, when their real object is, to get a share of the funds of the University for their own college. The University is a Provincial institution, and if mismanaged, the whole body of the people have an interest in having the abuse corrected; but, we think, a majority of the people will protest against University reform being used as a cover under which to undermine the University, in order to build up Denominational Colleges out of its ruins.—Montreal Witness.

"Train up a Child," &c.—I trust everything to habit, upon which, in all ages, the lawgiver, as well as the schoolmaster, has mainly placed his reliance—habit which makes everything easy, and casts all difficulties upon a deviation from a wonted course. Make sobriety a habit, and intemperance will be hateful—make prudence a habit, and reckless profligacy will be as contrary to the child, grown or adult as the most atrocious crimes to any. Give a child the habit of sacredly regarding truth—of carefully respecting the property of others—of scrupulously abstaining from all acts of imprudence which involve him in distress, and he will just as likely think of rushing into an element in which he cannot breathe as of lying, or cheating, or stealing.—Lord Brougham.

The South.

TERRIBLE CONDITION OF THE POOR IN THE SOUTH.

The New Orleans Era of the 13th inst. publishes a narrative of Southern barbarity in the parish of St. Tammany, Louisiana, which more than confirms all previous statements of the suffering among the people of the South and the tyranny of the Confederate rule. The Era derives its information from a refugee, who with his wife and two children, one of whom he carried in his arms, by long and weary marches succeeded in reaching Pearl river, and there escaped by a canoe to the seacoast, and so reached New Orleans. We quote:

THE WAY THE PEOPLE LIVE.

"The people of St. Tammany have been living from hand to mouth for about a year. The Conscription law has driven all the males to seek refuge in the woods, while their poor women and children are left at home, on the very verge of starvation. Rebel officers scour the country continually with blood-hounds, enter houses without ceremony, search every nook and corner, and if the terrified women protest against their rudeness, they are kicked out of their own houses and coarsely insulted and cursed by those brutal minions of Jeff Davis.

The people subsist entirely on crushed corn, which is parched and eaten dry for bread, and soaked in hot water for coffee. Occasionally they get hold of a little fresh meat, but as there is not a particle of salt to be had down of a dollar a spoonful, this meat cannot be kept, and is very unpalatable without salt.

REFUSING CONFEDERATE MONEY.

In this stronghold of the Confederacy the notes issued by that so-called government are not current, except as a medium for the rich men to pay their debts to the poor. The latter cannot use this money for anything. One dealer in all sorts of little notions refused to give five cents worth of tobacco for a ten dollar bill, saying the whole was not more than five cents worth. The whole country is bare of salt, sugar, molasses, flour, butter and vegetables—in fact, everything but cracked corn.

BURNT BEEF.

There being no salt, the roving bands of guerillas and other armed parties, whose chief business seems to be to move about from place to place in search of emaciated and chickens, are compelled to resort to burning beef to cure it. It is done in this way:—

The fresh meat is cut into thin slices, and placed on hot coals, where it remains till it is quite burnt. It is then packed in knapsacks and carried with them on their marches. When the stock is exhausted they levy on another animal, wherever one is to be found. This food, with corn coarsely ground and unsifted, is said to be what the rebel soldiers subsist on.

THE FAMILIES OF VOLUNTEERS AND CONSCRIPTS.

These are represented as being entirely destitute. They go wandering about from one place to another, begging from the lonely cabins a little cornmeal to keep soul and body together. They are frequently rudely driven away without assistance, being told that it is wrong to encourage begging. For a few months a sort of bounty was paid these unfortunate people, but that has been discontinued, and now they are left entirely destitute.

DESTITUTE OF CLOTHING.

The women and children are almost without clothes. Cotton cards cannot be had at any price. While the women had these they made cotton yarn, which they spun into coarse cloth, which answered very well. That source of supply, like almost everything else, has been cut off. These poor, hungry, half-clothed women and children, having been deprived of their natural protectors by the inexorable conscription law, now wander about from place to place, subject to all the jeers and insults of the rich, who are known to entertain great contempt for "poor white trash."

A Swindle.

A young man in New York, named Clinton, a house painter by trade, having seen an advertisement in one of the Chicago papers of real estate for sale, wrote to the advertiser saying that he had $300 in "green backs" which he desired to invest. By return of mail he received a letter from the firm of "Delaney, Coleman & Co., Real Estate Agents," giving him a glowing description of certain property, and advising him to invest at once. They said they would send him a deed on receipt of the money, or an attested copy, if he desired one previously. The fool at once sent forward his $300, requesting "Delaney, Coleman & Co." to invest it for him to good advantage, and send on the papers. He never heard anything more of the matter, and last Thursday was in Chicago engaged in a vain search Educational Column.

"Knowledge is Power."

The second quarterly meeting of the Teachers Convention for this County, was held on the 28th inst, in the Union School building. There was a respectable attendance of Teachers' present —and some friends of Education, not engaged in teaching.

The meeting having been opened with Prayer.

The committee appointed to arrange a constitution and report thereon—gave in their report which was adopted as submitted.

The members present then signed the constitution and By-Laws.

Mr. Dunn the President of the Association, read a very interesting essay on "The advantages of union among teachers."

Mr. Stratton, also, read one, on General Grammar. The Revd Mr Douglass next made a few remarks on the essays which were attentively heard.—It was next moved by Mr. Blatcher, seconded by Mr. Ray, Lakefield, that Messrs Dunn & Stratton be requested to publish the essays.

Mr. Blatcher also moved that a column of the Examiner be procured for Educational purposes—and the same paid for quarterly in advance—which was unanimously carried—and Messrs Dunn, Stratton and Blatcher were appointed managers thereof.

The subject for next meeting (for general discussion) shall be mathematical Geography & Astronomy. The Meeting adjourned to meet again on the Last Saturday of June at the same place, at the hour of 11 o'clock a. m.

In the mean time there will be a meeting of Teachers' on the last Saturday of every month, at some place and time.

We hope to see all teachers taking a deep interest in the association, and by their presence and assistance and in carrying out the object of it; viz. "To secure the adoption of the most improved system of instruction in this County."

To arouse the public spirit more in the cause of Education, and by united action, if possible, bring about a more uniform method of instruction, all of which are very desirable; and for these objects the assistance of all is required and desired. At the present time the mass of the people appear not to care for, or not to comprehend the present position of affairs. While the enemies of education are busy night and day endeavouring to overthrow the fair structure that has been projected, and is only (as it were) in process of erection. While those enemies with restless anxiety are endeavouring to obtain the control of every means that will almost wrest the means of educating our youth out of our power—the people of Upper Canada are asleep, or indifferent—and will not awake till the Lower Canada sharks whose cry is; "give, give," have swooned the last vestige of the Common School system, and raised instead thereof a system of ignorance and superstition.

Why are not indignation meetings held over the length and breadth of Upper Canada, and the people, in thunder tones of honest indignation—tell those truckling, venal Politicians, of Upper Canada who have sold themselves for less than a mess of pottage, that if they do not desist, against the day of reckoning they will receive the recompense of their reward.

And why should not the people of this County take the lead? A County that boasts of having the most independent representative of the present, yea or any other Parliament, would not such meetings strengthen the hands, give him boldness in advocating those principles, which his Constituents could thus show they desire and demand. Friends of Education buckle on your armour—Gird yourselves like men, put yourselves in the front of the battle, do not say: A little more sleep, a little more slumber, a little more folding of the hands to sleep while the noblest institutions of our Country are being undermined, well nigh raised to the ground. Do not let the present recess pass away and your Representative return to Quebec, until you give him an opportunity of telling you the names of those who have broken their faith, and sold themselves to do you hurt, instead of standing up for your rights and interests.

The Hon. Mr. McDougall in Oxford.

At a meeting of electors in the North Riding of the County of Oxford, held in the Harrington School-house, March 20, to take into consideration the Hon. Wm McDougall's action on the Separate School Bill, the following resolution was unanimously adopted.

Moved by Mr. H. Monroe, seconded by Mr. J. Matheson, and resolved. "That the Hon. Mr. McDougall has betrayed the interests of his constituents for the sake of office."

Several speeches were delivered on Mr. McDougall's political course, and he was denounced as having betrayed the confidence reposed in him by his constituents.—Globe Correspondence.

The idea is certainly brilliant. The Hon. Mr. Macdougall cannot, politically, survive this blow. The resolution passed on a certain memorable occasion by the three Knights of the Shears in Tooley Street was not more damaging to the interests of the British empire than the resolution of the Harrington School-house politicians must be to the Canadian Government, and particularly to Mr. Macdougall. We wonder whether the meeting held at the above conscientious place in the County of Oxford was attended by any person save Messrs. Munro and Matheson, and the Secretary who had the honor of communicating the above important item of intelligence to the Globe. We are also at a loss to know whether these men ever gave a vote for Mr. Macdougall in an election contest—whether they are Reformers, Tories, Radicals, Conservatives, or Conservatives in prospect? It is certainly a most remarkable that since Mr. Macdougall accepted office and announced the policy of the Government in reference to Separate Schools, he was unanimously re-elected by the people of North Oxford; although these men declare that, for the sake of office, he betrayed the interests of his constituents. Probably these worthies want office themselves.—St. Catherines Post.

A BOSTON NOTION.—One of the queer things that spring up in such a place as Boston, in the present strange condition of affairs, is a society of ladies called the "Industrial Aid Association," of which Mrs. O. W. Holmes is the leading manager. They have a house in No. 3 Otis place, where Mrs. H. [illegible] six days in the week, from nine o'clock till two, superintending the employment of a thousand women, three-fourths of whom belong to soldiers' families. They have secured a contract with the Government for soldiers' shirts, and they pay twice the sum given by other contractors for work, and in that way save institutions of families from starvation as well as worse calamities. The rooms serve also as a sewing school for adults, and the moral influence in many other respects is highly beneficial. Each woman receives a dollar's worth of work per week, and a hundred thousand shirts been made already.

"Great care is taken to supply the really needy. Some few do not accomplish the whole amount allowed, so that the expenditure reaches only $800 per week, of which four or five hundred must of course be supplied by friends who are interested in the soldier and in women who are eager to work. It is a temporary relief, which does not make pauperism but prevents it."—N. Y. Independent.

Mr W. E Gladstone Offered £120 A-Year.

A brusque but wealthy shipowner of Sunderland entered the London office of Mr. Lindsay on business, and, not finding that gentleman in, waited his arrival in a room, where a person was busily engaged in copying statistics. Our Sunderland friend paced the room several times, and after a while deliberately walked to the table where the occupant of the room was seated, and took careful note of the writer's doings. Shortly the copier looked up inquiringly, when the Northerner said, 'Thou writes a bonnie hand, thou dost.' 'I am glad you think so,' was the reply. 'Ah, thou dost; thou make thy figures weel; thou'rt just the chap I want.' 'Indeed,' said the Londoner. 'Yes, indeed,' said Sunderland; 'I'm a man of few words; noo, if thou'lt come ower to canny auld Sunderland, thou see'st, I'll gie thee a hundred and twenty pound year—and that's a plum thou dosn't meet wi' every day in thy life, I reckon—noo then?' The Londoner thanked the admirer of his persona ship most gratefully, and intimated that he would like to consult Mr. Lindsay upon the subject. 'Oh, that's reet,' said our honest friend; 'that's reet; all fair and above board with—[illegible] that's reet,' and he winked Mr. Lindsay, who cordially greeted his Sunderland friend after which the gentleman at the desk gravely rose and informed Mr. Lindsay of the handsome offer which had been made to him to enter the Sunderland shipowner's office. "Very well, sir, said Mr Lindsay, I should be sorry to stand in your way; £120 is more than I can at present afford to pay you in the department in which you are now placed; you will find my friend ——a good and kind master, and under the circumstances I think the sooner you know each other the better. Allow me, therefore, Mr. ——, to introduce you to the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone, her Majesty's Chancellor of the Exchequer." Mr. Gladstone had been engaged in making a note of some shipping returns for his budget. The Sunderland shipowner, you may be sure, was a little taken back at first, but he soon recovered his self-possession, and quite enjoyed the joke as well as Mr. Gladstone did.—Durham Advertiser.

As Susan was sitting alone with her spark, one wintry night, near old Hyde Park, the candle went out, and they sat in the dark. Now Sukey's beau was bent on a lark, and thought to kiss Miss Sue in the dark. But hush! A deep sound rises! Hark! Above the howling winds is a furious bark that strikes on the ear like the bite of a shark. 'Tis but the dog' quoth the amrous spark, and he kissed Miss Sue again but, hark! Again they hear that smothered bark, nearer, clearer, deadlier than the first bark, a chorus of barks, a din of barks. 'Its the children a-coughing' quoth Sue, and she lit the candle and got a bottle of Dawes' Elixir, and gave the children a tea-spoon-ful a-piece which put an end to the uproar like magic; and gave Sue and her beau a chance to spark in peace.

COTTON SUPPLY.—The most engrossing subject that now engages the public attention in England is the question of the supply of Cotton, it certainly is a very serious question, and we hope it will be settled satisfactorily—at any rate the people of Canada will have no difficulty in procuring a supply of the "Canadian Pain Destroyer" at 25 cents per Bottle, to cure their rheumatism, neuralgia, burns, sprains, and to remove all pain from the system directly it is applied. 25 cents per Bottle. Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

THE FEAR OF THE LORD IS THE BEGINNING OF WISDOM.—Such terror of the unseen is so far above mere sensual cowardice that it will annihilate that cowardice; it is the initial recognition of a moral law restraining desire, and checks the hard bold scrutiny of imperfect thoughts into obligations which can never be proved to have any sanctity in the absence of feeling. "It is good," sang the old Eumenides of Æschylus, "that fear should sit as the guardian of the soul, forcing it into wisdom—good that men should carry a threatening shadow in their hearts under the full sunshine, else how should they learn to revere the right?" The guardianship may become needless—only when duty and love have united in one stream and made a common force.—Romsle in the Cornhill Magazine.

The present condition of our navy, says the Richmond correspondent of the Southern Confederacy, would it with propriety be divulged; would thrill the Confederacy with joy. Prudential considerations, however, require that most of the Executive information on that subject should be communicated to Congress in secret session.

—When Lord Derby married the fascinating actress, Miss Farren, then playing at old Drury, of which Sheridan was lessee, he was said to have been mean enough to apply for the arrears of the lady's salary, to which Sheridan answered—"My dear lord, this is too bad; you have taken away from us the brightest jewel in the world and now you quarrel with us for a little of the dust she left behind her."

Mr. Sangster, author of a poem "The St. Lawrence and Saguency" has received an engagement on the Montreal Herald.

RELIEF IN TEN MINUTES.

BRYAN'S PULMONIC WAFERS.

The most certain and speedy remedy ever discovered for all Diseases of the Chest and Lungs, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Consumption, Bronchitis, Influenza, Hoarseness, Difficult breathing, Sore throat &c., &c.

THESE WAFERS give the most instantaneous and perfect relief and when persevered with according to directions, never fail to effect a rapid and lasting cure. Thousands have been restored to perfect health who have tried other means in vain. To all classes and all constitutions they are equally a blessing and a cure—none need despair, no matter how long the disease may have existed, or however severe it may be, provided the organic structure of the vital organs is not hopelessly decayed. Every one afflicted should give them an impartial trial.

To Vocalists and public Speakers, these Wafers are peculiarly valuable; they will in one day remove the most severe occasional hoarseness; and their regular use for a few days will at all times, increase the power and flexibility of the voice, greatly improving its tone compass and clearness, for which purpose they are regularly used by many professional vocalists

THE WORLD.

AN INDEPENDENT

Daily, Weekly and Semi-Weekly NEWSPAPER.

IN soliciting for another year a continuance and increase of the favor which in so short a period has grown to the World its present rank among American journals—a circulation, business patronage and influence equalled by other journals only after the effort of many years—we renew to our old and new subscribers the promise that no labor nor expense will be spared to make the World what it aims to be,

The Best Newspaper in America.

In politics, now as ever, the World is independent but never neutral. In only creed is a national one—of which are the corner stones.

The Union, the Constitution, and the Laws, and Freedom of Speech, of the Press, of Political Discussion and Action

The political events of the past year have notably demonstrated the need of an able, fearless outspoken, first-class

Conservative Journal,

in the commercial metropolis of the country, which shall give constant, bold and vigorous utterance to the conservative sentiments of the best men and the honest masses of the nation. Opposing every enemy to whether armed in rebellion at the South, or insidiously planting the seeds of disunion at the North.

The Union,

Opposing every violation of the Constitution,

the only bond and hope of union, the only ground upon which we can exhort and compel the allegiance of the South:

Opposing every infraction of

The Laws

in high places or in low, believing that obedience to Law is advice to Rulers.

Opposing every violation of the Freedom of Speech, of the Press, of Political Discussion and Action, by whomsoever those violations are committed, whether by the executive in its

Arbitrary, Illegal, and Unjust Arrests,

its refusal of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus, its denial of the rights and liberties of citizens, its arrest without warrant, its imprisonments without trial, its abrogation of state and federal laws, its illegal proclamation of an empty emancipation; or whether those violations are committed by the party in power, its orators and its presses, advocating measures which must sunder the Union for the sake of destroying slavery, and denouncing treason against all their political opponents.

Loyal to the government always, it will give to the administration a hearty and vigorous support whenever and wherever the administration itself is loyal to the bond, the principles, and the purity of the government.

The World will oppose all compromises which would barter away or divide the Union, for which alone the North is waging war; it will oppose peace itself, till the success of the war assures the permanence of peace, and will urge the prosecution of the war with an economy which has not hitherto governed its expenditures, and a vigor which the nation during a year has prayed for in vain.

The same care will be exercised over the columns of the World to exclude everything which could offend a pure, Christian morality, and recourse will always be had to the same high principles as well to guard its columns as to guide its judgment of men and events.

All the News

will be found in the columns of the World from the various departments of human activity,

Political, Agricultural, and Commercial, as well as in Literature, Science and Art.

New Publications, Inventions, Discoveries, and Works of Art will receive the same careful and thorough attention.

The latest and most important news from London, Paris, Turin, Rome, Syria, China, California, Japan, Egypt, and South America, our correspondents will send to us.

Our correspondents are attached to the various divisions of the army; will accompany them wherever they go, and by the free use of the telegraph and the mails, present in the columns of the World

A Complete History of the War,

from day to day, and from month to month.

In the Weekly and Semi-Weekly editions of the World, especially, large space will be given to

Agriculture,

and to all departments of

Manufacturing and Mechanical Industry.

The Weekly World will contain an admirable serial story during the current year

THE DAILY WORLD.

The Daily World is the most complete Commercial and News Paper published in America. Besides a full telegraph news, war correspondence, and foreign news, &c., as any two cent daily, it contains also much fuller commercial news, its Ship News, Produce, and Cattle Market reports, Foreign and Domestic Importations, Stock Lists, and Commercial news, no business man can do without.

TERMS (INVARIABLE IN ADVANCE):

One copy for one year, $8.
Four copies for one year, $30.
For a club of ten copies an extra copy will be sent for one year.

THE SEMI-WEEKLY WORLD.

The Semi-Weekly World is a large quarto sheet, same size as the daily, containing all its news, correspondence, miscellany and editorials, its commercial and market news, and entertaining selections and miscellaneous reading. Its cattle market and provision reports make it highly valuable to every farmer.

Poetry.

"Counting Baby."

The age has given birth to a variety of poetry, patriotic, humorous, and pathetic, descriptive of the spirit and varied impressions of the times. A volume could be filled with the productions of the day would prove a rich contribution to the philosophy of the present. I found, lately, a touching specimen of the unknown poets contributing to the Philadelphia Bulletin, elicited by an affecting scene in one of the army hospitals. A brave boy of 16 years, belonging to a New England regiment, mortally wounded at Fredericksburg, and sent to the Patent-Office Hospital at Washington, was anxiously looking for the coming of his mother. As the hour approached and night grew dim, he entrusted a sympathetic lady, who was wiping the cold, clammy perspiration from his forehead, for the expected one; and with a smile of joy lighting up his pale face, whispered tenderly, "Is that mother?" "Then," says the writer, "drawing her towards him with all his feeble strength, he nestled his head in her arms like a sleeping infant, and thus died with the sweet word 'mother' on his quivering lips."

"IS THAT MOTHER?"

Is that mother bending o'er me,
As she sang the cradle hymn—
Kneeling there in tears before me!
Say, my sight is growing dim.

Comes she from the old home lowly,
Out among the northern hills,
To her last boy dying slowly,
Of war's battle wounds and ills?

Mother! oh, we bravely battled—
Battled till the day was done;
While the leaden hail-storm rattled—
Man to man and gun to gun.

But we failed—and I am dying—
Dying in my boyhood's years,—
There—no weeping—self-denying,
Noble deaths demand no tears!

Fold your arms again around me;
Press again my aching head;
Sing the lullaby you sang me—
Kiss me, mother, ere I'm dead.

Miscellaneous.

Consequence of Gambling.

In the year 184—, a number of individuals were arrested for keeping a gaming house on Chesnut street, near Independence Hall, Philadelphia. The counsel for the prosecution was sitting in his office one day, when a young man of genteel exterior and good address entered, and the following dialogue ensued:—

'I have been summoned to-morrow as a witness against ———, for keeping a gambling house. Unless it was absolutely necessary,' said he, as his agitation increased, 'I wish, sir you would not urge my attendance.'

'I don't know,' said the counsel, 'that the conviction will depend upon your testimony, but as you are an important witness, it may be necessary to bring you upon the stand.'

'My reasons for asking this favor are urgent,' said he, 'and the consequence of refusal may be fatal to my prosperity and the happiness of others.' He became more agitated, and at the request of a gentleman he continued. 'I am to be married to Mr ——'s daughter residing on Chesnut Street. The preparations are made and the day is fixed. If I am called upon as a witness in this case, I shall criminate myself, and be exposed to the eyes of my friends and the public gaze as a gambler. My character shall be lost, my prospects in life blighted, and of course my happiness destroyed.'

'You shall not be called, young man, said the counsel, 'unless it is absolutely necessary,' and with this assurance they separated not without some painful misgivings on the part of the legal gentleman that he was about to be accessory to a wrong which might result in the ruin of a confiding yet unsuspecting girl. The trial came on, but conviction was obtained without summoning the young man and he went on in his course of duplicity and crime without being exposed. In a few days he married.

Two years passed, and a young but heart-broken wife appears before a legal tribunal seeking a divorce. Her counsel was in the greatest degree startled, at discovering, confronting the wife, the indentical young man who pleaded not to be exposed as a gambler. The interview with the witness instantly occurred to the counsel's mind. The painful incident, of a deserted wife, and the cruelties which had followed his gambling habits, then came up in fearful array before the individual who had saved him from his merited exposure.

The trial proceeded, and a gradual succession of acts of injustice, neglect, coldness and alienation, domestic discord and cruelties on the part of the husband against a confiding and affectionate young wife were disclosed which melted the heart of the coldest spectator. His defence was feeble and her cause triumphed. Happily she was liberated from the monster who had wounded her, destroyed her peace, and deprived her of that happiness which beamed upon her so joyously during the morning of her bridal day.

His fate hardly need even be briefly told. He soon lost the esteem of friends, of the gambler has friends, and his credit followed with his reputation. His fashionable establishment on Chestnut street was closed by the sheriff a few weeks since, and recently he has been arrested for forgery. What a brief but melancholy detail of the fruits reaped from the pursuits of the gamester!—Philadelphia Paper.

WHAT HE CHEWS AND WHAT IT COSTS.—If a man during fifty years, chews every day two inches of rolled plug tobacco (and millions do it) it will amount at the end of that time to nine thousand three hundred and sixty-six feet, or a mile and a quarter of tobacco, half an inch thick and two inches broad, and will cost $1,500.

UNION SCHOOL EXHIBITION.

The Annual Exhibition of this excellent Institution came off on Thursday evening, the 2nd inst. The attendance was very large,—the large Lecture Room of the building being filled to excess, and many were forced to stand around the doors, to their great discomfort. The Room was very tastefully decorated with evergreens, paintings and pictures; also, with artificials, in the most profuse and elegant style. On one side, neatly wrought in wreaths of evergreens, were the words, "Labor omnia vincit" and just over the stage and behind the seat of the Principal, the emblem of hope and the word "Hope" wrought on it in letters of unsullied white, and over this best was a large picture of Her Majesty our beloved Queen. To one side of the stage hung the flag that "has braved the battle and the breeze" of so many centuries. The whole manifested evident tokens of the skill of those Lady Teachers and larger female Pupils who prepared the various wreaths and ornaments pendent every where through the Hall. At half past seven, as per bills, the Principal, Mr. Dunn, appeared on the stage, where the eager crowd calmed a little, and the evening's entertainments commenced by Miss Kennedy's class singing some very appropriate pieces,—one of which "The Ocean Boy," we do not but be appreciated by all present. They then moved gracefully away, and thus made room for others.

It would be a labor to make even a passing remark on the pieces, or those engaged in the Exhibition. They acquitted themselves cleverly in every instance, and proved conclusively that unwearied attention must have been given to them by the Principal, whose unceasing labors in his duties his assistants all affirm,—and no better evidence of skill and care could be given than the marked progress of those engaged these last exhibitions—this last one by far exceeding the previous ones. At no period of the history of the Union School was it in a more flourishing or promising condition. We cannot forbear, however, referring to some of the subjects of the evening. The Instrumental Music, under the care of Mr. Philp, who we understand is a very successful Teacher, and the Vocal, under Miss Kyle (to whom the Principal in his closing address gave great praise for the interest she had taken in the Exhibition and other matters of the School) added very much to the pleasures of the evening; and, judging from the musical talents and acquirements exhibited, Peterborough can compare favorably with any of her sister towns.

In recitation of single pieces we marked the clear and distinct manner of enunciation, the entire absence of prompting, and the graceful appearance of our future orators. The dialogues were long yet not wearying, as the audience evinced no uneasiness, but all appeared highly pleased with the rich entertainment. I think the lesson afforded from the School Master or "All for Good Order," should leave a lasting impression. And the Moderate Drinker was well calculated to exhibit the pernicious habit of taking a Nobbler, as even that little hardens and blunts every kind feeling or generous affection.

We cannot refrain from the conviction that the whole was a decided success, and we hope that the good people of Peterboro will see that it is their duty to aid the present very efficient staff of Teachers in their very onerous labor; and then render the Institution what its first approachings the glory of the Town and County of Peterborough.—Com.

British Operatives' Relief Fund.

From the attention published last week, it appears that the handsome sum of $340 has been received by the Treasurer. The Committee, and especially the Rev. Chairman, Rev. Mr. Chesnut, deserves the thanks of the entire community, for their zeal and diligence in managing this laudable charity. The balance on hand was ordered to be forwarded to the Lord Mayor of London.

Wm. Hamel, charged on Saturday last with stealing a Kingston paper, the property of Dr. Rankin, of Peterboro, has pleaded guilty to the charge. He has received a suitable punishment at Queen's College in Kingston. Educational Column.

"Knowledge is Power."

Elementary Branches.

Teachers cannot pay too much attention to the elementary branches. Scholars well instructed in the beginning of their scholastic studies, will make much more rapid progress and be much less trouble to their teachers, than those who are allowed to skim over, as it were, in elementary branches—(for the purpose of getting on. They get on, but it is like going up a slippery hill, when they once get near the top, they often slip and topple down again. This is too true; every day experience confirms it. Besides, no amount of after studies can entirely overcome and make up for the defects of earlier years. Let teachers neglect to make their pupils good spellers when they are young, and ten chances to one they will remain bad spellers to the end of life. So, too, with other studies. Teachers, don't neglect the elements. Be satisfied with moderate progress. Let your motto be, not "how much," but "how well."

Children are not automatons, though some teachers seem to think they are. They have intellect and reason more than they get credit for. Their minds, to be sure, are not matured; but their grasp of intellect is not so insignificant as to be ignored. On the contrary, on trial, it will be found their their perceptions are more keen and the conclusion more clear, than those of more advanced years. Teachers ought, therefore, to be less mechanical and more intellectual in their teaching. No hot-bed forcing, but gradual developing of the intellect should be the object aimed at.

How many become teachers without once thinking of the responsibility they are thereby assuming. The ranks of the profession are crowded with numbers of this class. They become teachers; why? simply, we fear, because they find it the easiest way of "getting on," as the phrase is. Now, "getting on" is legitimate enough in itself, so long as an injury is done to others; but getting on to the detriment of others is quite a different matter. Those who rush into teaching because they cannot succeed in anything else, are inflicting a tremendous injury upon the nation generally, and in particular upon the young committed to them. They are generally as intellectually disqualified as they are morally unfit, for the duties which they so boldly and recklessly undertake to discharge. But such teachers there are, and such teachers, too, find employment, when those better qualified in every respect, are not nearly as successful. The reason of this: they can be had at any price. And there are people who don't care much about what a teacher is, or what he can do, so long as he can be engaged at the smallest possible life-sustaining price. Foolish men! little do they realize what they are doing. Nothing is calculated to retard a country's progress in what elevates, ennobles and refines, than neglecting the interests of the young. Teachers should be highly educated, moral in the deportment, and even enthusiastic in their profession. A little enthusiasm is very much wanted in our teachers—perhaps if there was a little more among them there would be more interest among the pupils and parents.

Peterborough, 8th April, 1863.

Sir,—I am a young lady. I am still in my teens. Indeed, I am not so far in my teens as some imagine. I am glad to see that an educational column has been opened in the Examiner, and certainly hope that it may prove successful. I have long thought it highly desirable that we scholars as well as our older and graver teachers should have an opportunity of once in a while communicating with the public. I, for one, though my requirements in general literature and womish lore, are but very great, will most assuredly feel myself stimulated to greater exertions to get up something good enough to be penned. One likes to see himself (or herself) in print. I will feel quite proud if I see this letter of mine, poor as it is, in your column, if you can find room for it. I hope some of my young friends follow my example. They like myself, may not do very well at first, but they must remember, "Labor omnia vincit," one of the mottoes, by the way, I saw it at the Union School Exhibition the other night. Indeed, I think, we girls should avail ourselves of every opportunity to improve and educate ourselves; more so than even the other sex. To us, who have to earn our own livelihood, there are but few avenues of so doing open up. To the other sex their are many. The few women has ought to be improved. She may work by her hands or head, but the woman that earns her living by her hands has a life of toil before her, and it is but poorly remunerated—it is not so when she does so by her intellectual exertions. She may, in this respect do as well as many of the "lords of creation." Now all may not need to exert themselves, but all should be able—if the hour of need should ever come. It pains me to think how many of my own sex in this flourishing Town, about my own age, that think themselves too "large," too "accomplished," or too "something of the sort" to take advantage, like I am doing of the opportunity of improving themselves, which the educational facilities in our midst afford them, especially when—don't accuse me of egotism—I am sure they are no better scholars than I am, nor—no matter—and I am sometimes ashamed to think how very little I know.

Wishing the educational column every success, allow me to sign myself

AGATHA.

Death of a very Old Man.—Died, in Rocky Hill, March 16, Solomon Murray (colored), aged 117 years. Murray was at one time in the English naval service, and was taken prisoner on an English man-of-war during the war of 1812. Soon after being released he came to Rocky Hill, where he continued to reside up to the time of his death. He was a man of powerful frame, muscular and well developed; very good natured and friendly toward everybody, and much attached to his friends and acquaintances. His wife died several years since, at the age of 90, we believe. They had no children. Up to within a few years Murray supported himself chiefly by daily labor for farmers. When in his prime, he could mow a great lot or cut a big pile of wood in a day. He was fond of hunting, and while his eyesight held good he could bag his game on the wing, with an old flint lock, as surely as most of our modern sportsmen can do it with [illegible]. Jno. Running the Blockade.

The following is an extract from a letter dated Nassau, New Providence, January 8. "I am about to try and run the blockade into Charleston, and, if successful I shall go to the front and see the Confederate army, near Richmond, and what else I may of the country. I obtained a passage from England in the screw steamer Calypso, intended to run the blockade at Charleston. I have had a rough time of it. We called at Madeira to coal, and there found the notorious Tuscarora, with which we had an exciting night's work. When we came into Funchal, we did not notice that there was a Federal sloop of war there. We took her for a Frenchman and anchored right under her stern. We heard ashore that the captain of the Tuscarora was determined to capture the Calypso and send her to New York. There were two other steamers at Madeira belonging to the same firm as the Calypso, and also intended to run the blockade, and the chances were, the Tuscarora would "nobble" one of them. One steamer got away on the evening of the 26th ult., and the Tuscarora remained at her anchorage, letting the smaller fish go.—We kept on coaling and taking on water until dark, and getting up steam at the same time. About 11 o'clock a man was sent up to blow the most head lamp out. We slipped our anchor and 75 fathoms of chain, which had been previously buoyed, and arranged so as to bring the steamer's head round, when we cut the rope and away we went without clearance or custom-house permit or anything, and it is not permitted at Madeira for a ship to leave in the night. The fort did not wake up in time to fire at us, which we fully expected they would have done; but although taken by surprise, within ten minutes or a quarter of an hour, the Tuscarora had slipped cable, and was after us full speed. All the time we were there Tuscarora lay with steam up and a slip on her cable. The Tuscarora fired a blank gun as soon as she left her anchorage, to arouse the fort, I suppose, partly, and to call us to stop and as a warning of what was coming. We kept on as hard as we could, but the wretched funnel showed the cruiser our course by a great flame. Bang, bang, pang, went the shot and shell from the Tuscarora as she overhauled us hand over fist. She is uncommonly fast, and beat our craft all to nothing. We thought it was all up. One shot passed right under our stern, and the last, a shell from his 11 inch Dahlgren, went in a straight line over us, and luckily fell in the water, without bursting, just ahead. All the sailors except two men at the wheel hid themselves below—I am sorry to say so, but they did. Our Captain, who was as cool as a cucumber, managed to give the Tuscarora the slip by stopping, which at once prevented by any flame, and then edging away gently. Some black clouds and a squall of rain came just then, most luckily, from the eastward. The Tuscarora lost sight of us, and rushed on in the course we had been steaming, while we doubled back again to the land, and, skirting it, got away around the island. The other vessel taking advantage of our being chased, got away unmolested, taking the same course as ourselves. I think the captain and officers of the Yankee must have been terribly mortified to have been 'done' by three English merchant vessels, the Tuscarora being one of the fastest screw men of war in their navy. I do not want to see her again, or hear the 'ping' of her Deldgren shell; the last which she favoured us with came altogether too close. I was employed holding up a plaid behind the binnacle light, and my arms were perfectly tired before I got a sailor to relieve me. Next week we shall leave for our attempt at Charleston, which is much more serious work, for they have, we hear, 24 vessels blockading the port and anchored in a semi-circle close to the several channels. We can hardly expect to get in (if we escape the cruisers the inside) without a good hammering. There was another passenger from England, a Southerner, but we has left the Calypso, as he doesn't think she is fit to run the blockade. I do not think she is myself, being too large, drawing too much water, and her engines not being in a perfect order, and she is not the fast boat she is represented to be; but I will stick to her, and take my chance. It will be exciting work."

Appropriations by Congress and the National Debt.—The Tribune is responsible for the following figures. It gives the sums appropriated by the last Congress thus:

At Extra Session, July 1861	$264,000,000
At Long Session, terminating July 17, 1862	913,000,000
At Short Session, ending March 4, 1863	1,100,000,000
Total	$2,277,000,000

Twenty-two hundred and seventy-seven millions in two years is an enormous sum, of money, actually, beyond comprehension, for when we talk of so many millions we do not realize it more than we do in talking of the distance to the fixed stars. The total valuation of the real and personal property of the entire country in 1860, was sixteen thousand million dollars, of which ten or twelve thousand millions was in the Slave States. These appropriations, therefore are about one fifth of the total valuation; and that fact will in a time go to prove the patriotism of the people of this generation. They are ready to sacrifice all they have for the preservation of the country; and the country is worth all the property in it, and all the lives of all the people added thereto, for it were better it should be returned to a howling wilderness as it was when the first settlers reached these shores than reduced to another Mexico.

A frightful murder was committed last week at Bay settlement, some twelve miles north of Green Bay, Wis. The Victim was an honest old blacksmith, named Peter Van Den. On Sunday morning he was found dead, having been strangled. In the kitchen, where the deed was committed, the tables, chairs, &c., were knocked about generally, showing that he had struggled manfully for his life. It is thought that a son and son-in-law of his are the guilty ones. The murdered man was soon to be married, and all his property to be deeded to his second wife; to prevent this being done, the man was murdered.

A Disgusting Habit.—The Grand Rapids Eagle says he wouldn't mind the high price of wood so much if all his neighbors hadn't taken to the disgusting habit of locking their woodhouse doors at night.

A Good Receipt.—In these degenerate days, when the practice spoken of in the following puzzle has fallen into disuse, we cannot do better than recommend those of our readers who wish to remain handsome in their old age to "go and do likewise." They will find the receipt a first rate one:

They chase I amb Anshom eye T,

Serious Rioting in Cork.

Cork, Wednesday, March 11.—Owing to placards, with which the city walls were found covered on Sunday morning, denouncing the rejoicings which were proclaimed to take place yesterday and the illuminations last night, there was cogent reason to anticipate that the day would not terminate without scenes of outrage; and such it is to be regretted have taken place, much to the disgrace of the locality. All the placards were insulting to royalty, and one of them was personally offensive to the chief magistrate, John F. Maguire, Esq., M.P., inciting the rabble to assault him. These documents, it is known, were the production of some of the leaders of a small section in this city, who have dubbed themselves Nationalists. To protect the city from the threatened outrage, the constabulary here was reinforced by a large body from the county; and a party of military. In the early hours of yesterday but few shops were opened in the principal streets, and everything bore the appearance of a general holiday until towards noon, when it was publicly stated that any Roman Catholic who kept his place of business closed would have his windows smashed that night, which caused a number of people to become alarmed, and they removed their shutters. Matters proceeded quietly during the day, and in the evening the illuminations were more general than were expected. The streets were thronged with respectable citizens on foot and in vehicles, and all seemed to enjoy the treat provided for them. However, about ten o'clock a spirit of insubordination began to be exhibited, and the peaceably disposed left the streets, which were then at the mercy of lawless mobs. Shortly after window smashing commenced, and was carried out most destructively for some hours. The Mayor and authorities, with the police, became unequal to the duty imposed on them. His worship was knocked down, and several of the police were severely wounded with stones. Bayonet-charges were made during the night, and it is understood many of the rioters were summarily punished. Windows, however, were demolished in some forty of the principal houses, and some of the largest plates of glass in the city have been destroyed. Amongst the principal houses attacked were the City Club, Commercial Buildings, Imperial, Victoria, Hibernian, and Commercial Hotels; the drapery establishments of Fitzgibbon and Co., and Carmichael and Co., the establishments of Messrs. Cook and Dyas and Hannan, the residence of the Crown Solicitor (S. Gillman, Esq.), the National Bank of Ireland, and a large number of other establishments. The manner of assault was so conducted that but few arrests were made. But the most disgraceful outrages that were committed during the night were attacks made on carriages conveying ladies to a ball given in the military barracks by the officers of the garrison. Stones were flying at several of these vehicles as they passed through the city, and, in some instances, the occupants were struck. One lady, the daughter of our respected fellow-citizen, Dr. Lyons, M.P., was struck by a stone in the forehead, which was flung through the glass window of the carriage. The feeling of disgust which these outrages have awakened is very generally expressed throughout the city this day, and a general desire is declared that every means be adopted to punish the instigators of these outrages, which have so disgraced the community.—Dublin Advertiser.

As Susan was sitting alone with her spark, one wintry night, near old Hyde Park, the candle went out, and they sat in the dark. Now Sukey's beau was bent on a lark, and thought to kiss Miss Sue in the dark. But hush! A deep sound rises! Hark! Above the howling winds is a furious bark that strikes on the ear like the bite of a shark. 'Tis but the dog' quoth the amorous spark, and he kissed Miss Sue again but, hark! Again they hear that smothered bark, nearer, clearer, deadlier than the first bark, a chorus of barks, a din of barks. 'Its the children a-coughing' quoth Sue, and she lit the candle and got a bottle of Downs' Elixir, and gave the children a tea-spoon-ful a-piece which put an end to the uproar like magic; and gave Sue and her beau a chance to spark in peace.

Price 25 cts. Sold everywhere.

THE WORLD.

AN INDEPENDENT

Political, Family and Commercial

NEWSPAPER.

THE publishing for another year a paper of such an interesting character and large circulation as has been given to the World its present rapid success. America journals—as a reporter, business patronage and influence—regarded by either Democrats or Republicans as the organ of party—no reason to our old and new subscribers to suppose that no labor nor expense will be spared to make the World what it aims to be,

The Best Newspaper in America.

In politics, now as ever, the World is independent but never neutral. Its only creed is a national one—that of truth.

The Union, the Constitution, and the Laws, and Freedom of Speech, of the Press, of Political Discussion and Action are the corner stones.

The political events of the past year have notably demonstrated the need of an able, fearless outspoken, first-class

Conservative Journal,

in the commercial metropolis of the country, which shall give a bold and vigorous utterance to the conservative sentiments of the people as to the proper means of the nation. Opposing a

Union,

whether armed in rebellion at the South, or insidiously planting the seeds of disunion at the North.

Opposing every violation of the Constitution,

the only bond and hope of union, the only ground upon which we can exhort and compel the allegiance of the South:

Opposing every infraction of

The Laws

in high places or in low, believing that obedience to law is service to God:

Opposing every violation of the Freedom of Speech, of the Press, of Political Discussion and Action, by whomsoever those violations are committed, whether by the executive in its

Arbitrary, Illegal, and Unjust Arrests

its refusal of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus, its denial of the rights and liberties of citizens, its arrest without warrant, its imprisonment without trial, its abrogation of state and federal laws, its illegal proclamation of an empty emancipation, or whether those violations are committed by the party in power, its partizans and its presses, advocating measures which must sunder the Union for the sake of destroying slavery, and denouncing treason against all they proclaim opponents.

Loyal to the government always, it will give to the administration a hearty and vigorous support wherever and whenever the administration finds itself at variance with the principles, and the purity of the government.

The World will oppose all compromises which would barter away or divide the Union, for which alone the North is waging war; it will oppose peace itself, till the success of the war has won the permanence of peace, and will urge the prosecution of the war with an economy which has not hitherto governed its expenditures, and a vigor which the nation during a year has prayed for in vain.

The same care will be exercised over the columns of the World to exclude everything which could offend a pure, Christian morality, and recourse will always be had to the same high principles as well to guard its columns as to guide its judgment of men and events.

All the News

will be found in the columns of the World from the various departments of human activity,

Political, Agricultural, and Commercial, as well as in Literature, Science and Art.

New Publications, Inventions, Discoveries, and Works of Art will receive the same careful and thorough attention.

The latest and most important news from London, Paris, Turin, Rome, Syria, China, California, Japan, Egypt, and South America, our correspondents will send to us.

Our correspondents are attached to the various divisions of the army; will accompany them wherever they go, and by the free use of the telegraph and the mails, present in the columns of the World

A Complete History of the War,

from day to day, and from month to month.

In the Weekly and Semi-Weekly editions of the World especially large space will be given to

EMPLOYMENT.

THE Undersigned has, for several years past, been engaged in a business, which has yielded him at the rate of three thousand dollars per annum, and is now willing to teach it to others. The business is of a highly useful and general character, adapted both to cities and villages, and one that any person of ordinary energy, young or old, male or female, can acquire with a few hours' practice, and by which they can secure a very handsome income. Several young ladies who have received instructions from me, both in New York state and Pennsylvania, are earning upwards of $15 per week by it, and there is no reason why any one else cannot do the same. Invalids, even, can do well by it, as it is no peddling affair, but a business that is perfectly respectable. Gentlemen and ladies of leisure who would like to learn the business for their own amusement or pleasure, will find the practice of it a pleasant pastime, and the best method to take great interest in. On receipt of $1, I will send printed instructions by which any person can readily acquire the art, and these instructions will also contain every particular relative to the carrying it on so that it will be highly profitable. The purchaser of the "printed instructions" will also be authorized to teach it to others, and I have sometimes received as high as $200, for teaching it personally to a single individual. I would add further that $5,000 or $6,000 per annum, nothing that is necessary to commence the business with, and the articles can be got almost anywhere, in any country, as if perfectly good, I can furnish them. ANNUAL MEETING

OF THE DIRECTION AND DECLARATION OF BONUS.

THE thirty-sixth annual Meeting of this Company was held within the Royal Hotel, Aberdeen on Friday, the 10th April.

Alexander Stronach, Esq., of Drumallan, Chairman of the Ordinary Directors, in the Chair. There were submitted to the meeting—

1.—Report by the Directors, which on the motion of the Chairman was cordially and unanimously approved of and adopted.

2.—The Balance Sheet for the past year, with detailed items relative thereto, duly certified as required in terms of the Act of Incorporation, by the Chairman and Manager, and also by the Auditor.

There was also laid on the Table the various Valuation States in connection with the Quinquennial Investigation into the state of the Company's affairs, as at 31st January, 1863.

The following particulars derived from the Balance Sheet and States before-mentioned, show the result of the operations of the Company for the past year:—

Amount proposed for Life Assurance during the year, contained in 1189 Proposal	£454,835 0 0
Amount of Proposals accepted, and for which 981 Policies were issued	359,980 0 0
ANNUAL PREMIUMS on said Policies	11,170 1 0
CLAIMS BY DEATHS including BONUSES on PARTICIPATION POLICIES, and after deducting sums recovered from other Offices under guarantees	26,989 1 0
TOTAL SUM assumed under 4,150 current LIFE POLICIES	1,955,95 0 0
TOTAL ACCUMULATED FUNDS	313,563 3 2
TOTAL ANNUAL REVENUE	90,750 4 4

With reference to the recent investigation into the state of the Company's affairs, as at 31st January last, the Report States that both the principles of valuation and the details thereof, had been submitted to James John Downer, Esq., Actuary to the Economic Life Office in London, a gentleman as well known as one of the highest authorities on such subjects in the kingdom, and had received his entire approval, as having been made on just and sound principles, and accurately carried out as certified in his reports to the Directors, which formed part of the Appendix to their Report. This step the Directors considered could not fail to give the utmost confidence—both to the shareholders and the Policyholders—in the soundness and correctness of the valuation.

During the Quinquennial period, the claims by death, including the bonus additions which had been paid, and which had been consistently with the results of the valuations, were considerably less than had been expected from the Mortality Tables on which the Office rates are based, amounting to £63,975 to 6d.

In valuing the Policies, each had been separately calculated, and nett premiums laid only been used, thus leaving a surplus of annual revenue of £11,437 1s 7d., to meet future expenses and to form a source of profit for next investigation. The total amount of claims by death paid since the commencement of the Company, was £317,921 4s

The Securities held by the Company were in a satisfactory position, and had been recently carefully scrutinised in detail by the Directors.

In conclusion, the Directors congratulated both the Proprietors and the Assured on the high position which the Company now occupied in the estimation of the public, and on the encouraging prospect of its business operations for the future.

DECLARATION OF BONUS.

From the profits realised on the Life business, a retrospective Bonus of £1 7s 6d per cent per annum for the Quinquennial period was declared, on the sums originally assured under all Participating Policies, increased by the previous additions thereto; also a further prospective Bonus of £1 per cent per annum, on the amount of the Policies with said Bonuses, on all such of said Policies as may become claims by Death previously to the 31st January, 1867.

It will be observed, that this rate of Bonus is equivalent in the case of our older Policies to £1 14s per cent per annum on the original sum assured; that the total additions to the sum assured, now vest, are equal to 35 per cent on the sum assured; and that as the younger ages the additions amount to upwards of 75 per cent of the premiums paid.

Statement showing the Progress of the Company's Business during the Quinquennial Period, ending 31st January, 1863:

Year ending 31st January.	Amounts proposed for Assurance.	Amount of New Policies Issued.	No. of Policies Issued.	New Annual Premiums.	Total Revenue in each year.	Accumulated Funds.
1859	£189,500	£126,180	433	356	£3,988 18 0	£60,706 11 10	£216,556 9 2
1860	206,305	169,171	540	477	5,493 1 6	65,701 5 8	267,134 3 4

1861	348,618	270,746	938	736	7,791 17 6	81,580 7 5	334,896 11 0
1863	446,535	359,620	1189	981	11,170 1 1	90,750 4 4	313,563 3 2
Totals	£1,459,158	£1,131,917	3909	3196	£35,431 14 6	£1,527,356 15 6

Votes of thanks were passed to the Directors and Office-bearers of the Company at Head-Offices and Branches, and after a very hearty vote of thanks to the Chairman for his conduct in the Chair, the meeting was dissolved.

FINKLE & LYON

SEWING MACHINE COMPANY,

638 Broadway, New York.

TWO parts little acquainted with the Finkle & Lyon Sewing Machine the careful pursuer of the Company's Circular is specially commended. The circular can be had on application. It is very specific, and will be found highly instructive, having been prepared with much care and we will abide by all statements therein made.

The following brief quotation is characteristic of the entire Circular:

"This Machine is better adapted than any other Sewing Machine in market to the frequent changes and almost endless variety of sewing required in a family, for it will sew from one to twenty thicknesses of Marseilles without stopping, and make every stitch perfect. Whether from the finest gauze to the heaviest cloth, and even the slightest buttonet leather, without changing the feed needle or tension, or making any adjustment of machine whatever."

Nine have we successfully overcome the most difficult point in the Sewing Machine art. It was no ordinary triumph. Defiantly can we now say, "No other Machine compares with it in this respect." Hence, may we not, in almost without exception—taken the highest premium, whenever the Machine has been practically exhibited in competition with other first class Sewing Machines. Hence it is that we are able to offer the following guarantee, viz.:—"We warrant every Machine we sell to give perfect satisfaction than any other Sewing Machine in the market, or money refunded." We never sell a Machine on any other terms. The guarantee is as reliable as the note of any business man in the land. For more than five years have we relied upon such facts for the reputation of our Machines; and, without a single unsatisfactory case on the field, there is scarcely a neighborhood on the continent where the Machine is not favourably known. We prefer such a reputation than to be called upon "making points," as they are technically called in the trade. Hence we make but one kind of stitch, viz., the lock-stitch, alike on both sides, requiring only one-third the thread of other kinds of stitches.

N.B.—Local Agents wanted in every county throughout the West. ☞ Special inducements offered.

THE WORLD.

AN INDEPENDENT

[illegible]

ANNOUNCES.

In submitting the number of a contemporaneous and increase of the forces which in its short a period has grown to the World its present rank among American journals—a circulation, business patronage and influence equalled by other journals only after the effort of many years—we reserve to our old and new subscribers the promise that no labor nor expense will be spared to make the World what it aims to be,

The Best Newspaper in America.

In politics, now as ever, the World is independent but never neutral. Its only creed is a national one—of which are the corner stones.

The Union, the Constitution, and the Laws, and Freedom of Speech, of the Press, of Political Discussion and Action

The political events of the past year have notably demonstrated the need of an able, fearless outspoken, first-class

Conservative Journal,

in the commercial metropolis of the country, which shall give consistent, bold and vigorous utterance to the conservative sentiments of the great mass and the loyal support of the nation. Opposing every speedy to

The Union,

whether armed in rebellion at the South, or insidiously planting the seeds of disunion at the North.

Opposing every violation of the Constitution,

the only bond and hope of union, the only ground upon which we can exhort and compel the allegiance of the South:

Opposing every infraction of

The Laws

in Utah, always on its low, believing that obedience to Law is service to God:

Opposing every violation of the Freedom of Speech, of the Press, of Political Discussion and Action, by whomsoever those violations are committed, whether by the executive in its

Arbitrary, Illegal, and Unjust Arrests

its refusal of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus, its denial of the rights and liberties of citizens, its arrest without warrant, its imprisonment without trial, its abrogation of state and federal laws, its illegal proclamation of an empty emancipation, or whether those violations are committed by the party in power, its orators and its presses, advocating measures which must sunder the Union for the sake of destroying slavery, and denouncing treason against all their political opponents.

Loyal to the government always, it will give to the administration a hearty and vigorous support whenever and wherever the administration itself is loyal to the bond, the principles, and the purity of the government.

The World will oppose all compromises which would barter away or divide the Union, for which alone the North is waging war; it will oppose peace itself, till the success of the war has given the preponderance of peace, and will urge the prosecution of the war with an economy which has not hitherto governed its expenditures, and a vigor which the nation during a year has prayed for in vain.

The same care will be exercised over the columns of the World to exclude everything which could offend a pure, Christian morality, and recourse will always be had in the same high principles as well to guard its columns as to guide its judgment of men and events.

All the News

will be found in the columns of the World from the various departments of human activity,

Political, Agricultural, and Commercial, as well as in Literature, Science and Art.

New Publications, Inventions, Discoveries, and Works of Art will receive the same careful and thorough attention.

The latest and most important news from London, Paris, Turin, Rome, Syria, China, California, Japan, Egypt, and South America, our correspondents will send to us.

Our correspondents are attached to the various divisions of the army; will accompany them wherever they go, and by the free use of the telegraph and the mails, present in the columns of the World

A Complete History of the War,

from day to day, and from month to month.

In the Weekly and Semi-Weekly editions of the World, specially large space will be given to

EMPLOYMENT.

THE Undersigned has, for several years past, been engaged in a business, which has yielded him at the rate of three thousand dollars per annum, and is now willing to teach it to others. The business is of a highly useful and general character, adapted both to cities and villages, and one that any person of ordinary capacity, young or old, male or female, can acquire with a few hours' practice, and by which they can secure a very handsome income. Several young ladies who have received instructions from me, both in New York State and Pennsylvania, are earning upwards of $15 per week by it, and there is no reason why any one else cannot do the same. Invalids, even, can do well by it, as it is no peddling affair, but a business that is perfectly respectable. Gentleman and ladies of leisure who would like to learn the business for their own amusement or pleasure, will find the practice of it a pleasant pastime, and one that they will take great interest in. On receipt of $1, I will send printed instructions by which any person can readily acquire the art, and these instructions will also contain every particular relative to the carrying it on so that it will be highly profitable. The purchaser of the "printed instructions" will also be authorized to teach it to others; and I have sometimes received as high as $200, for teaching it personally to a single individual. I would state further that $150 or $3 will buy everything that is necessary to commence the business with, and the articles can be got almost anywhere, in city or country, or if preferred, I can furnish them. ANNUAL MEETING

INVESTIGATION REPORT DECLARATION OF BONUS.

THE thirty-sixth annual Meeting of this Company was held within the Royal Hotel, Aberdeen on Friday, the 18th April.

Alexander Stronach, Esq., of Drumallan, Chairman of the Ordinary Directors, in the Chair.

There were submitted to the meeting—

1.—Report by the Directors, which, on the motion of the Chairman, was cordially and unanimously approved of and adopted.

2.—The Balance Sheet for the past year, with detailed states relative thereto, duly certified as correct, in terms of the Act of Incorporation, by the Chairman and Manager, and also by the Auditor.

There was also laid on the Table the various Valuation States in connection with the Quinquennial Investigation into the state of the Company's affairs, as at 31st January, 1862.

The following particulars derived from the Balance Sheet and States beforementioned, show the result of the operations of the Company for the past year:—

Amount proposed for Life Assurance during the year, contained in 1189 Proposal £454,835 0 0
Amount of Proposals accepted, and for which 961 Policies were issued..... 259,080 0 0
ANNUAL PREMIUMS on said Policies..... 11,170 1 0
CLAIMS BY DEATH including BONUSES on PARTICIPAT ON POLICIES, and after deducting sums reserved from other Offices under guarantees..... 28,989 1 0
TOTAL SUM Assured under 4,159 current LIFE POLICIES..... 1,955,95 0 0
TOTAL ACCUMULATED FUNDS..... 373,563 3 2
TOTAL ANNUAL REVENUE..... 90,786 4 4

With reference to the recent investigation into the state of the Company's affairs, as at 31st January last, the Report States that both the principles of valuation and the details thereof, had been submitted to James John Downes, Esq., Actuary to the Equitable Life Office in London, a gentleman well known as one of the highest authorities on such subjects in the kingdom, and had received his cert to approval, as having been made on just and sound principles, and accurately carried out as certified in his report to the Directors, which formed part of the Appendix to their Report. This step the Directors considered could not fail to give the utmost confidence—both to the shareholders and the Policy holders—in the soundness and correctness of the valuation.

During the Quinquennial period, the claims by death, including the bonus additions which had been paid, and which had been commercially under the usual [illegible] from the Mortality Tables on which the Office rates are based, amounting to £128,975 0s 6d.

In valuing the Policies, each had been separately calculated, and nett premiums had only been used, thus leaving a surplus of annual revenue of £11,427 16s 7d., to meet future expenses and to form a source of profit for next investigation. The total amount of claims by death paid since the commencement of the Company, was £221,921 4s.

The Securities held by the Company were in a satisfactory position, and had been recently carefully scrutinised in detail by the Directors.

In consequence, the Directors congratulated both the Proprietors and the Assured on the high position which the Company now occupied in the estimation of the public, and on the encouraging prospect of its business operations for the future.

DECLARATION OF BONUS.

From the profits realised on the Life business, a retrospective Bonus of £1 1s 6d per cent per annum for the Quinquennial period was declared, on the sums originally assured under all Participating Policies, increased by the previous additions thereto; also a further prospective Bonus of £1 per cent per annum, on the amount of the Policies with said Bonuses, on all such of said Policies as may become claims by Death previously to the 31st January, 1867.

It will be observed, that this rate of Bonus is equivalent in the case of our older Policies to £1 14s per cent per annum on the original sum assured; that the total additions to the sum assured, now vest d, are equal to 32 per cent on the sum assured: and that as the younger ages the additions amount to upwards of 75 per cent of the premiums paid.

Statement showing the Progress of the Company's Business during the Quinquennial Period, ending 31st January, 1862:

Year ending 31st January	Amounts proposed for Assurance.	Amount of New Policies issued.	No. of Policies	New Annual Premiums.	Total Revenue in each year.	Accumulated Funds.

FINKLE & LYON

SEWING MACHINE COMPANY,

538 Broadway, New York.

TO parties little acquainted with the Finkle & Lyon Sewing Machines the careful perusal of the Company's Circular is specially commended. This circular can be had on application. It is very specific, and will be found highly instructive, having been prepared with much care and we will abide by all statements therein made.

The following brief quotation is characteristic of the entire Circular:

"This Machine is better adapted than any other Sewing Machine in market to the frequent changes and almost endless variety of sewing required in a family, for it will sew from one to twenty thicknesses of Marseilles without stopping, and make every stitch perfect. Whether from the finest gauze to the heaviest cloth, and even the stoutest harness leather, without changing the feed needle or tension, or making any adjustment of machine whatever."

This have we successfully overcome the most difficult point in the Sewing Machine art. It was no ordinary triumph. Defiantly can we now say, "No other Machine competes with it in this respect." Hence, have we undismayed—almost without exception—taken the highest premium, "wherever the Machine has been properly exhibited in competition with other first class Sewing Machines. Hence it is that we are able to offer the following guarantee, viz.:—"We warrant every Machine we sell to give better satisfaction than any other Sewing Machine in the market, or money refunded." As we never sell a Machine on any other terms. The guarantee is as reliable as the note of any business man in the land. For more than five years have we relied upon such facts for the reputation of our Machine, and, without a single travelling agent in the field, there is scarcely a neighborhood on the continent where the Machine is not favourably known. We prefer such a reputation to one based on mere "talking points," as they are technically called in the trade. Hence we make but one kind of stitch, viz. the lock-stitch, alike on both sides, requiring only one-third the thread of other kinds of stitches.

N. B.—Local Agents wanted in every county throughout the West. ☞ Special inducements offered.

Herrick's Sugar Coated Pills.

CHILDREN ORY FOR THEM!

THIS remarkable American remedy is carrying the world by storm. Five million boxes are sold annually. Conquered by the Powers, Roots, Balsams and Extracts—their effects on the human system is general satisfactory and successful. Acting directly on the blood, glands, solids and fluids of the body, their use is attended with the happiest effects. In sudden attacks of the sick, one or two doses should always be taken. In cases of long standing, frequent repetition is necessary to secure the quantity—to change the system that gives health in the result. No change in surrounding or diet is necessary. They operate on the sick, curing pains, aching limbs, etc., as do many other kinds. They are warranted—give satisfaction, or the money will be refunded. They are guaranteed cheaper, safer, prompter, and will require less money to any purgative pill in the world.

☞ The Sugar-coated coating a pill with sugar remained with for ages. Numbers are counterfeits and if used will do harm, and will upset the sick. Herrick's pills are sugar-coated up. Sell in a box, with a hyperion of directions. And sell for 25 cents a box, 5 boxes for $1.

Herrick's Kid Strengthening Plaster.

THE GREAT STRENGTHENER AND PAIN DESTROYER. THE BEST AND CHEAPEST HOUSEHOLD REMEDY IN THE WORLD.

These renowned Plasters cure pains, weakness and disease in the back, side and breast, in a few hours. Indeed, no certain are they to do this, that the proprietor warrants them. Spread, from reason, balsams and gums, on kid leather, renders these plasters peculiarly adapted to the wants of females and others. Their application is universal—equally to the strong man, the feeble woman, and the delicate infant. To each and all they will prove a balm and a blessing. Their use is speedy, and without assistance or trouble. Each Plaster will wear from one to four months, and in the same quantity of space and breadth possess different curative powers when all other remedies fail. Full directions will be found on the back of each. Public speakers, sufferers subject to the exposed and others, will strengthen their lungs and improve their voices by wearing them on their breast. Price 25 cents.

The above articles are sold by all the druggists in Canada and by druggists throughout the United States and South America, at wholesale by all large druggists in the principal cities.

Little Bessie.

"Hug me closer, closer, mother,
Put your arms around me tight;
I am cold and tired, mother,
And I feel so strange to night;
Something hurts me here, dear mother,
Like a stone upon my breast;
Oh, I wonder, wonder, mother,
Why it is I cannot rest!

"All day long while you were working,
As I lay upon my bed,
I was trying to be patient,
And to think of what you said;
Loves His lambs to watch and keep!
And I wished He'd come and take me
In his arms, that I might sleep.

"Just before the lamp was lighted,
Just before the children came,
While the room was very quiet,
I heard some one call my name;
And at once the window opened,
In a field where lambs and sheep,
Some from out a brook were drinking,
Some were lying fast asleep.

"But I could not see the Saviour,
Though I strained my eyes to see;
And I wondered if He saw me—
Would he speak to such as me?
In a moment I was looking
On a world so bright and fair,
Which was full of little children,
And they seemed so happy there!

"They were singing, oh! how sweetly!
Sweeter songs I never heard!
They were singing sweeter, mother,
Than can sing our yellow bird.
And while I my breath was holding,
One so bright upon me smiled!
And I knew it must be Jesus
When He said, 'Come here, my little child!'

"'Come up here, my little Bessie!
Come up here and live with me,
Where the children never suffer,
But are happier than you see!'
Then I thought of all you told me
Of that bright and happy land;
I was going when you called me,
When you came and kissed my hand.

"And at first I felt so sorry
You had called me!—I would go—
Oh! to sleep, and never suffer!
Mother, don't be crying so!
Hug me closer, closer, mother,
Put your arms around me tight;
Oh! how much I love you, mother;
But I feel so strange to-night!"

But the mother pressed her close
To her over-burdened breast;
On the heart so near to breaking,
Lay the heart so near its rest.
At the solemn hour of midnight,
In the darkness, calm and deep,
Lying on her mother's bosom,
Little Bessie fell asleep.

THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION.

The attack on Charleston.

The bombardment of Charleston, it is reported, commenced on Monday, last, but with what result is not yet known. Everything portends a desperate struggle. The preparations for its capture are of the most formidable character, and the means accumulated for the defence of that city are on a corresponding scale of magnitude. Neither side, we may be sure, will omit anything which promises success; neither will yield the contest till every power has been exhausted.

A letter to the Boston Journal, dated Port Royal, 1st instant, has the following in reference to the Federal fleet, announced to leave that port the following day for the scene of operations:—

It is in appearance an insignificant fleet—nine vessels in all—puny, almost ridiculous, when compared with the stately ships of the last half century—with such symmetrical architecture as that of the Wabash. Old sailors who have swung upon the topmasts in a hundred heavy gales, who have looked admiringly from forecastle to quarter-deck along the guns of a seventy-four, would laugh at the queer craft now swinging at anchor at Port Royal and Edisto.

But notwithstanding the insignificance of the fleet in appearance, it is probably the most powerful ever assembled—certainly it is capable of the greatest resistance. The thousands of guns which thundered at Trafalgar, all together, the French, Spanish and English, would give a feeble fire against Admiral Dupont.

CHARLESTON HARBOR AND THE FORTIFICATIONS.

From the correspondence of Mr. C. C. Fulton, of the Baltimore American, we select the following facts regarding the movement on Charleston. Mr. Fulton went out on the Ericsson from New York.

A large portion of the fleet of Admiral Dupont, consisting of iron-clads and wooden walls, being now visible from the rebel signal station connecting with Fort Sumter, as well as the spires of the city of Charleston, there can be no impropriety in my stating that the attempt to retake and repossess the forts and public property, and reduce the city to subjection to the national authority, will soon take place. In all probability, before the receipt of this letter tidings of the opening of the conflict will reach you through the Richmond papers.

THE MODE OF ATTACK.

As to the mode of attack resolved upon by Admiral Dupont, nothing is definately known. Whether he will advance slowly, first reducing the outer forts, or whether he will dash on to Sumter with his iron fleet—whether he will pass Sumter and Moultrie and the sand batteries in silent contempt, and attack the city—or whether he will first effect a landing for the troops of Gen. Hunter, before making a serious demonstration on the forts and the city, are all subjects of speculation here, as they are at the North.

The number of guns now mounted by the rebels along the five miles of approach to the city are estimated at nearly four hundred, including those at Fort Sumter, Moultrie, Cumming's Point, Fort Pinckney, and a battery commanding the middle ground near the city. There are also said to be guns and mortars mounted on the Charleston battery, which has a fine front on the approaches of the city. The troops now assembled at and around Charleston for its defence are reported to number seventy-five thousand. It is presumed that both troops and guns will be brought from Savannah to join in the defence.

There is, therefore, no doubt that the attack on Charleston will be the greatest naval undertaking in the history of the world. Against those four hundred guns our ironclads will be able to bring to bear not more than thirty, though it is doubtful whether more than sixty of their guns can be brought to bear on the fleet at any one time. Still to reach the upper works, if such should be the course adopted, they will be compelled to run the gauntlet of all those immense batteries. Admiral Dupont has been supplied by the Government with all the appliances of science and art in guns, projectiles, and vessels, to make his means of attack equal to the rebel power of defence.

The wooden gunboats and men-of-war forming a portion of Admiral Dupont's fleet are very numerous, and are on hand ready and anxious to participate in the fight. The New Ironsides, with her sixteen heavy guns in battery, is also inside of the bar, ready for action. The three mortar schooners, including the Para, commanded by Captain Thurber, are also here, and will participate in the fight.

WILL CHARLESTON BE DESTROYED.

The blasting of guns on the wharves and battery would indicate a determination on the part of Beauregard to lay the city under fire as a last resot, as his fire could only be returned from that quarter by a bombardment of the city. The finest houses face the battery, and would soon be demolished if plied with 15-inch shells from the monitor batteries. A fire opened on our monitors from the battery would invite a response, and until their guns were silenced the city would of course be under fire.

The change of base from the harbor of Port Royal to the North Edisto—that is to say, the coagregation of the entire ironfleet there—will take place on Wednesday, the 1st of April. How long they will remain in this new base of operations before moving on Charleston, I do not know. It may be a day, a week, or a month. However, before this letter is received, the whole fleet will be within sight of the people of Charleston, and facing the enemy's pickets on the North Edisto.

In a postscript to his letter of April 1st he says:—

We are off this morning for Charleston. We may stop a day or two on the North Edisto, but I think the fight will commence before the close of this week.

CONFEDERATE ACCOUNT OF THE DEFENCES.

The Richmond Inquirer says:—

"Charleston is situated on a low, level point of land, at the junction of Cooper and Ashley rivers. No portion of the city is more than twenty feet above the tide, so that upon approaching it from the harbor its buildings and the beautiful spires of its churches seem to rise directly from the water. The Cooper river joins the Ashley at a right angle from the North, and the continuation of the latter river, running nearly due east, forms the lower harbor and bay of Charleston, which widens gradually from 2 to 5 miles to its mouth, distant about 10 miles from the city. On the opposite side of the Cooper river, where it debouches into the harbor, a short mile from the city, is Castle Pinkney, a small work, but mounting some heavy guns. Nearly opposite, on the southern side of the harbor, on James' Island, and two miles distant, is Fort Johnson. About four miles from the city, midway between Sullivan's and James' Islands, is Fort Sumter, and directly North of it, on Sullivan's Island, at a distance of two thousand yards, is Fort Moultrie. Between these two forts is the only channel for vessels to approach the city. Fort Sumter has three tiers of guns, and under the old Government, ranked as a fortification of the second class, in the extent of the works and the strength of its armament, but it was constructed in a very superior manner, and was supposed to be invulnerable at the time to the effects of any naval ordnance then in use. Its reduction by South Carolina, in 1861, was effected by hot shot from Fort Moultrie setting fire to the wooden roofs of the capacious buildings alloted for officers' quarters, by which Anderson and his garrison were literally roasted out. Care has been taken in the reconstruction of the buildings to avoid all chance for a repetition of such barbecue. Fort Moultrie is a work of inferior rank, but it is admirably situated for dealing offensive blows upon an approaching enemy.

The principal entrance to the harbor is through Ship Channel, the outer bar of which is distant south-east from Fort Sumter about six miles. Shortly after crossing the bar, the enemy's vessels will come under fire of the batteries on John's Island, near and parallel to which the channel runs in a westerly direction for two miles. It then makes an angle northward, running for more than a mile directly toward Fort Sumter and Moultrie. After passing the former, it turns to the west, and passes beneath the fortifications, directly under their guns, and then bends to the south-west, on which direction it approaches Fort Johnson for upward of two miles, while on the right it is under the fire of Castle Pinckney. It is not until the enemy silences or passes all these works, and others which will announce themselves at the proper time, that he will be able to occupy Cooper and Ashley Rivers, and place Charleston at the mercy of the shot and shell of his ironclads.

Whatever uncertainty prevails as to the ability of fortifications to resist the impetus of the formidable propellers hurled by the Federal gunboats, there can be no doubt that the invulnerability of the turreted monsters will be tested on this occasion by a severer ordeal than any to which they have been heretofore subjected, and Admiral Dupont will find a different entertainment in running the gauntlet of forts Sumter and Moultrie, and Johnson and Pinckney, from that furnished by the miserable abortion, misnamed batteries of Port Royal, so pregnant of disgrace and disaster to South Carolina.

VANDALISM.

The destruction by the Federal troops of the city of Jacksonville, Florida, while occupied by scarcely any except women and children, and fully under the control of the Northern gunboats anchored in the St. John's River, is an event which will provoke much criticism, and one that should be severely reprobated. The world will pronounce it an act of ruthless vandalism, for which there was no shadow of excuse. A correspondent of the Tribune writes from Jacksonville as follows:—

"Jacksonville is in ruins. The beautiful city, which has been for so many years the favorite resort for invalids from the North, has fallen prey to the torch, and what is not to be forgotten, by the soldiers of the national army. Scarcely a residence, a cottage, a negro hut, or a warehouse remains. The long lines of magnificent oaks, green and beautiful, with the thickest foliage, the orange groves perfuming the air with their blossoms, the old century plants adorning every garden, the palmetto and bayonet trees, ever tropical in verdure, the rose and the jessamine—all that at this season, indeed I might say through all seasons, has made Jacksonville a little Eden, has been burned, and scorched, and crisped if not entirely consumed to ashes, by the devouring flames.

"The whole city, mansions, warehouses, trees, shrubbery, and orange groves; all that refined taste and art through many years have made beautiful and attractive, are being lapped up and devoured by the howling fiery blast. One solitary woman, a horse tied to a fence between two fires, and a lean half-starved dog, are the only living inhabitants to be seen on the streets."

Disturbances in Lancashire.

On Friday, March 20, a serious riot occurred among unemployed factory operatives in Stalybridge, near Manchester. A correspondent of the Manchester Guardian describing the scene, says that the outbreak was caused by the action of the relief committee. The writer adds:—

"The relief stores were forcibly entered, and a vast amount of property was destroyed. It appears that there has been a threefold complaint urged by the persons attending schools against the relief committee—first, the stoppage of 6d. per week from the weekly payment of the scholars; secondly, a proposition to retain a day's wages in hand from one week to another; and, thirdly, paying them by ticket instead of money, as heretofore. Two of these new regulations coming into force to-day some schools turned out, formed in procession, and perambulated the streets shouting and hooting. They then visited the different relief stores, which they ransacked, throwing the clothing, &c., through the windows, while others ran away with various articles. They then commenced to smash the windows, and at the stores in Caroles street the things were set on fire, but the flames were soon extinguished by the police.

"By this time a troop of the Fourteenth Hussars, stationed at Ashton barracks, had arrived. The riot act was read, and the military then dispersed the mob. Previous to the arrival of the military, several houses occupied by members of the Relief Committee—that of Mr. Ralph Bates, J. P., amongst the number—were visited, and the windows broken. The Police Office also came in for a share of the range of the crowd On the mob being dispersed, the police visited various houses, and found a large quantity of clothing which had been stolen from the stores. On it being known that a search was being made, many bundles of clothing were thrown into the canal and other places. Upwards of sixty persons have been taken into custody.'

Concessions to Popery.

While the Papal paper is growing weak on the seven hills, it seems to lose no ground at its out-post. The following is from the Edinburgh Witness:—

It is now upwards of three years since a minister of the Crown gave assurance that concessions to the Romanists had reached their extremest limit. We have made a great many concessions since. Some hundred thousand pounds, or thereby, have been added to the annual grant to Romanism in Great Britain since the promise was given that the public purse was at last conclusively closed. That purse is open as ever. Concession comes after concession, as frequent and fast as at the beginning, and the "extremest limit," which we were told on the "highest authority" we had reached three years ago, is no more in sight now than it was then. Our ancestors, doubtless, with a great sum obtained the liberty for us, of which we are now making so prodigal a use; but we scarce dare hope that the stock laid up will prove inexhaustible.

The session has opened ill for the hopes of those who expected to see a stop put to this course of concession even at the eleventh hour. Nothing seems farther from the intention of Government. They have just announced a step in contemplation, which shows that they are fully resolved to persevere in their course at all hazards, and despite all remonstrances. The contemplated measure is in some respects a more formidable one than any they have yet ventured upon, and comes nearer to a full and formal establishment of Popery in Great Britain than any previous concession. A Popish chaplain is to be placed in every county and burgh prison in England and Scotland, and a salary found for him from the funds legally applicable to the prison expenses. Such is the purport of the bill brought into Parliament a few nights ago by Sir George Grey. That bill goes to the creation of a body of Popish priests holding official position all over Great Britain, recognized by the State, appointed by the State, paid by the State, and vested in large powers over a considerable body of what are, or ought to be, the subjects of the State. In the hands of these priests is to be placed the sole religious direction of all Popish prisoners. Such prisoners are at all times to welcome the visit of the priest, whether they really desire it or not; for the priest is to be empowered to visit the prison, not, as now, when a prisoner may express a wish to see him, but at whatever time it shall please the priest to demand admission. No two, ship or rolling stone are that contributed by Christianity to support in its lowest worship is never troublesome, and that part of the former set which requires the attendance of all prisoners on the services of the chaplains of the Church of England is expressly repealed. Of course, this will necessitate the immediate creation, of Popish chapels in all our prisons, and the providing at the public expense of full conveniences for the celebration of mass. Not a book or tract of any kind is the prisoner to read save what the priest provides with him. The Bible will be expelled from the cell, and the crucifix put in its room. Call the prison a chapel, and quiet there can have but a short endurance of Popery. The bill will give us an endowed priesthood in prisoned congregation in every county and borough in Great Britain.

What great and imperious necessity is pleaded for a proposal like this, which is in direct violation of the fundamental principles of the Constitution, and which is a great way in advance of all the obnoxious measures which have preceded it? Of course, the charges are rung upon the necessity of providing the poor Catholic prisoners with the consolations of religion. Our prisons are swarming with culprits of this class; and are we, argues Sir George Grey, to leave them without ghostly advice, without absolution, or, if need be, without extreme unction? How receiving the thought! What good Christian would be guilty of such Pagan cruelty? This concern for the religious interests of our Popish criminal is, it appears to us, a little over-acted. Were it just a little more sincere,—were it just a little more inspired by piety for the poor prisoner, and a little less by wish to further the interests of the priests,—it would lead the Government to pay a little more attention to the kind of instruction given to our Catholic prisoners. It would lead them to stand in doubt of the efficacy of that religion from which the Bible is excluded. It would lead them, further, to inquire how far that teaching which, upon the Government's own confession, is unsuccessful in filling our jails, is just the best thing for emptying them. Well nigh the whole criminal population of Ireland is drawn from this Popish Church; and in England and Scotland the number of Romanists is out of all proportion to the population. In Scotland, for instance, nearly a fourth of all the crime is committed by Papists. In Great Britain then, as everywhere else where Romanism exists, we have undoubted facts to show that the teaching of the Church of Rome as compared to that of the Protestant Churches, is adverse to virtue, and infallibly lowers the character of men as citizens,—that Romanism is a crime-producing agent, in short, a noted purveyor of the jail. And yet our Government seem to have a profound conviction that the same teaching which fills the prison will, by some marvellous quality, empty it. They seem to think that the same influence which, operating outside the walls of a prison, converts good citizens into bad, and teaches them to steal, shed blood, and commit sedition, will, operating inside the same walls, convert bad citizens into good, and make them honest, peaceable, and pious subjects. The Government, therefore, proposes that the country should tax itself to provide a priest for every prison, with, of course, the adjuncts of alters and wax candles, shrines and holy water, bells and crucifixes; in short, the whole of that monstrous and mysterious machinery which is needed to make the priesthood effectual to those over whom it is exercised.

An ominous silence has preceded the introduction of this bill. Not a whisper did the Government breathe of their intentions beforehand; nor did the priests herald the measures by any outcry; and thus the nation has been taken unawares. There is, too, an implied misrepresentation in the bill; for certainly one would suppose that the priests meanwhile had no access to members of their own Church in prison; while the fact is, that the prisoner has only to express his wish, and the priest is sent for. The priest is in this respect precisely on the same footing as any other dissenting minister in the kingdom. Now, however, he will in reality be placed above every other unendowed minister, for, while the bill professes to make all ministers, of whatever denomination, eligible as prison chaplains, it will, in point of fact, do no such thing. The privilege will be restricted, in almost every instance, to the priest of the Romish Church, for this reason, that the members of this Church, and of this Church, none are found in such numbers in our jails as to entitle them, under the bill, to a State-appointed and State-paid chaplain. The bill therefore is, we may say, exclusively for the benefit of the Church of Rome. It is, quoad for prisons, a virtual establishment of that much in both England and Scotland. We trust the country will view in its true light, and resist it accordingly; but in order that resistance may have effect, a chance of success, must be instant and vigorous.

STATISTICS OF HUMAN LIFE.—The total number of human beings on earth is now computed, in round numbers, at 1,000,000,000. They speak 3,064 now known tongues, and in which 1,100 religions or creeds are preached. The average of life is 33½ years. One-fourth of all born die before they reach the age of 7 years, and the half before the 17th year. Out of 100 persons, only six reach the age of 60 years and upward, while only one in 1,000 reaches the age of 100 years. Out of 500 only one attains 80 years. Out of the thousand million living persons 330,000,000 die annually, 90,400 daily, 3,600 every hour, 60 every minute, consequently one every second. The loss is, however, balanced by the gain in new births. Tall men are supposed to live longer than short ones. Women are generally stronger proportionally than men until their 50th year, afterwards less so. Marriages are in proportion to single life (bachelors and spinsters) as 100:75! Both births and deaths are more frequent in the night than in the day. One fourth of men are capable of bearing arms, but not one of 1,000 is by nature inclined for the profession. The more civilized a country is, the more full of vigor, life, and health are the people. The notion that education enfeebles and degenerates the human frame is not borne out by fact.

SEPARATE SCHOOLS.

We publish to-day an extract from the True Witness on the question which above all others just now engrosses public attention. The views enunciated by this journal we think are those held by Catholics generally in Upper Canada. Mr. McGee, their able counsel in the Legislature, when the discussion of Mr. Scott's Bill was going on, expressed the same views. It is clear that as a body the Catholics are opposed to a National Common or general system of Education, not so much on the ground that such a system does not teach religion as that it does not teach the true religion, i. e. the Roman Catholic Religion. The premises laid down by both the True Witness and Mr. McGee, that to the parent and not the State God has entrusted the education of his child, we believe to be quite correct, but we see nothing whatever wrong in the State prescribing and carrying out a system of secular education in which all may join without doing violence to each other. The Catholics, however, maintain that they can not and will not separate the religious education of their children from the secular. In a country situated as Upper Canada is, the many must yield to the few, or the few to the many, on this question.

The School System was established by the majority, and, in order to meet the scruples of the minority, the Separate School clauses were introduced at an early date. These have been extended from time to time till the majority have been aroused at the fearful incursions made on their cherished Institution, and have become exasperated at the insidious but successful attempts to undermine their School System. At a period like the present, when the subject of Separate Schools is again being agitated by Mr. Scott's Bill, it is no wonder that there is a great deal of agitation on the matter. Probably the worst feature of the affair is the fact that the Bill is passed by a Lower Canada majority, though opposed by the section to which it applies. This fact certainly arouses indignation all over U. Canada. Meetings have been held in various places, denouncing the measure and the Upper Canada section of the Cabinet who voted for the passage of the Bill. A meeting was to have been held in Toronto last week, but owing to the attempts of the Roman Catholics the meeting was a failure. The speakers were not allowed to proceed, and an successful a stop put to public discussion as ever was made any where. The perpetrators of this outrage will find to their cost that public opinion can not be put down so; as well may they seek to stop the St. Lawrence from flowing on its course as thus attempt to put down free discussion.

From a somewhat close attention to the working of our School System for a long time, we are every day more convinced that if we had carried out our professed secular system of education, as proposed, we should have had no necessity of introducing the Separate system, but by the introduction of forms of prayer, and provisions for the teaching of religion by different denominations, we have made Separate Schools a necessity. It is, unfortunately, a failing of human nature that the majority of a people are often regardless of the conscientious scruples of the minority. There need be no scruples of conscience, however, where a day school is carried on without any of the forms or books of a particular profession of religion. Surely the principles of reading, of spelling, of grammar, arithmetic, geography and writing are not dependant upon the Catholic or Protestant faith as such. If taught as branches of secular science by a competent Teacher, be he Catholic or Protestant, there can possibly be no violation of conscience done to any one. It is here we discover the fallacy of Mr. McGee's theory that a Catholic cannot separate religion from the secular teaching of his children. It is, he says, a matter of conscience with him, and he dare not do it. In the same way a man may reason himself to believe that loyalty to the Sovereign does violence to his conscience, and therefore he cannot practice it.

From every quarter where meetings have been held comes the expression of disapprobation of Separate Schools. The reason is plain: the Reformers of Canada for thirty years were engaged in a struggle for deliverance from State Churchism. The motto they raised on their banner was "religious equality." When, in 1850, the system of Separate Schools was introduced into our School System the principle of religious equality was violated. A privilege was thereby granted to Roman Catholics which was denied to all others. This privilege once enjoyed, it was difficult to take away. Finding they succeeded so well, a bold strike was made in 1855, under the Coalition regime, for still greater advantages, which resulted in the Bill for the management of Separate Schools. Now the Hierarchy dictates all connection with [illegible] declared he never saw it [illegible] of the land.

He was eloquent in denouncing it at the time, but says now it does not injure or impair our Common School System. It is well to find all these questions agitating the public mind fairly and dispassionately.

We ought not to forget that the first germ of the Separate School principle unfolded itself under the Baldwin Lafontaine Administration—one of the very best Canada ever had. That Administration gave to Lower Canada more Ecclesiastical Corporation Acts than any Administration before or since. The Reform body at that time began to feel very uneasy at the continued repetition of these acts. Public meetings were held all over the country, and resolutions passed condemning the Ministry and calling upon them to cease.

What was the reply of the Ministry and their supporters? That the Lower Canadians had to be propitiated, and this was the cheapest way of doing it. That in getting their support to carry through the great measures they assumed office to carry through, viz: the secularization of the Clergy Reserves and the emancipation of the College, they insisted upon a quid pro quo which it was indispensible to give, and so they got what they desired. No administration ever got a warmer support than this very one from the Globe and its proprietor! The Romish Hierarchy received large and signal favours from this Reform Government, and Mr. Brown approved it all then. The Coalition have done the same as the Reform did before them, and the present Government, if they yield no more than is found in Mr. Scott's Bill, will have little to repent of on that score.

We have but little to fear from what is now in Mr. Scott's Bill, but we are free to confess that we are at a loss to conceive how the difficulty is to be got over of its being forced upon Upper Canada with a majority of its members against it. The country is so opposed to the principle that the Chief Superintendent does not moot the subject of his "ragged schools." So averse are the people to the extension of the separate principle that no suggestion will be listened to, giving Separate Schools to any others. Let Mr. Scott's Bill be defeated, and what then? We have the Roman Catholic School System in full blast. The exuberance of virtuous indignation against it is too late.

The Bishops and Dr. Colenso.

The following is the address of the Archbishops and Bishops of the English Church to Dr. Colenso, and that gentleman's reply. It is passing strange that a man possessed of a mind of such mathematical acumen, can not discover, that under existing circumstances his resigning his Bishoprick would be neither "legally nor morally wrong." According to his theory no matter what a man may believe and teach there is no abdicating the Episcopal commission. He considers himself bound to teach the English Church that the Pentateuch is not the word of God!!

To the Right Rev. J. W. Colenso, D.D., Lord Bishop of Natal:

We, the undersigned Archbishops and Bishops of the United Church of England and Ireland, address you with deep brotherly anxiety, as one who shares with us the grave responsibilities of the episcopal office.

It is impossible for us to enter here into argument with you as to your method of handling that Bible which we believe to be the Word of God, and on the truth of which rest all our hopes for eternity. Nor do we here raise the question whether you are legally entitled to retain your present office and position in the Church, complicated, moreover, as that question is by the fact of your being a Bishop of the Church in South Africa, now at a distance from your diocese and province.

But we feel bound to put before you another view of the case. We understand you to say (Part II. p. xxiii, of your Pentateuch and Book of Joshua Carefully Examined) that you do not believe that which you voluntarily professed to believe, as the indispensable condition of your being intrusted with your present office. We understand you also to say that you have entertained, and have not abandoned, the conviction that you could not use the Ordination Service, inasmuch as in it you 'must require' from others a solemn declaration that they 'unfeignedly believe all the Canonical Scriptures of the Old and New Testament;' which, with the evidence now before you, 'it is impossible wholly to believe as.' (Part I., p. xii.) And we understand you further to intimate that those who think with you are precluded from using the Baptismal Service, and consequently (as we must infer) other offices of the Prayer Book unless they omit all such passages as assume the truth of the Mosaic history.—(Part II., p. xxii.)

Now, it cannot have escaped you that the inconsistency between the office you hold and the opinions you avow is causing great pain and grievous scandal to the Church. And we solemnly ask you to consider once more with the most serious attention whether you can without harm to your own conscience, retain your position, when you can no longer discharge its duties or use the formularies to, which you have subscribed. We will not abandon the hope that, through earnest prayer and a deeper study of God's Word, you may, under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, be restored to a state of belief in which you may be able with a clear conscience again to discharge the duties of your sacred office; a result which, from regard to your highest interests, we should welcome with the most unfeigned satisfaction.

We are, your faithful brethren in Christ

(Here follow the names.)

The Bishop of Natal has published the following reply to the Episcopal Remonstrance:—

My Lord Archbishop,—I have seriously considered the address which has been forwarded to me by your Grace; signed by a great number of the archbishops and bishops of the church of England.

In reply I feel obliged to say that I am unable to comply with the suggestion therein conveyed to me, that I should resign my Episcopal charge.

I trust that I yield to none of your Lordships in a heartfelt reverence for the Holy Scriptures. But contrarily I do not believe, as the words of the address seem to imply, that your Lordships do believe, that "all contained in the canonical books" on the literal historical truth of such a narrative as the astronomical argument of the Mosaic Deluge.—But I must refer to my books for a full statement of the reasons which jointly to my own mind the course which I am taking. To resign my office would be to admit that my conduct has been legally or morally wrong, which I am not aware for this to be.

Believing, as I am persuaded that my duty to God and the National Church, through which I subscribed, in the same manner as your Lordships, that Episcopal commission which confers no power of objecting requires me to persevere in the task which I have undertaken—namely, to set before the English Church the real facts of the case in regard to the composition of the Pentateuch, in accordance with the most trustworthy results of recent criticism.

I venture to add that the progress of true religion appears to me to be grievously impeded in this country by the contradictions which undeniably exist between the traditional notion of the historical truth of all the narratives contained in the Pentateuch and the conclusions of science, as now brought within the comprehensions even of the youth of both sexes, by the general extension of education.

And it is my firm conviction that this subject deserves more than any other at this time, our most serious consideration, and, if possible, our united action as bishops of the National Church.

I am, my Lord Archbishop, your Grace's very faithful and obedient servant,

J. W. NATAL.

London, March 5.

PETERBORO' SPRING ASSIZES.

The Court of Assize for the County of Peterboro is at present sitting, Mr. Justice Hagarty presiding. Thos. Galt, Esq. Q. C., acting for the Crown. There are twenty-one records entered for trial, some of which are of considerable importance. There is only one prisoner, William Ward alias William Henry Standly, charged with several larcenies, to be tried. The following gentlemen compose the Grand Jury:—

THOMAS CRAMPTON, Foreman.

William Bell, George Clark, Lewis Davis, William Eastland, Andrew Fowlie, John Galvin, Evans Ingram, Wm. Clurton, Chas. Bradfield, William Learmouth, Marcello Mowry, William Ogilvy, James Ritchie, Francis Sanderson, Charles Stewart, Jacob White, Benjamin Green, P. M. Grover, Wm. E. Roxbury, Isaac Garbut and Adam Hall.

The following Civil Cases have been already disposed:—

Radicott vs. Jackson; Burnham for Plaintiff, Weller for Defendant. This was an action for an alleged slander. Plaintiff charged Defendant with having accused him of stealing apples, but failed to prove it, and was non-suited.

The Corporation of Emlenmore vs. Costello, et al; Weller for Plaintiff, G. Dunsford for Defendant. This was an action on a Bond made by Defendants as sureties for one McCarthy, who was Collector of Taxes for Emlenmore. Verdict for Plaintiff, £66 11 6.

Gilchrist vs. Wallace, et al; Kerr for Plaintiff. Verdict for Plaintiff by consent, $2,051 75

Weddell vs. Bray; Weller for Plaintiff. Verdict for Plaintiff, £228 13 1.

Seney vs. Buck; Smith & Scott for Plaintiff, Weller for Defendant. This was an action for Trespass. Verdict for Defendant.

Muir vs. Potts; Lacoorse for Plaintiff. Verdict for Plaintiff, £309 9 1.

On the 7th inst., the friends of the Hon. J. A. McDonald entertained him at a banquet in the City of Kingston, at which the Hon. gentleman made a speech reviewing the past and present state of the country. His deliverance on the occasion is described by his admirers as a first rate specimen of political acumen. For our part we view it as one of the tamest and most common place speeches we ever read of his, and appears to us unworthy of the Coalition leader—and far behind his ordinary address either in the House or on the hustings. The flippant manner he refers to the retrenchment of the present Ministry confirms us in the opinion generally formed of him, that when a minister of the Crown his reckless, extravagant dissipation of the public funds, and as a consequence the increase of the public debt, never gave him a thought. It is high time that a stop was put to this fearful leak. He might have known that to his indifference to this more than anything else, may be ascribed the fall of the late Coalition. The country will bear a good deal before trusting the manipulation of the finances of the country in such reckless hands as John A. & Co. again.

We are sorry to learn that J. N. Travers, Esq., the Manager of the Bank of Montreal, in this Town, is about leaving us, to take a share in the management of the Bank in Montreal. Mr. Travers since he took up his residence amongst us has made many warm friends, by his obliging and gentlemanly conduct in the Bank as well as by his courteous and liberal deportment as a citizen. Notwithstanding our regret at his departure, we are pleased to learn that he is promoted in the institution he so ably and successfully represented in this Town. His friends intend giving him a Dinner at the Hastings House on Monday next, the 20th inst., as a mark of their esteem for him. Any one wishing to join in doing honor to Mr. Travers, can be supplied with tickets at Mr. Richard White's.

Mr. Travers will carry with him the good wishes of a great number of the inhabitants of this Town, for his success in his new sphere of labour. He leaves about the 23rd inst.

ACCIDENT.—On Friday last, Mr. James Campbell was riding in his buggy, when one of the fixtures that fastens the pole to the ax-tree broke, the buggy then kept running from one side of the road to the other, until the other one broke, when the horses dashed off, jerking Mr. Campbell out of the buggy. He was severely injured, having his collar bone broken with several other bruises. The horses ran on to the Little Lake and broke through the ice and one of them drowned.

An "Inquirer" in the last Review, seems to want information. If he really were desirous of knowing what he pretends, he would have discovered that a couple of lines of type got displaced—that's all. No newspaper reader but comes across such affairs frequently.

We are pleased to learn that the rumours of the intentions of the Government stopping the settlement of the back country are unfounded. We hope that additional efforts will be put forth to secure a large portion of the emigration expected out the present season.

The performance of the Peterboro' Amateur Dramatic Company will come off to-morrow evening, 17th inst, in the Town Hall. We hope to see them have a crowded house.

Owing to the copy not being received in time there is no teacher's column this week. The copy must be handed in to us on Tuesday morning.

BEATTY & BENNER'S Grocery Store will be found on George Street, Mitchell's old stand, where you can get good bargains.

A communication signed "C. C." will appear next week.

Mr. Cooper's Land Circular for the Spring of 1863, will be published in a few days.

Chapleau Brown has removed his Jewellery Shop to Foster Scrivener's, on George Street.

POLICE COURT.

Before His Worship the Mayor and Jas. Edwards, J. P.

Alex. Wilcock, Thomas Chisholm, Denis Dining, D. Calotte, Wm. O'Donnell, R. Trenwith, Beatty & Benner, and David Roache were all brought up on a charge of Selling Liquor without License, and fined $50 each and costs.

David Bourdas, Eli Bourdas, Trefli Chatiguier, Antoine Leger, Jos. Ruraille and Leon Gourdiau, were charged with refusing to go to work for M. Boyd, Esq., after being hired, were fined 50c each and costs—amounting in all to $23 50.

Jos. Paine and Jos. King were charged by Thos. White, with firing off fire arms; they were discharged on the plea of ignorance of the law.

Xavier Deeble or Henry Mitchell; the Defendant summoned up was charged with committing an aggravated assault on Plaintiff. Constable McDonald stated that a man came to him about 12 one night, requesting him to go down to apprehend the Defendant, as he had struck Plaintiff a serious blow on the head. Plaintiff deposed to the charge. Defendant in reply said Plaintiff had rolled up his sleeves, and seemed as if he wanted to fight, and he thought he would have the first blow, so he struck him with his fist, denied having had steel knuckles. In consequence of the serious nature of the blow, as it appeared on his face, the Defendant was fined $3 and costs, and, in default of payment, to be committed to gaol, —was committed for 10 days.

C. La Riviere, for leaving the employment of Alexander Dennistoun, Esq., was ordered to go back to his work and pay the costs, or be committed for one month; he went back.

Robert Beattie, for being disorderly, was fined $2 and costs, which he paid at the time.

Wm. Copeland, for interfering with constable, was fined $5 and costs, or in default 14 days—paid fine.

Frank Drake, who is an old offender, was brought from the Lock-up, on Monday morning, charged with abusing and throwing pestilence at side-walk into the mud, but was too drunk to have his trial proceed; was sent back until the afternoon, when he was liberated, on a promise of not being caught with them again.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Thursday, April 9, 1863.

The Council met, in accordance to notice issued by order of the Mayor.

Present—His Worship the Mayor and Messrs. Lawson, Fry, Nicholls, Ormond, S. Dickson, Carlisle, Clurton, Ryan, Jas. Dixon, Lundy and Burnham.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

The Clerk stated that Mr. Coulter having neglected to take the requisite declarations, His Worship the Mayor had issued his warrant for a new election, that Mr. Burnham had been returned to him as duly elected.

A petition from S. Dickson, praying for a reduction of taxes on the Mill property assessed to Martin Martyn, was referred to the Committee on Finance.

A petition from F. Elsworth, asking for the remission of a fine inflicted upon him in the Police Court, was also referred to the Committee on Finance.

A petition from J. C. Fitzpatrick, asking assistance from the Council, was read and received.

Several accounts were presented, and handed over to the Finance Committee.

A Communication from Mrs. Hanlon, asking assistance from the Council, was read and received.

On motion of Mr. Lawson, Mr. Alex. Morrow, jr., was appointed a Constable for the Town of Peterboro.

Moved by Mr. Ormond, and seconded by Mr. Nicholls,—That applications for new side-walks, bridges, excavations and all other improvements or additions respecting accidents or repairs, shall be applied for to this Council by Petition from Rate payers residing in the locality, or by persons holding property in the neighborhood where such improvements are petitioned for, and that no petitions or memorials shall be received after the first day of July in each year. That the Committee on Streets and Bridges shall on receipt of such petitions, after examining the places from which such applications have been made, report to the Council at its first sitting. That all new side-walks, excavations or improvements be let by tender in the usual way, and that all contracts be completed on or before the 20th day of October in each year, under a penalty of half the amount of contract.—Carried.

Mr. Lundy stated that the Fire Committee had, in accordance with the instructions of the Council, ordered a Fire Bell which had arrived, and he handed in the Bill amounting to $77 60.

On motion of Mr. Lundy, seconded by Mr. Ryan, the Treasurer was directed to pay the amount of the Bill.

On motion of Mr. Nicholls, seconded by Mr. Ormond, the Resolution of the Council for the extension of the limits of the Town, and of the sub-division of the Town into Wards, as passed on the 10th day of March, A. D. 1862, was read and submitted; after some discussion the Resolution was carried on the following division:

YEAS—Messrs. Lawson, Fry, Nicholls, Ormond, S. Dickson, Carlile, Clurton, J. Dixon and Ryan.

NAYS—Messrs. Lundy and Burnham.

Moved by Mr. Clurton, seconded by Mr. Nicholls—That a certified copy of the Resolution for the extension of the limits of the Town, just passed, together with the necessary Petition to His Excellency the Governor General praying him to issue His proclamation therefor; which petition His Worship the Mayor is hereby authorised and required to draw up and sign on behalf of this Council and transmit to Quebec.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Clurton, seconded by Mr. Lawson,—That Mr. Thos. White, jr., Parliamentary Agent, be authorised to take charge of the Bill introduced by Col. Haultain, to legalize transactions between the Town of Peterborough and the Port Hope, Lindsay and Beaverton Railway Company, and the necessary arrangements made between the Municipality and the Lessees of the Millbrook and Peterborough Branch of the said Railway, and that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Corporate seal affixed, be transmitted to Mr. White.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Lawson, and seconded by Mr. Fry,—That Messrs. Towle, Carlile, Lundy and the Mayor, be a Committee to select plans for a new Engine House and Lock-up, and to report to the next Council.—Carried.

On motion of Mr. Lawson, the salary of the Mayor was fixed the same as last year, viz: ten hundred dollars.

On motion of Mr. Lundy, the Council in future will meet at 7½ o'clock p. m., and that no special meetings be called except upon the written request of a majority of the Council.

The Council then adjourned till Monday night, the 27th inst., at 7½ p. m.

THE Council of the Village of Ashburnham met on the 6th inst.

Present—Robt. D. Rogers, Reeve, H. Bennett and H. Calcutt.

The business of previous meeting was confirmed.

The Clerk was directed to notify the Collector to pay over, immediately, to the Treasurer, the moneys collected; to continue to collect what is unpaid till the 20th inst., and then make a full settlement.

On motion of Councillor Calcutt, a By-Law respecting the leasing of the Market Stalls was read and passed.

The day for holding the Court of Revision was appointed, viz: the 23rd day of May next.

On motion of Councillor Calcutt, seconded by Councillor Bennett, the Reeve was appointed to rent the Weigh-Scales to the best advantage—rent to be paid monthly.

Wm. Taylor was re appointed Pound Keeper for the current year.

The Council adjourned to meet again on the first Monday in May next, at 7 o'clock p. m.

Ogilvy & Hood have removed their establishment, to one of Mr. Henthorn's new Stores, next door to T. Menzies' Book Store.

Last week, owing to the illness of the Editor and our principal manager, some articles were left over, and subjects neglected which should have been noticed.

Communications.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—I have read the letters in your two last issues; one signed an "Irishman," and the other "X." Now, as I know that your journal is pretty liberal, I trust you will give insertion to a few remarks which I have to make in reply to both. I shall confine myself to brevity and only answer such portions of said letters as I shall deem myself justified in doing. To begin with the Irishman's letter, I must scan it over till I come to that portion where he says: "that he always understood that St. Patrick's Society consisted of well conducted Irishmen, without regard to creed or politics, and he has been told such is not the case with the Peterboro' one." Now, I emphatically tell him that the St. Patrick's Society of Peterboro' is composed of none but well conducted men, as none else can be admitted; that neither politics nor religion is ever discussed or even mentioned at any of its meetings; that the minutes of every meeting since the organization are in the possession of the Secretary, and can be seen by any respectable person who wishes to see them. Another objection an Irishman makes is having the R. C. Priest as President. Now, I wish to know from an Irishman if the order to which he belongs can take away his nationality? I am sure that any person acquainted with Rev. Mr. Kelly either in his social or national position, will not hesitate for a moment in saying that he is fit to be President of the Society. Another remark and I am done with Mr. Irishman. Did he not see that it was the Union Jack that was unfurled first on the Market Square on the 17th; and if "an Irishman" is not degenerate, he must look with pride on the conduct of the St. Patrick's men on that day; compared with those others who, contrary to all law and order, usurped the freedom of Canada.

Let us now review Mr. X.—I assure him that as far as the duties of a journalist is concerned I must say that I concur with him, inasmuch as his responsibility for expressing his opinions &c., are concerned—as every person, journalist or other, should not have their freedom of speech fettered. But I think he (Mr. X.) should procure a prism to separate or distinguish the colour of the spectacles through which the Peterboro' proceedings are viewed. Let him see the Globe of the 6th, and see through what spectacles those proceedings were viewed. I see as to me that Mr. X. must be a "scrap gatherer," who rain he must first go to Toronto, then to Ireland, then refer to a sort of an old saying "England's need is Irelands opportunity" in order to make up his invective of disloyalty against the Catholics and the St. Patrick's Society of Peterboro. I do not pretend to justify the proceedings, although a good deal might be said in mitigation. There seems to be distress in Lancashire, and dire distress in Ireland, and the money otherwise expended may be placed to more charitable purposes; but they have thought for themselves. Again, Mr. X refers to the rights of Societies, the recognition of Societies, and the legibility of members, as far as creed, &c. is concerned. Now, supposing the Society of Peterboro to be strictly Catholic, I must again refer him to the Globe of the 6th. But Mr. X. is informed that the St. Patrick's of Peterboro is not open for all Irishmen, according to information which he has received. Now, I must certainly say that Mr. X and his informant are ignorant of the objects of the Society or its rules. Mr. X speaks of the loyalty of R. Catholics, and draws a kind of distinction between the "loyal cities of Derry and Belfast, and the disloyal cities and provinces." So well he may. For if Loyalty consisted of rioting and bloodshed, certainly the first named cities have the majority. But if loyalty consists in obedience to the laws and loyalty to the Queen and country, in every well fought field—if Mr. X. is not ignorant of historical facts—he must say to himself (if he cannot express it in public) that he never saw or heard of an instance of cowardice or disloyalty amongst the Roman Catholics. A few remarks more and I shall leave Mr. X to wallow in his bigotry. Let him not think that the above is written to cringe or try to gain the approval of those who do not see through "green spectacles," as far as loyalty is concerned. I think our laws are sanctioned by Her Majesty through her representative, and he who disobeys these laws shows as truly his disloyalty. The Orangemen of Peterboro (or whatever they may be) showed disloyalty on the 17th March, when they disobeyed the orders of the authorities and made laws for themselves; so in making mob laws (of what you may) for themselves, they proved themselves rebels from the mandates of our Queen and Constitution. And if the hour of need arrived (which I hope in God is far distant) I doubt very much if they would be before their Catholic fellow-countrymen in buckling up their haversacks and shouldering their rifles to defend their homes and country.

Trusting, Mr. Editor, that you will give the above an insertion and excuse me for trespassing so much on your space,

I am, Sir,
Your ob't serv't,
AN OFFICER OF THE SOCIETY.
Peterboro, April 13th, 1863.

Every citizen who is paying enormous rents, and living in unhealthy and cramped apartments in this city, is advised to read the following notice:—$13,000 worth of eligible building lots and farms will be distributed among 600 subscribers on the 31st of May. These lots are at Rosedale; and Messrs. —— have just received a large supply of Bryant's Pulmonic Wafers, for coughs, colds, etc. Only 25 cents a box.

The School Question.

From the Montreal True Witness.

It is strikingly characteristic of the tamper in which the advocates of State-Schools approach this question, and of the logical absurdity of Liberalism, that our opponents never venture to discuss the School Question on its real merits. They always commence by assuming that which is in dispute; and having thus disposed of the arguments of the friends of Freedom of Education, they speedily settle the case to their own entire satisfaction.

The one great question at issue—that which therefore none of our opponents dare to discuss, is this. To whom of right, does the education of the child belong? to the parent or the civil magistrate? to the Family or to the State? All other questions—such as, do the majority of the people of Upper Canada approve of common schools? do these schools encourage the diffusion of education, and tend to promote good will amongst the children therein educated?—are utterly irrelevant. The question which above all others, or rather which alone deserves consideration is this: Has the State the right to supersede the Family?—has the civil magistrate the right to dictate to the father, how, by whom, and with what the children of the latter shall be educated?

Upon the solution of these questions the entire controversy depends. If the State has the right to establish Common Schools, and to compel every father of a family to support those Schools, it must be because education is the legitimate function, not of the Family, but of the State. But if, as we contend, God has confided the education of the child to its parents if He holds them, and not the civil magistrate, responsible, then to them, and to them exclusively, belongs the education of the child; and no human authority has the right, directly or indirectly, to interfere therein.

This is the principle for which we contend—not in the interests of Catholics alone, but of all parents of all denominations: not merely in the interests of revealed religion, high as these interests are, but in the interests of natural liberty. We assert, and in the fullest sense, the absolute right of the father of the family the sole control over all that concerns the education of the child: we deny to the civil magistrate, or "Jack-in-Office," the slightest semblance even of a right to interfere therein: and we base our claims for the parent, and our protest against the interference of the State upon the grounds that the Father of the Family holds his authority from God direct, and rules by "right divine."

And this is the only "right divine" which we will acknowledge in any form of government upon the earth, outside the Catholic Church. As in the XVI. century it was the office of the Catholic controversialist to refute the various doctrine of the "right divine" of kings, so now, in the XIX., it is his task and duty to protest against the still more impious, the still more slavish doctrine of the "right divine" of peoples, and of brute majorities. With all its faults, there was something redeeming, something almost chivalrous and ennobling in the homage which Sovereigns of the XVII. claimed, and which they then often received from their subjects. To bow before a Grand Monarque did not degrade a man, did not make him vile, as does an abject submission to the will of that "people God" or "public opinion" which modern Liberalism has set up in the room of the "King-God" of the Stuarts in England, and of Louis XIV. in France. Both were bad; but of the two, the former is by far the more revolting,—and its worship the more irretrieva ly degrading, and disgusting to the man of honor.

To neither kings nor peoples do we concede any the slightest right to dictate to us in the matter of the education of our children, or to exercise authority within the sacred precincts of the Family. There parent rules supreme, as king, as the vicegerent of God Himself, as responsible to God alone for the manner in which he discharges his sublime functions. Most important amongst these functions, is the education—that is to say the religious, the moral, and the intellectual development of the child. The parent—not the state—is bound to feed the child, to clothe the child, to protect it from the inclemency of the weather, and to a word to minister to all its bodily wants. But above all is he bound to provide for the moral and intellectual wants of the little one, whom he receives at the baptismal font from the hands of the priest—a child of God, an heir of the kingdom of heaven, and for whom therefore God will call him to a strict account. With such a sacred deposit, so solemnly confided to us, and under such grave responsibilities—what care we, what cares any Christian, what cares any parent for to whose soul every noble sentiment has not been spurned out, for that "public opinion" which the Globe, and others of that Liberal stamp, are incessantly urging as a valid argument for "Common Schools?" It is to us but as so much stinking breath; to which we are not only bound to yield any deference, but such as freemen and as Christian parents we are bound to spurn with contempt, while it seems to us to be at variance with the due performance of our sacred functions. We fear not His judgments; therefore we do not fear majorities, therefore we do not stand in any awe of public opinion and its blatant bellowings.

Neither will we ever condescend to discuss the question, whether our objections as parents to the "Common Schools" of Upper Canada are well founded? As parents, we owe no man a reason for our objections to those Schools; we owe no necessary explanations why we will not send our children to them. They may be all that their advocates assert them to be: but, if we as parents, in the exercise of our absolute rights as fathers of families, do not see fit to allow our children to attend those schools, no man has any right to call us to account, or to compel us to pay for their support.

In a word: Education is not the function of the State, but belongs exclusively, and by right divine to the Family, and to those to whom in the plenitude of his parental authority, the father may see fit to confide it. If our adversaries deny this, and if they attempt to defend their position by argument instead of brute force, and bombastic appeals to "public opinion," they must make common cause with, and advocate the fundamental principles of the "communists." They must appeal to the maxims and precedents of the days of Paganism, when the State was all in all, and the individual nothing, except in so far as he contributed to the grandeur or divinity of the State. From this abject social servitude, Christianity, by teaching the value of man as individual, as an immortal soul, redeemed us: to the state of things—the logic of the advocates of State Schoolism, if consistently carried out to its last consequences, would inevitably bring us back. In the same therefore of Christianity and of individual liberty, we utter our protest against Communism and Common Schools.

FIRE.—On Thursday last, three houses owned by the British American Land Company in Sherbrooke were burned down.

LATEST FROM EUROPE.

Arrival of the Glasgow and Africa.

NEW YORK, April 16th.—The steamers Glasgow, from Liverpool 25th and Queenstown 26th, and the Africa, from Liverpool 28th and Queenstown 29th, arrived this morning.

In the House of Lords Lord Strathedon called attention to the expediency of recognizing the Confederates as a step toward peace in showing the North the hopelessness of the effort at conquest.

Earl Russell expressed an anxious desire to do anything in the interest of the case, but dissented from Lord Strathedon's views. He showed the present position of the South to be totally different from other countries when recognition took place. The war was still progressing with the utmost vigor, and a large portion of the Southern territory was still occupied by the North. The British Government considered it their duty at present to stand still and not proceed to any action so decidedly and positively unfriendly to the United States as that of recognition. No doubt, in former times, England had interfered in such cases, but it had ever been on behalf of the independence, freedom and welfare of mankind. He should be sorry, indeed, if the interference of England would ever bear another character, and he hoped her intervention would always be on the side of liberty and the promotion of freedom. He trusted England might be able to continue her neutrality.

Lord Palmerston in the House of Commons said that communications had passed with the Washington Cabinet relative to Mr. Lincoln's proposition for a convention to settle the violation of neutral rights.

The English Government did not object, but there were considerable objections, in matters of detail, to remove.

Mr Bright presented a petition from the Union Emancipation Society of Manchester, calling attention that forty ships were being built under the pretence of being for China, and demanded of the Government watchfulness and its enforcement.

Considerable discussions had occurred in the Confederate loan. Prices on the 24th of April varied from 3¼ to 2 per cent. premium, closing at the latter.

The London Star hears of the probable introduction of a similar loan for twenty millions of pounds. The total bids for the loan exceed eighteen millions.

The Liverpool Chamber of Commerce had debated the action of the New York Chamber of Commerce regarding the Alabama, but the matter was referred to a committee.

The Polish insurgents continued active notwithstanding Langrewitz was held a prisoner by the Austrians. Numerous engagements had taken place with varying results.

London, March 26.—The Steamer Magician, which was captured by the Federals and taken to Key West, has been released, and it is considered by the Federals and believed that the Petershoff will also be liberated on the same warrant.

The evening Herald say that rumors are afloat in some circles that the government at Washington intends laying an embargo on British ships and property as a measure of retaliation for the depredations of the Alabama, and that the embargo will be enforced against British ships and property, without any declaration of war against England. Mr. Seward will, it is said, quote an English precedent for this step, Lord Palmerston having, in the year 1852, blockaded the Dutch coast and laid an embargo on Dutch shipping, without making any declaration of war.

News from Vienna states that Langewitz was still in the citadel of Cracow.

Paris, March 28.—The Moniteur of this morning announces that all the centres of the insurrectionary Cochin China have been dispersed and the fortifications and batteries taken possession of by the French. All resistance by the insurgents has ceased, and but few of our men have been lost in the campaign.

London, March 29.—The Denmark of March 27, says that great lukewarmness action prevails on account of the candidature of Prince William, and that strong objections are raised against it, the succession of the throne of Denmark being restricted to the three sons of Prince Christian.

Consols closed after official hours yesterday at 92¼ to 92¾ for money.

The alarm created by the Peterhoff affair has subsided and the funds are firmer to-day.

The Confederate loan is at 1¼ to 1¾ prem.

Liverpool, March 29, 9 a. m.—The Arabia from Boston arrived to-day.

The seizure of the Peterhoff has caused considerable excitement.

It is rumored that the British West India squadron is to be reinforced.

The Morning Post says there is no ground for alarm. The case of the Alabama has been under discussion in Parliament, and Ministers strongly defended the government.

Liverpool, March 28.—Breadstuffs heavy with a downward tendency. Provisions have had a downward tendency.

London, Saturday evening.—Consols 92¼ to 92¾ for money. The bullion in the bank had increased £477,000.

LATEST COMMERCIAL.—Flour nominal; wheat dull and tending downwards; prices declined 1d. Corn steady at 24s. 3d. to 24s. 6d. for mixed.

A memorial relating to the seizure of the Peterhoff was presented to Earl Russel on the 26th ult. He promised it should be laid before the law officers of the Crown, and receive immediate attention.

It was reported on the 27th ult. that the conduct of Commodore Wilkes had induced the Government to order an addition to the West India fleet. The report caused a decline in the funds.

The Times in an article assumes that a demand for the surrender of the Petrhoff will be complied with as promptly as in the Trent affair, and says the Federal Government loses their dignity by employing Commodore Wilkes.

The Post says that so far as it knows the case of the Peterhoff was not likely to assume an alarming aspect, and if it was not true that an additional force was to be dispatched to the West India waters.

A great meeting of trades-unionists had been held at London. Mr. Bright presided and made a strong speech in favor of the North and emancipation, and denounced the Confederate loan.

Resolutions were adopted, expressing sympathy with the North and negro emancipation.

In the House of Commons, on the 27th, Mr. Foster asked whether the attention of the Government had been directed to the danger to England's friendly relations with the United States, owing to the fitting out of ships of war for the Confederates in English ports, in contravention of the foreign enlistment Act. He renewed the case of the Alabama, and said that the House was bound to inquire into the government's delay in that matter, more especially, as he believed other vessels were fitting out.

The Solicitor General asserted that the charges of the American Government were most unfounded, and warmly defended the British Government, and retorted that the American Government had not always respected neutrality when her own interests were concerned.

Sir T. Baring and Mr. Bright deprecated the remarks of the Solicitor General as calculated to increase the irritation in America. Mr. Laird, builder of the Alabama, maintained that the whole transaction was most open and legitimate.

Mr. Fitzgerald called on the government to prevent the repetition of the Peterhoff case.

Lord Palmerston expressed regret at the tone of some speeches; but it was nevertheless the fact, that when the American Government found itself in difficulty it raised the cry against England to create political capital. It was dangerous for the British Government to overlook fact, and reported that the Government had done all in their power to enforce law. He believed if they had issued the Alabama nothing beyond suspicion could have been found against her. The Government would be glad if there were neither vessels nor diplomatic envoys of the belligerents. He could only assure the House that when grounds upon which the Government would not be allowed to enforce the laws honestly and impartially.

Parliament adjourned for a fortnight over the easter holidays.

Liverpool, March 28.—The following petition had been forwarded to Mr. Foster for presentation.

To the Honorable the Commons of the United Kingdom of Great Britain & Ireland in Parliament Assembled:

The Petition of the Liverpool Emancipation Society respectfully showeth that the steamship Alabama was built and equipped in this port for the purpos Extraordinary Scene in a Court of Justice.

At the Dorchester Assizes, on the 10th ult., Edwin Alfred Preedy was indicted for the wilful murder of Charles Evans, at Portland, on the 8th of September. When called upon to plead, the prisoner said—I did the act, but not intentionally, sir. The Clerk of the Arraigns: You must say "Guilty," or "Not Guilty." Prisoner: If it is a matter of form, I say "Not Guilty," sir. The prisoner was a convict, and had conducted himself with great violence when in prison. Evans was a warder, and on the 8th September the prisoner rushed upon him and stabbed him under the ear. When the prisoner first came to the bar he looked a very herculean young man, but during the evidence he became restless, and sharply asked a question. Immediately after the answer the prisoner threw one leg and arm over the front of the dock, and very nearly succeeded in getting over. Two warders who were in the dock rushed at him and seized him, and other warders jumped into the dock, and a deadly struggle took place, the prisoner kicking, fighting and roaring more like a wild beast than a human being, and it required some ten strong men to hold him. Several had hold of his legs and arms, and some were holding him by the hair of his head. This continued for some minutes, and when it ceased it was only because he was held fast. The ferocity of the man was beyond anything that can well be imagined. He bit his clothes and tore the sleeves of his coat into ribbons. He endeavored to bite those around him, and finding that he could not vent his passion in any one, he bit the wooden bar over the dock, and swallowed the wood. He tried to knock his head against the dock, but was with difficulty prevented. The surgeon of the gaol went to him, and was then called by the Judge, to whom he stated that this was a repetition of what he had seen before in the gaol. His observation would not justify his saying that the prisoner was insane. His opinion was that he was perfectly sensible to all that was going on. The Judge then told the prisoner that the trial should proceed, because the surgeon was of opinion that he knew what was going on. The surgeon asked the prisoner if he knew him. The prisoner—Of course I do; shake hands; you are a friend of mine. The prisoner then began struggling again and was violent. It was only said to the Judge that, as well for the safety of the prisoner as others, it would be better to put irons on him. The Judge said he did not like to do this; but the violence continuing, his Lordship gave way. The prisoner was then forcibly ironed and strapped—certainly as much as any manacle could be; but it was some time before he could be managed on account of his extreme violence. The jury returned a verdict of guilty, and the prisoner was sentenced to death. Preedy, on hearing the sentence, bowed very reverentially. He was then surrounded by officers, five of whom had guarded him, although so menaced that he could scarcely move, and he was removed in quiet.—The trial, it will be noticed, took place on the day of the Royal wedding, and it so happened that at the commencement of the sentence the bells were heard ringing a merry peal, which, however, was put a stop to by the Under-Sheriff.

Remarkable Discovery.

During the past five weeks, a mystery has hung over the fate of Mr John Brough, of Boltby, in the North Riding, who suddenly disappeared, and had not since been heard of. A few nights ago a neighbor dreamt that the body of Brough was in a certain quarry about three miles distant. The dream was mentioned to many, but treated as an absurdity. The dreamer, however could not rid his mind of the impression, and resolved to take his dog and set off to the place to satisfy himself. He was on arrival attracted to a lonely part by the loud barking of the dog, and there found the body of Brough, much decomposed, and with his throat cut, the head being nearly severed. Deceased had apparently pulled off his coat and having rolled up his sleeves, had cut his throat with a newly sharpened knife. He is believed to have been insane, and a jury has returned a verdict to that effect.—Times.

Bread Riot in Richmond.

The N. Y. Herald says:—

The bread riot which took place in Richmond on Thursday is very significant of the condition to which rebeldom is reduced. If the people of that city are compelled to break open the public stores to obtain bread, what must be the state of the inhabitants of those districts which produce but little food and raise mainly cotton or tobacco? Virginia is the most fruitful grain raising State in the South, and is to the Eastern portion of it what Tennessee and Kentucky are to the West, and if the want of food manifests itself in such a demonstrative fashion as to bring out a hungry mob of three thousand women into the streets of the capital, we can readily imagine how dire must be the distress existing in the other States.

Hard on the Minister.—A minister was travelling in the back woods, and copying a cabin, entered on his music a-of mercy. The lady of the house (she being at present at no, and rightly judging his errand) when she perceived him approaching seized the Bible, and when he entered was to all intents busily engaged in perusing the volume. He noticed, however, that she held the book with the letters reversed; or, in other words, upside down. After the usual courtesies, the minister inquired what she was reading. Oh, about the old prophets was the evidently self-satisfactory reply. It is very edifying to read of the sufferings and death of Christ, said the minister. And so that good man is dead—is he? asked the matron, evidently getting interested. Certainly he is. Well that's just the way; I've been a' John a long time to take the papers, but he won't. Everybody in the world might die, an' we got to hear a bit 'bout it, said the woman in a rapid tone. Ah, woman, you are in the dark, said the preacher with elongated face. Yes, I know we are, I've been at John a long time to put a window in the far end of the house, but he won't do that either. I perceive you are weak in knowledge. I know that I am weak, and I guess if you'd had bilious fever and been takin' nauseous an' cataract pills as long as I have, you'd be weak, too! replied the woman in rather an angry tone of voice, and half an octave higher than usual.

Shocking Fate.—A German preacher, named Schildknecht, lost his life near Chicago, on Monday last, under the most painful circumstances. Walking on the track of the C. & R. I. Railroad, he fell into a cattle guard, and being too bulky to pass between the timbers, he became fastened there and unable to extricate himself, with the larger portion of his person above the track. He saw a train coming and screamed for help. His cries brought some men there, but their combined strength was insufficient to push him through or draw him out in time, for the fatal train dashed on and tore the unfortunate man in pieces.—American Paper.

A Federal Captain in search of "Skedaddlers."

[From the Chatham Planet, April 7.]

About a week ago a person of the name of Dumas, formerly a saloon keeper at Detroit, but now a captain in the Federal army, came to Chatham in search of a squad of skedaddling Federal soldiers, with a full confidence that his persuasive powers were sufficient to induce them to leave the Queen's dominions, and once more take up arms in behalf of the cause of Uncle Sam. After a short sojourn in town, and having visited the various rendezvous where the Federal soldiery must do congregate, he managed to light upon some dozen of the gentry, who had given practical evidence of their belief in the old quotation of—

He who fights and runs away,
May live to fight another day.

Of course he at once set himself right earnestly to the task of making himself pleasant with the whole party, and the "Captain" treated to whisky and beer ad libitum. After a few days of this work, then to business. A proposition was made for all heads to go back to the States, and Hope was made to tell a flattering tale—no punishment, better pay than ever, less to do, and land enough to make each recruit a country squire in his own right. Of course all progressed swimmingly, and Captain Dumas was chuckling to himself that these skedaddling fellows had been sold again and he'd got the money. More whisky and beer was called on, and all hands ranged themselves in single file and stood "easy" in front of B——'s bar, and Captain got the agreeable sunday times. On Saturday it was suggested that the boys should take the first train West on Monday. All O. K. says the boys; but about Saturday evening the Captain's purse presented a very emaciated appearance—indeed it was but a shadow of its former self. Its jolly sides which a week ago stuck out like a plum pudding on a Christmas Day, now looked as shrivelled up as a church mouse in Lent time. Yelow boys, half dollars, quarters, dimes greenbacks, and shinplasters all gone—gone—never to return. As a dernier resort, and to save his squad the Captain found some sympathising friend with whom he pawned his watch, and thus realized a sum which he reckoned would suffice to take the crowd down to the far famed "City of the Straits." Monday, of course, was made agreeable to the jolly crew, who wanted to go off on the noon train as pre-arranged. But, no! this would not suit the cautious Captain, he having the fear of being nabbed for recruiting for the American army in British territory, thought it best to wait for the shades of evening to make the exit. To this delay all hands with slight remonstrance agreed and at six p. m. a bounteous "mess" was set out for the company. At seven p. m., with carpet bag in hand and bundles on shoulders, the Captain gave the word "forward" to the station, where, upon arrival, whistles were wet again. Soon the train from the East came up, and all was bustle and excitement. Another drink before leaving Queen Victoria dominions, of course, and another drink it was. By-and bye Mr. Conductor shouts "all aboard," and the Captain shouts "all aboard" too; but to his utter amazement, those he most wished to move stood firm and moved not. Upon the men being warned a second time and not moving, the crowd with one voice declared that "fighting was played out, and they guessed they'd stop awhile longer in Canada, they liked the atmosphere so well." At last the melancholy truth broke in upon the duped Captain's vision, and no doubt he inwardly exclaimed "sold again and lost my money." With these thoughts in his mind, and amidst the jeers of the skedaddlers aforesaid, Captain Dumas jumped aboard the train, the whistle shrieked as if in derision, and the train and the Captain hurried off to the West, and the "full privates" returned to town thinking they had done a good thing.

Singular Tradition.—The Fredericksburg correspondent of the Tallahassee Floridian tells the following strange story:—"While speaking of peace, there is a legend connected with a spring near Fredericksburg which I will relate for the benefit of the curious. According to tradition, this spring was discovered running three months before the revolutionary war. Three months before a treaty of peace it dried up and ceased to run. It commenced running three months before the war of 1813, and three months before its close, as in the revolutionary war, it again dried up, and so with the Mexican war. Three months before the fall of Fort Sumter it again commenced running, and a short time since dried up. I give as my author for this an aged man, who was born and is living near the spring, and who has considerable property, and offers to bet it all that we will have peace in three months from the drying up of the spring."

Garroting in St. Catharines.—On Sunday evening, as a commercial agent from New York was passing the Journal office, Ontario street, he was seized by the arms from behind by some ruffian, while another coolly put his hand into the agent's pocket, and secured his pocket-book, containing $25 in bills. They also took a gold watch and then decamped without the gentleman being able to recognise them. One is described as a tall man, and the other as a short one. The police are on the alert. This is the first case of garroting that has ever occurred in this town.—Journal.

As Susan was sitting alone with her spark, one wintry night, near old Hyde Park, the candle went out, and they sat in the dark. Now Sukey's beau was beat on a lark, and thought to kiss Miss Sue in the dark. But hush! A deep sound rises! Hark! Above the howling winds is a furious bark that strikes on the ear like the bite of a shark. 'Tis but the dog' quoth the amorous spark, and he kissed Miss Sue again but, hark! Again they hear that smothered bark, nearer, clearer, deadlier than the first ba k, a chorus of barks, a din of barks. 'Its the children a coughing' quoth Sue, and she lit the candle and got a bottle of Downs' Elixir, and gave the children a tea-spoonful a-piece which put an end to the uproar like magic; and gave Sue and her beau a chance to spark in peace. Price 25 cts. Sold everywhere.

The Dandy Done.—A dandy was recently walking under the arcades of the Rue de Rivoli, in Paris, holding in his hand a goldheaded cane of splendid workmanship. A man, supported by two crutches came up and asked for alms in a pitiful tone. The dandy moved to pity, gave the beggar a small silver coin. At the same moment a person near him suddenly exclaimed, "How can you, sir, allow that rogue to deceive you? Please lend me your cane, and I will show you that the rascal runs better than I can." The dandy without reflecting, lent his cane. The beggar the moment he perceived it in his detractor's hands threw away his crutches and took to his heels, and was followed by the man with the cane, whilst the spectators, and the dandy particularly, remained in convulsions of laughter at the sight, and exclaiming alternately, "Oh, he will be caught!" "No; he will not be caught!" But both the racing heroes disappeared at the next turning in the street, and their victim remained waiting for his splendid cane, which cost five hundred francs.

The Hartung Case.—Mrs. Hartung, of Albany, N. Y., who was convicted four years ago of the murder of her husband, and who escaped execution by the operation of the suspended capital punishment law of 1861, was declared free on the 26th ult., by the unanimous decision of the Court of Appeals. The point decided was that having once been tried, her life could not again be put in jeopardy.

RELIEF IN TEN MINUTES.
BRYANT'S
PULMONIC WAFERS.
The most certain and speedy remedy ever discovered for all Diseases of the Chest and Lungs, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Consumption, Bronchitis, Influenza, Hoarseness, Difficult breathing, Sore throat &c., &c., &c.

THESE WAFERS give the most instantaneous and perfect relief and when persevered with according to directions, never fail to effect a rapid and lasting cure. Thousands have been restored to perfect health who have tried other means in vain. To all classes and all constitutions they are equally a blessing in a curious case of any despair, no matter how long the disease may have existed, or however severe it may be, provided the organic structure of the vital organs is not hopelessly decayed. Every one afflicted should give them an impartial trial.

To Vocalists and public Speakers, these Wafers are peculiarly valuable; they will in one day remove the most severe occasional hoarseness; and their regular use for a few days will, at all times, increase the power and flexibility of the voice, greatly improving its tone, compass and clearness, for which purpose they are regularly used by many professional vocalists

Birth.

At Peterborough, on the 7th inst., Mrs. Thos. Menzies, of a daughter.

Deaths.

In Otonabee, on Saturday 11th inst., Mary Enmerson, aged 64 years.

At his residence in North Plantagenet, County of Prescott, on the 17th ult., Lieut. Col. John Kearns, at the advanced age of 86. The deceased rose from the ranks, fought at the Irish Rebellion, was in the West Indies in 1802-3. In 1803 he was at the seige and capture of Flussing, and joined Wellington in the Peninsula in 1811; was at the principal engagements there and won honor for his bravery. He was Lieutenant in the 68th Light Infantry. Came to Canada in 1830, settled in the Township he died in. Was active as a magistrate, a warm friend, a kind neighbor and his place will not be easily filled. He was appointed Colonel of Militia in 1837, was two years a member of Parliament, and received, as he deserved, the respect of all who knew him. He was best and universally known as Captain Kearns

THE MAGIC TIME OBSERVER!

The Perfection of Mechanism.

BEING A HUNTING AND OPEN FACE, or Lady or Gentleman's Watch combined. One of the prettiest, most convenient, and decidedly the best and cheapest timepieces for general and reliable use, ever offered. It has within it and connected with its movements its own winding attachment, rendering a key entirely unnecessary. The cases of this Watch are composed of two metals, the outer one being fine 15 carat gold. It has the improved ruby action lever movement, and is warranted an accurate timepiece. Price, superbly engraved, per case of a half dozen, $204.00. Sample Watches, in neat morocco boxes, for those proposing to buy at wholesale, $35, sent by express with bill payable on delivery. Soldiers must remit payment in advance, as we cannot collect from those in the army. Address

ILLUSTRATED SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN!

The Best Mechanical Paper in the World.

EIGHTEENTH YEAR.

VOLUME THE NEW SERIES.

A NEW VOLUME of this popular Journal commences on the first of January. It is published weekly, and every number contains sixteen pages of useful information, and from five to ten original engravings of new inventions and discoveries, all of which are prepared expressly for its columns.

TO THE MECHANIC & MANUFACTURER.

No person engaged in any of the manufacturing pursuits should think of "doing without" the Scientific American. It costs but six cents per week, every number contains from six to ten engravings of new machines and inventions, which cannot be found in any other publication.

TO THE INVENTOR.

The Scientific American is indispensable to every inventor, as it not only contains illustrated descriptions of nearly all the best inventions as they come out, but each number contains an Official List of the Claims of all the Patents issued from the United States Patent Office during the week previous; thus giving a correct history of the progress of inventions in this country. We also receive every week the best scientific journals of Great Britain, France and Germany; thus placing in our possession all the progressive improvements in science and art in the old countries. We continue to transfer to our columns copious extracts from those journals, whereby we may glean of interest to our readers.

A pamphlet of instruction as to the best mode of obtaining Letters Patent on new inventions is furnished gratis on application.

Messrs. Munn & Co. have acted as Patent Solicitors for more than seventeen years, in connection with the publication of the Scientific American, and they have had upwards of 10,000 patents for which they have made applications.

No charge is made for examining Sketches and no fee charged for the preliminary advice of inventors as to their patentability.

CHEMISTS, ARCHITECTS, MILLWRIGHTS AND FARMERS

The Scientific American will be found a most useful journal to each. All the new discoveries in the science of chemistry are given in its columns, and the interest of the architect and engineer is looked after by the publication of inventions and discoveries appertaining to these pursuits being published from week to week. Particular information pertaining to the interests of millwrights and mill-owners will be found in the Scientific American, which information they can not possibly obtain from any other source. Subscribing which forms a most valuable guide will found through the Scientific American; some of which are illustrated in its columns.

TERMS.—Two dollars a year, or One Dollar for three months. Remember that two volumes of the Scientific American commence every year. Specimen copies will be sent gratis to any part of the country. Clubs of ten persons can be supplied with the paper at $1.50 each copy per year. Clubs of twenty persons can be supplied at $1 each copy per year. Single copies can be had at the office of publication, and at all the periodical depots in the United States. Canada subscribers will remit $1 extra on each copy to pay postage.

THE WORLD.

AN INDEPENDENT

Daily, Weekly and Semi-Weekly NEWSPAPER.

IN soliciting for another year a continuance and increase of the favor which in so short a period has given to the World its present rank among American journals—circulation, business patronage, and influence equalled by other journals only after the effort of many years—we renew to our old and new subscribers the promise that no labor nor expense will be spared to make the World what it aims to be,

The Best Newspaper in America.

In politics, now as ever, the World is independent but never neutral. Its only creed is a national one—of which are the corner stones.

The Union, the Constitution, and the Laws, and Freedom of Speech, of the Press, of Political Discussion and Action

The political events of the past year have notably demonstrated the need of an able, fearless conservative press.

Conservative Journal,

in the commercial metropolis of the country, which shall give resistant, bold and vigorous utterance to the conservative sentiments of the best men and the better masses of the nation. Opposing every agency to

The Union,

whether armed in rebellion at the South, or insidiously planting the seeds of disunion at the North.

Opposing every violation of the Constitution,

the only bond and guaranty of union, the only ground upon which we can exhort and compel the allegiance of the South:

Opposing every infraction of

The Laws,

in high place or in low, believing that obedience to Law is service to God:

Opposing every violation of the Freedom of Speech, of the Press, of Political Discussion and Action, by whomsoever those violations are committed, whether by the executive in its

Arbitrary, Illegal, and Unjust Arrests,

its refusal of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus, its denial of the rights and liberties of citizens in a state of siege, or martial law, its imprisonments without trial, its abrogation of state and federal laws, its illegal proclamation of an empty emancipation, or whether those violations are committed by the party in power, its orators and its presses, advocating measures which must sunder the Union for the sake of destroying slavery, and denouncing treason against all their political opponents.

Loyal to the government always, it will give to the administration a hearty and vigorous support whenever and wherever the administration itself is loyal to the bond, the principles, and the purity of the government.

The World will oppose all compromises which would barter away or divide the Union, for which alone the North is waging war; it will oppose peace itself, till the success of the war against the rebellion is certain, and will urge the prosecution of the war with an economy which has not hitherto governed its expenditures, and a vigor which the nation during a year has prayed for in vain.

The same care will be exercised over the columns of the World to exclude everything which could offend public decency or morality, and recourse will always be had to the same high principles as well to guard its columns as to guide its judgment of men and events.

All the News

will be found in the columns of the World from the various departments of human activity,

Political, Agricultural, and Commercial, as well as in Literature, Science and Art.

New Publications, Inventions, Discoveries, and Works of Art will receive the same careful and thorough attention.

The latest and most important news from London, Paris, Turin, Rome, Syria, China, California, Japan, Egypt, and South America, our correspondents will send to us.

Our correspondents are attached to the various divisions of the army; will accompany them wherever they go, and by the free use of the telegraph and the mails, present to the columns of the World

A Complete History of the War,

from day to day, and from month to month.

In the Weekly and Semi-Weekly editions of the World, especially, large space will be given to

Agriculture,

and to all departments of

Manufacturing and Mechanical Industry.

The Weekly World will contain an admirable serial story during the current year

THE DAILY WORLD.

The Daily World is the most complete Commercial and News Paper published in America. Besides as full telegraph news, war correspondence, and foreign news, &c., as any two can daily, it contains much fuller commercial and Ship News, Produce and Cattle Market reports, Foreign and Domestic Importations, Stock Lists, and Commercial news, no business man can do without.

TERMS (INVARIABLE IN ADVANCE):

One copy for one year, $3.
Four copies for one year, $10.
For a club of ten copies an extra copy will be sent for one year.

THE SEMI-WEEKLY WORLD.

The Semi-Weekly World is a large quarto sheet, same size as the daily, containing all its news correspondence, miscellany and editorials, its commercial and market news, and entertaining selections and miscellaneous reading. Its cattle market and provision reports make it highly valuable to every farmer.

For a club of twenty copies, a copy of the daily for one year.

For a club of fifty copies, the daily, weekly, and semi-weekly for one year each.

THE WEEKLY WORLD.

The Weekly World contains the leading editorials of the daily, and a copious summary of all the news of the week up to the hour of publication. It is the best weekly paper published in this country or there found such full commercial and market reports and general news intelligence, combined with so much editorial matter and variety of miscellaneous reading as the Weekly World.

Published Thursday.

TERMS.

One copy for one year.....$2 00
Ten copies, and one copy for one year.....16 00

EMPLOYMENT.

THE Undersigned has, for several years past, been engaged in a business, which has yielded him at the rate of three thousand dollars per annum, and is now willing to teach it to others. The business is of a highly genteel and general character, adapted both to cities and villages, and one that any person of ordinary capacity, young or old, male or female, can acquire with a few hours' practice, and by which they can secure a very handsome income. Several young ladies who have received instructions from me, both in New York State and Pennsylvania, are earning upwards of $15 per week by it, and there is no reason why any one else cannot do the same. Invalids, or those who are by any means confined to sedentary employments, will find it particularly suitable. Gentleman and ladies of leisure who would like to increase the business of their establishment or pleasure, will find the practice of it a pleasant pastime, and one that they will take great interest in. On receipt of $1, I will send printed instructions by which any person can readily acquire the art, and these instructions which contain every particular relative to the carrying it on in all its branches. Address, T. Superintendent of the "printed instructions" will also be authorized to teach it to others; and I have sometimes received as high as $200 for teaching it personally to a single individual. I would state further that $5.50 or $3 will buy everything that is necessary to commence the business. Should the article fail to be just as represented you can return them in good order, and I will refund the money. Circulars containing a fuller description will be sent free. Address

ANNUAL MEETING

INVESTIGATION REPORT - DECLARATION OF BONUS.

THE twenty-sixth annual Meeting of this Company was held within the Royal Hotel, Aberdeen on Friday, the 10th April.

Alexander Stronach, Esq., of Drumallan, Chairman of the Ordinary Directors, in the Chair.

There were submitted to the meeting—

1.—Report by the Directors, which, on the motion of the Chairman, was cordially and unanimously approved of and adopted.

2.—The balance Sheet for the past year, with detailed statements relative thereto, duly certified as correct, in terms of the Act of Incorporation, by the Chairman and Manager, and also by the Auditor.

There was also laid on the Table the various Valuation States in connection with the Quinquennial Investigation into the state of the Company's affairs, as at 31st January, 1863.

The following particulars derived from the Balance Sheet and States beforementioned, show the result of the operations of the Company for the past year:—

Amount proposed for Life Assurance during the year, contained in 1189 Proposal	£454,835 0 0
Amount of Proposals accepted, and for which 981 Policies were issued	359,980 0 0
ANNUAL PREMIUMS on said Policies	11,179 1 10
CLAIMS BY DEATH, including BONUSES on PARTICIPATOR POLICIES, and after deducting Sums recovered from other Offices under guarantees	12,980 1 0
TOTAL SUM Assured under 4,733 current LIFE POLICIES	1,955,96 0 0
TOTAL ACCUMULATED FUNDS	373,563 3 2
TOTAL ANNUAL REVENUE	96,154 4 4

With reference to the recent investigation into the state of the Company's affairs, as at 31st January last, the Report States that both the principles of valuation and the details thereof, had been submitted to James John Downes, Esq., Actuary to the Economic Life Office in London, a gentleman well known as one of the highest authorities on such subjects in the kingdom, and had received his entire approval, as having been made on just and sound principles, and accurately carried out as certified in his report to the Directors, which is formed part of the Appendix to their Report. That as the Directors considered could not fail to give the utmost confidence—both to the shareholders and the Policyholders—in the soundness and correctness of the valuation.

During the Quinquennial period, the claims by death, including the bonus additions which had been paid, and which had been considerably under the number that might have been expected from the Mortality Tables on which the Office rates are based, amounting to £302,875 os 6d.

In valuing the Policies, each had been separately calculated, and nett premiums had only been used, thus leaving a surplus of annual revenue of £11,471 10s 7d, to meet future expenses and to form a source of profit for next investigation. The total amount of claims by death paid since the commencement of the Company, was £217,871 4s.

The Securities held by the Company were in a satisfactory position, and had been recently carefully scrutinized in detail by the Directors.

In conclusion, the Directors congratulated both the Proprietors and the Assured on the high position which the Company now occupied in the estimation of the public, and on the encouraging prospect of its business operations for the future.

DECLARATION OF BONUS.

From the profits realised on the Life business, a retrospective Bonus of £1 3s 6d per cent per annum for the Quinquennial period was declared, on the sums originally assured under all Participating Policies, increased by the previous additions thereto; also a further prospective Bonus of £1 per cent per annum, on the amount of the Policies with said Bonuses, on all such of said Policies as may become claims by Death previously to the 31st January, 1867.

It will be observed, that this rate of Bonus is equivalent in the case of our older Policies to £1 14s per cent per annum, on the original sum assured: that the total additions to the sum assured, now realised, are equal to 33 per cent on the sum assured: and that as the younger ages the additions amount to upwards of 75 per cent of the premiums paid.

Statement showing the Progress of the Company's Business during the Quinquennial Period, ending 31st January, 1863:

Year ending 31st January.	Amounts proposed for Assurance.	Amount of New Policies Issued.	No. of Policies Issued.	No. of Policies Declined, Postponed, &c.	No. of Policies in force.	New Annual Premiums.	Total Revenue in each year.	Accumulated Funds.

FINKLE & LYON

SEWING MACHINE COMPANY.

538 Broadway, New York.

TO parties little acquainted with the Finkle & Lyon Sewing Machines the careful perusal of the Company's Circular is specially commended. This circular can be had on application. It is very specific, and will be found highly instructive, having been prepared with much care and we will abide by all statements therein made.

The following brief quotation is characteristic of the entire Circular:

"This Machine is better adapted than any other Sewing Machine in market to the frequent changes and almost endless variety of sewing required in a family, for it will sew from one to twenty thicknesses of Muscelles without stopping, and make every stitch perfect. Will sew from the finest cambric to the heaviest cloth, and even the stoutest harness leather, without changing the feed needle or tension, or making any adjustment of machine whatever."

"Thus have we successfully overcome the most difficult point in the Sewing Machine art. It was no ordinary triumph. Defunkly can we now say, 'No other Machine compares with it in this respect.' Hence, have we uniformly—almost without exception—taken the highest premium, wherever the Machine has been properly exhibited in competition with other first class Sewing Machines. Hence it is that we are able to offer the following guarantee, viz.:

"We warrant every Machine we sell to give perfect satisfaction than any other Sewing Machine in the market, or money refunded. We never sell a Machine on any other terms. This guarantee is as reliable as the note of any business man in the land. For more than five years have we relied upon such facts for the reputation of our Machine; and without a single travelling agent in the field, there is scarcely a neighborhood on the continent where the Machine is not favourably known. We prefer such a reputation to one based on mere "talking points," as they are technically called in the trade. Hence we make but one kind of stitch, viz., the lock-stitch, alike on both sides, requiring but one-third the thread of other kinds of stitches.

N.B.—Local Agents wanted in every county throughout the West. ☞ Special inducements offered.
